Alert Hook and Ladder Company, Cyclone Engine and Hose Company, No. 2, and Rhode Island Steam and Fire Engine Company, No. 1 members to the number of more than fifty, attended the fair of Johnston Hose Company, No. 3, in Fireman's hall, Manton, Saturday night. The firemen made the trip by automobiles and report a most pleasant evening at the dance and fair, which comes to a close Monday evening. On the return trip the "Trial Run" went some eleven miles off its course. After satisfying some of the local inhabitants that although in blue uniform and bras buttons that they were not police officials and simply fire boys from Westerly, the party headed by Chief Egger were given proper directions and arrived without further adventure.

The congested street traffic due to numerous automobiles is most noticeable on Saturday evenings in Westerly and Pawcatuck. An automobile without a driver parked on car tracks, West Broad street, caused an unusual jam before Patrolman Connors was able to have the machine moved and electric cars and automobiles again in motion.

Considerable progress is being made on the extension to the wharf of the William Clark mill, American Thread Co. Spiles have been driven on the east and north sides of the three foot extension and now the cap log and planking will be added. The next case was Charles S. Taylor vs. William E. Cook in which suit was brought to recover $400 damages in connection with an automobile collision September 26th, 1922 on High street. After the jury was impaneled they went to the scene of the accident to take a view, which was near the High street bridge. Location of the pole which the Taylor car ran into was fixed almost by Perry, an auto insurance specified to damages submitted by automobile. Officer Michael Curtin testified that he was summoned to the scene of the accident at 7.30 a. m. by a telephone calle from Mr. Phillips of the Westerly Lumber Co., and made measurements of the tracks upon the forged, damp ground. Stephen De Perry's description brought from the judge to Attorney Ledwidge, "Perhaps you can make a diagram." Without being qualified as an expert in art Attorney Ledwidge submitted a drawing which was closely viewed by the bench, bar and jury and admitted as evidence.

FAITH OF OUR FATHERS.

In returning, shall ye be saved. Is. 30: 10.

Return, Blest Days of Faith, return!
The world, alas! more worldly grows,
Fiercely its crackling fagots burn,
No peace of mind it knows.

Its shallow sophistries bring curse,
Realities eternal, lost!
Ideals but shift from bad to worse,
Souls fail to "count the cost."

Invisible, yet forever stand
The verities of Hope and Faith.
Foundations for God's Temple, grand,
In His own Word He saith.

The New Age, thus returned, will prove
Those earliest faiths of men sublime,
Who builded on Redemption Love,
Majestic, for all time!

Faiths of those Holy Men of God
Who for Him counted gain but loss:—
Red paths of martyrdom they trod
For Christ, His Truth, His Cross.

Return, return, O glorious days!
When souls in faith believed and wrought
Great deeds that filled wide earth with praise
And set world thrones at nought.
—Rev. George G. Phipps, in Boston Transcript.

THE VIOLET.

O faint, delicious, spring-time violet!
Thine odor, like a key,
Turns noiselessly in memory's wards to let
A thought of sorrow free.

The breath of distant fields upon my brow
Blows through that open door
The sound of wind-borne bells, more sweet and low,
And sadder than of yore.

It comes afar, from that beloved place,
And that beloved hour,
When life hung ripening in love's golden grace,
Like grapes above a bower.

The lark sings o'er my head
Drowned in the sky—O pass, ye visions, pass!
I would that I were dead!

Why hast thou opened that forbidden door,
From which I ever flee?
O vanish Joy! O Love, that art no more,
Let my vexed spirit be!

O violet! thy odor through my brain
Hath searched, and stung to grief
This sunny day, as if a curse did stain
Thy velvet leaf
—William Wetmore Story, in Indianapolis News.

A very absent-minded man was dining out. "My daughter, you know," said his hostess, "married a struggling man. Life has been one long struggle for them, too, ever since."

"Perhaps he'll get away one day," answered the absent-minded man.

"Has that young Thingmajigger person proposed to you yet?"

"No, mamma, but don't worry; he's going to teach me to drive his car, and if he doesn't grab me pretty soon I'll start for a ditch!"—Khaki Call.

"I can't do a thing with Jones," said the manager. "I've had him in three departments, and he dozes all day long."

POETRY FOR THE WIDE-AWAKES

My Ambition.

I'd like to be the feller leads a big brass band,
Tat—tat—ratty—tat—tat!
The band would start a-playing when I waved my hand,
Tat—tat—ratty—tat—tat!
I'd tap my stick and wave it 'round and fiercely shake my head,
And then I'd bow when folks would clap, to see how well I led.

I'd like to be the feller plays a clar-i-net.
Toot—toot!—tooty!—toot—toot!
I guess that I could play that funny thing, you bet.
Toot—toot!—tooty!—toot—toot!
My fingers chasing up and down, I'd simply make it sing,
The rafters in the meeting house with echoes sweet would ring.

I'd like to be the feller plays a big bass drum.
Boom! — boom! — booma! — boom! boom!
I'll betcha if I had the job I'd make things hum.
Boom! — boom! — booma! — boom! boom!
I'd pound so you could hear it beating miles and miles away!
I'd keep up endless rub-a-dubbing all the live-long day.

I'd rather be the feller blows the big brass horn.
Oomph!—oomph!—oomph!—oomph! oomph!
Oomph!—oomph!—oomph!—oomph! oomph!
I'd like to puff my cheeks way out and look so big and grand:
Aw gee! I'd like to be a player in a big brass band!

A Mortifying Mistake.

I studied my tables over and over, and backward and forward, too;
But I couldn't remember six times nine, and I didn't know what to do.
Till sister told me to play with my doll, and not to bother my head;
"If you call her Fifty-four for a while, you'll learn it by heart," she said.

So I took my favorite, Mary Ann—though I thought 'twas a dreadful shame
To give such a perfectly lovely child such a perfectly horrible name—
And I called her my dear little Fifty-four a hundred times till I knew
The answer of six times nine as well as the answer of two times two.

Next day Elizabeth Wigglesworth, who always acts so proud,
Said "Six times nine is fifty-two," and I nearly laughed aloud!
But I wished I hadn't when teacher said, "Now, Dorothy, tell if you can."
For I thought of my doll, and—sakes alive!—I answered "Mary Ann!"

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE-AWAKES.

Some children, especially boys, take particular delight at this season of the year in hunting birds' nests and eggs. Now hunting nests and eggs is all right, provided they are not disturbed, but it is all wrong if the nests are torn from their delicate fastenings and destroyed and if the tiny eggs are broken and smashed.

The bird's nest is its home just as much as the house you live in is your home. It takes the birds a long time to build their homes. Every straw, piece of twine and stick has to be carried by the birds to the tree and then woven to form the nest in which the eggs are to be laid and the young birds hatched.

You wouldn't want to have someone rip and tear down your home and leave it a mass of ruins, would you? If anyone did that, you would think he was a pretty mean sort of person, wouldn't you? It is just as much a calamity to the birds to have their nests destroyed as it would be for you if your home was pulled down.

The little nests which the birds build with so much labor and patience should not be pulled down, robbed and plundered. The birds are our friends and they should be protected and encouraged instead of frightened away or discouraged.

Perhaps you will be interested to read what one authority on birds has to say about our feathered friends. He says:

"If birds should disappear, within a very few years weeds would multiply a thousandfold and whole countrysides would be eaten up by devouring insects. By eating insects, beetles, bugs, worms, flies, caterpillars and weed seeds, our birds prevent the destruction of our crops and fruit trees by these pests."

My First Fish.

Dear Uncle Jed: When I was in Panama, about five years ago, I lived in Balboa. One Fourth of July my brother and I went to visit a friend of ours who lived in Gatun.

Every day while we were there Billy, Teddy and my brother went down to Gatun lake to fish in a little part which was not important. It was very swampy and its inhabitants were alligators.

Billy, Teddy and William each had a fishline, made of a piece of thread and a bent pin for a hook. Their bait was bread, made into a dough with water. Every time they fished they always brought home a string of fish, each about two inches long, and about a yard of them. They were not good to eat, so the boys kept the neighbors' cats well fed. One day I decided to go fishing and try my luck. One of the boys made my line and I got some bait.

The boys were tickled and thought I couldn't get one. So when we came to the water I dropped my line. I didn't have to wait very long when nibble, nibble went my line. I gave it a good pull; up it came with a little fish on it. In a second the fish jumped off of my line into the water.

So I tried again. In a few minutes some more nibbles came. I grew excited and cried "I've got one!" I gave my line a pull, when out it came with a fish on it. I was so happy that I stepped half way off of the small dock, getting my feet wet. In examining my catch I found it to be a catfish about two inches long.

I ran home to show my prize O! but how the boys did roar. But I was contented, showing them I could catch a fish even if it was but two inches long.

A Lonely Wanderer

Dear Wide-Awakes: One cold, frosty morning in January, I was startled by a knock at the kitchen door. On opening it, I beheld a man about sixty years of age. His face was thin and haggard, and there was a look of wistfulness in his mild blue eyes, as he asked for something to eat.

When young, he must have been a well built man of medium stature. No doubt life had dealt harshly with him, for now he was bent and wan. He had a long, white beard, and his silvery hair formed a halo around his head. His clothes, though shabby, were neat and clean.

I asked him to come in, and placed a chair near the fireside, where he could warm his benumbed fingers. I then prepared a substantial and appetizing breakfast, which I set on a small table before him.

When he had finished, he turned to me and said, "Perhaps you would care to hear a little history." I nodded my head, for I was interested in him. He then told his story.

"My parents were wealthy, and being an only child, I was petted and pampered. When 21, I fell into bad companions and brought disgrace to my family. My parents soon died and I squandered all my money. Since then I have been drifting over the globe. Today I am an outcast in a world of hardship."

He thanked me, but refused the shelter I offered him and went his way. I often think of him, and wonder how many more like him are adrift in the world.

A Bad Dream.

Dear Uncle Jed: Once a little boy went into the woods. He went so deep into the woods that he met a snake. The snake ran after him but he didn't know the way home. But still he ran on. Soon he met a man. He thought it was his father. He had a light.

It was a hunter. He shot the gun and the boy thought he shot at him. But he shot at a rabbit. The boy began to cry and ran on. Soon he met a dog. The dog growled at him. He thought that the dog was going to bit him. Soon he met a fairy. The fairy asked him what was the matter. He said that a snake almost bit him and a man almost shot him, and the dog almost bit him, too. The fairy said, "Don't cry." Then the fairy was gone. When he awoke he was glad it was a dream. His mother came in to see what was the matter. He said that he dreamed a bad dream which made him cry.

Mary's Birthday Party

Dear Uncle Jed: One day it was Mary's birthday. She was going to have a party. She invited 20 girls. They were all going to give her presents. One little girl was very poor. She could not buy a present for Mary.

She said, "I will not go if I cannot bring a present." One day she was in the woods. She was trying to get some flowers, but it was too late for flowers. She went home again. There she met a fairy. The fairy said, "What is the matter?" The little girl said, "There is going to be a party. I have no present for Mary." The little girl said, "I want some roses for a present. Can you help me?" The fairy called the wind fairies. She said, "Wake up, little rosebuds." But they did not wake up.

The fairy then called the rain fairies. It rained on the roses, but they didn't wake up. Then the fairy called the sun fairies. The sun shone brightly on them. And all of the roses were in bloom. The next day the little girl went to see if there were any roses. When she got there she saw the roses all in bloom. She picked as many as she could.

The next day it was Mary's birthday party. The little girl went to get her party dress on. When she got to Mary's house she was very tired. All of the girls had brought a present. After the party they all played games. When they became tired of playing games they went to the woods to pick flowers. When they got to Mary's house they sat down and told stories.

How Coffe is Grown

Dear Uncle Jed: Coffee is supposed to have first come from Africa. It then spread into Abyssinia and thence to Arabia. The Arabian merchants of that time made efforts to cultivate and commercialize coffee and add it to their spices.

Arabia seemed to be the only country interested enough to raise coffee until 1690. Then some traders brought some to Java and thus coffee spread throughout the warmer parts of the world.

When the young coffee plants are from 16 to 20 inches high, they are transplanted to the plantations. The leaves are a dark green, thick and leathery. The blossoms are white and the fruit is a fleshy green berry, changing to a yellow tint, then red and finally to a dark red or purple.

After the berries are picked they are sent to the headquarters of the plantations where they are put into sluice boxes and the green berries are picked out from the dry ones. The ripe ones are dried. The pulp on the outside can be removed, then the coffee beans are sorted and carried on mules to the seashore and shipped away to the places where they are roasted. Roasting is a process in which great care must be taken. After the blending and roasting have taken place the beans are sorted and packed.

The May Basket

Dear Uncle Jed: Mary, Edith and Elsie live in the country. They are sisters. Every spring, in the beautiful month of May, they have very happy times, hanging May baskets. They make the pretty baskets out of colored paper, and fill them with candy, nuts, or flowers.

When it is almost dark, they go quietly to the house of some playmate, and hang the basket upon the door. Then they knock or ring the bell and run away to hide behind some bush or in some dark corner. The one that gets the May basket runs to find them. If they find them they have a merry time telling stories.

A Picnic

Dear Uncle Jed: One day our school decided to have a picnic. We started about 9.30 a. m. There were about 50 people all together, including children, the teacher and several visitors. We were terribly crowded which made the ride very unpleasant.

The place where we were to have the picnic was at Wolf Den near the town of Pomfret.

After we left the state road we turned and came to a very picturesque country road. Pretty soon the boys spied laurel in bloom. Then out they jumped, stepping on our toes and then in they came and out they went continually. How thankful we were when we stopped.

The boys were off in a jiffy and down the ravine they ran to the den. Some of them tried to be clever, by going in the den, but they soon came out.

After a while we all had a view of the den. Then we had lunch and every body went wherever they wished to amuse themselves. Then after a while, we all went down to the den again to have our picture taken all the boys sprang up and went back to the picnic place. Some of the girls thought a plot was going on so they followed them cautiously. We let them go on ahead for a while. When we came in sight of them, we saw them calmly eating the girls' lunch which they saved to eat after, because they did not finish it before. By the time we came to them not a crumb was left. We were not only disappointed, but it did seem funny.

We enjoyed the remaining time, amusing ourselves.

A Boy Named Bobby.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about a little boy named Bobby. Bobby lived on a farm and had many pets, but was not happy.

One day he went out in the fields to play. "Oh, dear," he sighed, putting down the little kitten he had just carried to the fields, "I wish I had more playmates."

Just then it began to rain and Bobby felt still more unhappy and ran to the house. His mother told him that he might go up in the attic to play and put on some old clothes that his great grandfather had worn when he was a boy.

So Bobby went up in the attic to play. He heard his mother calling, "Bobby," and he came running down. "The rain has stopped," she said. Bobby kissed his mother and ran out to play.

The Glass Mountain.

Dear Uncle Jed: There was once a high mountain of pure glass on top of which stood an enchanted castle. In front of the castle grew a tree bearing golden apples. Anyone who could pick an apple from the tree gained admittance to the castle and there was a princess of surpassing loveliness waiting for some knight to come and release her from the enchantment.

Many knights had tried to climb the mountain, but in vain. Their horses were unable to mount the slippery sides of the steep, high mountain. Many had lost their lives in the attempt. The seven years enchantment was nearly over, when there appeared a youth at the foot of the mountain. He was about to make the ascent on foot and had tied claws to his hands to help him.

When night came he was half way up, and dying of thirst and fatigue. In the darkness he came to the edge of a deep abyss and could not go no further. Exhausted, he law down in a crevice and went to sleep.

An Adventure.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you of an adventure my cousin, her two friends, and I once had.

We were going on a hiking trip. We took some extra clothes and something to eat as we expected to stay all night some place. We had walked about five miles, when we came to a little old house in a wood.

The house must have been about one hundred years old. It had a fence around it. The gate was coming off its hinges. The panes of glass in the windows were dusty, cracked, and broken. One window had only two panes of glass in it.

Laura said it looked as if it were haunted. Alice proposed that we stay there for the night. My cousin, Laura, and I didn't like the idea, but we thought we had better as the sun was setting.

We cooked bacon, potatoes, eggs and coffee and pancakes for supper. We ate our supper, talked for a while and then Alice said, "Come girls, it's high time we were in slumber land."

So we put more wood on the fire, rolled ourselves in blankets and tried to go to sleep. Alice and my cousin were asleep in five minutes.

I stayed awake for about a half hour then I, too, fell asleep. I was awakened by a screeching noise. I sat up but saw nothing. A second scream left me dumbfounded with fright. Then the three other girls awoke. Again and again it came. My cousin cried, "Oh, what is it?"

We were no wiser than she. Laura almost fainted.

Then Alice said, "I'll go and see." We all begged her not to go as she might be risking her life. But she picked up a flash light and started for the door. She soon returned, bringing an old black cat. That was what caused all our fright!

How ashamed we were! We went home in the morning taking pussy with us.

Tobacco.

Dear Uncle Jed: I'm going to tell you about tobacco. In what country tobacco was first grown is not known to a certainty, but when Columbus reached America he found the natives smoking a weed which he learned afterwards was tobacco. Sir Walter Raleigh is sometimes credited with introducing it into England, but it was known there before his name was connected with it. He merely did much towards making it popular. The tobacco plant thrives best in a tropical climate, but is also successfully cultivated in colder climates. It grows best in a sandy soil and old soil produces the sweetest variety.

The plant grown on a new soil, in America has large stems and fibres. The leaves are of a coarse texture, and the tobacco has a bitter taste. Virginia, Kentucky, Maryland and Connecticut grow excellent tobacco, but the best tobacco for cigars comes from Cuba. Next to sugar, tobacco is the most valuable export of Cuba.

Motorboat Went Over Dam.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to the Wide-Awakes. I am going to tell you about an accident that happened. Two men went for a sail in a little motorboat after a heavy rain we had a few weeks ago. They became caught in the current and could not get out, and went over the dam. The dam was one of the largest dams in Connecticut.

When they reached the bottom the boat struck a rock and the rudder was broken off. The men jumped out and swam to shore. The wife of one man was looking out of the window and was badly frightened. They laughed about it afterwards and called it their wild ride over Niagara Falls.

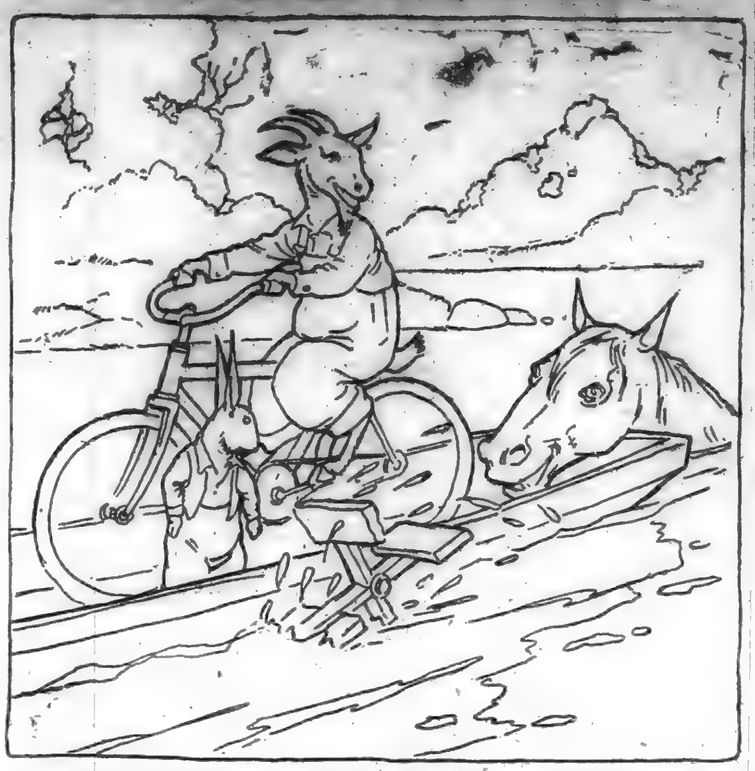
THE LITTLE JACK RABBIT PICTURE FOR COLORING



Do you remember, my dear little friends, that we ended last week's story just as a friendly voice, shouting "I'll help you!" came across the water.

"Do it quick!" gasped the Old Brown Horse as he struggled in the swift current. "I'm all in!"

"Oh, please come at once with a boat or a life preserver!" shouted Little Jack Rabbit. "I can't swim and my dear, old Brown Horse is nearly drowning!"

The next moment, around a bend in the river, came the Billy Goat with his Ferryboat. You remember the ferryboat, don't you? The old rowboat with a bicycle in the middle and wheels with little paddles to push the boat ahead, or backward, which way Captain Billygoat wished to go.

"Oh, hurry, hurry!" shouted the poor, frightened little bunny boy as the Old Brown Horse floundered about in the angry waters, his head at times almost disappearing and his poor hind legs refusing to make another stroke.

"I'm coming—keep up!" shouted back the kind Billy Goat, making his hind legs go so fast that the spray from the paddle wheels almost hid him from view. At last, however, and none too soon, he came alongside the poor, tired horse.

"Quick! Jump in!" shouted the Billy Goat, and in hopped the little rabbit bunny boy.

"Put your head over the back of the boat," cried the Billy Goat to the Old Brown Horse.

Dear me! The poor, old fellow had scarcely enough strength to do even that. At length, however, he began to breathe easier. You see, all he had to do was just hang on and be towed along. Very soon, all the water ran out of his eyes and ears and he felt much better. By the time the ferryboat reached the shore, he was quite frisky, and no sooner did his feet touch the ground, than he turned to the Billy Goat with a laugh.

"You saved me from a watery grave, kind Billy Goat Ferry Man. Some day, I'll do you a friendly deed, if I can."

"Oh, don't mention it!" replied the Billy Goat. "I'd do anything for you and Little Jack Rabbit. Give my regards to the folks at home!" and away paddled the good life saver, in his paddle wheel rowboat, back to the wharf where the little rabbit boys and girls awaited him to take them out sailing to ice cream picnics and lollypop clambakes.

"Now I'll take you home," said the Old Brown Horse. "I'm nicely rested now. I declare, I never thought this river had so swift a current. We had a narrow escape."

"Oh, I was so frightened," said the little rabbit, climbing on the back of the Old Brown Horse. "I thought I'd never see the dear Old Bramble Patch again. I want to get home to mother."

As they neared the Old Bramble Patch, they saw Lady Love standing at the gate, shading her eyes with her front paw.

"Home again, my little bunny. Come and eat your bread and honey. You have been away all day. Now with mother you may stay."

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

RABBITS CAN KICK.

A very wise bird is he.
He opens his book and takes a little look
At page number one, two, three.

"Listen, Little Jack Rabbit," he said in a solemn voice.
"I'm listening," said Little Jack Rabbit, wiggling his little pink nose and holding his right paw behind his left ear.
"Dogs delight to bark and bite,
But little rabbits never,"
read the old black bird. Then he closed his book and after wiping his spectacles, flew away, and the little rabbit hopped over the grassy floor of the Shady Forest until by and by, not so very far, he met Old Grandmother Magpie busily sewing a button on a pink gingham apron.

"What are you doing?" she asked.

"What are you doing?" asked that meddlesome old bird, looking at the little rabbit with her sharp black eyes.

"Nothing in particular," replied the little bunny. "I just met Professor Crow who read me something out of his little wisdom book.

"Oh, he did, did he?" replied the Old black lady bird, "and what was it?"

The little rabbit repeated the verse very nicely, but Old Mother Mischief, as she is sometimes called began to laugh.

"Well," she said, "we all know that rabbits don't bite."

"But they can kick with their hind legs," answered the little bunny, and then, all of a sudden, out popped Old Man Weasel.

Dear me! there was no time for Little Jack Rabbit to hop away, so, letting fly his strong little hind legs, he hit that wicked weasel such a whack that he rolled over three times and a half on his back and before he could pick himself up, the nimble little bunny was safe at home in the dear Old Bramble Patch where Lady Love, his pretty little rabbit mother stood waiting for her little boy at the tiny gate in the white picket fence.

"I'm glad you were quick enough," she said, "for Old Man Weasel might have bitten a dreadful hole in my little bunny boy's head." That is what weasels do, you know. They bite a hole in a rabbit or chicken's head and suck the blood. Isn't that dreadful?

After a shiver or two or maybe three, the little rabbit boy went to the telephone and told dead Uncle Lucky, his rabbit uncle, all about it.

"I'll be right over in the Luckymobile," shouted Uncle Lucky all excited and in the next story I'll tell you something more about Little Jack Rabbit and his friends.

THE BOY THAT FAILED

FATHER had planned a brilliant future for him. Mother's high hopes for his success were supported ably by her everlasting faith in him.

But the boy was a bitter disappointment. He was being outdistanced steadily by his schoolmates, was dull, listless all the time, "felt sick" most of the time, never had "pep" for play nor ambition for his future.

Father had about given him up. Poor mother's heartstrings were nearing the breaking point. Evidently, it was not to be.

Then an old friend of the family—a man successful in every sense—came to the boy's rescue. Today, the father is proud of the boy who is indeed a joy to his mother.

It was simply a case of poor digestion, sluggish liver and constipation gradually dulling the senses and poisoning the system.

Knowing from experience that Beecham's Pills were harmless as well as efficient, the old friend suggested them. They made the boy well—as they have been of other children, and grown-ups, too, who suffered from like disorders.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

SATURDAY'S MARKET

New York, May 19.—Hammering by speculators for the decline in today's brief session of the stock market resulted in the establishment of new low prices by a score of representative stocks and brought about a new low average of $4.70 in a list of 20 important industrials. The market again was a dull affair, the bulk of the trading being transacted in the first hour.

A sharp rally at the close carried many weak shares a point or more above their low points of the day, but was not sufficient to show gains over the final quotations yesterday. California Petroleum was strong from the start, rising nearly 3 points, due undoubtedly to publication of an impressive quarterly earnings statement and this bullish factor is believed responsible for widespread short covering operations in the final hour.

U. S. Steel again sagged to a new low price for the year at 9 5-8 rallying later to 97 where it closed 1-4 a point off on the day. Other steels which dropped to minimum prices for the year included Crucible and Great Northern Ore.

Selling pressure again forced recessions of 1 to 5 points in many representative issues, new low marks being recorded among others by Central Leather, common and preferred.

American Hide and Leather preferred, Studebaker, Kelly Springfield, Goodrich, Ajax, American Agricultural Chemical, Davison Chemical, Virginia Carolina Chemical preferred, American Woolen, Cluett-Peabody, American Sugar, Austin-Nichols, Postum Cereal, International Harvester, Montgomery Ward, American Tobacco, Famous Players, Allis Chalmers, National Lead, Westinghouse Electric and the Foundation Company.

Allied Chemical forced down yesterday along with the others in the fertilizer-cotton group, rebounded today selling most of the morning about 3 points higher and closing 1 1-2 above Friday's quotation.

The feature of the foreign exchange market was the decline of German marks to .0013 3-4 a new low record for all time. Other European rates moved upward slightly, demand sterling rising 1-2 a point to $4.63 5-8 and French francs 1-4 of a point to 6.66 cents.

The weekly clearing house statement an increase of $37,124,000 loans, discounts and investments. Reserve of member banks in the federal reserve bank increased $2,694,000 while cash in vaults decreased $2,059,000. Net demand deposits increased $5,460,000 and time deposits $12,491,000. Aggregate reserve totaled $512,155,000, leaving an excess reserve of $10,720,410 an increase of $3,242,490 over that of a week ago.

R. R. Barber calls to mind the fact that thirty-five years on May 16 there was a frost that killed his potatoes which were growing in the field and he was obliged to plant them over. In recent years one would not find many potatoes above ground at that date but seasons seem to have changed in the past forty years.

A great deal of planting used to be done in April and a few farmers made a practice of putting in a few potatoes in March each year, something that would be impossible now.

Nine children from the Willimantic Salvation Army furnished the last part of the evening's program and under the direction of Mrs. Ingersoll and Mrs. Kenyon gave a varied program of songs, exercises and a fine flag drill all receiving generous applause. Following the entertainment ice cream and cake were on sale.

The men's club met at the church vestry again on Tuesday evening and had under discussion a timely topic: "Electric Lights". The result was that a committee was appointed to see if a line could be extended to Chaplin as a good number would like to have electric lights in their homes.

ANDOVER

The Ladies held a Mothers and Daughters banquet in the Town Hall Thursday evening, May 17th. There were 150 present. A supper was served and also ice cream and fancy cookies and after the supper there was an entertainment in which several took part. A piano solo was rendered by Mrs. Elsie Talbot, also a song by Mrs. Talbot and daughter, Elsie, a song by Miss Helen Jewett, songs by several of the girls of the school. A quartette comprising Helen Jewett, Ida Hamilton, Miss Randall and Mrs. Talbot gave several selections. A recitation by Mrs. Charles Wright and one by Mrs. George Nelson proved very entertaining.

NORWICH TOWN

At the regular meeting of Troop No. 20, Boy Scouts of Norwich Town, Friday evening in the First Congregational chapel, Scout Executive Frederick A. Benton was assisted by Scout Master Frederic H. Wyant, also Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey and Henry T. Frazier, the two latter representing the scout committee, in the investure of 11 tenderfoot scouts, 3 second class and 1 first class scout.

The ceremony consisted of a table on which were placed 15 candles, 12 of them forming a triangle representing the 12 scout laws, the other 3 candles in the center signifying the tribunal oath.

Arranged on either side were four scouts forming the two sides of the triangle. The 11 tenderfoot scouts were then led in and formed a semicircle facing the table, between the scouts forming the triangle. Scout Executive Benton then questioned the boys as to their willingness to pledge allegiance to the order. After the candidates had stood at a scout salute and take the oath, the scouts forming the triangle alternately repeated one of the 12 laws and lighted a candle, until all the laws had been repeated.

Having pledged themselves to abide by these laws, Scout Executive Benton briefly addressed the candidates in which he tried to impress upon their minds the serious side of the step they had taken.

Following this, the 3 second class and 1 first class scouts were awarded their badges for the studies they had passed, also given a word of congratulation for the work they had done, as well as a word of encouragement to continue their efforts.

Rev. Mr. Bailey then addressed the scouts, by calling their attention to the fact that each lighted candle was symbolic of something good to be attained. In pledging themselves to be better Christians, they would surely make better citizens. Rev. Mr. Bailey further stated that he deemed it a pleasure to be invited to lend his aid in this community to this end.

Scout Master Wyant having been called upon, after addressing the chair, said: I am afraid the boys have heard me talk too much during their scout work and study period and for that reason I will only try to impress upon their minds the fact that I am proud of their accomplishments thus far, and am quite sure that their continued interest will establish them a credit to the scout movement.

Henry T. Frazier, president of the Norwich Town Men's League, pledged the support of the league to this newly organized troop of scouts.

The meeting which was scheduled for 7 o'clock was delayed until 8.30 because of a call for help for a forest fire on the Canterbury road. The call came about 7:30, about the time the boys were preparing to make ready for the meeting. After their faithful efforts in rendering their share in extinguishing the fire, the Norwich Town boys and their leaders assembled in the chapel.

As the young men lined up for the ceremonies they presented rather an unusual picture with their faces all smudge from the smoke. This was the third serious forest fire the Norwich Town troop has assisted in. A pleasant feature at the close was a social half hour during which several kinds of cake and cocoa were served.

The Mohegan Trail Circuit league held their May meeting in the First Methodist Episcopal church at Norwich Town last Friday evening.

The meeting was opened by singing "He Leadeth Me" which was followed by prayer by Rev. J. B. Aldrich, pastor of the church. Lewis E. Aldrich, president of the Norwich Town Christian Endeavor gave a short welcome speech to the visiting leaguers. The meeting then was turned over to Fred Smith of New London, president of the circuit.

The different reports were read and showed the society was in good condition. A committee reported a set of plans for a contest which was presented to the leagues. It was voted to have the plans for the consideration of the new cabinet to bring in the full plans at the fall meeting.

The nominating committee then read their report and the following were elected to serve as officers for a term of two years: President, Channing Morrell of Willimantic; vice president, Fred Smith of New London; secretary, Miss Isabel Shearer of Norwich; treasurer, Miss Margaret Ungerer of Uncasville.

The secretary called the roll of the leagues and each reported the number present from their chapter. They were: Noank 13, Mystic 42, New London 28, Norwich Trinity 10, Uncasville 20, South Coventry 15, Willimantic 53, Gales Ferry 15, and Westerly, R. I., 1. Baltic and Niantic were not represented.

Mystic was awarded the banner for having the largest percentage of their members present. They came 100 per cent strong. Their roll of members is 30 and they had every member of their society and 12 who were members of their church but not of the Epworth league present.

The total attendance at the meeting, including the members of the entertaining society, was nearly three hundred.

The social committee of the Norwich Town C. E. served refreshments of salads, rolls, cake and coffee. The rest of the evening was given over to the playing of games on Huntington Green in front of the church.

The September meeting of the circuit is to be held in Mystic.

RESCUES MAN WHO TRIED SUICIDE BY JUMPING INTO SHETUCKET RIVER

Patrick Walsh, 49, employed at the woolen mill of Joseph Hall & Son at Trading Cove, sprang into the hero class Sunday afternoon about 4 o'clock when he rescued Anthony Whitman from drowning in a suicide attempt in the Shetucket river at the foot of Rose place.

Whitman was floundering in the water about 15 feet out from the Rose place dock, from which he had jumped, when he was seen by Walsh, who went overboard after the drowning man without stopping to take off shoes or clothing. He is a strong swimmer and reached Whitman without difficulty but had quite a struggle to get him back to the Rose place dock. There the two men clung to a spile.

Meanwhile Officer Barney Keenan had hurried from Franklin square and had secured a ladder which was in Rose place alongside the Preston Bros. store. By the use of the ladder Officer Keenan managed to get the two dripping men up onto the dock from which they were taken to ponce headquarters in the motor patrol wagon.

At police headquarters Whitman cried and talked wildly about everybody being against him and he wanted to commit suicide before "they got him". Capt. D. J. Twomey had rescuer and rescued put to bed in the woman's room at police headquarters as they had no dry clothes to put on, and on account of Whitman's condition called in Dr. A. C. Freeman to give him medical atention.

Late Sunday afternoon Walsh was fitted out with a suit of dry apparel from clothing that had accumulated at police headquarters and left the place feeling none the worse for his experience. Whitman remained all night, but will be able to leave today (Monday.)

Walsh has a mother living in East Hartford and a brother in Springfield. Whitman, who is a native of Lithuania, has been in this city for about six months, coming here from New York.

SWEDISH CHURCH PASTOR AT Y. M. C. A. MEETING

At the 4 o'clock rally at the Y. M. C. A. Sunday special music was furnished by Miss Mary Gray, vocal soloist and Miss Hazel Banfield, pianist. The selections were greatly enjoyed. Two reels of moving pictures were shown, one a scenic reel, and the other a scientific reel on a study of the moon, which were full of interest.

The opening exercises included the singing of hymns, scripture reading and prayer.

Between the reels Rev. H. L. Johnson, the new pastor of the Swedish Lutheran church, interested the audience with a brief talk, and among other things he emphasized the need of adherence to the Sabbath observance and the spirit of the early Christians. He spoke of Peter who preached such a powerful sermon at Pentecost, when the Holy Spirit moved so mightily upon the people and large numbers were converted. We know, said the speaker, that Peter's preaching was direct and simple, and something the people could easily understand, and that is just the kind of preaching needed today, that the people may fully understand the message. Mr. Johnson urged his hearers to be true to all good institutions such as the Y. M. C. A., which is doing so much good for the community. He especially urged the men to be loyal to the Church of Jesus Christ and to read the Bible and follow its teachings, that they might be of the greatest services to those with whom they come in contact.

The talk was a real inspiration to those present. During the service Victor Tongren offered a brief prayer. Emery H. Davis operated the moving picture machine.

WOMEN'S MISSION CLOSES AND MEN'S RETREAT OPENS

The two weeks' mission being given by priests of the Jesuit order at St. Mary's Memorial church was half completed on Sunday afternoon with the closing of the women's retreat at 3.30 o'clock with fully 900 women present for the closing ceremonies. Perseverance was the parting theme of Rev. John Coveney, S. J., to the women. The women renewed their baptimal vows and Fr. Coveney gave them the papal blessing.

In the evening at 7.30 the men's retreat opened for the week with about 800 men present. Fr. Coveny, S. J., gave a short instruction on the graces of the mission and led in the rosary. The sermon for the evening was on The Value of the Human Soul and was given by Rev. John Walsh, S. J., in a very able manner which held the close attention of his congregation. Benediction of the blessed sacrament was given by Rev. Frederick M. Cohoian. There was congregational singing during the services by the choir, assisted by the congregation, being directed by the organist, Henry J. LaFontaine. The singing will be specially featured during the week. The hymns rendered Sunday evening were Onward, Christian Soldiers, Come, Holy Ghost, Creator Blessed, and Holy God We Praise Thy Name.

The daily masses during the week will be the same as last week, namely, 5, 7 and 8 o'clock. Following the 5 and 8 o'clock masses, a 15 minute instruction on some point of Catholic doctrine will be explained by one of the mission priests. The evening services for the week are at 7.30, with the hearing of confessions starting on Tuesday evening. Rev. William A. Keefe, the pastor, is very much pleased with the manner in which the women turned out and for the successful promise which the men showed Sunday evening. The women and children are privileged only this week to attend the morning masses.

PROGRAMME ON INDIA FOR CHILDREN'S RALLY

The annual childrens' rally of the Eastern Connecticut Branch of the Woman's Board of Foreign Missions was held Saturday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock in the Hugh Henry Osgood Memorial Parish house, over 100 children of the Congregational churches of Eastern Connecticut attending.

The program consisted of an interesting talk on the children of India given by Miss Ruby Phillips of Wellesley. In her talk, Miss Phillips described the life of the children of that far eastern country and described the games played, the schools, dress and habits. Her talk was greatly enjoyed by the children.

Other attractions on the program were the Indian games played by the children of the United Congregational church and the songs of India were sung by the children of Park Congregational church.

TWO MACHINES COLLIDE AT TRADING COVE

A speeding machine with blinding headlights was blamed for an automobile crash about 11.30 Saturday night at Trading Cove in which machines of Thomas J. Pfeiffer of Yantic and of Mr. Wilcox, a fish dealer of this city, were damaged. Both cars were headed towards this city. No one was hurt.

The Pfeiffer Ford coupe was about to pass the Wilcox Ford sedan, which had come to a stop at a point north of the Trading Cove boarding house, when a fast traveling machine loomed up from the opposite direction. According to Mr. Pfeiffer, he had no choice but to hit either the moving machine or the standing car, and he chose the latter. His machine raked the left side of the Wilcox car, continuing on and crossing the sidewalk to the right till it plunged through a fence and came to a stop across an office wall.

The Pfeiffer machine had a front wheel crushed in and the headlights broken. The Wilcox machine had its left mudguards and running board torn off. Both machines were removed to a Norwich garage for repairs.

The machine that is blamed for the accident did not stop.

A distinctive program has been prepared and will consist of instrumental and vocal selections, fancy dancing, and the major attraction is to be the appearance of a master of the art of necromancy who will mystify all with feats beyond the average. The night will be a big one in Odd Fellow history and it is expected that the hall will be filled to capacity for Ladies' Night. To wind up things the banquet committee has arranged for refreshments after the entertainment.

COMPLETED CURB AT CHELSEA PARADE TRIANGLE

The concrete curb around the triangle at the Chelsea parade, laid on orders from the Town of Norwich, has been completed, and is a great improvement to the property. It is upon this triangle that the soldiers' memorial tablet is to be placed, the base already having been set in place.

The committee in charge of the memorial tablet had planned to have it placed in position on Memorial day but recently learned that the manufacturers were rushed with similar orders and could not finish the work on the Norwich tablet in time for Memorial day. Plans are now being made to place the memorial on July 4th, it being likely that the manufacturers can deliver the tablet by this time. If the plans have to be changed again Armistice Day will be selected.

Two Autos and Trolley Crash.

The Cadillac sedan of Charles B. Lee was somewhat damaged Friday afternoon when struck by the motor ice truck of H. B. Bates, which in turn had been bumped by the 4.45 o'clock Tamesville trolley near Hathaway's market.

The driver of the ice truck did not know the trolley was approaching and pulled out from the curb directly in front of it. The truck was thrown over against the Cadillac, driving it onto the sidewalk, crushing in a mudguard and denting the side in several places. The truck was damaged but slightly and the trolley received a broken post and dented fender.

RUNAWAY AUTO WHEEL BREAKS STORE WINDOW

A runaway rear wheel from the machine driven by William C. Blicq, 219 Rockwell street, a foreman in the city water department, crashed into and broke a plate glass window in the store of Robert J. Cochrane, 2 West Main street, Sunday morning about 10 o'clock.

The left rear wheel of the automobile ran off as the machine, traveling westward on Main street, passed the Breed hall corner. The rolling wheel made a beeline for the window in Mr. Cochrane's plumbing store and wrecked the glass. The machine came to a stop when the axle dropped to the surface of the street. The wheel was put back on the machine and Mr. Cochrane had the store window boarded up after the police had notified him of the accident.

GREEKS WILL FIGHT IF THE TURKS PERSIST IN DEMANDS

M. Alexnadris, Greek Foreign Minister, Declares That Greece Has Resolved Not to Pay One Cent of Indemnity—Says Greek Army Has Been Reorganized Since the Overthrow of Constantine—Now Well Equipped and Armed and Able to Take Care of Itself—Greek Delegates Will be Withdrawn From Lausanne Conference This Week if Turkey Holds to Reparation Demands.

Lausanne, May 21.—(By the A. P.)—If Turkey insists on war to settle the question of the indemnity she claims is due from Greece, then Greece will accept the gage of battle, M. Alexandris, the Greek foreign minister, told the foreign correspondents tonight.

The Greek delegates, he added, will be withdrawn from the Near East conference this week if Turkey persists in her reparation demands.

The Turks have given no indication of an intention to recede from their reparation demands, and M. Alexandris' declaration that Greece was resolved not to pay one cent of indemnity brought increased pessimism in conference circles.

The Greek foreign minister denied that he had come to Lausanne in a bellicose mood, but said the Greek army had been reorganized since the overthrow of Constantine, and was now well-equipped and armed and able to take care of itself.

"I think," said he, "if worst comes to the worst the Greek army will be able to defend its honor."

M. Alexandris added that he would like the American people to realize Greece's position, especially that, although Greece had numerous provocations which would reasonably justify her in reopening the war with Turkey, she had ignored them all because she was sincerely desirous of peace.

The seizure by the Turks of the impoverished refugees funds in the banks of Constantinople, continued the foreign minister and the abominable treatment of Greek prisoners of war recently arrived from Asia Minor constituted such provocations. The Greeks and Turks had signed a separate convention at Lausanne in January for the compulsory exchange of populations, with the distinct provision that it should be inoperative before May 1, yet the Turks have sent an additional 70,000 refugees since the signature of the convention, in gross violation of its terms.

The allies, as well as Greece, had protested, but Turkey sent still another boatload of 3,000. The latest provocation, according to M. Alexandris was the steady despatch of Turkish troops into Eastern Thrace, violating the Mudania armistice.

"I have just received a telegram from Athens," he added, "that on Saturday 7,000 additional troops crossed the straits as reinforcements to the Turkish army already mobilized in Thrace."

With reference to possible war, M. Alexandris said: "Turkey seems to feel that Greece was beaten in the war and therefore owes an indemnity. But this is a grave error, as Greece was merely beaten in battle in Asia Minor and hostilities were suspended by an armistice which Greece is trying to transform into peace. But if the Turks propose to resume the war to obtain an indemnity then Greece accepts the challenge.

"My government has determined to retire from the conference next Wednesday or Thursday, when the indemnity question comes up in a plenary session, if Turkey insists upon an unjust position or any effort is made to force Greece to accept this position."

M. Alexandris repeated the Greek contention that Turkey and Greece should mutually renounce reparations as the only possible solution.

The second month of the second conference will open tomorrow in a troubled atmosphere, with none of the great issues settled.

BRICKLAYERS DECLINE ARBITRATION PROPOSALS

New York, May 21.—Union bricklayers employed by the Mason Builders Association, who joined in a walk-out of 7,000 bricklayers today, flouted arbitration proposals and vindicated an agreement to defer strike action until another meeting had been held, officials of the association said tonight. The association employed 1,200 of the strikers.

Prospects of a complete tie-up of $200,000,000 worth of construction within a month if the strikers remain out were seen by employers. The bricklayers demanded $12 a day. Building employers were reported to have offered $10 a day with a bonus amounting to $3 during the present building emergency.

The real purpose of this strike is not the amount of wages," said Frank E. Conover, president of the Mason Builders Association, "it is the attempt to establish the $12 a day as the standard basic rate for a period of two years. It is an attempt to make a 'peak' wage permanent. The strike of course prevented arbitration."

Replying to statements of union officials that conditions made it impossible for bricklayers to work more than 150 days a year, Mr. Conover declared that present conditions were such that winter employment was available. He predicted a "buyers' strike" if building costs mounted further.

Fred T. Young, chairman of the arbitration board of the association, declared that arbitration proposals had been made by the employers had been rejected by the men. They said that agreement for higher wages for a period of future years would "throttle new building projects."

Strikers reported that walking delegates who called them off the jobs today had urged them to seek work in the Bronx, Brooklyn and in New Jersey.

CONTESTING WILL OF MISS EMILY HOWLAND BOURNE

New York, May 21—Trial of the contest of the will of Miss Emily Howland Bourne, who died at her home here recently, was begun before Surrogate Foley today. The contest was brought by a niece, Helen Merriman, of Providence, R. I., who claims her aunt was unduly influenced by Mrs. Emily Bourne Michler, another niece of Greenwich, Conn., to whom $250,000 was left. Miss Merriman received only $10,800.

Besides this Miss Bourne left a trust fund of $25,000 to her brother, former United States Senator Jonathan Bourne, of Oregon, which after his death will be used to erect a monument to his memory in Portland, Oregon.

Many charitable bequests were made in the will to local organizations.

Washington, May 21—The actual signing of the Anglo-American debt settlement appeared to be near today as the result of a meeting of the American debt commission which gave consideration of the latest suggestion by the British government for alterations in details of the agreement. A treasury spokesman said after the meeting that nothing objectionable to this government had been found in the British proposal.

IDENTIFIED AS MURDERER OF MRS. SERAFINA GARRATO

Saranac Lake, N. Y., May 21.—Carmine Itri was identified by New York city detectives today as the man who shot and killed Mrs. Serafina Garrato and wounded her husband on Oct. 15 last, at Woodhaven, L. I. Later, at a hearing before District Attorney Harold L. Main of Franklin County, Itri admitted his identity.

The Italian was arrested by Saranac Lake police after having been traced here when a trunk was shipped to him. He will be taken to New York tonight.

FIVE OF ONE FAMILY KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Franklin, Ohio, May 21.—Five members of the household of Bert Williams met instant death and another man was probably fatally injured late today at Carlisle, two miles west of here, when Baltimore and Ohio passenger train No. 64 crashed into a truck which was moving the Williams family from Franklin to a new home in Germantown. Another man escaped serious injury.

The dead: Mrs. Margaret Williams, 53; Sarah Williams, 13; daughter of Mrs. Williams; Mrs. Lela Williams, 20, a daughter-in-law, and her two children, Mary Louise, 3, a baby boy, four months old.

The injured:

Solen Kindred, 50, bruised and cut.

The two women and three children were seated on a sofa on the rear of the truck which was loaded with furniture.

A freight train had just passed over the crossing on the main street of Carlisle and Gross drove onto the tracks, unaware of the approaching passenger train, view of which was obstructed by the freight train. The bell at the crossing was still ringing when Gross drove onto the tracks, it was said.

HIGHWAY COMMISSIONER'S REPLY TO GOV. TEMPLETON

Hartford, May 21.—Curtailment of state highway work to conserve labor needed in the factories and on the farms of Connecticut was suggested to State Highway Commissioner Charles Bennett by Governor Templeton in a letter made public today at the executive offices.

He also gave out Commissioner Bennett's reply, which was to the effect that "the shortage of labor is just as serious with the state highway department as it is with the farmers and factories," and that, while "the repairs to the roads ought to be kept up continuously," he would be glad to consider "the slowing up of the road program."

PROBE OF BOOTLEGGERS CONSPIRACY RESUMES TODAY

New York, May 21—One hundred witnesses, including Accounts Commissioner Hirshfield, have been subpoenaed to appear tomorrow at a resumption before general sessions Judge Crain of the investigation and countercharges growing out of the assertions of Assemblyman Cuvillier and Magistrate Corrigan, that Police Commissioner Enright and members of his force were in league with bootleggers.

Most of these witnesses, it was disclosed this afternoon, were summoned by Magistrate Corrigan, against whom Judge Crain is considering a criminal libel charge preferred by Commissioner Enright. Commissioner Hirshfield, who started the original investigation of the bootlegging and graft charges, later transferred to Judge Crain's court, was instructed to bring with him copies of all testimony taken at his hearings.

Buildings are springing up overnight.

The men arrested were employed in the shipping department of the furniture company and, according to the police, furniture and rugs said to be stolen were found at their homes.

WITNESSES TELL OF WARD'S WOMEN VISITORS

Albany, N. Y., May 21.—Today's brief hearing in the investigation by Attorney General Sherman of the killing of Clarence J. Peters by Walter S. Ward, near the Kensico Reservoir, Westchester county, a year ago, did not disclose much additional information. The efforts of Deputy Attorney General Wilber W. Chambers, who examined the witnesses, were directed toward identifying the callers who visited Ward's New York City apartment in the summer of 1921, but beyond establishing the fact that most of them were women and that one of them had threatened to shoot him, the interrogation was fruitless.

Three witnesses were examined. They were Edgar Huggins, Daniel Washington and Charles Besson, negroes, formerly employed at the Poinciana apartments, 784 West 120th St., New York City, where Ward had an apartment during the summer of 1921. All three witnesses testified that Ward lived there three months without his family and during that time he was constantly receiving visits and telephone calls from women. Washington and Besson could not recall any details about the visitors further than that a young woman with red or light hair was the most regular caller.

Huggins, who was doorman and telephone operator during the late hours of the night, testified regarding telephone conversations between Ward and a woman who told him she had followed him in a taxicab from Broadway and 120th Street to 42nd Street when he had a woman in his automobile, and threatened to shoot him if she saw him with that woman again. Ward, according to the witness replied:

"Woman, I'm sick of you. I have a job to go to South America for five years to get rid of such pests."

Just at that point in the conversation, another call came in on the apartment house switchboard and Huggins could not "listen in" any longer.

"I never saw a man who had so many women callers," Huggins testified. "Sometimes there would be six in a day and once there were three in one night."

Washington said he never had seen ward under the influence of liquor, but frequently women were intoxicated when they left Ward's apartment.

None of the witnesses could recall the names of any of the women, nor had they ever heard the names of Peters, "Pete", Ross, Charley Ross, or Rossi.

The hearing will be resumed in New York tomorrow afternoon.

PRESBYTERIANS HAVE REORGANIZED AGENCIES

Indianapolis, Ind., May 21.—(By the A. P.)—Reorganization of the boards of agencies of the Presbyterians of the United States of America was completed today with the elimination of twelve of the sixteen existing bodies.

Hereafter the work of the church will be concentrated on four main divisions: The board of Foreign Missions, Board of National Missions; Board of Christian Education and the Board of Ministerial Relief.

As a result of elimination of 12 commissions next year's assembly will be shortened from eight days to seven; standing committees will be reduced from eighteen to twelve, but the membership of the committees will be raised from forty to seventy-two.

Negro members of the church won a victory, in principle, when the assembly went on record to declare that racial groups should be given representation on the four boards as soon as possible, and as far as it may be deemed expedient.

The declaration, permissive rather than mandatory, was adopted as a substitute after the assembly had defeated a proposal by the Rev. William A. Byrd, a negro minister from Jersey City, that two of the 72 board members should be colored men.

The substitute, as passed, will permit addition of Japanese, Indians or any other racial groups, as well as negroes, if the church so desires.

STRIKE OF PANTRYMEN AND COOKS AT PLAZA HOTEL

New York, May 21—Cooks, dishwashers and pantrymen at the Plaza Hotel at Central Park and Fifth avenue, quit work at the peak of the luncheon rush today, demanding higher wages. Patrons suffered little delay, however, for other hotels rushed reserves to the hostelry. The strikers stationed pickets on the sidewalks near the hotel.

According to Union officials, 80 struck, but the management placed the number at thirty-five. The wage scale ranged from $17 to $35 a week. An increase of $3 was demanded for those who receive less than $25, and an increase of $2 for those receiving more.

TWO MEN KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT NEAR PALMER

Palmer, Mass., May 21.—Two men were killed and a man and woman severely injured early tonight when their automobile crashed into an underpass at Blanchardville, about two miles east of Palmer. The dead are: Alexander Lovejoy and John Jarvis, both of Springfield. The car contained nine passengers, all negroes, five of whom escaped injury. Louis Bradley, driver of the machine, was placed under arrest.

SHORT CIRCUIT TIED UP NEW HAVEN ROAD TRAFFIC

New Haven, May 21.—A short circuit in the switch house of the power station at Cos Cob tied up traffic on the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad between this city and Woodlawn, N. Y., for several hours today. All power was off on the electric sone of the New Haven road for 37 minutes and from Stamford to New Haven the electric current had not been restored early this afternoon.

FOUR MEN KILLED BY SNOWSLIDE IN COLORADO

Denver, Col., May 21.—A gigantic snowslide, sweeping down the mountainside at a terrific rate of speed, struck th ewest end of a tunnel on the Denver and Salt Lake railroad between Corona and Dixie Lake, Col., today, killing four workmen and injuring two others.

Financial Methods of Groton Iron Works

Evidence to Sustain Charge That the Works Had Obtained an Advance Payment by Misrepresentation.

Washington, May 21.—The Morse trial entered upon its fifth week with government counsel introducing additional evidence designed to support the charge that the Groton iron works obtained an advance payment from the Emergency Fleet corporation on the misrepresentation that it had made full cash payments to the Kearfott Engineer company of New York for materials for six steamers building at Groton, Conn., for the government.

H. D. Brown of New York, treasurer of the Kearfott company, testified that the contract between his company and the Groton Iron Works for auxiliary machinery equipment for the ships called for a total payment of $300,000; that $100,000 of this was paid by check about October 20, 1917 and that the Groton company gave its notes for $200,000 for the remainder at about the same time. These notes were paid as they came due, he said, except in the case of the last one, which went to protest, but subsequently was paid.

Witnesses previously had testified that on November 19 and again on November 26, 1917, Harry F. Morse, vice president of the Groton company, had proposed that the Kearfott company accept a check from the Groton company for the balance of $200,000; that it give a receipt for this check, but turn it over to the United States Steamship company, another Morse concern, and accept notes from the steamship company in place of the Groton notes. Morse was quoted as having said that by this arrangement his company could get an advance payment from the fleet corporation.

Charles H. Case, who was traveling auditor for the fleet corporation during parts of 1917 and 1918, testified that a check for $139,000 was given to the Groton company by the fleet corporation officials on the $200,000 account between the Kearfott and Groton companies. The witness explained that this payment was made upon assurances of an official of the Kearfott company that the Groton company had paid the $200,000. He added, on cross-examination, that he could not remember that any of the defendants had made representations that the $200,000 actually had been paid.

PARTIAL REORGANIZATION OF MIXED CLAIMS COMMISSION

Washington, May 21.—Partial reorganization of the mixed claims commission, constituted to adjudicate war claims totalling $1,479,000,000 of the United States government and American citizens against Germany, was caused today by the retirement of Former Justice Day of the supreme court as umpire of the commission.

Judge Edwin B. Parker of Texas, American member of the commission, was appointed immediately by President Harding to succeed Mr. Day as umpire, leaving the post of American commissioner temporarily vacant.

The resignation of Mr. Day, who told the president he wished to be relieved of his duties because he believed a younger and stronger man should serve as umpire, came as the commission was beginning to consider the 12,416 claims filed. The commissioners representing the United States and Germany, respectively, Judge Parker and Dr. Wilhelm Kiesselbach, already had begun hearings on the Lusitania claims.

Mr. Day's retirement from the commission was a surprise.

SCOTTISH IMMIGRANTS GREETED WITH CHEERS

New York, May 21.—A cheering chowd of friends and relatives greeted 347 Scotch immigrants who arrived today, after debarking from the liner Cameronia at Halifax Saturday to rush across the border in a race against the immigration quota. The race, they discovered on their arrival, was unnecessary but the procedure was taken when it was believed that the liner Baltic would dock here ahead of the Cameronia with enough immigrants to exhaust the quota. The Baltic, however, brought only 17 immigrants. The Cameronia docked this morning with 140 remaining passengers.

BROKER DEKAY CONTINUES HIS FIGHT FOR FREEDOM

Providence, R. I., May 21—Continuing his nine year fight for freedom Henry E. Dekay, New York banker and broker and gentleman Virginia farmer, now serving a five year sentence in the Providence county jail, for aiding and abetting in the misapplication of more than $200,000 of the funds of the defunct Atlantic National bank here, this afternoon prosecuted an appeal to the supreme court at Washington. Although convicted here January 23, 1915, after a trial lasting four months, Dekay did not begin his sentence until May 1 last.

The appeal is based on the denial of Federal Judge Arthur L. Brown here to allow the defendant's petition for a writ of habeas corpus.

WILL BE NO LIQUOR SOLD ON THE LEVIATHAN

Washington, May 21.—The Leviathan will be as "dry" as unceasing vigilance can make her, officials of the shipping board declared today in denying published reports that four bars already had been installed on the great liner, which soon will be placed again in the trans-Atlantic service.

"It did not take even a good imagination to frame that hoax," Chairman Lasker declared. "There will be no liquor sold on the Leviathan and any employe found bootlegging will be treated severely. At least he will be turned over to the federal authorities. We intend to be more severe on them than on regular bootlegger. I'm no dry myself but the president has ordered 'no liquor for government ships,' and his instructions go."

A resolution denouncing any organization, individual, or group, which condemns a comrade because of creed or belief, was adopted by the national executive committee of the American Legion at Indianapolis. The resolution was said to be aimed at the Ku Klux Klan.

Steamer Ashore on Newfoundland Coast

Message Says That the Vessel is Leaking Badly—Passengers Are Reported Safely Housed.

St. John's, N. F., May 21.—The Canadian Pacific liner Marvale struck a rock near Trepassey, on the southern coast of Newfoundland, late today and was beached by her captain to prevent her sinking, according to radio messages from Cape Race station tonight.

The liner, which sailed from Montreal for Liverpool three days ago, struck Cape Freels rock in a dense fog at 4.30 o'clock this afternoon. The vessel backed clear of the rock, but a great hole had been torn in the hull, and her holds filled rapidly. The captain decided to run the liner aground on a neighboring sandy beach to save the ship and passengers.

A first message from the ship at Cape Race immediately after the accident told of the Marvale's plight. A second received an hour later reported the boats all out and the passengers safe. It was assumed that the captain had beached his vessel as he intended. No further news was received from the Marvale. It was believed that her wireless equipment had been crippled.

Although a heavy fog prevailed, the weather is fine and the sea smooth, so those familiar with the south coast said the boats would have little difficulty in reaching Trepassey, a few miles away. Trepassey is the terminus of a branch line of the Newfoundland railway and the passengers, once landed safely, could reach this city by rail. The scene of the wreck is about twenty miles west of Cape Race. The Marvale, a vessel of 7,121 tons, was formerly the Allan liner Corsican. She was used during the war as a transport for Canadian troops.

MARVALE PASSENGERS AND CREW SAFELY HOUSED

Trepassey, N. F., May 21.—The passengers and crew of the Canadian Pacific liner Marvale, which was wrecked after striking Cape Freels Rock near here late today, were safely landed tonight at the village of St. Shotts. All of the 436 persons on board were saved. The news was brought here tonight from St. Shotts by the captain of the liner.

The Marvale sank in seven fathoms while racing for a sandy beach near Cape Pine after striking the rock. The captain was not able to carry out his plan of running the ship ashore, as the damage caused by the collision made her founder quickly. There was ample time, however, to get passengers and crew into the boats and away before the vessel went down.

The Marvale, according to the captain, is lying about a mile off Cape Pine, with her boat deck awash. The passengers and crew are safely housed for the night at the little fishing village of St. Shotts and will be brought to this place, the terminus of a branch line of the Newfoundland railway, tomorrow.

In addition to passengers, the Marvale carried a cargo of flour and grain.

The captain of the Marvale tonight arranged with the radio station at Cape Race to call a vessel of the Canadian ocean steamships tomorrow to take off the passengers and crew of the wrecked liner. Three steamers were ordered from St. John's to the scene of the wreck.

MATTERS BEFORE FEDERAL RESERVE BOARD'S COUNCIL

Washington, May 21.—The federal reserve board's advisory council, at its regular quarterly meeting today sidetracked subjects of credit and general economic conditions for a discussion of the question whether federal reserve banking activities should be extended to foreign lands. Indications were that the session was devoid of conclusions and that the discussion would continue tomorrow.

Applications of the Boston and Atlanta reserve banks for permission to place agencies in Havana, Cuba, pending for some time before the reserve board, has opened up the broader question as to whether the precedent that would be established by favorable action on either application would be proper. It was made clear that the council members were not concerned with the merits of the two applications which have caused a near controversy and that their discussion dealt entirely with the subject in the abstract sense.

Most of the council members, as individuals and bankers themselves were represented as opposing the policy because they believed it would constitute extension of government competition to private banks and would embark the reserve board on a policy, the end of which could not now be foreseen.

NO TRACE FOUND OF DESPERADO LEO ROGERS

North Bay, Ont., May 21—Provincial police and citizens participated in a series of will o' the wisp chases today for Leo Rogers, desperado, who killed one officer and wounded another last week, after first holding the police at bay with a card-board pistol.

Promising clues developed thick and fast all day and they were promptly run down, only to find that Rogers was not there. The most promising lead came in the afternoon when he was reported to have been seen in the deep bush on the outskirts of the town. Two dozen men in motor cars were rushed to the scene. An hour's search failed to reveal him.

The belief was expressed by some officials that Rogers either escaped on a freight train or else died in the wilderness, meanwhile, the countryside is being combed for him.

He was driving through King street, south of here last night and it got out of control, and crashed through a fence and overturned. Besides the brother's death several of the other occupants of the machine were hurt.

FOREIGN GOVERNMENTS MAY NEGOTIATE WITH BRIGANDS

Activities of Chinese Troops Against the Bandits is Imperilling the Lives of Foreign Prisoners—Washington is Relying Upon Minister Schurman's Efforts to Bring About the Release of the Captives Unharmed.

Washington, May 21.—Pessimistic reports were received today from American officials in China as to the probability of successful negotiations between the Chinese government and bandit leaders for the release of American and other foreign hostages held by the brigands. As a result, concern was felt in government circles but the state department was not swayed from the conviction that the only practical means of dealing with the situation was through the Peking diplomatic council.

So far as could be learned, no move was afoot to intervene from Washington in Minister Schurman's efforts, in association with his diplomatic colleagues, to bring about the release of the captives unharmed. It was made plain that the Washington government was relying on its representatives on the scene to consider every angle of the admittedly delicate situation and find the most hopeful course to pursue. The position is taken here that any other course might be fraught with extreme danger to the captives.

The department received no additional information today, so far as its published statements show, with respect to earlier advices that the bandits intend to kill two of their prisoners if their terms were not complied with by tomorrow. Despatches from Consul Davis and Major Philcon, relayed by the Peking legation expressed the opinion, however that the negotiations with the brigands would be futile unless there was at least unofficial foreign intervention in the conversations. They reported that Roy Anderson, an American of long residence in China, and with personal acquaintanceship with some of the bandits, had volunteered to join with the Chinese authorities in new efforts to reach an agreement, provided he was clothed with full powers to act by the Chinese government.

Lacking such a development, it was the opinion of the American observers that there remained only a resort to direct negotiations by the foreign governments, presumably through the agency of the diplomatic council and the brigand leaders, a situation which the foreign diplomats have thus far sought to avoid.

At the state department it was emphasized that the immediate question of obtaining the release of the captives and the future one of insuring foreigners in China against similar outrages hereafter are regarded as distinct and separate problems. Officials have no doubt that means can be found to make China more secure in the future, although they would give no inkling of the steps by which that result would be accomplished.

The immediate question of getting the bandits to release their hostages however, is filled with grave difficulties and danger for the prisoners and it is for that reason that the Washington government is leaving it in Minister Schurman's hands. It is felt that any intervention from Washington, unless such a course were recommended by Mr. Schurman, might precipitate the very contingencies that he is seeking to avoid, retaliation on the prisoners.

Inquiries in diplomatic circles here made it appear that similar views are held by the European powers. So far as could be learned, the plight of the captives in China has now become the subject of diplomatic exchanges between the Washington missions and the state department.

The European governments appear also to be relying upon the Peking diplomatic council to find the best way out of the tangle.

As indicative of the many factors the Peking diplomats have to deal with, it was pointed out that, on the one hand, complaint had been voiced by some Chinese officials that already foreign intervention had wrecked successful negotiations with the bandits, while, on the other, the view was taken in responsible quarters that there must be foreign intervention in some form if the prisoners were to be set free.

Similarly, continued activities of Chinese troops against the bandits is declared to be a source of great danger to the lives of the captives on one side, while on the other there are demands for some form of drastic action, even to the point of calling in foreign troops. Because of these complexities it is strongly felt in Washington that only men on the ground and familiar with all the circumstances could be expected to find a solution for the problem.

MODIFYING "DRY" LAW AFFECTING PHYSICIANS

Washington, May 21—Formal orders modifying prohibition enforcement regulations affecting physicians, dentists and veterinarians, by providing that their permits hereafter may be obtained from state prohibition directors instead of at Washington headquarters, were issued today by Secretary Mellon.

In addition to permitting physicians to obtain permits from state directors, the treasury orders authorize issuance by state directors of permits for dentists and veterinarians to use alcohol. Under the orders permits for transportation of liquor by trucks also will be obtainable from state directors without reference to Washington headquarters.

Secretary Mellon also issued another order designed to simplify withdrawals of liquor from government bonded warehouses. Those selling bonded liquor to purchasers with approved permits will not hereafter be required to exhibit all copies of the selling permits and officers at the warehouses will not be required to ascertain from state directors whether the withdrawal papers are authentic. The rigid requirements for obtaining permits for withdrawal and restrictions thrown around withdrawals, together with safeguards against forced permits recently worked out, now are believed to be sufficient protection against illicit withdrawals.

STRIKE CRIPPLES SHOE FACTORIES IN BROCKTON

Brockton, Mass., May 21.—While several local unions went into session tonight to decide whether they would join or remain aloof from the strike that has crippled the shoe factories of this city, leaders of the striking bodies threatened to spread the movement to nearby towns and cities in the Old Colony district. The first break in the ranks of shoe workers in the district outside of Brockton came today when more than 40 cutters, skivers, stitchers and vampers at the plant of the L. Q. White Shoe company at Bridgewater voted to secede from the Boot and Shoe Workers' union. The strikers demand a wage increase of 21 per cent., abrogation of the agreement between manufacturers and the Boot and Shoe Workers' union under which disputes are referred to the state board of conciliation and arbitration, and seek to break the power of the Boot and Shoe Workers' union as the negotiating body between workers and manufacturers.

Several factories closed down today and tonight the shoe industry in this city was practically at a standstill.

BLACKSTONE, MASS., TAX COLLECTOR ROBBED OF $4,000

Blackstone, Mass., May 21.—Two hold-up men robbed Tax Collector John F. McCabe of $4,000 in his market today just as he was leaving to make deposit in Woonsocket banking institutions. Mr. McCabe had just left his private office when the men confronted him, backed him into a corner, pulled a gun and demanded the cash. The men had disappeared by the time McCabe notified the police. Mr. McCabe said all the money had been paid to liquidate taxes and was the property of the town.

NO SELECTION FOR VACANT PREMIERSHIP OF BRITAIN

London, May 21 (By the A. P.)—No move has yet been made in the direction of filling the vacant premiership, and the name of Mr. Bonar Law's successor is still a matter of speculation.

The task facing the king is no easy one, for there is no outstanding figure to whom all could point as the inevitable nominee, while the conservative party itself is completely divided on the subject.

If Marquis Curzon seems to be indicated as the most appropriate nominee, Stanley Baldwin, chancellor of the exchequer, also has a very strong following among his party. These two are still chiefly talked of as the most likely successors to Mr. Bonar Law, but it may possibly turn out that their rival claims are so well balanced that the solution may ultimately be found in some third compromise candidate.

The conservative party is expected to hold a meeting on either Wednesday or Thursday at the Carlton club to elect a new party leader to replace Mr. Bonar Law. Much secrecy is still being maintained concerning Mr. Bonar Law, who today underwent what is understood to have been a minor operation of the throat to relieve extreme pain which he has recently experienced in the throat muscles. He sees nobody but a few intimates.

GIRL LOSES FIGHT TO REMAIN IN UNITED STATES

Boston, May 21.—Loser in a three months' battle for the right to remain in the United States, Bertha Laine, a 19-year-old Finnish girl, left for New York tonight to sail for Copenhagen tomorrow on the steamship Frederick VIII.

While the the American steamer Bellingham was frozen in at Raumo, Finland, last winter, Bertha met and fell in love with Arturo Alvarez, a Porto Rican, a member of the vessel's crew. The night before the Bellingham was to sail, Alvarez persuaded the girl to elope with him. They walked out over the ice to the steamer and Bertha was smuggled into the fireman's quarters in the forecastle, where she remained hidden for sixty days.

The day before the Bellingham was to reach Boston the shipper was informed of the girl's presence on board. An immigration board of inquiry ordered her deportation despite Alvarez's plea that they were to have been married. An appeal to Washington failed to upset the board's ruling, and habeas corpus proceedings in the United States district court also failed to result.

The long drawn out case of Albert Kelley of No. 27 Temple street, this city, charged with reckless driving on April 4 last, came to a conclusion Monday morning at the session of the police court, when the defendant was found not guilty. On the afternoon of April 4 an automobile owned and driven by Kelley struck and fatally injured Stanley Michalouski, the 7 year old son of Mrs. Mary Michalouski of Ives street. The testimony of nine witnesses was given at Monday's court session. Testifying for the state were Lester H. Scott, proprietor of a store in the vicinity of where the accident occurred on lower Main street, Walter Jackson, aged 13, Annie Tabor, 13, Wanda Dawondzyk, 12, and John Rijis, 10.

Those who testified for the defense were the defendant, his uncle, Alfred Caron, Lee Phaneuf, 11, and Leah Phaneuf, 10. The witnesses for the state and defense differed in regard to whether or not a warning was given by the defendant upon approaching the group of children who were in the roadway. A summary of the testimony was that the Michalouski boy had started across the street at a run, and then turned in his path, which brought him directly in front of the machine. He was struck about four feet from the curbing.

Johnny Rijis, who had started running across the street with the Michalski boy, stated that the latter had stopped to pick up some object or tie his shoelace and was struck in the head by the left headlight of the machine. Conflicting statements were then made by the defendant's attorney and Prosecuting Attorney Harvey. In announcing his finding Judge Foss expressed his sympathy for the relatives of the deceased child and also with others, but he believed that in this case there was no incriminating evidence to show reckless driving against Kelley.

James Moriarty pleaded guilty to the charge of intoxication and declined to say anything in his own behalf. He drew a fine of $5 and costs, amounting to $12.15.

Developments of much interest have evolved from the arrest of Joseph Arson early Sunday morning upon a complaint from Harry Bashura of No. 56 Ives street that the former was creating a disturbance at his home and had broken three panes of glass. Arson was locked up at the local police station to appear in court Monday morning and the police were conducting a further investigation of the matter, but up to late Sunday night there were no more arrests in the case.

Monday morning when the officer went to the cell room to bring Arson before the judge he found him in a weak condition. A doctor was called and it was found that the man suffered from three broken ribs and bruises about the face and body. He was removed to his home at No. 57 Chapman street, where he will be confined for a number of days. Arson told the officers that he had been assaulted by a local Russian named "Big Pete" and Harry Bashura, who had made a liberal punching bag of his body, and then robbed him of a considerable sum of money. Sunday morning when the officers arrived at 56 Ives street they were told by Bashura that Arson had come to the house in an intoxicated condition and tried to force an entrance. In the meantime the police were informed that a drinking party had taken place at the Bashura home and Bashura was placed under arrest and charged with intoxication and breach of the peace, to which he pleaded not guilty. Due to Arson's condition and other circumstances, the case was continued until Saturday morning of this week and bonds of $100 were named.

As the story is told, there were four men in the party at No. 56 Ives street, Bashura, Arson, "Big Pete" and a man from South Manchester whose name is unknown. Arson said that the South Manchester man took no part in the assault upon himself nor in the taking of his money.

John Wheelock of No. 30 Farmington avenue, Hartford, and Samuel Woods of Springfield, Mass., the latter a traveling salesman, narrowly escaped death and are painfully injured as the result of an accident about 2 o'clock Sunday morning when a Dodge sedan in which they were riding crashed into the stone abutment of the underpass bridge at Andover. When the machine, which was being driven by Woods, approached the abutment, which is under the New York and New Haven railroad tracks, the driver lost control, with the result that the car struck the stone wall and came to a stop in a field.

The men were taken to this city by a passerby and after receiving medical treatment they returned to their homes. Woods stated that he did not see the underpass until but a short distance away. He hurried to use his brakes, but his foot slipped on to the accelerator, causing the machine to collide with tremendous force.

Memorial day, May 30, will be fittingly observed in this city as in past years, and the arrangements were outlined at the last meeting of Francis S. Long post, No. 20, G. A. R., and Augustus C. Tyler camp, No. 3, U. S. W. V. The program is similar to that of previous years and the annual pilgrimage to Windham Center, North Windham and St. Joseph's cemeteries will take place in the morning as usual. The party will leave the G. A. R. headquarters at 8 o'clock. Provision is being made for the transportation of delegations from the Grand Army post, Spanish War Veterans, World War Veterans, Woman's Relief corps and a band.

At 2 o'clock in the afternoon the procession to Willimantic cemetery will take place. Included in the marchers will be a platoon of police, a band, veterans of the Spanish American war, the World war and the various troops of Boy Scouts as escorts for the mere handful of Civil war veterans. The latter and the members of the Woman's Relief corps will ride in automobiles. The decoration of the graves of deceased veterans at the cemetery will then take place, with the proper ceremonies.

The annual memorial sermon-address will be delivered Sunday morning, May 27, at the local Methodist church, where the 10.45 o'clock services will be dedicated to the memory of the Civil war veterans. The sermon will be by the pastor, Rev. A. Stanley Muirhead. The Woman's Relief corps has voted to prepare and serve a Memorial day dinner to the veterans following their tour of the Windhams.

The remains of Mrs. Martha Tew who died Thursday morning in Hot Cake, Mass., arrived in this city Saturday morning at 11 o'clock and burial followed at 2 o'clock in the afternoon with services at St. Paul's Episcopal church with Rev. F. C. Williams officiating. The bearers were Arthur J. Harper, Louis Ashton, John Hood and Frank P. Bradway. Burial followed in the Willimantic cemetery in the family plot.

Some time ago it became a violation of the law to sell meat and groceries on Sunday. Stores selling those lines of provisions must either keep their doors closed or have such articles under cover, the sale of fruits, tobaccos and candies being allowed. Within the past few months, however, that law has been violated in general throughout the city and word to that effect reached Prosecuting Attorney Samuel B. Harvey who proceeded to tour the city Sunday. As a consequence Adelard A. Monast, who conducts a store at No. 1088 Main street and Napoleon Vallant, whose store is at No. 349 Valley street, were both notified to present themselves before the police court Monday morning and they pleaded not guilty to violation of the law. STAFFORD SPRINGS

Stafford Springs wound up a week of automobile accidents when William Wynings crashed into the bridge on River St., about eleven o'clock, Saturday night badly damaging the car in which he was riding and injuring William S. Tuthill an occupant of the machine so that he had to be taken to the hospital.

A large scalp wound on Tuthill required several stitches to close but Mr. Wynings escaped injury. He was taking Mr. Tuthill to the electric light plant where he is employed and just after crossing the railroad track lost control of the machine and it crashed into the east side of the bridge. State Policeman Kelsey investigated the accident and ordered Wynings to appear in the borough court this (Tuesday) morning.

NEW LONDON WOMAN FINED $200 FOR SELLING LIQUOR AT HER HOME

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 21. — Clotilde Frausini, residing at 92 Smith street, has been conducting what used to be called in the days that knew not of prohibition a saloon. She paid no license and even made the stuff she sold for beer, wine and whiskey, herself. Mrs. Frausini had a party on during Sunday afternoon. It was a beer and wine gathering, something the law does not countenance, so the police got the tip to call and take a look at what was doing. They went to the Frausini house armed with a search warrant. They were not admitted even then till they threatened to smash the entrance door from its hinges. Once inside they found a jolly party bathing in beer and wine and feasting upon such as was to be had.

All the beverages found were confiscated and Mrs. Frausini was escorted to the police station. In the police court she was quite frank in her admission that she had the liquor for purpose of sale. She declared that she took that method of getting a living and of supporting and educating her children, one a boy of 16 years. She said it was for her to do that or call on the city to support her.

A doctor who attended Mrs. Frausini advised her to give up operating a sewing machine so she turned from sewing to reaping the dollars that are so easily garnered by those who sell booze. It is estimated that the Frausini place has had a sort of golden harvest during recent months for beer and wine have been as easily obtainable there as when the sale of it was recognized as legal.

Judge Prince attached a fine of $200 to the offense of Mrs. Frausini and sentenced her to spend 30 days in the county jail. He then suspended the execution of the sentence to jail, but he cautioned Mrs. Frausini that a watch would be kept on her place and told her that if she offended again only distance would be between her and the jail. She has before been fined for selling liquor.

Susie Saunders, a woman of perhaps 60 years of age, was in the police court this afternoon on the charge of maintaining a disreputable house at 111 Potter street. She admitted the accusation against her. The woman came to the attention of the police Sunday, when Fred Pelter, an employe at the ship yard up the river, complained that he had been robbed of a watch at the house that Susie runs. Pelter said he was willing to accompany the police to the house and point out the person who took his ticker—a couple of women. Pelter led the police to the Saunders place.

He said he was looking for a good time and that he went with a woman to seek Susie and partake of her hospitality. He found plenty of life in the place, indeed so much that he tarried for a half hour. He paid in cash for his fun, but he said the women took his watch also. Susie told the court she didn't have a word to say in refuting what Pelter claimed, so Judge Prince fined her $100 and sentenced her to 30 days in jail. Then he was considerate of her age and of her lack of means and suspended the execution of the sentence.

Mrs. Saunders is apparently not accustomed to the ways and the wiles of the persons with whom she is having relations. When the court had finished its business with Susie and the man who accused her, it turned attention to Joe Brafer, a Portuguese man, who got into the Saunders house while the women and Pelter were there. Joe wanted to get in so badly that he sought entrance through the window. He was believed to be a crook till he explained that what he saw from the outside tempted him to go in. He was an innocent intruder so the court sent him home with some good advice. Pelter recovered his watch and he was satisfied.

Joe Contino, a grocer on Shaw street thinks he was not intoxicated yesterday when he ran his truck, filled with people, into a tree on Pequot avenue. The police and others who saw Joe at the moment of contact, say he was quite drunk. He was arrested for the offense of operating an auto while under the influence of liquor.

Still Joe set up a defense that another auto approaching his truck carried a light that was so strong in its luminating power that it blinded him and he could not tell where he was going. Joe had been at the home of a friend, John Longo, to arrange for a christening of a child. He said he did not have anything to drink there, but others said his appearance was such that they believed he never had the breath he carried and never could have been so diary-headed as he was unless he had drank intoxicating liquor. The court continued the case till persons in the truck with him can come from the hospital, where they were taken after the smash, and tell what happened. There were two women, a couple of men and several children on the Contino truck when it struck the tree. Contino didn't suffer a scratch, a fact he relies upon to show that he was not drunk.

It is estimated that it will cost the city of New London about $1.25 to get John Grumby, who is accused of having stolen a diamond from the Ruddy jewelry store here last winter from Pittsburgh to this city, to answer for his crime. The fare on the railroads will come close to $100 for the officer and his prisoner and there will be restaurant and hotel bills also to meet.

Four drunks were sent to jail from the police court this morning as a result of Sunday indulgence in liquor.

John Lomba of Linden street, Mrs. Rosario Frank of Brandegee avenue, Groton, Robert Staplins of Howard street, John Fancher of Westerly, Mrs. Stephen Roach and baby of Quaker Hill, Mrs. William Thomas and baby of Adelaide street, Miss Hope Kellogg of Ocean beach, Mrs. Clarence Gavin and baby of Montauk avenue, William Corcoran of Grove street, Lewis M. Barrie of Home street and Mrs. Thomas May of Reed street, were patients discharged at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital today.

Two of the seven victims of the automobile accident that occurred at foot of Bolles' Hill, Waterford, several nights ago, when the machines owned by William Curtis, a public service operator and Leon Duzenski of No. 166 West Main street, Norwich, were in collision, were able to leave the Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital today and return to their homes. The victims to depart from the institution were Gladys Duzenski, daughter of the owner of one of the cars and Edward Byzozewski. The other patients, including Mrs. Duzenski and three children, are improving daily. Mrs. Duzenski was the most serious injured, sustaining among other injuries a fractured hip and a lacerated scalp. It will be a fortnight more before she is able to return to her home.

The military authorities have requested the police to apprehend George F. McSweeney, a sailor stationed at the naval reservation. An effort was made to locate McSweeney, but without success.

An automobile, owned and operated by Frank Billcliffe of No. 346 Bank street and an auto truck, owned by the Howard Street Coal Company, were in collision on Bank street this morning. Neither machine sustained damage of consequence.

The clocks in the police station were set at standard time today, the resetting of the hands being at the instigation of Captain Charles A. Pinney so as the city would not be a law violator for the statutes provide that no public clock shall be set and maintained at any but standard time.

Thieves recently forced the tool house on the property of Mrs. Otis K. Fimock of No. 922 Ocean avenue and removed several of the implements stored there. The discovery of the theft was made today by Frank May, care taker of the place and a report made to the police.

Winfield B. Gage of Groton, died Saturday at Preston, following an illness of about two years. He had suffered long and his death resulted from complications that developed. Mr. Page is survived by his mother, Mrs. Lydia J. Page, his wife, who was formerly Miss Bessie Perkins and by seven children, besides three brothers, the latter being Harry Page of Poquonoc, William W. Page of Hartford and Elmer G. Page of New London. A sister, Mrs. Gertrude Lindsley of Dallas, Pa., also survives.

Mrs. Charlotte A. Kingsbury of Willimantic, widow of William Kingsbury, and formerly a resident of New London, died Sunday at a Hartford hospital, where she had been under treatment but a short time. Mrs. Kingsbury was 61 years of age. Her husband died about a month ago.

Leon Duzenski of No. 166 West Main street, was arraigned before Justice of the Peace James J. Floyd in Waterford this afternoon as a result of his automobile colliding with a public service car, owned and operated by William Curtis of New London at the foot of Bolles' Hill last Friday night, at which time Duzenski and his wife and four children and a friend were injured. Duzenski was charged with reckless driving. Counsel for Duzenski requested that a continuance be granted because of Duzenski's wife being under treatment at the Home Memorial hospital, suffering from the injuries she sustained and unable to appear in court as a witness. Justice Floyd ordered the case continued until June 2nd.

Another dangerous sidewalk was discovered this evening when pedestrians passing through Mountain avenue, found a section of the walk in such a condition as to report it to the police. The highway department was informed of the danger spot.

An automobile, operated by Frederick W. Keefe of No. 60 Garfield avenue and owned by a New Haven concern, was extensively damaged late this afternoon on Bank street when it was struck by a trolley car of the Connecticut company.

For a long time men and youths have used State street, particularly that section of the sidewalk in front of stores and doorways as a loitering place, the men and youths staying there hours at a time. The practice will end now, at least for a time, for this evening Sergeant Samitel Hick received instructions from Captain Charles A. Pinney to instruct the officers on the State street beat to prevent further loitering and the order was carried out with the result that all sidewalk parkers used the outside of the walk to pass the time away.

The Connecticut company is to extend its double track on the main line and tonight at the regular weekly meeting of the city council, petitioned that body for permission to make the extension. It is planned to extend the double track where it now terminates about 300 feet north of Glenwood avenue, on Lower Boulevard, to a point near the corner of Lower Boulevard and Pequot avenue. The line, when the added double tracking is completed, will then be double-tracked from State street to Ocean Beach, excepting on Bank street from the corner of State and Bank streets and on Pequot avenue, at the corner of Lower Boulevard to the beach. It is planned to begin the work at once so that it will be completed before the daily rush to the shore arrives.

Before the summer is over there is a possibility that a pier of goodly dimensions will be erected at Ocean Beach to replace the present wharf, which does not begin to accommodate all the people that would like to sit there during the hot summer days or the vast number of owners of pleasure craft. It is proposed to erect a pier seventy feet longer than the present structure and of a width of twenty feet, which is double the present width. The cost of such a pier will be approximately $10,000.

It is also among the possibilities that even a much larger pier will be erected for a movement is underway by some of the members of the city council to dispose a structure to be erected that will accommodate excursion steamers. Such a structure would cost about $15,000, and would be 200 feet longer than the wharf now used.

For a long time merchants at the shore have desired that the excursion steamers particularly those of the Fall River and Providence line, that come to New London every Sunday during July and August, land at the beach, instead of the upper harbor and with such a dock that it is being contemplated to erect, these boats could land at the short resort.

R. H. Fleischmann of New York, has leased the Dawson cottage on Ocean avenue and with his family will occupy it throughout the summer.

An automobile owned and operated by Benjamin N. Balliné, a Main street merchant, was damaged on State street tonight when a trolley car of the Connecticut company backed against the machine. The principal damage was to the fender.

An arm, supporting feed wires of the Connecticut Power company on Williams street was discovered loose by pedestrians tonight and in danger of falling to the sidewalk. The police were notified and they in turn informed the electric light company of the danger. A repair gang was sent to the place and made the arm secure.

There has been talk at intervals of the city acquiring the property known as the Gardner Hammond farm next south of Ocean beach. The matter got to the city council tonight when a movement was started to have a committee appointed to consider the purchase or condemnation of the property. Councillor Fox threw what may be a monkey wrench into the scheme by pointing out that the city could not afford to acquire any more property at the beach until it improved what it had there by taking care of the streets and the laying of sidewalks and providing facilities for meeting fire.

The buses running into and from the city are hereafter to be parked on the north side of State street between Water and North Bank streets and nowhere else. The time limited for them to park is fifteen minutes and if they are to say a longer time they are to park in Water street.

An ordinance was read and will be passed at the next meeting on Monday of next week that will stop the sale of fireworks of any sort or the explosion of pistols, guns, fireworks, etc., before midnight on the third of July. A fine of net less than $5 nor more than $50 is attached to a violation of the ordinance proposed.

The ordinance over which there was so much talk a year ago and which prohibited persons in bathing costume from being on the walks at Ocean beach or going to the stores there will be repealed. There is no doubt of that for there was no voice raised this evening against the repeal of that ordinance. The fussy people who were afraid some one in bathing costume would rub against them and soil their clothing were conspicuous by their absence. The ordinance will be passed whereby bathers can roam the beach at their own sweet will.

The city is going to collect its overdue sewer assessments by foreclosure liens. This was voted at the meeting of the council this evening. The attorney for the city is directed to go ahead with the foreclosures. The assessments amount to $12,648.71 and of this sum $6:97.88 is due on city, town and county property, which cannot be collected.

ESCAPED HOSPITAL INMATE FOUND AT MYSTIC

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Mystic, May 21.—Theodore Anderson was leaving his home at West Mystic Monday afternoon at 1 o'clock to go to the Shea and Wilcox undertaking establishment where he is employed. At Mystic he noticed a man acting strangely, the man asking the way to Stamford. The man was a foreigner and was dressed in blue overalls and wore a cap.

Mr. Anderson went back into the house and called up the state hospital in Norwich and asked them if there was a man missing. They told him there was and asked him to apprehend him. Mr. Anderson went down the road towards Groton and he met William Lamb, who was driving a delivery truck. Messrs. Anderson and Lamb started in the truck over the highways after tee stranger. They overtook him and invited him to ride. The trio came back to Mystic and Anderson telephoned the state hospital at Norwich and detained the man at the undertaking parlors until the authorities arrived.

This is the fourth man that has been found in this locality recently and turned over to the hospital.

GALES FERRY

The third annual birthday party of the Village Improvement association was held at the Country club house on Friday evening, opening with a Maypole dance given by the children on the lawn at 5 o'clock. The grand march was led by Miss Agnes Lester Greenman of Norwich, who was crown bearer for the Queen of the May, Miss Enid Latimer, gowned in white, with the train bearers, gowned in yellow, bearing her train. They were Bernice and Doris Coman, with Ruth Hurlbutt. Then followed the remainder of the children, two by two, attending the queen to her throne, where she was seated. Then followed the dancing around the Maypole, and in the different movements of the dance they made an attractive picture. They pleasingly responded to an encore. Those in the dance were Helen L. Colver, Margaret S. Colver, Marjorie Gates, Dorothy Birch, Em-Beth Bennett, Eleanora Smith, Rose Norcross, Marjorie Parker, Myrtice Coman, Helen DeRusha, Matilda Harold, Margaret Parker and Betsy Berrien. The children were trained for the dancing under the direction of Mrs. Walter M. Buckingham. Miss Caroline B. Freeman was at the piano.

At 6 o'clock a supper was served in the clubhouse of cold boiled ham, escalloped potatoes, rolls, pickles, ice cream, with little cakes, and coffee. The hostesses for each of the three tables were Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Parker, Rev. Allen S. Bush and Miss Susan Mathewson. Mrs. Walter M. Buckingham and Miss Adelina Povey, with Mrs. Rufus W. Hurlbutt at the children's table. The waitresses were the Misses Grace E. Povey, Mary Birch, Madeline Birch, Laura McGuire, Laura A. Perkins and Miss Mary C. Watrous. The decorations of the clubhouse and tables were done by the Misses Laura A. Perkins and Natalie K. Gibbs, and were spring flowers, with May baskets of apple blossoms.

The following program was given after the supper, with the president, D. R. Povey, as chairman: Dancing, The Minuet, by the children in costumes of the olden time, with powdered hair, Miss Freeman at the piano. Mr. Povey then presented Rev. Allen Shaw Bush, who extended birthday greetings to the association on its third anniversary, and congratulations on the accomplishment of many things done during that time, among them establishing a chemical fire engine and house, a village park, planting one dozen memorial trees, purchasing garbage cans for the streets, several entertainments and concerts given, classes in dressmaking, chair caning and rug weaving, and the electric lighting of the village streets. A quartet sang Now is the Time for Maying, those in the quartet being Mrs. Walter M. Buckingham, Mrs. Delphine Fish, D. R. Povey and Everett Noyes: America the Beautiful, sung by the audience. Cutting the birthday cake, with its three lighted candles, by President Povey, and served to all, closed the pleasing celebration.

Mrs. Charles A. Satterlee and daughter, Miss Alice Satterlee, returned last week from a 10 days' visit in Worcester, Mass., where they attended the annual festival of music, and from there they went to North Haven, where they were guests of Mrs. Satterlee's son, Elmer Satterlee, and his family.

What Co-operation Has Done

Little more than half a century ago, Gustavus F. Swift borrowed $20 from his father and started in the packing business.

Hard work on his part and on the part of the associates whom he presently gathered about him caused the business to grow.

When first incorporated, Swift & Company had six shareholders. The nation was growing and needed meat, and the young company grew also. As more money was needed the business was enlarged by enlisting the co-operation of more shareholders.

The first little plant at Barnstable, Mass., has given way to 23 modern packing plants strategically located. More than 400 branch houses and 600 car routes distribute the meat carried in more than 6,000 refrigerator cars.

Today Swift & Company's service in meat to retailers here and abroad represents the effort of nearly 100,000 people co-operating with their savings or daily toil.

More than 45,000 men and women have co-operated with us by investing their money in shares of Swift & Company.

Nearly 50,000 men and women who work in these offices, plants and branch houses—16,000 of whom also are shareholders—are giving us their co-operation in building the business. They take a just pride in the promptness and precision of its service and in the uniformity and high quality of its products. Swift's Premium Hams and Bacon, "Silverleaf" Brand Pure Lard, Premium Frankfurts and other Swift products are symbols of their hearty co-operation and of their belief in the Company.

Elephants for Luck

So says Ed Wynn "The Perfect Fool," coming to the Broadway theatre for one night only, Wednesday, May 23rd.

He is sometimes called the most superstitious actor on the stage today. He admits he believes in signs, sayings and premonitions. Each year since he has been associated in the management of his new show, Wynn has opened his season by taking a ride on an elephant—he says that it brings him luck. The superintendent of the zoo, who is Ed's friend, loaned him one for this auspicious event. This season, before leaving New York on his present tour, he was very lucky as John Ringling sent him one of his large herd which was left behind in winter quarters at Bridgeport on account of age. Wynn says riding an elephant is not easy and he ought to know. He has fallen often enough.

Breed Theatre

The ultimate in drama.

A less commendatory phrase than that would fail to do justice to "My Friend the Devil," the William Fox special production which is the feature attraction at the Breed theatre today. It is a high tension dramatic depiction of Georges Ohnet's celebrated French novel, "Doctor Rameau," portrayed by a cast of artists who literally make Ohnet's characters come to life.

Harry Millarde, who directed the famous screen triumph, "Over the Hill," is responsible for the production of "My Friend the Devil," and the perfect dramatic technique, the manner in which it builds up through a series of unexpected, powerful sequences, to a crashing climax will startle every person who sees this picture.

Charles Richman as Dr. George Dryden gives a performance that is a credit to the screen.

Barbara Castleton as Anna Ryder, who later becomes the wife of Dryden, gives an effective portrayal. Peggy Shaw, as Dryden's daughter, also gives an exceptional depiction of a most difficult role.

The Pathe news completes the bill.

Thrills and Grins, Both Abound in Wm de Mille's Fine Picture, "Grumpy."

It is not often that a motion picture provides a happy combination of thrills and grins such as distinguishes William de Mille's latest Paramount picture production of "Grumpy," featuring Theodore Roberts, May McAvoy and Conrad Nagel, and which is the feature at the Broadway theatre for today the last day. The story deals with the love affair of a young couple, which is handicapped by a diamond robbery, but the mystery of which is solved by Grumpy, a retired criminal lawyer, capitally portrayed by Mr. Roberts. The solution of the mystery and capture of the robber hinges solely on a gardenia blossom, of which there are three worn by the characters in the story. From start to finish, there isn't a dull moment. Miss McAvoy and Mr. Nagel are delightfully cast, and the production as a whole is said to be one of the most entertaining ever presented by Mr. de Mille. Carson Ferguson has a strong crook role. Others in the cast include Bertram Johns, Charles Ogle, Charles French, Robert Bolder and Bernice Frank.

Glimpses of the Moon Scored at the Strand

The Paramount picturization of Edith Wharton's novel, The Glimpses of the Moon, had its premier presentation at the Strand theatre last night and was cordially received by a large audience.

The story tells of the married life of a young couple, Susan Branch (Bebe Daniels), one of society's "poor sisters" and "Nick" Lansing, her husband, played by David Powell, a struggling writer. "Nick" and Susan become involved in the domestic affairs of Mr. and Mrs. Vanderlyn. The latter, played by Rhyd de Remer, has been helpful, financially, to Susan, and in return for her kindness, she demands the aid of Susan in a scheme that almost results in her separation from her husband. The affair, however, is satisfactorily cleared up, and Susan and "Nick" are reunited. "Nick" has sold a novel, and he is established as an author.

Nita Naldi has the role of the frivolous Mrs. Vanderlyn, and her work is a close second to that of Miss Daniels. Others in the cast are Maurice Costello, Charles Gerrard, William Quirk and Pearl Sindelar.

This is a really excellent production, absolutely censor-proof and entertainment that we heartily recommend to picture fans.

Larry Semon caused more than the usual amount of laughter in his latest comedy The Agent. A news completed the bill.

TWO BIDS RECEIVED FOR PROPOSED BOUT BETWEEN WILLS AND DEMPSEY

New York, May 21—Two bidders for a heavyweight championship match between Jack Dempsey and Harry Wills, negro challenger, to take place here on or about Labor Day, were in the field tonight after Paddy Mullins, Wills' manager, had filed with the state athletic commission a request for the sanction in this state of the match.

The promoters seeking the match, which depends upon Dempsey's triumph over Tom Gibbons at Shelby, Montana, on July 4, are Tom O'Rourke Polo Grounds matchmaker, and Simon Flaherty, matchmaker of a Long Island City open-air arena.

Despite a report from Great Falls quoting Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager, as indicating he was dealing with Tex Rickard, the latter refused to confirm or deny tonight that he was interested in matching Wills with the champion.

According to Flaherty, who declared he had started plans to erect an arena seating from 125,000 to 150,000 at Long Island City, Mullins has tentatively accepted his terms. He, stood ready, he said, to give Kearns a bonus of $50,000 for signing articles.

O'Rourke's offer to Dempsey is for two fights, one in August and the other around Labor Day.

The state athletic commission was expected to consider Mullins' appeal at its regular meeting tomorrow.

PINCH HITTERS WIN FOR TIGERS IN NINTH

Detroit, Mich., May 21—A battery of pinch hitters took victory from the grasp of Philadelphia and gave Detroit a 5 to 4 victory today. Pillette allowed only four hits in 8 innings but each of them figured in the Athletics scoring. Hasty worked well until the ninth when three singles, two errors and a base on balls enabled Detroit to tie the score. Then Rommell who relieved him, pitched one ball that Cobb dropped over the infield for a safety, winning the game. The score:

MRS. GAUT TURNS IN LOW SCORE IN TOURNEY

Fort Worth, Texas, May 21—Mrs. David Gaut, of Memphis, Tenn., western champion, was medalist in the qualifying round of the Southern Women's Golf association's championship tournament, which began today over the Rivercrest course. Mrs. Gaut's 86 was nine strokes under her nearest competitor.

High scores were largely accounted for by a stiff wind and fast greens. Mrs. Dozier Lowndes of Atlanta, titlist, turned in a card of 99 but was among the low ten.

DEMPSEY STARTS HEAVY TRAINING FOR GIBBONS

Great Falls, Mont., May 21—Jack Dempsey today began heavy training for his battle at Shelby with Tommy Gibbons July 4, for the heavyweight championship of the world, taking a five mile run, shadow boxing half a dozen rounds and bag punching. He went four light rounds with George Godfrey, the negro heavyweight.

Dempsey's string of sparring partners includes Billy Wells, English welterweight; Harry Drake, the English heavyweight, who put Joe McCann down in the milk fund tournament, and Joe Benjamin, lightweight of San Francisco. Dempsey also has these to practice on: Godfrey, Jack Burke, Pittsburgh heavyweight, Frank Power, middleweight and Pete Bross, local welter.

Gibbons left today for Helena to give the first of ten exhibition bouts before commencing training. Eddie Kane, his manager said there might be a change in the location of training quarters, to be announced Friday.

TAFTVILLE LOSES TO STERLING ON SUNDAY

Taftville journeyed to Sterling Sunday and was defeated 7 to 2. Errors lost for Taftville, coming at critical times when men were on bases. Morin pitched good enough to win but by the breaks, the game went to Sterling. Gaudette, a youngster of Taftville proved to be the star of the game for his team. French of Sterling proved to be the hero by his great fielding and put Taftville to the woods. Forland pitched good ball in the pinches. The score:

MAIN STREET IN SHELBY

Shelby, Mont., May 21—Promoters of the Dempsey-Gibbons championship fight July Fourth may take out rain insurance.

It hasn't dropped a drop in Shelby on that date for fourteen years.

But it has suddenly started raining in this section of Montana.

As Dan Moriarity says there are ten-year-old frogs in Shelby that are getting their first shower baths.

The sunburn is peeling off their backs.

Water is to this neck of the parched prairies what champagne is to the blue-law throat.

Seems like everything is coming to Shelby—rain, oil and the BIG FIGHT.

All are God sends.

The Shelbyite doesn't care so much about the heavy rains that are coming now.

It's the thick, blue oil that is spouting out of the sun-baked sands like liquid gold that has made the settlers wild.

Oil buys more than all the water in the Atlantic and Pacific oceans combined.

It buys luxuries—undreamed of and unimagined.

The BIG FIGHT will bring thousands with their thousands to spend.

The Klondyke had its gold rush.

But Shelby has its oil GUSH.

Everyone is caught up in the big boom.

Buildings are springing up overnight.

The pounding continues until late in the night.

The promise of quick money has intoxicated everyone.

Shelby is getting everything at once.

Rain—oil—and the BIG FIGHT.

The town that God forgot is being remembered at last.

RUPPERT PURCHASES INTERESTS OF HUSTON IN NEW YORK YANKEES

New York, May 21—(By the A. P.)—Colonel Jacob Ruppert, president of the New York Yankees, has acquired the half interest of his partner, Colonel T. L. Huston, and will become sole owner on June 1 of the American league champions and their great stadium in the Bronx, the largest baseball park in the country.

This announcement was made tonight by the Yankee colonels in a joint statement in which they declared negotiations for the sale of Huston's interests to his partner, broken off last January, had been resumed and carried to completion. Colonel Huston will remain as a director of the club, it was announced, but retains no financial interest whatever.

"The deal has gone through definitely this time," Colonel Ruppert said, in amplifying the formal statement. "There is no chance of a hitch. The papers have all been signed and only a few technicalities, such as stock transfers, remain to be disposed of. These details will be completed by June 6, when I will take actual possession.

"Colonel Huston and I had no difficulty coming to an agreement, despite the fact that we failed to get together the first of the year. As a matter of fact, we could have closed the deal three months ago but I wanted the colonel to stick until we opened the new stadium, in which he was a vitally interested as I."

The colonels refused to divulge financial details of the deal, which ranks among the biggest in diamond history, but it was reliably estimated that Colonel Huston received from $1,600,000 to $2,000,000 for his interests. Experts base this figure on the approximate valuation of from $3,000,000 to $4,000,000 placed upon the Yankee club and its new stadium, which alone was estimated to have cost $2,500,000.

While the new basis of agreement between the two colonels was not revealed, Colonel Huston intimated that an agreement had been reached after elimination of a clause which was understood to have stipulated that he remain out of baseball in New York city for a period of ten years. This clause inserted by Ruppert, was believed to have caused the previous break in negotiations. Both gave the impression that so far as financial matters were concerned they had been in accord from the start.

Colonel Huston would not indicate whether the removal of this restriction upon his future connection with baseball had any significance but it immediately revived gossip that he might become interested in the Brooklyn National league club. This possibility, as well as a further suggestion that the colonel might become interested in the Boston Red Sox, was aired at the time of his previous negotiations with Ruppert but nothing definite was forthcoming.

Discussing his plans for the immediate future, Colonel Huston said he intended to visit Hot Springs, Ark., for a few weeks and then join his family for a vacation in California. He is national commander-in-chief of the veterans of foreign wars and has devoted an increasing amount of his time to their interests, a factor which was said before to have a bearing on his desire to shift his baseball responsibilities.

"My interest in baseball as a sport will never wane," said Colonel Huston. "I expect to see every game in New York unless I am out of town."

The retirement of Huston as half owner of the Yankees leaves vacant the position of secretary-treasurer which he held. Edward G. Barrow, present business manager, probably will take over the secretarial duties. Colonel Ruppert said, and another treasurer appointed. No other change in organization is contemplated.

The formal statement issued by the colonels follows: "The negotiations for the sale of T. L. Huston's half interest in the Yankees to Jacob Ruppert as announced last December and which were broken off in January, were later renewed and finally eventuated into a signed agreement where in Ruppert buys Huston's interests. The finals of the transaction take place prior to June 1. Huston continues as a director of the clubs."

Reviewing the nine years of history under the joint Ruppert-Huston ownership, the statement continues:

"A sixth or seventh place team was taken and made a twice pennant winner with every prospect of a third pennant this year. The team which was bought had only one really good player on it. Today, it is second to none. New York then was the worst baseball town in the American league, today it is the best. The Giants were in undisputed supremacy, but now the Yankees at least share with them equally the baseball popularity of the New York fans.

"The club when acquired was waif. It had no playing grounds, but was a tenant at the mercy of a rival league and subject to the tender caprice of an opposition club. It has now a home of its own in the most magnificent baseball stadium.

"In 1915 our attendance was 256,000. During the past four years, it has averaged annually over a million and it is not at all improbable that the attendance this year will be one and a half million."

Colonels Huston and Ruppert purchased the Yankees in 1915 from a group headed by Frank J. Farrel for $500,000. They spent a fortune in rebuilding the club, lifting it from a consistent second division berth to pennants in 1921 and 1922. Bill Donovan was the first manager under the Ruppert-Huston regime but Miller Huggins took the helm late in 1917 and since then the Yankees have not finished below the first division.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

Day's total sales, 1,135,000 shares.

Twenty railroads averaged 80.13; net loss, .87. High 1923, 90.63; low 80.13.

MARKET WAS ACTIVE.

New York, May 21.—Persistent selling by professional short interests brought about heavy forced liquidation in today's active stock market, the averages for 20 barometric railroad and industrial stocks being forced to new low levels for the year. The industrial average showed a net loss of nearly 2 points on the day and the railroad average about half that amount.

A large volume of today's liquidation is reported to have come from discouraged and tired holders of stocks purchased at high prices weeks and months ago. Cumulative evidence of a slackening in basic lines of business with a resultant decrease in orders for future delivery and a relaxation of commodity prices has had an unfavorable effect on sentiment. Except in a few isolated spots, the market has also exhibited a marked lack of effective buying support which was expected to be forthcoming before prices broke below their previous low figure.

Announcement of a cut from $1.60 to $1 in the semi-annual dividend of the Pacific Oil company came after the market closed and was not unexpected because of the conditions known to prevail in the industry. Overproduction of California crude oil has been the principal depressing influence on the prices of oil shares. Pacific oil closed 5-8 lower at 36 5-8 after having sold as high as 38 during the day.

Continued weakness of U. S. Steel Common, which touched a new low a fpo 1-4 and then rallied to 95 1-2, where it was off 1 1-2 on the day, had a general unsettling effect on the rest of the list. Among the more than two score other stocks which established new low prices for the year, were American Car, American Tobacco A and B, Davison Chemical, Virginia Carolina Chemical B, Austin Nichols, Wilson Packing, Postum Cereal, Detroit Edison, Columbia Gas, Consolidated Gas, North American, Studebaker, U. S. Alcohol, Missouri Pacific common and preferred, Rock Island, Lehigh Valley and International & Great Northern, the net losses ranging from 1 to 5 points.

California Petroleum was the only outstanding active stock to move against the current trend, selling as high as 100 and closing at 96 1-2 for a net gain of 3-4. Virginia Carolina Chemical preferred advanced 2 points on a small turn-over in response to short covering operations.

Foreign exchange business was extremely quiet because of the observance of the Whitsuntide holidays in London, Paris and South American centers. Trading was therefore largely a local affair, demand sterling being unchanged at $4.63 1-8 and French francs rallying slightly to 6.67 1-2 cents.

Withdrawal of $51,000,000 by the federal government from local banks resulted in a somewhat stiffer rate for call money, which opened at 4 1-2 per cent., advanced to 5 and thence to 5 1-2, where it closed. Time money was still on a 5 per cent. basis, the bulk of prime commercial paper moving at the same rate.

POLLUTION OF CONNECTICUT STREAMS.

Coming before the general assembly today for settlement is the question of checking the pollution of the rivers of the state. It is not a new matter, but one that has been presented from time to time, but invariably failing to get any relief action. There have been investigations covering a considerable period, but what is needed is some move in the way of restricting the pollution of the streams before the problem gets any worse through continued neglect.

The question is a big one at the present time because in the past the rivers have been regarded as the readiest means of disposing of sewage and factory waste. As cities have increased and industrial activities have expended this pollution has grown. The amount of waste and acids poured into the streams from day to day is enormous. It is more than the volume of water and the sun can eliminate through dilution and the natural process of purification. The result is that our rivers are getting to be great sewers and it is no wonder that shell fish or other fish cannot exist therein.

The endeavor to set about the correction of this situation by the adoption of legislation that would give a commission the authority to carry out its orders has encountered modification. It is even maintained that the change will leave the commission powerless and result in improvement only where there exists a willingness to comply with requests.

Pollution of the Connecticut rivers has been going on for so long that it is going to involve much expense to end it abruptly. Corrective steps should have been begun a long time ago so that by this time through gradual expenditures a decidedly different situation would now prevail. Nevertheless it is a situation that doesn't call for a do-nothing policy now. The start should be made though it is late and legislation should be enacted that will not only mean the prevention of any increase in the pollution but the gradual reduction of what already exists. On such a basis as that the cooperation of those responsible for the pollution might not to be difficult to get.

GREECE AND TURKEY.

Greece has no love for the Turks. Probably it can be said that the Turks harbor much the same kind of a feeling. It is not a new spirit of enmity that has sprung up but the continuance of that which has come down through the years. Because one of them stands as a victor doesn't end their difference; it only spurs the loser on to seek new conclusions.

There can be no desire on the part of the other nations to see Greece and Turkey rush at each other in a catch-as-catch-can combat, and yet from the feeling that prevails, the unwillingness of Turkey to abandon demands and the wish by Greece for another chance to demonstrate its belief that it can defeat the Turks the stage in the near east gives indications of being set for more bloodshed.

Turkey's last victory was most humiliating for Greece. Previous to it the Greeks could never be brought to admit such a possibility, and they are unwilling now to admit that Turkey is the superior, and it is especially disturbing when Turkey presents a claim for four and a half billion gold francs for the damage caused by the Greek army in its campaign in Asia Minor. Greece counters with a claim of five billion gold francs for the losses suffered by Greek nationals at the hands of the Turks and to cover the expenditures for the refugees forced from Smyrna. Greece is willing to let one claim balance the other. Turkey has no thought of such a thing and the result is that the feeling of enmity is growing into talk of another war.

One might not suppose that Greece was in any position to contemplate such a step so soon. It may get more support than it could at one time because of the feeling which others have developed toward Turkey, but with the declared desire of Europe for peace and an adjustment of the situation in the near east it is a time for the devotion of all possible efforts toward a peaceful settlement. What ought to be doesn't always get the necessary attention.

FIGHTING DOPE.

It is learned as the result of the conference of state and provincial health authorities in the national capital that the committee on drug addiction is of the opinion that there should be enacted state narcotic laws to supplement the federal Harrison anti-narcotic drug law; that there be compulsory and voluntary commitment of addicts; that there be facilities for treating addicts at all state hospitals and penal institutions; that smuggling be prevented as far as possible by international agreement and that the manufacture of narcotic [illegible]

ing waged against them. When it is claimed from a knowledge of the conditions that there is a drug addict to about every 500 persons in this country it reveals a surprising situation. But it becomes alarming when "the traffic in narcotic drugs shows the United States to be the largest consuming country, with an average of 16 grains of opium per capita, as contrasted with one grain in Italy, two in Germany, three in France and three and a half in Holland."

Plainly the use of habit-forming drugs is not a matter which can be allowed to take care of itself. Existing opposition and regulation have done much to interfere with the traffic but not as much as they should. The use of dope has gotten a grip that can never be broken any easier than now. Most of it is served now through illegal traffickers and smugglers and whatever measures are needed to deal with such wreakers of humanity ought not to be long in forthcoming. Neither authorities nor lawmakers should have any reason to show leniency in their behalf.

THE DANGER IN CANOES.

The season for canoeing has opened and likewise the time of year is at hand when the death toll is being increased by the drowning of those who go out in canoes and drown because they know not how to handle themselves in the water.

Saturday night two couples were thrown into a pond near Providence from a canoe. One young man could swim and got to shore. Another canoeist was able to save one of the young women but the other young man and woman were drowned. There may be no regularity about it but every now and then until snow flies the news of the day will be punctuated with just such sad affairs. It has been so in the past and unless there develops an unusual effort in behalf of personal safety and a proper fear of a canoe by those who cannot swim it can be expected that it will continue.

Somehow the idea seems to prevail that, even though others have hastened the day of their funerals by taking risks that were unwarranted or by jeopardizing their safety in a foolhardy manner where danger was known to exist in large measure, the necessity for care doesn't exist and that no attention need be paid to it. Every instance where canoes are upset, whether the occupants are drowned or have narrow escapes, serves to accentuate the fact that danger of that character cannot be minimized without incurring the inevitable penalty.

The pleasures of canoeing may be many but until those who desire to indulge are able to more than offset the risks by their ability to take care of themselves in the water their chances of living to a ripe old age are certainly increased by keeping out of such cockleshells. Too many fall to give a thought beyond the immediate prospect of pleasure.

MEETING THE LAW.

Announcement by the American manager of the Cunard line that the ships of that company will respect the decision of the United States supreme court relative to the transportation of liquor within the three-mile limit of this country indicates a desire to avoid all friction possible and recognizes the existence of a law which this country has a right to adopt and which it is only reasonable that all should respect.

Whether the other lines will follow the example of the Cunard remains to be seen, but coming first there is the possibility that it will be permitted to serve as the guide for others inasmuch as the Cunard is not a minor line among foreign steamships. When such a view is taken against the antagonizing of the American dry law it likewise makes it possible for any representation to be made in behalf of such modification as it is believed ought to be made in behalf of those foreign vessels whose countries provide for a beverage ratio for the crews that involves an alcoholic content of more than one-half of one per cent.

It is to be expected that some of the countries will bring the attention of this government to the conflict of the laws of the nations. Italian, French and Belgian vessels are required by law to provide wines or other drinks among their regular rations. There is no conflict except when such vessels are within our three-mile limit. Plainly both laws cannot be observed and if the differences are to be composed a much different attitude is bound to be taken here in behalf of modification if the disposition is to respect our law than would be the case if it were met by defiance.

THE LESSON

"I stopped in to pay you the money from the booth at the bazaar," said the caller, opening her purse. "We took in $160. Dont you think that was doing well? Count it, please."

"I am going down to the bank today or I should hate to take it," declared Mrs. Simmons. "I do not like having money in the house these days. I wonder you weren't afraid to carry so much in your purse."

"I suppose I am careless," said the caller. "But before I was married I used to carry the payroll for my father, sometimes as much as $10,000, and so small sums do not make me nervous."

"Mr. Simmons never allows me to carry money or to have any in the house," said Mrs. Simmons. "When I go downtown shopping I either charge things or have them sent C. O. D. and take only enough to get through the day."

"My husband used to be a great fusser about me and my money," said the caller. "But of late years he hasn't said a word. He used to say that a pickpocket would find me the easiest sort of victim, and I suppose he was right, really, though I never told him so. You see, I had the habit of carrying a large sum of money in my purse and holding it in one hand swinging at one side. My husband always said that a thief could snatch it as easy as anything."

"Well, he could," agreed Mrs. Simmons. "I lost a purse that way once, but, fortunately, I had almost nothing in it. I never told Mr. Simmons."

"Wise woman!" exclaimed the caller. "My mother had a cook book when I was a girl, written by Harriet Beecher Stowe, who said it was not necessary to tell John every time you burned a cake."

"I verily believe a man never gets over being afraid somebody is going to rob his wife or come in and steal her," laughed Mrs. Simmons.

"Well, suppose there was some excuse in my husband's getting excited about my purse," acknowledged the caller, "because, as I say, I used to swing it by one finger and often actually let it drop and had to pick it up again. I learned a lesson when it was really taken, though."

"So it was stolen after all?" asked Mrs. Simmons with interest. "Do tell me whether you ever got it back again?"

"That morning I had $50 that I was going to use to get a wedding present," said the caller. "And my husband and I talked the matter over before I started out. He wanted me to have the girl's present sent to his office, where he could pay for it, but I wanted the fun of selecting and bringing it home to show my sister, who was coming in for the afternoon. So I started off with the money and a little extra in case of emergencies, carrying it all in my handbag, as usual, swinging from one hand. My husband had given me a long talk at the breakfast table about being so careless and had made me promise to take no chances, but I had so long had the habit of carelessness that, though I started being careful, I was very soon as careless as ever. I did not find what I wanted for a long time and when I did I was not quite sure my husband would like it, so I had it put aside for me and was starting over to his office to see what he thought about it when I suddenly felt somebody grab my bag."

"Mercy!" exclaimed Mrs. Simmons. "I should think you would have been frightened to death!"

"Well, strange to say, I wasn't," said the caller. "I suppose my husband's talking so much about it had made me accustomed to the idea. Anyhow, I had planned out what I'd do in case anything like that happened, and I held on to that purse as tight as could be and yelled. I could not see the man, for he stood behind me, but his hand was still on my purse when some men rushed up and knocked him down. I don't know how many were sitting on him when the policeman came along and made them get off so that he could arrest the man."

"You brave creature!" exclaimed Mrs. Simmons. "I should think you would have been so proud! Did you have to go to the police station with them?"

"Well, no," said the caller as she rose. "It took a long time to straighten the matter out, but they finally let the man go, because I begged them to."

"That's really why we have so many burglaries and thefts," said Mrs. Simmons. "People are so easy on the men when they are caught. I am sure your husband would agree with me that it was a mistake to let him go."

"No, I think not," laughed the caller, hooking her fur. "You see, when the men got up from sitting on him I found it was my husband who was trying to show me how easily a thief could steal my purse. It was a lesson." —Exchange.

Wives of Famous Men

Theodosia Prevost, Wife of Aaron Burr.

Much has been written about the beautiful Theodosia, daughter of Aaron Burr, who disappeared mysteriously at sea, and much has been written of the great love and devotion of Burr to this daughter, but little has been told of that first Theodosia, who was his wife and who died shortly after the birth of the beloved daughter. Obscure sources, however, point to the understandable fact that Burr's extraordinary devotion to his daughter was simply a recrudescence of the love he bore his wife; he lived for the girl alone, because she was to him the fulfillment of the woman who meant so much to him.

Theodosia was a widow when she married Burr, in 1782. Her husband Col. Prevost, was garrisoned in the West Indies, when Burr, whose regiment was stationed 16 miles from the Prevost home, first met Mrs. Prevost. She lived with her mother and sister; there were no men in the house, and Burr, in the dangerous and exciting days of 1777, proved a gallant protector. He spent much time at the Prevost home, and grew deeply attached to Mrs. Prevost, but never spoke of this until her husband's sudden death released his tongue.

Five years later they were married, and it was with her that Aaron Burr spent the happiest days of his life. She was the first woman to make him appreciate feminine intellect. She was interested in books, in politics and in many of the subjects that seldom caught the fancy of women in the Eighteenth Century. Although considerably older than her husband, her charm and delightful personality captivated him completely.

administration of a house; its stewardship; spending or saving, whether money or time, or anything else, to the best possible advantage."

This is advice than cann well be taken at this time. Economy is always advisable, but only harmful effects can result from a system of economy that merges into miserliness.

The question of correct spending as well as correct saving is one of far-reaching importance because, while the elimination of waste and extravagance are always desirable, the general cutting down of legitimate expenditures to the point where the general business of the country would be adversely affected, the wheels of industry stopped and unemployment precipitated would, most assuredly be a false example of thrift.

Ruskin's analysis correctly places as much importance on correct spending as on correct saving. Success and progress are not the results of penurious practices.

True thrift is progress. Hence those who are truly thrifty keep business on the go because they spend wisely as well as save carefully. The money which comes into their hands does not lie dormant, neither does it go for purposes that are not upbuilding.

Through the careful administration of the thousands of our thrifty people money is kept flowing through channels that mean national progress as well as individual development.—American Thrift Society.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Dr. Jacob Gould Schurman, who today enters upon his seventieth year, is the present United States minister to China, and as such has directed the investigation and negotiations growing out of the recent capture of American tourists by Chinese bandits. Dr. Schurman has been before the public in so many capacities—as an educator, as a diplomatist, and as a writer and lecturer—that the story of his rise to prominence is of especial interest. He was born on a farm on Prince Edward Island. In his youth he was employed first as a store clerk and later as a farm hand. Meanwhile he spent every minute he could spare in study. Despite all handicaps he was able to win in all-Canada competition, a University of London scholarship. Subsequently he studied at Paris, Edinburgh, Heidelberg, Berlin and Gottingen. After teaching for a time at Scadia University and then at Dalhousie College, he was called to Cornell, in 1886, to teach philosophy. In 1892 he was made president of the university.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Genesis and Evolution

Mr. Editor: Wm. Bryan has been making a lecturing propaganda for some two years, against Darwin; mainly under the title "The Bible and Evolution;" a misnomer in case of his lecture which I heard last year in Brooklyn, in that he did not discuss the Bible at all; but in his lecture in New Haven April 28, he says he plants himself on the first chapter of Genesis; ignoring the fact that that chapter describes an evolution broad enough, man's only excepted, to satisfy the theories of even extreme evolutionists; the evolution of the earth from a chaotic or nebulous condition; the emergence of land from the universal ocean, which covered it in the Devonian geologic age, of age of fishes; and the evolution of plant and animal life.

"And God said, let the earth bring forth grass, the herb and the fruit tree. And the earth brought forth grass," etc. "And God said, let the waters bring forth abundantly the moving creature that hath life and fowl that may fly above the earth. And the waters brought forth abundantly," etc. "And God said, let the earth bring forth the living creatures, cattle and creeping thing, and beast after his kind; and it was so." Gen. 1:1-12; 20, 21, 24. The theistic evolutionist believes that God was the power behind evolution, which is the process of God's working; but there is no indication in the above quotations that there was any interference supernatural or other, with the process after it was once started. Recent zoologists figure that there are well over 500,000 species of animals, of which 360,000,000 of the class insects; and recent botanists reckon 300,000 species of plant life, including sea plants and microscopic plants. Would not a wise creator economize on the labor of creating each of these 800,000 species by special creation of types? Each varying to adapt it to its environment, from the common ancestral type as the branches, into distinguishable differentiated species and groups. That is the the theory of evolution.

A Little Talk on Thrift

Economy Always Advisable

It is unfortunate that many persons look on thrift merely as a miserly attitude toward life.

It is deplorable that this false and harmful conception of thrift is often given encouragement by those who mean well but who are unaware of the ill-affects of such teachings.

It is well to bear these thoughts in mind particularly at this time when one hears occasional references to a "buyers' strike."

Ruskin's famous analysis of economy in appropo. "Economy no more means saving money," he wrote, "than it means spending money; it means

Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Health
Worcester, Mass. — "I had some trouble caused by a female weakness and got so run-down and weak from it, that I could hardly stand or walk across the floor. The doctor gave me all kinds of pills, but nothing helped me. I happened to meet a friend who had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, so I thought I would try it. After taking its use I began to improve, and now I feel fine and am doing all of my housework, including washing, sewing and house cleaning. I have recommended your medicine to my friends, and I am willing for you to use this letter as testimonial as I would like to help any one suffering the way I did from such a weakness." — Mrs. DARIA HICKEY, 4 St. Ludlow St., Worcester, Mass.

Stories That Recall Others

Musings on a Rainy Day

The grocery boy knocked at the back door when it was raining in torrents. The good housewife answered the knock pleasantly. She was happy because of the rain. Her father had been a farmer and she had lived on a farm.

"Isn't this a fine morning?" she said.

"Yeh, certainly is," replied the boy perfunctorily. Then the meaning of his answer flashed through his mind and he changed tack, somewhat sulkily, for the rain made his task unpleasant. Streets were muddy and the old rubber raincoat was hot. He was perspiring and it was a trying job to show an even temper to customer.

"Hmph. Wasn't thinking what I was sayin'", he added. "Maybe you call this a fine day, but I don't."

"Oh, you mustn't look at it like that," replied the good housewife. "Just think how long it has been since it rained, and think how the farmers must rejoice. Why, their crops would have been——"

Then he exploded. "Farmers!" he fairly shouted, and there was real disgust in his voice. "I guess they don't have just about everything they want, though. And a lot of people would like to see us uncomfortable just so the farmers can be satisfied." He tramped off the porch heavily leaving muddy footprints behind.

Then the good housewife fell to thinking. "If it were not for the farmer that raises the grain that makes the flour that makes the bread which the young man delivered, and the garden truck and other things just where would his job be, anyhow?" she mused to herself.

POETRY

SOMETIME.

Sometime, when all life's lessons have been learned,
And sun and stars forevermore have set,
The things which our weak judgments here have spurned,
The things o'er which we grieved with lashes wet,
Will flash before us out of life's dark night,
As stars shine most in deepest tints of blue;
And we shall see how all God's plans are right,
And how what seemed reproof was love most true.

And we shall see how, while we frowned and sigh,
God's plans go on as best for you and me;
How, when we called, He dared not always cry,
Lest we should weary of His rule and cease to be.
And e'en as prudent parents withhold
Too much of sweet to cloying babyhood,
So God, perhaps, is keeping from us many
Life's sweetest things, because it seemeth good.

And if, sometimes, commingled with His wine,
We find the wormwood, and recoil and shrink,
Ah sure a wiser head than yours or mine
Pours out the potion for our lips to drink;
And if some friend we love is taken home,
Where human kisses cannot reach his face,
Oh, do not blame the loving Father, come
But wear your sorrow with obedient grace!

And you shall shortly know that lengthened breath
Is not the sweetest gift that earth has for a friend
And that, sometimes, the cable pall of death
Conceals the fairest boon His love can send.
If we could push ajar the gates of life
And stand within and all God's workings see,
We could interpret all this doubt and strife,
And for each mystery could find a key.

But not today. Then be content, poor heart;
God's plans like lilies pure and white unfold:
We must not tear the close-shut leaves apart.
Time will reveal the calyxes of gold.
And if, through patient toil, we reach the land,
Where tired feet, with sandals loosed, may rest,
When we shall clearly know and understand,
I think that we shall say, "God knew the best!"

—Mary Riley Smith.

DANDELION GREENS.

Sky rifted gray by the wrath-dog's drift;
At the gate of the West, past the windless hill
The flames of the lengthened sunset burn—
Torch of the spring that is at the turn.

Tonight, 'neath the willows' purpled shade,
Two bent forms passed in the greening glade,
Jr, stooping, moved; with their bodies low
From place to place I watched them go.
Thought I, "Like 'The Gleaners,' by Millet,
Those women wend their toilsome way."

The dew-damp dusk came settling down
Like a folded cloak on the quiet town,
Home-windows welcome illuminated through,
And the dim forms faded from my view
With baskets filled. How well I know—
I, too, went "greening" years ago!

This Leaves the Arms Free From Hairy Growths

(Toilet Talks)

A simple method for competely removing every trace of hair or fuzz is here given. This is painless and usually a single treatment will banish even stubborn growths. To remove hairs, make a thick paste with some powdered delatone and water, spread on hairy surface and after about two minutes rub off, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. This method will not mar the skin, but to avoid disappointment, be certain you get delatone.

Mayor's Annual Letter.

At the close of the meeting Mayor Water read his annual letter to the council as follows:

At this the closing meeting of the current year, it seems fitting that we should review some of the work that has been done during the past 12 months.

Public Works Department

During the period since July 1, 1922, this department has been under the management of Mr. Albert Cruthers. Experienced in the matter of public improvements, versed in road building, accomplished as an executive in handling men, Mr. Cruthers has brought to the position of street commissioner a knowledge of men and conditions which he has utilized for the benefit of the city and its taxpayers. I feel, without detracting one iota from those who have preceded him, that he is the most competent street commissioner that Norwich has ever had. Last June the North Main street improvement was about two-thirds completed. This has now been finished. The state of Connecticut has carried out the Fox Hill improvement from the top of the hill to the blacksmith shop and it is hoped that it will carry it to the bridge this summer. Asylum street from West Main street to Newton street, Mechanic street from West Main street to Spring street, Shipping street and Perkins avenue have been macadamized. Sewers have been constructed in Boswell avenue, Laurel Hill avenue, Hamilton avenue and York avenue and the much needed improvement of the Franklin street bridge was completed. The Water street improvement and permanent street improvement on Laurel Hill avenue are both well under way.

Fire Department

During the year this department has undergone many changes. With the closing of the Main street situation, the transfer of a permanent company to Greeneville to take the place of the volunteer companies that were mustered out of service, the purchase of a new pumper for that station and the appropriation for a new station for the Falls section, it seems that the city is well protected.

Gas and Electrical Department

Many extensions and replacements have been made in all parts of the city. Through the possession of a municipally owned plant, the street lighting cost to the city of Norwich is less than one-half the amount paid in neighboring cities. The cost to Norwich last year was about $22,000, while in our sister city, New London it was nearly $50,000.

During the past year the receipts of the department have increased from $550,000 to about $650,000, an increase of about 20 per cent.

Water Department

The service of this department touches every resident of the city. With the increase use of water by the large industries of the city, and the Norwich state hospital, it is incumbent upon me to call to the attention of the council and of the citizens the fact that steps should be taken at once to provide a larger water supply for our city.

Police Department

The work of this department has increased with the changing conditions of the city during the past few years. The ever increasing traffic conditions in the city necessarily require and demand men and more than we have today to care for the same. The police of Norwich, under Chief Linton are entitled to the heartiest support and cooperation of the people of this city.

Park Department

With the small appropriation that this department has received yearly it seems almost impossible that they should be able to carry on their duties as well as has been done. Mohegan park is the beauty spot of the Rose of New England and every citizen should be proud of it.

In closing, I desire to express my deepest appreciation and heartiest thanks to the corporation counsel, whose advice has been invaluable, to the city clerk, the city engineer, the heads of the various departments who have worked so loyally for our city, and to the members of the court of common council who, without regard to political affiliations, have conscientiously and zealously served the city during the past year.

STREET LIGHTING TALK BEFORE NORWICH MEN

Modern street lighting was the subject presented in an interesting and instructive way Monday night at the membership meeting and supper of the chamber of commerce at the Wauregan house at 6.15 o'clock with about 100 members attending.

The speaker was J. H. Lynch of Boston, illuminating engineer in charge of the New England district for the Westinghouse Electrical Manufacturing Co., who used lantern slides to illustrate his subject.

Swahn's orchestra played during the supper hour and J. C. Worth was song leader, the programme for the evening opening with the singing of America. President H. M. Lerou introduced the speaker, saying that the attendance at the meeting indicated the chamber of commerce members' interest in public benefits and in view of the proposal for better street lighting it had been thought advisable to bring a speaker here to talk on the subject. We had been hearing something in the papers, Mr. Lerou said, about our narrow and crooked streets, as well as other subjects but if our streets are narrow and crooked he thought that was all the more reason why they should be well lighted. Twenty years ago it was predicted we should have a taxless city. That time has not arrived yet, but as we own our own gas and electric light plant, it seems the time has arrived when we should get the most benefit from it and the commissioners look with favor upon the plan that had been advanced.

Mr. Lynch declared in opening his talk that modern street lighting was an asset to a community and one that counted in the competition between different places to get ahead of their neighbors. Adequate street lighting appeals to civic pride, proves progress and is an aid to morality and safety.

Over 60 per cent of the crimes committed are after dark and Cleveland had shown that there had been a 41 per cent decrease in crimes after dark through the installation of a modern white way system of street lighting. When Chicago, during the war, cut down its street lights to save coal, crime increased at night in a startling way and the newspapers came out with headlines, 'Light the Silent Policeman."

Traffic fatalities are another thing that proper street lighting cuts down. Statistics show that 17.6 per cent of the night accidents are due to inadequate light, and the figures of 32 cities show that 39.3 per cent of the traffic accidents happen at night.

Street lighting [illegible]

average taxpayer 10 cents per month and only 3 cents out of each dollar in city budgets goes to street lighting. While living costs have increased greatly in the past few years the cost of electricity for street lighting had gone down. A satisfactory system of modern street lighting could be maintained at from $1 to $1.50 per capita, although the average for the big cities of the United States shows from $1.80 to $2. The Norwich average per capita is 70 cents.

Mr. Lynch advocated the single-top light instead of the cluster, saying that the type he advocated would reduce operating costs, maintenance expenses and save coal as compared with the cluster light, while it gave a better light and better appearance.

There would be a saving of $5 per year per light by the single-top light as compared with the cluster. In one city where the two kinds had been used the total cost of the cluster lights was $1,188 and of the single-top lights $790.

He showed many views of well lighted and poorly lighted streets in different cities and of the different types of posts and fixtures.

In summing up he gave fourteen reasons why adequate street lighting should be provided by cities as follows: It is a necessity for protection of every community against crime. It attracts the attention of people from neighboring towns, auto trade and tourists. It gives a psychological impression of progress. It stimulates civic pride and turns knockers into boosters. It assists the police and firemen in their duties. It enhances and stabilizes real estate values. It is a real indication of progressiveness. It promotes other improvements. It attracts industries. It facilitates handling traffic and decreases accidents. It improves sanitary conditions. It lessens destruction and injury to property. It decreases the number of overhead wires. It develops the City Beautiful idea. It makes an exceedingly low cost per capita for street lighting.

Adequate street lighting, he said, in closing, is not an extravagance, but a necessity.

Superintendent Hatch and Assistant Superintendent Baker of New London were present at the supper. In response to an invitation from Mr. Lerou to give his opinion on cluster lights and single-top lights Mr. Hatch said his personal preference was for the single-top.

Votes of thanks were passed to the speakers and the meeting adjourned after singing The Star Spangled Banner.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

On Wednesday of this week there is to be a meeting at the home of Judge and Mrs. M. A. Shumway in the interest of the drive for $20,000 for the nurses' home fund of the Day Kimball hospital. This fund is being raised in units of $50, one or more units being assigned to individuals, organizations or groups who will pledge themselves to raise the money. Lively work and enthusiastic co-operation is manifest in Putnam, Woodstock, Thompson and Pomfret and other towns in the eastern part of the county. Danielso nis one of the great beneficiaries of the Day Kimball hospital and this fact will not be overlooked by those who will help with the fund drive in this town. A men's committee is being formed here to assist in the work, which will reach out into every nook and corner of the town. Any fraternal organization, social club or group may help in the drive by pledging itself to raise one or more units for the fund.

It is hoped to break ground for the new home, which is urgently needed, during the coming month and have it ready for occupancy in the fall. The building is to be a three-story structure in Colonial style.

A man who talked more or less wildly about the futility of searching for "Tibbitts' body" and suggesting that "they had better look for the body of a murdered woman over back of Ballouville" attracted the attention of the few passengers who were on the south bound trolley car that picked him up at Attawaugan crossing at noon Monday.

The man appeared to be a stranger in these parts. He was probably 50 years of age, rather under medium size, wore a blue serge suit, brown shoes and a gray cap. Those who heard his rather excited talk, which ceased completely after more people boarded the car at the carhouse and at Dayville, took little stock in his talk about a murder in the vicinity of Ballouville. He appeared to be seriously upset mentally, but was not at all violent. He volunteered no information about himself.

The funeral of John Dooley was held from his home at the corner of Franklin and Furnace streets with services at St. James' church, where Rev. John Roux, M. S., Rev. Joseph Moussier, M. S., and Rev. The bearers were James Monohan, Frank Coffey, Thomas Dooley, Patrick Riley, Edward Maher and Patrick Dowd. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Killingly's entries in the annual Y. M. C. A. High school field meet at the Brooklyn fair grounds won second place in the day's totals with 23 points, against 43 points by Putnam, which came out in first place. The detainl of the events is set forth in the Putnam news this morning.

William S. Brown on Monday sold another group of six two-tenement house on Water street. This is the third house of the group he has disposed of within the past two weeks and the remaining three are practically sold, Mr. Brown said. The houses sold have been purchased by Albert Messier and his sisters, by Mr. and Mrs. John Vadheres and by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Fanbroski. Mr. Brown has disposed of these dwellings, erected only a few days ago, in order to be in a position to undertake other real estate transactions in Danielson. Mr. Brown, it will be recalled, sold the Orpheum theatre building, which he built a few years ago. He also is the builder of the original structures where Flood's stables now are as well as being at the present time owner of the Attawaugan hotel and valuable farm property near Wauregan. Mr. Brown declined to state Monday just what he has in mind at the present time in the way of new real estate ventures here, but he is a builder and very progressive.

It is possible that he will be given a hearing in Central Village today, although that was not definitely stated Monday evening.

PUTNAM

There was little change Monday in the labor difficulty involving the plant of the Manhasset Manufacturing company. A few who have persistently remained away from work since May 3 returned to work Monday morning, while the organized workers who were out also claimed a few additions to their ranks. On the whole, however, the situation appeared on Monday to be just dragging on. The mill continues to operate and the workers who are out continue to hold their daily meetings.

The drive for $20,000 to build a Nurses' home at the Day Kimball hospital is in full swing and is away to a splendid start. Director John C. Whitehead said Monday morning that the Tag day here on Saturday brought in nearly $500, this being the first eight cash units of $50 each in cash from Putnam. Mrs. Andrew V. Frost with a corps of more than a score of young women from Putnam High school assisting, worked on the Tag day fund during the day, while in the evening nurses in uniform from the hospital lent their aid with the work. Monday evening at Academy hall in Woodstock there was another meeting in the interest of the drive. Mr. Whitehead and Principal E. H. Snow of Putnam High school addressed this meeting, which was arranged by Mrs. George M. Sampson of that town and her corps of workers. Attention of the public is called to the fact that Box 41 of the firm alarm telegraph system has been removed from its long time location at the corner of Front and Main street, at the Bugbe and Wulf store to the opposite corner, near Mansfield's store. This is a temporary change made so that a new pole, carrying electric light wires, may be replaced next Sunday. The pole to be removed was quite badly damaged by a truck a few days ago. The pole to be set will be five feet higher than the one to be taken out. Box 41 is an important one and its location should be fixed in the minds of all.

Spirited contests featured the first track meet held in years, in which school boys from numerous Windham county towns participated, more than 100 youths taking part in 16 athletic events held on Saturday at the fair grounds, Brooklyn, under the joint auspices of the Y. M. C. A. and the high and grammar schools of the county.

Putnam scored the greatest number of points, 43, and second place went to Killingly with 28 points. Other towns finished in the following order: Third, Plainfield, 25; fourth, Brooklyn, 18; fifth, Thompson, 13; sixth, Woodstock, 8; seventh, Eastford, 6; eighth, Willimantic, 3; ninth, Pomfret, 1.

Some surprises were developed during the day for there came to light numerous cases of unsuspected athletic prowess on the part of both the grammar and high school boys. One striking thing proven by the athletic contest was that several schools have one or two boys who are really head and shoulders above others, as regards their all-round athletic prowess and if they train consistently and hard, they have the ability to become shining stars.

After the contests were over, Secretary John Corbett presented the prize ribbons to the winners.

There was a large crowd of spectators on hand from the time the first event was run off at 10.30 o'clock until 4 o'clock, when the mile race was staged. Then came the half-hour when ribbons were awarded to the individual winners. Boys and spectators alike were delighted with the day's programme. There were three classes, A, B, C brought into the contest the smaller boys, the middle sized boys and the older boys. There were 16 events in all and two were in progress at the same time, most all day.

The following is the summary: Mile race, Johnson, Woodstock; second, Parker, Brooklyn; third, Ryan, Thompson; obstacle race, first, Millahan, Brooklyn; second, Morse, Woodstock; third, Moran, Brooklyn; running broad jump, Class B, first, Thayer, 15 ft. 10 in.; second, Dowas, 16 ft., 3 in.; third, French, 14 ft., 8 in.; high jump, Class C, first, Blakeley, Killingly, 5 ft., 4 in.; second, Morse, Putnam, 5 ft., 3 in.; third, Williams, Plainfield, 5 ft.; shot put, Class B, first, Chubbuck, Thompson, 34 ft., 5 in.; second, French, Eastford, 33 ft., 11 in.; third, Downs, Killingly, 33 ft. 5 in.

Rheumatism Is Ended, Says Fitchburg Woman

"Both my husband and myself attribute our good health to Tanlac, and take every opportunity to recommend it," declared Mrs. Fred Rameau, 100 Temple St., West Fitchburg, Mass. "This medicine ended my troubles more than a year ago, and I have felt splendid ever since.

"Indigestion and rheumatism pulled my strength down to where I was so weak and nervous that I would get so faint I had to stop my housework and lie down. Sourness and gas on my stomach took away the pleasure of eating. I suffered greatly from heart palpitation and shortness of breath, and my appetite deserted me. The rheumatism was worse in my arms and legs, but sometimes I ached all over, and constipation made my misery much more intense.

"The Tanlac treatment gave me a perfect appetite and digestion, ended my rheumatism entirely, and I am feeling like a new person. We wouldn't think of being without Tanlac."

WESTERLY

Memorial day, Wednesday, May 30, will be observed in Westerly generally as has been the usual custom. Early in the morning the outlying cemeteries will be visited by representatives of the G. A. R., S. W. V. and A. L., assisted by the Boy Scouts. In the forenoon will occur the parade of veteran and military organizations, ceremonies on Pawcatuck bridge and the decoration of graves in St. Michael's and and River Bend cemeteries. Although the senior veteran organization is in charge of the day's observance, active work on the program of the day has been turned over to George E. Leonard of the Spanish War veterans, who has acted in this capacity for the last few years.

Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, D. D., pastor of the United Congregational church of Norwich, is to make the address at River Bend cemetery. Announcement is also made that contributed flowers in addition to the blooming geranium plant and flag marker placed on the grave of every deceased veteran will be placed on Soldiers' and Sailors' lot in River Bend cemetery. It is desired that business be suspended during the day and evening, that the spirit of the day may not be transgressed by frivolous amusements which detract from its solemn observance. All who have flags are requested to place them at masthead during the day, and make such other display as accords with the occasion. At 12 o'clock noon, until five minutes after 12, bells will be tolled and during this period flags will be placed at half mast and comrades stand at attention, with uncovered heads.

With two bands, the line will form on Elm street, right resting near Broad street, and promptly at 10 o'clock a. m. will march as follows:

A fitting ending to "Mother and Daughter Week," May 13-20, following Mothers' day on the 13th, was the Mother and Daughter banquet given under the auspices of the women teachers of the Pawcatuck Seventh Day Baptist church in the church vestry on Sunday night.

Mothers and daughters to the number of nearly 100 were seated at the tables with a pink rose for each, in the church vestry attractively decorated with apple blossoms. A salad was served and strawberry shortcake with whipped cream, cocoa and tea. Songs and music were enjoyed. Mrs. Clayton A. Burdick acted as toastmaster and the responses interesting, pleasing and instructive. Milestones, a topic by Mrs. John Austin contained references to her own experiences and life. Sign Posts was a subject well handled by Miss Betty Whitford. Mrs. Lewis R. Greene gave two selections by Edgar Guest. Mrs. Frederick Hall responded to Strangers on the Road, while Miss Elizabeth Hiscox had for her subject The Fork in the Road.

A solo was rendered by Miss Martha Burdick and a duet by the Misses Betty Whitford and Elizabeth Austin. Very fitting was the talk by Mrs. Dell Burdick. A detailed description of the relations existing between mothers and daughters of different nations as they impressed her was the subject matter of a talk given by Mrs. Eugene Stillman, who has just returned from an extended trip around the world. Mrs. Stillman spoke most entertainingly on her observations and especially and most favorably was that reported between the Japanese mother and her daughter. Very useful, practical and helpful suggestions were furnished for the Mother and Daughter week by the Rhode Island Sunday School association of which the Sunday school is a member.

"My face broke out with pimples and blackheads. At first the pimples were in hard red blotches, and were very annoying and disagreeable looking. They itched and burned nights, and in my sleep I used to scratch them. I was obliged to stay in the house at times, my face was so badly disfigured.

"I sent for a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and used it with great benefit. I purchased more and in less than three months it was completely healed, after using two cakes of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment." (Signed) Miss Eugenie Stuart, R. F. "STRANGENESS OF UNBELIEF," SHOP MEETING TOPIC

At the noon hour Monday under Y. M. C. A. auspices, Rev. Charles H. Ricketts delivered an impressive address to the employes of the Richmond Radiator Co. on the topic, The Strangeness of Unbelief. In part Mr. Ricketts spoke as follows:

Our Lord had gone back to Nazareth, his boyhood home, for the first time since he began his public ministry. This is not at all strange when we consider that it was less than a year since he began the Judean ministry. He at once accepted the privilege that was open to all friends and strangers alike who had a message to give, of speaking in the synagogue. What feelings must have welled up in his heart as he stood in a place so familiar and dear to him! There were Joseph and Mary among the auditors. There were also his brothers and sisters and others who had entered into his boyhood life.

It is said that Jesus "spake as never man spake," but there is reason for believing that he never with such fervency as now. So much so that they were filled with amazement and began to comment: "Whence hath this man such things? Where did he get such wisdom? How does he perform such wonderful deeds? He surpasses all the rabbis we ever knew!"

But all at once they spoil that splendid wonderment by saying: "Is not this the carpenter? Do we not know Mary, his mother, and Joseph and other members of his family?" Instead of giving him an ovation and the glad hand because one of their own number was climbing up into the regions of immortality, a little, contemptible jealousy makes them envious of him, and they turned him down.

Jesus saw this and said that a prophet "is not without honor save in his home town," and he marvelled at their unbelief." Hence my theme: The Strangeness of Unbelief.

The speaker then set forth two main thoughts: the nature of unbelief and its strangeness. It is not unbelief not to accept all one hears or sees. It is not unbelief to reject what Tom, Dick and Harry have thought about the Bible that has come to us in traditional form. It is unbelief to turn the Bible down: it is to accept it as the record of God's historic work in human redemption; to deny that Jesus Christ is Lord.

The seeds of unbelief is (1) in the head. Men will not accept unless they understand; (2) in the heart, because the heart loves to follow a course of action that the Bible condemns, and (3) because of an inactive, indolent will. As there are many who let others do the manual labor, they also let others do their thinking. Rather than to think they find it easier to deny.

The strangeness of unbelief is seen in that it is unnatural. Man is the being that denies. Unbelief is arrogant and insolent in saying that nothing can exist that is not understood. Unbelief busies itself with little things and leaves untouched the thoughts of God, Christ and immortality. Unbelief is strange because very few people die unbelievers. Dr. J. C. Royle, bishop Liverpool, has said if people will deal honestly with their own souls about the use of means for acquiring religious knowledge, unbelief would disappear from the earth.

READS HER POEMS FOR PARISH HOUSE DEPARTMENT

The Parish house department of the Woman's Federation of Park Congregational church held its last meeting of the season in the parlors of the Parish house Friday afternoon.

Mrs. H. T. Arnold opened the meeting with a short devotional service, after which the usual business was transacted.

Miss Louise C. Howe as chairman of this department introduced Miss Anna Hempstead Branche of New London, whom Henry Markham says is the greatest of women poets. Before reading her poems, Miss Branche said that true greatness lay in the truth one presented in one's poems. She told of poetry being used as a healing factor in the treatment of shellshock, when it was read to the patients, learning lines to recite to themselves and later they read poems themselves. She thinks that poetry is a natural means of expression, also that children naturally express themselves in rhythm and all children love poems. She does not believe that all words have the same value in spite of the advocates of free verse.

The first poem she read was "A Child's Ritual" in appreciation of one flower and was an exquisite thing. It is being used quite a bit in Sunday schools as a children's exercise with a chorus of children, assisted by adult voices and the organ. The other elections were The Apple Tree, Thompson's Prayer, a civic ode which has been set to music, and is used in public schools. Then followed The Shop Girl and My Mother's Words, after which she read a poem of her mother's, The Petrified Fern. She also read verses to commemorate a birthday of the University of Virginia, a poem One Who Fights, The House on John Street, Connecticut Road Song, and In the Beginning Was the Word, written after reading the Bible Through in ten days.

Tea was served by the social committee. Mrs. William H. Collins and Mrs. Frank Clapp were at the tea table.

RAIN CAUSED POSTPONEMENT OF CONCERT PROGRAMME

Rain Monday caused the postponement of the afternoon and evening exercises of the Italians of the city in observance of the Virgin Mary of Savoreto day. It was announced by the committee late in the afternoon that the band concert and fireworks scheduled for the evening had been postponed until Tuesday provided the weather is clear for that evening. With fair weather the band concert will be held this (Tuesday) evening at 7 o'clock and the fireworks will be touched off at 10 o'clock. If it rains again today the celebration will be postponed for one week, until Monday night, May 28th.

Despite the rain Monday morning the celebration began as scheduled with the firing of 30 bombs at 6 o'clock from the little park on Franklin street. During the morning and afternoon the Italian Columbus band paraded the principal streets of the city and the music was enjoyed by many people out on the streets.

At 10 o'clock in the morning a high mass was celebrated at St. Patrick's church by Rev. Rocco J. Guerriero assisted by Rev. Myles P. Galvin as deacon and Rev. M. H. May as subdeacon. There was special music by an orchestra and a full choir rendered several selections.

At noon 20 more salutes were fired attracting attention throughout the city and because of the rain this completed the programme for the day.

Miss Kelly Gave Butterfly Dance.

Among those taking part in the May day revels held Saturday afternoon by the Women's college in Brown university, Providence, was Miss May B. Kelly of this city, who was one of those who danced the butterfly dance. The May day festivities were held on the middle campus. In the recent all college elections for next year's officers Miss Kelly was elected business manager of Brun Mael, the college yearbook, and senior editor of the Record, the college newspaper.

TIBBETTS' NEIGHBORS OFFER NEW REWARD OF $300

Friends of William Tibbetts, the missing farmer of Fitchville, have raised the sum of $300 and have offered it as a reward for the discovery of his body or information that will lead to his being found. This $300 added to the various rewards that have been offered from time to time since he disappeared from his farm home on April 9th makes a total of $1,800 offered for the finding of Tibbetts dead or alive.

His many farmer friends hold to the belief that he was murdered by someone unknown and discredit any talk of his having wandered away from his valuable farm. As the weeks go by and nothing is heard of him, many other people who at first believed he might have wandered away are becoming convinced that he has met with foul play.

Officers, although not working openly on the case, are keeping an eye open for any lead that might tend to throw light on the mystery, one of the deepest ever seen in this section of the state.

You will enjoy eating Kellogg's Bran because its nut-like flavor appeals to the taste. And, think what each mouthful is doing to drive constipation out of your system and to re-establish health! That's because it is ALL BRAN. Kellogg's Bran is scientifically made to relieve suffering humanity—IT WILL DO THAT AS NO OTHER FOOD CAN!

Physicians recommend the regular use of Kellogg's Bran for mild or chronic cases and as a preventive. Bran, eaten each day and in proper quantity, sweeps, cleanses and purifies the alimentary tract.

Get away from pills and cathartics—Kellogg's Bran will give you permanent relief from constipation.

Do not confuse Kellogg's Bran with common bran. Kellogg's is cooked, krumbled and ready to serve. It can be used in the most delightful baking products without in any way reducing its regulatory value. Try raisin bread or muffins or griddle-cakes made with Kellogg's Bran. Recipes are printed on each package.

Kellogg's Bran is nationally eaten for health's sake as a cereal—in winter time with hot milk. Others prefer it sprinkled over hot or cold cereals. Another way is to mix it with hot cereals just before serving. It can also be cooked with cereal. In each case add two tablespoonfuls of Kellogg's Bran for each person; in chronic cases as much with each meal.

Kellogg's Bran is sold by all grocers and is supplied in individual packages at first-class hotels and clubs. Ask for it at your restaurant!

WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN DEFEATED IN PRESBYTERY

Evolutionists Scored a Victory When the Assembly Rejected the Commoner's Resolution to Bar Schools Permitting Teaching of the Evolutionary Hypothesis From Use of Church Funds—The Assembly Adopted a Substitute Resolution—There Was a Bitter Fight Over the Bryan Measure and the Argument Reached Personalities.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 23 (By the A. P.)—William Jennings Bryan was defeated and evolutionists scored a victory today when the general assembly of the Presbyterian Church of the United States of America defeated the Commoner's resolution to bar schools permitting the teaching of the evolutionary hypothesis from use of church funds.

The assembly adopted a substitute resolution offered by John Willis Baer of Pasadena, which in mild terms directed synods and Presbyteries to "withhold their official approval" from educational institutions "where any teaching or instruction is given which seeks to establish a materialistic evolutionary philosophy of life or which disregards or attempts to discredit the Christian faith."

The fundamentalists, under Mr. Bryan's leadership, went down fighting in the most bitterly waged struggle the general assembly has seen, according to church historians, since Charles A. Briggs of Union Theological Seminary was unfrocked more than thirty years ago because of his Old Testament criticisms.

In the final fight it was layman against layman, with Mr. Bryan against Mr. Baer in a debate that even reached an exchange of personalities. Mr. Baer, a California banker and only layman who has ever held the office of moderator, is chairman of the committee on education, which had rejected the Bryan resolution in its report. Mr. Bryan is vice chairman of the committee.

The argument reached personalities when Mr. Baer, presenting his resolution, declared Mr. Bryan "is as honest as he can be—but he is mistaken, as he has been before."

"I want to object to the statement made by Brother Baer," the Commoner shouted when the assembly granted him 15 minutes to reply.

"I don't want my democracy used against this cause. I don't want any republican to appeal to republican prejudices by referring to my democratic beliefs.

"I helped this nation get prohibition. Did you do any more, Brother Baer? Was I mistaken in that fight? I helped this nation get woman's suffrage. Did you do any more than I and was I mistaken then? I want you to know I have been engaged in eight great national reforms in the last twenty-five years. Was I mistaken in those issues?"

A rising vote was taken on the question of substituting Mr. Baer's resolution for Mr. Bryan's and the evolutionists apparently were in the majority by more than two to one. On the question of final adoption only one dissenting vote was heard.

The resolution reads:

"Resolved, that synods and Presbyteries within whose bounds Presbyterian supported academies, colleges and training schools are located are hereby instructed to exercise careful oversight over the instruction given in such institutions and that synods and Presbyteries withhold their official approval from such academies, colleges and training schools where any teaching or instruction is given which seeks to establish a materialistic evolutionary philosophy of life or which disregards or attempts to discredit the Christian faith."

The defeated Bryan resolution said:

"Resolved, That no part of the educational fund of the Presbyterian Church of the United States of America shall be paid to any school, college, university or theological seminary that teaches or permits to be taught as a proven fact either Darwinism or or any other evolutionary hypothesis that links men in blood relationship with any other form of life."

Defeat on the question of evolution followed a day of successes for Mr. Bryan and his followers in the assembly. They won three victories, the first when the delegates adopted his resolution requesting every minister, church official, church members and the faculties and students of Presbyterian schools to sign the pledge of total abstinence.

Darwin, he said, traces his hypothetical evolution of life, "until it branches off in two stems, old world monkeys and new world monkeys, and he says we are descended from old world monkeys—he won't even let us spring from American monkeys."

Rumors of a stormy session of the committee on education yesterday when Dr. William P. Merrill, pastor of the Brick Church of New York, faced Mr. Bryan and demanded a retraction of a statement The Commoner was reported to have made about the Rev. Mr. Merrill's mother in a sermon Sunday night, were confirmed today after Dr. Merrill had joined the evolutionists in opposing Mr. Bryan's resolution.

Newspaper accounts of Mr. Bryan's sermon at Westminster Presbyterian church Sunday night, quoted him as saying that one of the most prominent ministers in the assembly who had filled one of the most prominent churches in the city Sunday morning, had told him his mother became an agnostic before her death.

Dr. Merrill, a noted defender of Harry Emerson Fosdick, spoke at the Second Presbyterian church on Sunday morning.

Yesterday afternoon Mr. Bryan is reported to have repeated the statement in the meeting of the committee on education, naming Dr. Merrill as the minister referred to. When the New York preacher heard of the statement he asked and obtained permission to face Mr. Bryan before the committee and deny the allegation.

Reports from the committee room say Mr. Bryan did not recognize Dr. Merrill when he first appeared and said the man he had in mind was another person. Dr. Merrill is quoted as replying that "Mr. Bryan's imagination has been substituted for his memory both as to the man and as to what he is supposed to have said."

6,000 LABORERS JOIN THE STRIKING BRICKLAYERS

New York, May 22.—Striking bricklayers, who have tied up more than $100,000,000 worth of building in New York, were joined by nearly 6,000 laborers acting as bricklayers' helpers. They demanded an increase from $7 to $8 a day.

A. J. Fogarty, chairman of the strike committee of the bricklayers' union, issued a statement declaring the strike had broken the ranks of the Mason Builders' association, against which it was directed, seven builders of the 54 holding membership in the association having resigned.

He made public a copy of a letter he said one of the firms had written in resigning. This letter said the firm in question was paying bricklayers $14 a day, as compared with the $12 the strikers are demanding. The association points out, however, that it has not refused to pay the $12 scale demanded, an increase of $3 a day, but that its objection is to signing a two-year agreement at that wage.

Colonel Michael J. Reagan and Peter A. Doyle, mediators of the state industrial department, today offered to settle the strike, but late this afternoon they had not been accepted.

A brief funeral sermon was delivered at the mome by Dr. R. H. North of the Warren Avenue Congregational church and burial took place in Graceland cemetery.

Chillicothe, Ohio, May 23.—A negro, who officials are convinced, was one of two who robbed the High-Russell branch bank of the Citizens Trust and Savings company at Columbus, was shot four times by Patrolman Dan Garrett here late today, in a running duel. With one bullet left in his revolver, the negro sent it crashing through his heart and toppled over dead. Garrett was wounded in the left shoulder.

SMUGGLING 100,000 GALLONS LIQUOR A DAY FROM CANADA

Chicago, May 22.—Smugglers are bringing into this country 100,000 gallons of liquor a day from Canada, according to a story from a staff writer published in the Chicago Daily News today.

An army of 35,000 smugglers is engaged in the work, it was declared, with general staff headquarters in a shack at Ecorse, Mich. near Detroit.

Illicit liquor has become the largest single industry in the United States, the writer asserted, quoting one of the leading smugglers.

A federal prohibition enforcement officer was quoted as declaring that Ecorse was only one offender on the Canadian border stretch and "I don't believe a fifty foot wall along the entire Canadian line would make them stop."

This federal enforcement agent is located in Detroit, only ten miles from Ecorse, the writer said.

GUILTY OF STEALING FOUR AUTOMOBILES

Analysis of Groton Iron Works Finances

Accountant Testifies That of First Government Payment of $360,000 More Than $300,000 Was Spent for Private Work.

Washington, May 22.—Through Norman C. Finninger, an expert accountant who has been in the employ of the shipping board for five years, government counsel sought to prove today at the Morse trial that the Groton Iron Works had spent for private work more than $300,000 of the first payment of $360,000 made to it by the Emergency Fleet corporation under the contract entered into in June, 1917, for wooden hulls to be built at the Groton company's Noank, Conn., plant.

Finninger, who is one of the government's chief witnesses, testified that with the assistance of 25 other persons he had made an analysis of the books and other records at both the Noank and Groton plants, beginning early in 1922. His analysis with respect to the disbursement of the $360,00 government payment was admitted as evidence over repeated objections of defense counsel. They contended that the contract for the hulls was on a lump sum basis and that what the contractor did with the money was no concern of the government provided the contract was executed.

The analysis as presente dby Finninger shawed that $121,288 was spent to pay obligations of the Groton company contracted before the wooden hull contract was awarded; that $63,129 was used in construction of the Groton plant, which subsequently obtained contracts for other ships, and that only $11,043 actually went into the construction of wooden hulls.

On cross examination, Finniger, who gave his age as 26, said he had examined the Groton books and records at the direction of Fetcher Dobyns, formerly and assistant attorney general in charge of the Morse case, and district attorney Gordon. He said he had access to all of the Groton records, "except those that were missing;" interviewed many persons who afterwards were called as witnesses at the trial and obtained written statements from some of them.

"You had read the indictments in this case before you began your work?" asked attorney Rockwood, of counsel for the defense.

"No, I read them after the work had started," was the reply.

"You knew the evidence the government neded?"

"Yes, in a general way."

Did you go to Noank and Groton to get that evidence?"

"Only as it worked in with my work as an accountant in making the cash analysis of the books."

WOMAN PROMOTER IS CHARGED WITH LARCENY

New York, May 22.—A scheme for a huge country club in Vermont's Green Mountains with a 10,000 memberships, and in which names of prominent men were used, was broukht to light by the indictment of Miss Rita Roberts, the promoter, on a charge of grand larceny. Detectives armed with warrants, tonight began a search for the woman.

Miss Roberts, it was alleged, obtained sums ranging from $100 to $1100 from a number of persons, promising them employment at large salaries when the club was completed. Louis Vandcpoel, who assisted he gave her $500 to become steward of the club, said she had moved from a bodemic department to an expensive suite in a well known hotel the day after she got the money.

Governor Smith and Rodman Wanamaker whose names were said to have been used in the promotion, denied any connection with the proposed club.

SOCIALISTS VOTE TO NATIONALIZE COAL MINES

New York, May 22.—The national convention of the socialist party adjourned this afternoon after adopting a series of resolutions, the most important, from the viewpoint of the members, being one calling for nationalization of coal mines.

The resolution proposed substituting "collective enterprise and true public service as the sole aim of aiming operations instead of private gain and the accumulation of immense wealth in the possession of a few." The United Mine Workers were urged "to carry on such education in their ranks as will inspire a defiance and a determination to be prepared to take over the management and operation of the mines in the event of their nationalization."

No Compromise for Greeks and Turks

British Mediterranean Fleet Has Been Ordered to Concentrate in Near Eastern Waters—No Session of Conference.

Lausanne, May 22.—(By the A. P.)—No compromise to the deadlock on the question of Turco-Greek reparations was found today at the Near East peace conference. M. Venizelos, head of the Greek delegation, spent a feverish day consulting with various conference leaders, discussing ways and means, in an endeavor to ameliorate the situation.

This afternoon, tired, but smiling, Venizelos emerged from the hotel elevator. He was immediately surrounded by a group of newspaper correspondents who desired to know the trend of affairs. A young Turkish correspondent asked the former premier if he was optimistic or pessimistic.

"Tie two Knots in a handkerchief," Venizelos replied. "One represents Mr. Optimism and the other Mr. Pessimism. Put the handkerchief in your pocket and pull it our quickly and see which knot comes out first. That is the only answer I can give you, for alas, I know no answer to this conundrum. Perhaps the Greek gods will decide."

Ismet Pash, chief of the Turks and the hero of many battles, added another touch to the comedy by sending down a message from his apartment where he still remains in solitary confinement owing to the request of the Swiss police, who fear an attempt to assassinate him by mysterious Armenians who are supposed to have reached Lausanne incognito. Martial law reigns at Ismet's hotel. Every stranger entering the hostlery is view with the utmost suspicion.

"Tell my friends, tell the journalists," was the message sent down, "that I am still a soldier. I am jailed against my will. Really, they are overdoing this."

Meantime the peace conference held no session today, chiefly because the delegates were fearful of taking up any great problems on the agenda, preferring to postpone dangerous questions until the last moment in the home that a solution of them may be found in private conversations, thus avoiding an official rupture.

Conference circles, especially the Turkish and Greek, however, tonight received a distinct jolt by a report that the British Mediterranean fleet had been ordered to concentrate in Near eastern waters. The Turks said it was a threat against the Greeks, while the Greaks declared it was a menace to Turkey. Others said it was intended as a warning to both the Turks and the Greeks.

It was said emphatically at the White House that the administraton had full confidence in Mr. Schurman and believed the country was fortunate in having a man of his judgment and experience to represent it on the scene at so critical a time.

STANLEY BALDWIN BECOMES BRITISH PRIME MINISTER

Appointed by King George to Succeed Andrew Bonar Law—Was Virtually the Nominee of the Die-Hard Section of the Conservative Party—British Public Anxiously Await Announcement of the Personnel of the New Ministry—Also the Policy the New Premier as It Relates to the Ruhr and to Russia.

London, May 22 (By the A. P.).—Stanley Baldwin, chancellor of the exchequer, is the British prime minister in succession to Andrew Bonar Law. Having followed the constitutional practice and ascertained the views of the conservative leaders through the medium of his secretary, Lord Stamfordham, who had been busy since Sunday in necessary consultations, the king came to town today and without further delay offered the vacant premiership to Mr. Baldwin, who accepted.

That a man comparatively new to politics thus comes to the first position in the nation's councils, passing over well-tried and experienced statesmen like Marquis Curzon and the Earl of Balfour, indicates the change which has taken place on the political stage with the rise for the first time in the country's history of the labor party to the position of his majesty's opposition in parliament.

Of necessity the labor party is not represented in the house of lords, unless the presence of peers like Lord Haldane, who has great sympathy with the labor party and is looked upon as one of the certain ministers should the labor party within the near future be in a position to form a government, may be said to give labor a slight standing in the lords.

It was this fact of non-representation of labor in the lords which ruled Curzon out as a possible prime minister, in the opinion of the majority of the conservative leaders. The present opposition in the house of commons is the most energetic and vigorous parliament has had in many years and it was felt necessary that the first minister of state must be in the commons to meet the attacks of this opposition.

The new prime minister, like his predecessor, has graduated from trade and, also like Mr. Bonar Law, from the iron trade. Neither of these men was trained for politics, but adopted politics after a successful commercial career. This also is a departure to some extent from British traditions, the statesmen in the past being to a very large extent recruited from the ranks of the aristocracy or the legal profession.

This fact insures for the new premier the support and confidence of the commercial and financial world, which will be of great asset for him. In accordance with custom, the members of the cabinet now will formerly tender their resignations, and Mr. Baldwin will proceed to appoint a new ministry. The general belief is that for the most part the present ministers will be reappointed, but this is by no means certain.

Among the surprises of the day was the announcement that Sir Robert Stevenson Horne had consented to become chancellor of the exchequer in the new cabinet, a post he held under Lloyd George. As late as yesterday it was asserted that Sir Robert had no intention of re-entering politics. When he left the coalition with Mr. Lloyd George, Austen Chamberlain, Lord Birkenhead and others, he formed lucrative connections in the commercial world, and only a week ago was appointed a director of the Suez Canal company. Becoming a minister again, he must resign these positions of profit. His appointment to the new office cannot be officially announced until the formalities of the resignation of the ministry are completed, but the appointment is regarded as certain, and the question arises whether Sir Robert Horne's inclusion in the cabinet means that Mr. Baldwin hopes to bring in the other late colleagues of the new chancellor, like Mr. Chamberlain and Birkenhead, to strengthen the ministry.

Stanley Baldwin is actually the nominee of the die-hard section of the conservative party, which hitherto has been the most determined against the readmission of Birkenhead and Chamberlain to the ministry; hence it may be inferred that such a reconciliation in the conservative ranks is not likely. But the situation is undoubtedly interesting and the next development is awaited with much interest.

The most engrossing questions before the British public tonight therefore are, what will be the personnel of the new ministry and what will be the policy of the new prime minister, especially in the Ruhr and as relates to Russia?

Mr. Lloyd George, in a speech at Llanfairfechan tonight, with his usual political instinct, put his finger on what is generally considered as the weak side of the Bonar Law administration. He said: "I had more confidence in the late premier's straining sagacity than in his driving capacity."

Mr. Baldwin is a close friend of Mr. Bonar Law's, and if Lord Curzon, as is expected, remains secretary for foreign affairs, it is unlikely that there will be any radical change in policy, but there is undoubtedly a general hope that without the handicap of ill health, from which Mr. Bonar Law suffered, the new prime minister may infuse more vigor into the government policy, particularly with regard to the Ruhr.

Among the host of messages received by Mr. Bonar Law from well wishers, including the colonial premiers and the president of the Irish Free State, was one from Woodrow Wilson, saying:

"Having myself been hampered by ill health, I know how to sympathize with you, and do with all my heart. I trust that your health may steadily return."

A FORMER YALE STUDENT CHARGED WITH INSANITY

New York, May 22.—A charge of insanity was preferred today against Horace Stanley Chase of Baltimore, a former Yale student, said to be a nephew of Vice President George M. Chase was arrested Sunday night on a charge of disorderly conduct, after an altercation with a taxicab driver, whose bill he refused to pay. This charge today was dismissed.

Joseph F. Johnson, secretary of the Pennsylvania Railroad Y. M. C. A., preferred the insanity charge, saying he was acting for members of the family. Testimony was introduced to show Chase had been four times in Bellevue, having been released the last time a week ago on an order of Supreme Court Justice Platzek.

Survey of the Mount Vernon and Agamemnon resulted in estimates that their reconditioning as modern passenger ships would cost $16,000,000. Ship builders informed the board that vessels superior to them and more adequate for the North Atlantic trade could be constructed in American yards at $12,000,000 each and the board today adopted a resolution making the two new ships a part of the next budget.

The investigators will report to Mayor Mahoney before making the result of the survey public, it was announced.

WILLIMANTIC

NORWICH BULLETIN
31 Church Street Telephone 1023

The members of the jury of the present term of the Windham county superior court occupied their places Tuesday when the case of John W. Armitage et als vs Victor Bissonette was heard with Judge James H. Webb on the bench. The morning and afternoon sessions were taken up with the hearing of the testimony in the case. The case of Mary E. Pike vs Benjamin A. Brown, et al., was withdrawn and the case of James M. Witter, appeal from probate was settled.

Following the roll call of the jury, James P. Mustard, Jay M. Grant, Christopher C. Case of Windham and Fred C. Chism were excused from duty. The jury Tuesday consisted of Daniel B. Gilbert of Putnam, Daniel Smith of Brooklyn; William R. Becker of Hampton; Hiram S. Franklin of Killingly; George G. Shipman of Plainfield; Charles Rutherford of Pomfret; Harry P. Cheabro of Scotland; Edwin S. Gallup of Sterling; Carl A. Norman and Ernest P. Ryan of Thompson; Allen Kenyon and Ernest Hibberd of Woodstock.

In the case of Armitage et al versus Bissonnette the plaintiff claims damages of $2,000, charging that Bissonnette without permission, cut down 2,341 trees on the land of the plaintiffs in the town of Ashford and Willington in the winter of 1922. When it was discovered that Bissonette was felling the trees an injunction was placed on the defendant which prohibited him from either cutting trees or removing the felled timber. The defendant denied that the land in question where the trees were felled was the rightful property of the plaintiffs at the time that the injunction was served.

The witness called was Charles S. Amidon of Willington who stated that although engaged in other lines of business, he had associated with John W. Armitage in the buying of wood land property and in cutting and selling timber. In answer to a question he replied that the trees which Bissonette had cut were from three to twenty-three inches in diameter and included 615 chestnut and 1,726 oak, hickory and other hardwood trees totalling in all, 2,341. Amidon vividly described his first view of the cut timber, saying that he thought that a tornado had swept over the area as the trees were lying in all directions.

The felled trees were strewn over a stretch of land comprising about eight acres part of which is now submerged under water. Amidon's counsel then read copies of deed of the properties in the vicinity dating from 1790 in order to set aright the right and title of the property in question.

Seven pictures, showing the condition of the land on which the trees were cut down in the winter of 1922 were produced by Mr. Amidon and accepted by the court as exhibits.

George W. Perry, city engineer at Putnam was then called and by means of a large map he explained to the jury the general contour of the land in question, also displaying the boundaries of the towns of Willington and Ashford in regard to their relation with the disputed land. On the map was a drawing of the land owned by John and Parley Russell in 1790 within which were the sub-divisions as they occurred within the past century or more.

Engineer Perry again took the stand when the afternoon session opened. The composite deeds of the lands involved in the case were taken up and the witness was questioned in regard to boundaries of properties as the land was sold at various times during the past century. Following a series of questions by the attorneys and Judge Webb court was adjourned until Wednesday.

The Willimantic Rotarians were treated to a program of violin solos at their regular weekly meeting held Tuesday noon. Vice President Harry W. Standish was in charge and Treasurer Huber acted as secretary in the absence of President James P. Mustard and Secretary Charles W. Acting Secretary Huber read a communication from the Rotary club at Independence, Kansas, announcing that one of their members, George F. The letter left it in the hands of the club as to whether or not they would instruct their delegate to the convention to cast his vote in favor of "Thatch" or not. It was the sense of the local club that the delegate, Charles W. Hill, be given freedom of mind in the matter. A letter of thanks was read from Mrs. Ray Haven in which she expressed her gratitude for the receipt of various gifts from the local club upon their visit to New Haven at the conference there.

John F. Ahern asked how many of the members expected to go to Pomfret next Monday evening when the local club will present the Putnam club its Rotary flag. About 20 signified their intention of making the trip. The amendment to the by-laws whereby the club dues are made payable semi-annually instead of quarterly, which was presented in written form at the last meeting was voted adopted Tuesday.

John F. Ahern, chairman of the entertainment committee was then placed in charge of the meeting and he announced that the regular speechmaking would be dispensed with for the day. He introduced Mr. Fletcher who was heard in a number of most pleasing violin solos. Rev. T. Newton Owen preached Sunday morning on the text "For what is a man profited if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?" The preacher said no one would knowingly lose his soul to gain the world, and God does not send his people here to gain the world at the expense of our souls. He asked the question, Must one throw away the honorable accumulation of our life by gain or endowment in order to gain our soul, or must we lose one or the other? Our business is to rescue the world, and it is hard to save our souls without saving the world. Worship is to save the soul from the world and if prosperity comes we should not lose our soul if we are the captain of it.

(Council of National Defense)
"I'VE picked up a lot of motoring experience since I first drove the old two-cylinder bus 'way back in—guess it must have been around 1906 or '07. And there are two rules of the road that I've always stuck to. 'Safety first' is one of them, and 'consideration for the other fellow' is the second.
"I really believe that it's because I have stuck to them that I haven't had a single smash-up. (Three taps on wood, as I write this!) Just take the matter of passing a car. Simple enough—sure. And the driver that uses common sense and a little consideration never has any trouble. But this habit—and it's mostly a habit—of always trying to get ahead of the fellow in front of you is the cause of more close shaves and real accidents than any other one thing I know of.
"Make sure there's plenty of room ahead of the car you're going to pass. And remember—it's bad business to pass a car near the top of a hill, or on a curve. In fact, it's against the law in some States to pass another car on a curve."

WEAK AND RUN-DOWN

Caught Cold After Cold Until She Took WINCARNIS

"I was very much run-down and feeling real miserable. I caught one cold after another. I was very nervous and irritable. Every little thing set my nerves on edge. My appetite was poor and I wasted down to almost nothing. I was pale and looked simply bloodless.

I decided to try Wincarnis and it certainly benefited me. I never took anything in my life I got so much good from. It is certainly very strengthening.

I shall always be glad to praise the merits of Wincarnis and if anyone wishes to write me personally I will be glad to answer all questions regarding what it has done for me."

ANNOUNCEMENTS

"Come Clean" at Bradley Theatre.

Betty Al[illegible] scored such a success in "Friendly Enemies", headed a notable cast appearing in "Come Clean," a new three-act comedy by [illegible] Milton, coming to the Bradley theatre (Putnam) Thursday night. "Come Clean" is the initial offering of Albert James, a young producer long identified with Winthrop Ames. It unfolds the story of a jazz-weary cabaret girl who forsakes the music and champagne of Broadway, and seeks rest and reformation in a small New England town. Her efforts are beset with many obstacles, most of them humorous, and all very human. Many small town character types are introduced, including an old fiddler, a mail carrier, and a lovable old widow.

Vaudeville at Broadway Theatre Thurs., Fri. and Sat.

A very fine array of B. F. Keith vaudville will be presented at the Broadway theatre the last half of this week, with a photoplay feature.

Edith Johnson, co-starring with William Duncan, is an expert marksman and rivals the star and director for th championship on William Duncan's private ranch. Nearly all the members of the William Duncan company are crack shots. In casting his productions Mr. Duncan not only looks for capable actors, but demands that his players shall be clever horseback riders, skilled shots and capable athletes. In one of the many thrilling scenes of "When Danger Smiles," which will be shown at the Broadway theatre on Thursday to Saturday, Edith Johnson is required to fire a shot which severs a rope attached to a runaway horse, at the end of which William Duncan is being dragged. The shot must hit the rope and sever it. It isn't possible to fake this scene, as all of the characters are in range of the camera for a long shot, and two or more are visible in the subsequent close-ups, therefore it was necessary for Miss Johnson to fire only one shot and sever the rope. It all happened in an instant. Miss Johnson drew a pistol, fired the shot and severed the rope in the twinkling of an eye. It was as neat and skillful a piece of work as was ever performed by a film player and always recorded in celluloid to be furnished upon the screen during the showing of "When Danger Smiles."

Allan Dwan, famous as the producer of "Robin Hood," has done remarkable work in his first Paramount picture, "The Glimpses of the Moon," adapted from Edith Wharton's novel, which is the feature at the Strand theatre now. With Bebe Daniels, Nita Naldi, Rubye de Remer, David Powell, Maurice Costello and Charles Gerrard in the cast and an exceedingly costly investiture, this picture is one of the most effective and elaborate screen society dramas thus far presented to the public. Director Dwan has produced "The Glimpses of the oon" with the same lavish hand that fashioned "Robin Hood" for Douglas Fairbanks.

The Paramount studio was taxed to its capacity for this production. More than three-quarters of a million dollars' worth of properties, consisting of costly jewelry, expensive hangings, rare oil paintings, and antique furnishings were used to give the picture the rich flavor called for in Mrs. Wharton's novel. In the settings of wealth and splendor, made for this picture at heavy expense, Director Dwan has woven a dramatic story of the love of Susy Branch and Nick Lansing and the troubles they encounter in trying to keep pace with their millionaire friends. Mr. Dwan has transferred to the screen the picture of sophisticated society people in their highest and lowest moments which Mrs. Wharton so cleverly put between the pages of her book.

CORNETS SLAUGHTER JAIL HILL A. C.; NUGGETS AND PROFS PLAY TONIGHT

The Cornets, after losing to the Nuggets in the opening game of the [illegible] league, came back Tuesday evening against the Jail Hill A. C. team and trounced them to the tune of a rousing 16 to 2 score. The Cornets pitchers allowed their rooting adherents, getting as high as the five innings that they played, to sing a few bars to an corners of the lot.

Johnn Keenan, the Cornets pitching ace, was the individual star of the game. Keenan showed only four hits and also connected for a home run in the third inning with two men on base. Keenan and the Jailbirds completely at his mercy from the start and the four hits secured off him were only scratches and did not go to the outfield. Dilworth, who did the backstop work for Keenan, also contributed a sensational batting stunt when he hung over the baseline ropes to catch a foul fly. Dilworth secured three hits in three times at bat. Cannon connected for two triples in three times up.

The Jail Hills were entirely outclassed in last night's game and showed a complete reversal of the line form they showed against the Professional Men last week. The score by innings:

Cornets .... 3 6 3 2 2—16
Jail Hill .... 0 0 2 0 0— 2

Keenan and Dilworth; Shea and Brennan.

Tonight's Game.

The game tonight is to be one for Blood between the Nuggets and the Professional Men. The Professional Men are extremely confident that they can take the measure of the Nuggets, and Manager Madden is banking on his team to show the Profs where they get off. From all reports there is some dissension between Manager Matheweon and one of his players regarding the choice of a hurler for tonight's battle. Matheweon insists that Doc Sussler is going to be in the box, while Doc Thompson is equally set on doing the pitching himself. Either man will make a good showing but the general choice among the members of the Profs is that Sussler is the logical choice considering the display Thompson made in the first game.

The Profs have a strong lineup but it does not compare with the stonewall defense of the Nuggets. Either Kelly or Burbick will be in the box for the Nuggets, with Lee Manchester on the receiving end and it will be a fast man that pilfers any pillows on the snappy little backstop.

The game will be called at 6.15 o'clock (daylight time) owing to many of the players having pressing engagements for the evening.

PRESIDENT HARDING PLAYS IN "FOURTH ESTATE" GOLF

Washington, May 22 — President Harding, Speaker Gillett and Associate Justice Sanford, of the supreme court, representing the three coordinate branches of the government, joined today with members of the "fourth estate" as represented in the Washington newspaper golf club, in opening a new municipal golf course in Rock Creek park.

The opening was made the occasion of a hundred of whom played, with the result that when the last foursome holed out, the new course was as battle-scarred as any links in the country. The event was won by Charles Shaeffer, of the Washington Herald, with a low net score of 69 after subtraction of a 18-stroke handicap.

Mr. Harding played not only as a representative of the executive branch of the government, but as a member of the club, to which he belongs by virtue of editorship of the Marion Star.

Although he did not win a prize, he finished high up in the tournament with a net score of 90 and a gross of 102.

Speaker Gillett, 95; Justice Sanford 106; and Edgar Markham of the St. Paul Dispatch, president of the club, 106.

Honors in the competition for low gross score were divided between Walter R. McCallum, of the Washington Star and Horace Green, former associate editor of Leslie's Weekly, each of whom turned in an 81. The other scores followed this total, many of them, however, from afar, with Theodore A. Huntley, of the Pittsburgh Post winning high total honors with 165 strokes.

George Harvey, American ambassador to Great Britain and a former newspaperman played as a guest of the club and scored a 99.

Dugan was on base. It was Ruth's eighth circuit drive of the season and enabled the Yankees to close their first invasion of the west with the best record they ever made. They won thirteen games and lost one.

Cvengros and Pennock gave one of the best exhibitions of pitching seen here for a long time. Although the former was hit harder than his opponent, he pitched most remarkable ball in the pinches. Pennock held the White Sox to four hits.

Today's victory was the ninth consecutive for the league champions and the thirteenth consecutive game in which Pipp was hit safely.

DEMPSEY FLOORS TWO OF HIS SPARRING PARTNERS

Dempsey boxed six rounds. George Godfrey, the 212 pound negro, went four rounds with the champion. Dempsey finished in excellent shape. His footwork was fast.

"I am in condition today," said Dempsey, "and I am working to keep that way. I could go into the ring today and put up the fight of my life."

HARTFORD HITS SNOVER HARD AND BEATS HILLIES

JAP AND CANADIAN DAVIS CUP TEAMS AT MONTREAL

Montreal, May 22.—Japanese and Canadian tennis teams will meet on the courts of the Mount Royal Tennis club here, July 26, 27 ad 28, in the first round of American zone play in the Davis cup contest. This was announced today after the tentative dates for the matches, named by the Canadian Lawn Tennis association, had been approved by the Japanese captain, Zenzo Shimizu.

Renault Knocks Out Lohman.

New York, May 22.—Jack Renault, Canadian heavyweight champion, knocked out Joe Lohman of Toledo, O., in the sixth round of their fight here tonight. Renault shaded his opponent throughout the bout. The Canadian entered the ring weighing [illegible] pounds to Lohman's [illegible] pounds.

WILLS STANDS OUT AS LOGICAL MAN TO BATTLE DEMPSEY FOR THE TITLE

New York, May 22.—Harry Wills, New Orleans negro, whose chances of battling Jack Dempsey for the world's heavyweight title have brightened as a result of the past few days' developments, is the first colored boxer to cast a shadow over the principal pugilistic crown since the heyday of Jack Johnson. Since Li'l Arthur was dethroned by Jess Willard, who knocked out the negro titleholder in the 26th round at Havana in 1915, the heavyweight championship agrument has been confined to white men.

There have been numerous negro heavyweights since Johnson's time, but aside from Sam Langford, the Boston "Tar Baby," who once was feared by them all, none has reached the prominence of Wills, who pitched cotton bales as a stevedore on the wharves of New Orleans before rising to pugilistic fame.

Wills, who started his boxing career in 1911, has eliminated practically all of his negro rivals. He was knocked out in 1916 in 19 rounds by Langford, the only time he ever took the count of ten, but evened the score with the Boston scrapper in 1918 by scoring a knockout in five rounds. Wills also has bowled over Sam McVey, Bill Tate, Tut and Buddy Jackson, and Kid Norfolk, among the colored men, and holds decisions over Joe Jeanette, Jack Thompson and Langford.

In 1920 Wills entered the lists against leading white heavyweights, his most notable victory was a knockout in one round of Fred Fulton, the tall plasterer of Rochester, Minn.

Early last year Wills was boomed as a contender for Dempsey's title and negotiations reached such a stage in June that he and Dempsey signed articles under the direction of the New York State Athletic commission calling for a match whenever terms stipulated by the commission were met by promoters. This action was the result of Wills' formal challenge to Dempsey for a title match but no further steps were taken and this year it seemed for a while that the negro had been shelved in favor of other opponents for Dempsey.

Wills is 31 years old, a native of New Orleans. He weighs about 215 pounds in fighting trim. He stands six feet, three inches. He is a powerful puncher, his long, swinging rights have put many an opponent to sleep.

Record books show Wills has engaged in 84 matches, winning 45 by knockouts, 28 by decisions and losing four. Others were no-decision affairs. Besides the knockout administered to him by Langford, who also won a decision over Wills in 1914, his only other defeats were at the hands of Sam McVey and battling Jim Johnson, against whom the New Orleans boxer broke his arm.

WESTERLY TAKES LOOSE GAME FROM ACADEMY

In a loose and one-sided game at Vose park, Westerly on Tuesday afternoon, the Westerly High school team defeated the Academy 14 to 3. The Westerly team hit opportunely with men on bases and aided by three errors by the Academy players piled up a lead that was impossible to overcome. The Academy boys corralled as many hits but they were scattered and did not net the needed runs. For Norwich, Burke, Kilroy and Strouse were the heavy hitters. Walz pitched a good game but bunched hits and errors were responsible for his defeat. The score:

JOHNSTON BEATS THE ARMENIAN CHAMPION

St. Cloud, France, May 22—(By the Associated Press)—William M. Johnston advanced to the quarter-finals in the men's singles of the International hard court tennis championships today by defeating M. Ashlangul, Armenian champion, and No. 9 in the French ranking, by 6-4, 4-6, 6-2, 6-2.

In doing so the American star baldy blistered his racquet hand, and has been granted permission to remain idle tomorrow. He expects to be able to resume play Thursday when he will meet the winner of the match between Count de Gomar of Spain and M. Danet of France. The Spanish nobleman, who ranks first in his country since Manuel Alonso left for the United States, is expected to dispose of the Frenchman and thus come against the American on Thursday.

Johnston has accounted for his four opponents thus far in the singles with comparative ease, and the experts concede that he should reach the finals. The speed which Bill gets on his drives, the accuracy of his placements and his consummate court generalship have been a revelation to those who have never before seen him play. His loss of the second set to Ashlangul today was apparently due either to carelessness or overconfidence.

In the third round of the men's doubles Johnston and Clifton Herd, a fellow Californian, downed Court Balbi and Cesare Colombo, the top-ranking Italians, 7-5, 6-2, 6-3. The match proved to the satisfaction of the gallery that the soft, lobbing style of play cannot win against accurate smashing and driving. Herd proved surprisingly good, and Johnston was elated over his partner's showing. The Italian pair admitted after the match that they had started with the idea of keeping the ball as much as possible in Herd's territory, but found him almost as dangerous as Johnston.

Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen is maintaining her brilliant pace in the women's singles, and today defeated Mlle. Conquet, 6-1, 6-1.

Miss Eleanor Goss, paired with C. F. Aeschliman of England, advanced to the fourth round in the mixed doubles by defeating Mrs. Bostock and Leighton Crawford, 6-2, 6-1. Every match in which Johnston has played has shown great improvement over the previous one. European tennis enthusiasts now are pinning their hopes on the French players, Henri Cochet and Andrew Gobert, and the Belgian, J. Washer, all of whom are showing remarkable form.

Cambridge, Mass., May 22.—The race on June 23 between the varsity eights of Harvard and Yale on the Thames river at New London, Conn., means of assuring the clear transmission of the coxswains' shouted admonitions and orders to the oarsmen, the officials of the two colleges have joined in a request that whistles, guns, horns, and other instruments always sounded as the crews pass be silent until the race is over. It was said today that coxswains' calls have been misunderstood or drowned out entirely at some stages of races previously.

CURTAILING HIGHWAY WORK.

It is an interesting appeal that is made to Highway Commissioner Bennett by Governor Templeton when he urged upon him the curtailment of work upon the highways of the state that those employed might go to relieve the situation in factories and on the farms.

The demand for help is in excess of the supply. This has developed to such a degree that a moratorium in construction work has been decided upon by many. The abnormal condition makes it unwise to undertake construction at this time. That same view may be taken in regard to highway construction. Certainly the high cost of building means greater expenditure and less to show for the money when the job is completed, if completion is possible. Delaying the work and permitting the workers to continue their activities over a longer period may help to relieve the situation in certain instances, but when it comes to repair work the problem is different.

To let new construction remain unstarted doesn't involve deterioration. To fail to give attention to projects that are underway or those that have reached the point where repairs are and long have been called for means serious waste.

This is pointed out to the governor by the commissioner when expressing his desire to aid in the relief of the factory and farm help situation. Repairs that ought to be made now will involve a much larger outlay if they are allowed to go without attention, and should there be an abandonment of road work for the summer serious destruction of the highways would be inevitable.

Service on the highways may not call for the highest type of labor, but no highway work doesn't necessarily mean that such employes would go to the factories or the farms for work or that they would be accepted there.

The lack of labor for roads is even apparent. It prevails in other states as well as this. In New York state the commissioner had planned to spend $16,000,000 this summer but has postponed it until more favorable conditions prevail and considers that he will be fortunate if he can get contractors who will be able to get sufficient help to carry out the five million dollars worth of repair work that is actually needed.

Conditions may require the curtailment of projected work but maintenance work on the highway system ought to get different consideration. It doesn't require much negligence and abuse to wreck roads.

BALDWIN AS PREMIER.

There was no foregone conclusion regarding the new British prime minister. It was conceded that there was plenty of timber available and it was generally conceded that the premiership rested between Lord Curzon, the present foreign minister, and Stanley Baldwin, chancellor of the exchequer, who was recently in this country for the settlement of the question of paying the British debt to Uncle Sam.

Lord Curzon was the choice of the retiring premier. He was in every way a capable man, but he is a member of the house of lords and as such more or less opposition would at once arise against him.

In the choice of Mr. Baldwin no such obstacle prevailed and no sacrifice in ability is made. He is an acknowledged leader of strength who stands in a most favorable light with the workingmen and the taxpayers and highly qualified to handle most satisfactorily the economic problems which are now confronted in that country. His selection is therefore certain to be well received at home and it cannot fail to be regarded with favor outside Great Britain. It avoids the possibility of having the selection referred to as a victory for the aristocracy or as based upon the foreign policy of the country.

That bad health has forced Bonar Law to give up the office is not so serious with such a successor. He should long ago have heeded the advice that was given relative to his health and the effects which continuance in politics would produce. His determination not to leave the house of commons indicates, however, that his influence will by no means be entirely lost.

The selection of the new premier by King George has probably been the wisest in consideration of all the existing conditions.

DON'T WEAKEN THE FIGHT.

While demands are being made for greater opposition to the use of drugs in this country, the report that is made by Commissioner Haynes of the federal prohibition enforcement department would indicate that the use of narcotics in this country is not on the increase. It is in fact a statement that is put forth to refute the claim that drug addiction and dope using are gaining. This is apparently due to the fact that there are those who maintain that those who have been deprived of the use of fight against narcotics to be in any way influenced by prohibition. Commissioner Haynes maintains that official figures on imports of narcotics and their distribution showed that sales have been only enough for seven-eighths of a grain of morphine for each individual in the fiscal year 1922, and that was a reduction of a grain per capita over the previous year. He further claims that every ounce of opium or coca leaves imported into the country can be traced directly to the ultimate consumer.

What Commissioner Haynes has to say is undoubtedly correct. But he deals with the legal traffic in drugs and not the illegal or smuggled opium. From the drug peddlers that are constantly being arrested in large centers and elsewhere it is apparent that this is by no means small and it is not contended that it is the result of prohibition.

Narcotics are being brought into the country for the profit that can be derived from their sale regardless of the demoralization of humanity that is caused. That the Harrison drug act has done much good is not to be disputed, but it hasn't ended the deplorable traffic and until that time comes anything that would tend to weaken the fight against it is unfortunate.

OUR HIGHWAY TRAFFIC.

How the problems of the highway are changing is well illustrated by the statement which refers to the transportation of a 15-ton tubular boiler, 65 feet long, from Philadelphia to New York by auto truck and which claims that it was not only done quicker but with less difficulty by such a method.

A few years ago such a thing would not have been thought of. Trucking such a weighty and bulky load outside of a city, except that it might have been to a nearby mill village, would not have been attempted. It is done today because the motive power is available and because there exist better roads.

But with the carrying of such loads it becomes apparent that the improved roads must be changed to the permanent pavements if such wear and tear must be experienced. When good roads were first built there was no thought of such traffic. They were not built for it. They were in fact not constructed to withstand the speed of the pleasure autos in great numbers. It is because of that that they are passing and giving way to the roads that cost more but last longer and which are therefore more economical.

A single boiler taken overland is by no means a surprising occurrence. If it were known many of the great vans that travel the main highways of travel each day are probably carrying much greater though more easily handled loads. It is all indicative of the tendency of present day highway traffic. Much of what has hitherto been handled by the railroads is being moved on the highways day and night, and it is no exaggeration to say that more will be handled in that manner before there is less.

CHAIRMAN DAY'S RESIGNATION

That there are claims from this country against Germany amounting to a billion and a half does not necessarily mean that they will all be collected or even all allowed. It can be anticipated that there will be many contests both in behalf and against such claims. The final decision in regard to what the bill is that Germany could pay, based as it must be upon the facts as established, cannot be expected immediately.

The sum is large and much larger in fact than the property that is held by the government as security to insure their payment. Sifting the tangled mass is not going to be the easiest kind of a job.

For that reason it is not surprising that William R. Day, formerly associate justice of the United States supreme court, who recently resigned from the court that he might devote his whole attention to the task of judging the claims of American citizens, has decided to resign from the chairmanship of the mixed claims commission. Justice Day is a man of 74 years and while there is no questioning his ability he sums up the situation in a nutshell when he declares that a young man should be named to wrestle with the complicated situation. It is far different even than interpreting the law.

Just as we have again been told that the gasoline supply will be gone in 20 years, the claim is made that a motorcar can be driven 50 miles for two and one-half cents by a new engine using light oil. Who said gasoline would reach a dollar a gallon?

A FEW INFLUENCES

"Ted and I are going to the theatre tonight," said the red-headed girl who wore it bobbed. "It's about time I saw this 'Funny Flippancies'! Every other soul I know has been at least twice, and I am perfectly embarrassed when they talk about it!"

"I am surprise at you," said her rather young aunt, who was visiting and drinking in the culture of a great city, "when there are so many inspiring opportunities on every hand! Why Egbert Floop lectures this evening on 'Intimate Views of Icelanders,' and you may never again have a chance to hear anything like it! I never got within gunshot before of a person who had been to Iceland!"

"I never want to," said her red-headed niece firmly. "I can't imagine anything less exciting than looking at a man who had been to Iceland. I don't think he would look a particle different from a man who had been to Miami, Fla., or Three Corners, Iowa! And I can read all about the Icelanders in any library if I ever want to, which I shan't! Why, they have a whole ballet in this 'Funny Flippancies' that is danced on wires, and they say the costume of Doreena Durone in the first act cost $15,000! I wouldn't miss it or worlds! It's heaps better than 'Soxophone Sillies,' which made such a stir, and they say 'The Jazzers' simply isn't in it when it comes to startling and marvelous effects."

"But where is all this leading you?" demanded the rather young aunt, shaking her head. "Your taste is being demoralized and after it is all over you have nothing to talk away—"

"I should say I would have!" declared the red-headed niece vigorously. "I'll know the very latest styles in hair dressing are and whether they are still wearing earrings."

"You make my head whirl," the visiting aunt complained. "I was planning to take you with me to a remarkable concert, but it won't be late styles. It is some rare music demonstrating the half tones in the Chinese scale—"

"Help!" moaned the red-headed niece. "Auntie, how do you get this way? You can't dance to a half tone and if you are wild about music you just ought to hear Jimmy Jamson's Flatfoot Jazzers in this thing we are going to tonight! Why I'd walk ten miles to hear Jimmy Jamson! You never in your life heard anything so weird and thrilling as their music! It ties your spine in a double bow knot and lifts you right out of your seat! He is a a perfect genius!

"Mrs. Whatter of our club says that kind of music is degenerate," the visiting aunt said severely. "It comes straight from the wilds of savages. Is there any plot or theme to this piece to occupy your mind?"

"Plot!" repeated the red-headed niece dazedly. "I guess there must be because there is everything you can think of and they certainly would not have overlooked having a theme. That must be what the Prism Sisters and the Lollipops carry in on that glittering shield of their dell about—I didn't quite know before what it was for. Why, the Illusion Dance is the cleverest thing put over this season, Ted says. First you see 'em and then you don't and when you do you can't believe your eyes! And the Rainbow Trout number and the Polka Dot song—they say they have sold one million copies of that alone!"

"Dear me," the visiting aunt said faintly. "Prof. Higisy is going to play his new sonata at that concert I mentioned and it would be something to hear music at the composer's hands."

"Jimmy Jamson composes every bit of the stuff his Flatfooters play," said the red-headed niece eagerly. "I don't see why you couldn't just as well read a paper on him as on your professor man that nobody ever heard of! And it's so exciting! I'm sorry you're so set against the 'Flippancies,' because Ted asked if I thought you'd go with us tonight—he got an extra ticket on purpose. He said he thought it would be a crime to come to Chicago and miss this show of all things. But I have no doubt your ideas are founded on truth and you are quite right and I'll tell him—"

"Oh, no!" protested the visiting aunt, shaking her head. "When a person is as thoughtful as Ted and tries so hard to give one a good time I think it would be rude to decline—and maybe as a—er—scientific study I should see this entertainment about which you speak so highly(Tapioca! Perhaps I owe it to myself not to miss that illusion ballet and the Flatfoot man—"

"Oh boy!" breathed the red-headed niece, delightedly. "Why, I had begun to think you just weren't human! Now I have hopes of you!"—Chicago News.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

George H. Carter, who is to be one of the representatives of the United States at the International congress of master printers to be held at Gothenburg next month, is at the head of the greatest printing establishment in the world—the government printing office in Washington. Mr. Carter was appointed public printer in the early days of the Harding administration. He is a writer and a lawyer as well as a printer. He learned to set type and operate a job press when as a youngster he lived at LeMars, Iowa. Subsequently he worked as proofreader, reporter or editor on various papers in Iowa, and in Washington, D. C. The general public knows little of the great plant he now directs. Under his supervision are nearly 5,000 employes. The amount of type set in the "shop" annually is equal to 750,000 columns of ordinary newspaper matter. Of postal cards alone the government printing office turns out something like 1,275,000,000 every year—a sufficient number, if placed end to end, to loop the world at the equator four times.

Wives of Famous Men

In all the pages of history and fiction there cannot be found many romances as beautiful and touching as the love story of Dante Gabriel Rossetti, great English poet and painter of the mid-Nineteenth Century, and Elizabeth Eleanor Siddal, his ethereal, lovely inspiration, model and bride. They met when the artist was 22 and the girl but 17. She was an assistant to a milliner and dressmaker, and sometimes acted as a hat and gown model. She was accidentally discovered by one of Dante Gabriel's colleagues, who saw in her the ideal model for whom his friend had been looking.

When he saw her, Rossetti fell desperately in love with her, knowing nothing and caring nothing about anything but her marvelous beauty which he could not put on to canvas and into poetry. So overwhelmed was he by her angelic face that he could not ask her to pose for him, and sent a friend instead.

The girl came from a poor family, and was glad to add to her small earnings by posing for artists. Soon she had given up her place in the dressmaking shop and was sitting for all of Gabriel's portraits and inspired all of his writing. It was less than a week after they met that the famous "The House of Life" began to grow.

He loved her passionately and she accepted his love calmly and as a matter of course. They were engaged for nine years before they were married, Rossetti telling his friends that he was afraid he would lose Miss Siddal if he married her. He loved her, in his artist's way, for her beauty, and gave little thought to anything else. Finally she became ill, and doctors told him that his "lovely lily was to fade and die." Thereupon he married her, vowing he would nurse her back to health. Unhappily, however, she died very soon after, leaving a tragic, heartbroken man. All the poems he had written to her he had buried with her, and it was only after great pressure had been brought to bear on him that he permitted them to be exhumed seven years later.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

The "Topsy City" of Egypt.

In contrast to Luxor, where one moves under the spell of 3300 years ago, Egypt has a city, Port Said, which possesses no more of a past than Topsy, writes Maynard Owen Williams, staff correspondent of the National Geographic Society, from Egypt.

"Port Said is a city without roots whose sand foundations were used up by dredges and whose buildings and population were dropped off by passing ships. It has neither ancestry nor traditions. It 'just growed.'

"The city is as nondescript as its population. The high iron fence which separates the parade from the canal marks the boundary line between cool laziness and feverish activity.

"In the harbor, small, powerful tugs snort here and there amid the traffic, white rowboats with plain, flat awnings move like palsied shuttles between gang plank and customs quay, trim cutters from the British men-o'-war suggest order in the midst of chaos, and always the coolies coaling the liners trot up the steep planks, singing a ceaseless song of ceaseless toil.

"Although these grimy drudges do not belong to the nobility, Port Said owes much to them, for this city not only protects one end of the jugular vein or hamstring of the empire from envious wolves but has the more profitable if less picturesque honor of being the world's greatest coaling station.

"In such tiny, obscure ports as Otaru, ships can be coaled in short order by machinery. But the day of coaling machinery in Port Said is just now dawning.

"Before the mail boats are securely tied up, night-black barges covered with night-black men with milk-white eyes have attached themselves to their staunch flanks and the fuel is pouring aboard in an endless line of limp baskets borne on the shoulders of sweating men, whose limbs, deeply coated with coal dust, seem made of oxidized metal.

"The baskets are not passed from hand to hand. Each man shoulders his load and trots with it up the steep plank, soon reappearing to jump down into the dusty depths of the barge.

"Steamer to barge—barge to pile—pile to barge—barge to leviathan or tramp; one would think that half the sooty fuel would be lost through frequent handling. But no one can teach Port Said anything about coaling—unless it be the coolie.

"During night coaling, a plank with six coolies on it dropped with a thud to the barge deck and for weeks the coolies refused to coal at night, except those ships that have side ports.

"This was an awful sacrilige! It is even hinted that the mail was delayed. But the P. and O. liners have side ports and it was not one of them, so Jove withheld his thunderbolts. The coolies gave the excuse that they were tired.

"But that takes you to the other side of the iron fence. There the people are always tired. Tennis is a game in which the ball hovers in the air like a white-breasted gull. Bathing is even less strenuous, being conducted according to Graeco-Roman rules. Golf moves with dignity rather than incandescent language. But the drink steward has developed winged heels while carrying libations to the gods of the veranda.

"The main attraction of Port Said, aside from the lighthouse whose beams sweep the ship ping safe to port and the shops where cigarettes, novels by Hichens and Kipling, ostrich feather fans, kimonos, sun helmets, Japanese and Syrian damascene, Oriental silks, Parisian postcards and cosmetics, and Abyssinian weapons, is the de Lesseps monument, situated near the inner end of the western breakwater.

"A canal service dredge in action develops a squeal that reminds one of Circe's captives frantic with remorse and homesickness. But the humble and complaining dredge is the protector of traffic and as long as the squeal continues the procession will go by.

"It is thought that when Kipling wrote of thirst culture and the equality of man east of Suez he misplaced Port Said, for the only thing the curio dealers do not keep, nor their customers ask for, are the Ten Commandments. And when the missionary aboard from a China boat deplores conditions in his sociological discussions with a red-capped M. P., that weary individual to whom even murder would be a relief, dully answers:

"'You think Port Said is bad? You ought to have seen it before the war!'"

"But is that necessary? You have promised to marry me."
"I'll marry you all right, but George, dear, you must go to father. It pleases him once in a while to know that we still consider him as one of the family."—Detroit Free Press.

Stories That Recall Others

They Understand

A school supervisor put a few questions to a class of boys in the school room.

"What is the use of that map?" he asked, pointing to one stretched across the corner of the room.

And half a dozen shrill voices answered in chorus:

"Please, sir, it's to hide teacher's bicycle!"

Entertaining Herself

A group of women entered the elevator, as it later proved, to go to the top of the building.

As the elevator started rising one of the women said loudly, "Two." The elevator man stopped but no one got out. He closed the door and started again. The same voice sang out, "Three." The elevator man stopped again, but no one got out. After waiting a couple of seconds he closed the door and started again. Almostly immediately the same voice said "Four." He stopped the elevator and said "Madam do you want to get out at any of these floors?"

WE CAN'T FORGET ARCADY.

A simple print upon my study wall,
I see you smile at it, my masters all;
So simple it could scarce indeed be less—
A shepherd and a little shepherdess.
Who let their sheep go grazing, truant-wise,
To look a moment in each other's eyes.
"A gray-haired man of science," thus your books,
"Why is this trifle here among his books?"
Ah, well, my answer only this could be,
Because I, too, have been in Arcady.

My students give grave greeting as I pass,
Attentive following in talk or class.
Keen-eyed, clear-headed, eager for the truth;
Yet if sometimes among them sits a youth
Who screws and stares and lets the lesson go
And puts my questions by, unheeding so,
I smile and leave his half-writ rhyme unread,
Guessing the face between him and the text.
A foolish thing—so wise men might agree—
But I wrote verses once—in Arcady.

The little maid who dusts my book-strewn room,
Poor dingy slave of nollish and of broom
Who breathes my singing at her footsteps sound,
She, too, the way to that lost land has found.
Last night, a moonlit night and passing late,
Two shadows started as I passed the gate,
And then a whisper, poised 'twixt mirth and awe,
"The old professor! Mercy, if he saw!"
Ah, child, my eyes had little need to see—
I, too, have kissed my love—in Arcady.
—Theodosia Garrison, in Poems.

PRAYER.

How far the waving acres reach
Of lush and tangled prairie grass;
How vagabond the path that trails
To mark the jocund winds that pass

How nice the birds on lifting wing
Within the blue and tender sky;
How watch below the flowers a-bloom
The sun upon his journey high

How very old the prairie is
And yet gentle how very young;
How all its windy loneliness
Is on its gentle wideness flung

How free the fancy and the plan
When morning on the prairie smiles
How patience on the quietness
Of all the green expanse of miles

It is really a pitiful sight to see so many thousands of people worrying about what they can eat and what they can't eat.

All these people need to make them healthy, cheerful and of sound appetite is a box of Mi-O-Na Tablets.

The stomach of a dyspeptic is overworked and run down. It needs help to digest the food, but more than that it needs a prescription that will cleanse, renovate, strengthen and put elasticity into the stomach walls.

Mi-O-Na is the prescription that will do this and do it so promptly that you'll wonder why you didn't try it before.

It stops belching of gas and distress after eating in five minutes. It is undoubtedly the greatest stomach tonic ever given to the public by a specialist in stomach diseases.

MADE PROPOSAL THAT GERMANY BE DISMEMBERED

Paris, May 23.—(By the A. P.)—The chamber of deputies was startled today by the proposition, advanced by the radical deputy Alfred Margaine that Germany be dismemebered. The Ruhr occupation, Margaine declared, would never prove profitable, and the only way to bring Germany to terms and assure French security would be to separate Prussia from the rest of Germany.

The rest of the chamber did not appear to regard Margaine apprehensions very seriously, but gave close attention to Louis Dubois, former president of the reparation commission, who went over the whole history of Germany's resistance and recounted the many concessions made by the allies.

The occasion of his remarks was a debate on the appropriations for the expenses of the occupation of the Ruhr, the chamber being asked to vote credits for this purpose totalling 145,000,000 francs.

OBITUARY.

Miss Alice G. Woodmansee

(Contributed)

In the passing on of Miss Alice G. Woodmansee, a short time ago there was left a large circle of relatives and friends to mourn their loss. With a pleasing personality, and a pleasant word to any person, she met with a noble Christian spirit; with a very winning and lovable way toward children, she leaves many pleasant memories among those who associated with her. In her church life, not alone with her home church at Preston City in which she was deeply interested, but with the Central Baptist at Norwich and the Third Baptist of Greeneville, there was shown a strong desire that wherever she attended church to be true to her Master in loving, loyal service, and she leaves many true Christian friends in all these places, and although passing through severe experiences she still kept her faith in the realities of a Christians hope, firm and true until the end, and at the funeral services held at the Preston City Baptist church, a large number of friends were present from the Norwich and Greeneville churches, in appreciation of her true and beautiful Christian life. To mother and to her brothers and sister, and near relatives, also a large circle of friends, let us cherish the memory of Alice and emulate her in sacrifice, love and devotion, where our lot may be cast with the hope of meeting her at the great reunion of the redeemed in glory.

Angelo Bonomi.

Funeral services for Angelo Bonomi, 2 years and 5 months' old child of Lazri and Chrestine Isso Bonomi of 22 Ore street, were held on Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the parlors of Cummings & Ring with a large attendance. There were many beautiful flowers. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery where a committal service was held.

The child died Monday at the home of its parents after a three hours' illness with diphtheria.

NORWICH FIREWORKS DIN STARTLES REGION AROUND

The Bulletin was besieged Tuesday night with many telephone calls from people in Jewett City, Plainfield, Central Village and Moosup, asking if Norwich was being blown off the map of the state of Connecticut.

The fears of the populace of those towns further north were calmed by the young man at the phone who gently informed them that the Italian residents of the Rose of New England were celebrating in honor of the Virgin Mary of Sovereto and the noise they heard came from the many bombs fired from the hill off Talman street in honor of the occasion.

Some stories from Jewett City told of people who, believing the end of the world had arrived, started to move the furniture from their houses, evidently planning to load it onto the first bus for heaven or the other place if their houses suddenly disappeared. Why these people were intent on taking their furniture with them into the next world was not explained, but it is evident that they moved it back into the house with a feeling of relief after they had been told the explosions were only a part of the celebration in Norwich, and had nothing to do with the Moodus quakes or those felt at intervals in various parts of the state.

CLEVELAND MAN BUYS LACROIX COON DOG

A man who came all the way from Cleveland, Ohio, visited the home of Henry LaCroix in Baltic Monday and purchased Coming Girl, the famous coon hound owned by Mr. LaCroix. Coming Girl has covered the trail with many well known hunters in New London county and has hung up a record that has yet to be equalled.

At one time Mr. Lacroix owned one of the largest kennels of pedigreed hunting dogs in this section of the country and many of the hunters of the best blood still working on the trails are from his kennels or have been bred from dogs once owned by Mr. LaCroix.

Thomas Geagan Saves Accident

Two women from New York were saved from a possible serious accident on Laurel Hill Tuesday afternoon by the quickness of Thomas W. Geagan of this city who jumped onto the running board of their automobile, shut off the switch and steered them to safety when they had run off the road and onto a bank on the so-called Davis hill.

They offered but he declined a reward and they went on their way with warm expressions of thanks for his timely help.

Hatless and with the sweat running into his eyes, the young man dashed up to the gate as the 5.15 pulled out. As the guard turned the lock, he remarked:

"Trying to catch the 5.16?"

"No, you idiot; I was just trying to frighten it out of the station."—Tiger's Head.

WIFE LIKED DANCES, BUT HE LIKED MOVIES, DIVORCE SUIT FOLLOWS

Divergence of tastes in the forms of amusement each chose and followed regardless of the other brought about the crash in the married life of Anna McMahon Carpenter and Edgar S. Carpenter, former residents of New London, it was disclosed in the trial of their contested divorce suit in the superior court here Tuesday before Judge George E. Hinman. Mrs. Carpenter liked to dance. Her husband didn't and wouldn't go with her to dances but accused her of being out with other men. He found his amusement in the movies and went alone because she would not go with him.

The climax came when he spit in her face one night while they were living in New London. After that he was nothing to her, she testified, and she brought a divorce suit on the grounds of intolerable cruelty since the first of January, 1922. Mr. Carpenter admitted the spitting incident but claimed it happened when she was threatening to hit him with the stove lifter, which she denied.

Thomas E. Troland was attorney for Mrs. Carpenter and Clayton B. Smith for Mr. Carpenter. The couple was married in Malden, Mass., April 9, 1902, and had lived for six years at New London, where Mr. Carpenter was employed as an accountant, part of the time working for the city.

Petitioning Wife Testifies.

Mrs. Carpenter was the first witness. Asked by Attorney Troland to tell what the experience of her married life had been, she proceeded to say that her husband had always been sarcastic, would throw the food around if it wasn't cooked to suit him, it might land on the platter or the table cloth. It was all the same to him. She told of going with a Mr. and Mrs. Johns to a Valentine night party in New London and upon her return her husband accused her of being out with a man at a hotel. His language towards her was filthy, accusing her of being a street walker and worse. At another time he struck her in the face, leaving a mark and cutting the inside of her mouth. He continually accused her of going out to meet a man. Once he locked her out at night and the family down stairs let her in. He had also kicked her out of bed once, but picked her up after she fell against the radiator.

He was away for five months, she said, while he was working in Rockville, and during that time she gained 10 pounds. When he came back the same treatment continued and she lost 12 pounds.

On the night of Jan. 13, 1923, when she returned from being out he presented a paper for her to sign. It was a separation agreement in which he agreed to pay $10 per week for the care of their two children. She signed one copy and he another.

Mr. Carpenter testified that she finally left her husband on Feb. 9, 1923, when she could stand his treatment no longer, this being after the spitting incident. She had twice before left him, she said, but had returned. Since leaving him she had been living near Boston with her mother and her children, and has been giving dancing instruction at night and doing addressing during the day for a Boston company.

Under cross examination by Attorney Smith, she said she was away for a week the first time she left her husband and two weeks the second time. She said he never gave her any money. She denied that she went to public dances in New London and claimed that the dances she went to were invitation affairs on Wednesday nights and that she always went with a married couple and came home with them. Her husband had always gone out nights when the children were small, she said, and when they grew larger she told him she expected to go out. His narrow mind was partly to blame for the objections he made.

As to the time her husband struck her, Mrs. Carpenter said she hadn't used the stove lifter but she should have done so. She called up Mrs. Johns over the telephone to have her verify where they had been but Mr. Carpenter wouldn't listen over the phone as he said Mrs. Johns would lie to protect her. Then he did telephone and denied to Mrs. Johns that he had struck his wife.

On re-direct examination, she testified that she had been in Boston five weeks before she received any support and that because she was afraid of her husband she never went to bed without something under her pillow, like scissors or anything she could think of.

Neighbor Testifies

Mrs. David Almy, who occupied the lower apartment in the house where the Carpenters lived in New London testified that Mrs. Carpenter's conduct had been exemplary during the six years she had known her. The witness said she told Carpenter she ought to have him arrested for breach of the peace. She said that Mrs. Carpenter was a physical wreck with nervousness. She had seen the spit on her face and she corroborated the testimony about letting Mrs. Carpenter in at the back door one night. She said Mrs. Carpenter was a neat housekeeper and took the best care of the children.

Husband Gives Testimony

In defense, Attorney Smith called Mr. Carpenter to the stand. He said his wife left him because he wouldn't stand for her going to public dances three or four times a week and him coming home and finding the children in (he care of some older children. There were times when she swore at her because she wouldn't listen to ordinary talk, he said, but he denied directly accusing her of improprieties with men or of using the vile language she had testified to.

He denied that he struck her, but said he pushed her in the face with his hand into a chair. She didn't complain of being hurt. He admitted spitting in her face but said he apologized and she would accept the apology. He said he provided for his family even better than he could afford, for he went without clothes he needed and was wearing in court the same suit in which he was married eleven years ago.

Asked whether he wanted his children and wife back, he said "yes" as to the children, but not his wife unless under "changed conditions". He thought they could be happy together.

On cross examination he said he knew Mr. and Mrs. Fred Denison were respectable people but didn't know they were the ones with whom his wife went to dance on Wednesday nights. He couldn't name any time when she went to a public dance and admitted calling his wife a dirty little street walker, also writing this to his mother-in-law. He didn't remember upsetting the coal hod and throwing wood over the kitchen floor. He denied he had said he intended going to Mexico or that he threw up his job to avoid paying his wife.

Saw Gas Jet Kicking.

Judge Hinman asked Mr. Carpenter if he had ever thought of making a compromise with his wife over their hours and methods of recreation. The defendant husband answered he had once gone with a man to a party that his wife attended in a private home and while there the women tried to kick a gas jet that was six feet from the floor. He went to no more parties. He told the judge that he often worked three nights in the week, went to the movies two nights and was always home Saturday and Sunday nights.

Mrs. Rachel J. Kane, 193 Broad street, New London, said she knew the Carpenters so well that they called her and her husband "Pa" and "Ma," said she never heard of any improprieties on the part of Mrs. Carpenter and didn't know of the trouble of the couple until after Mrs. Carpenter left.

Mrs. Carpenter was recalled and said she never told Mrs. Kane because she didn't want people to know about their troubles.

The testimony closed after Mrs. Mary Briggs of New London testified to Mrs. Carpenter's good conduct.

Both attorneys made arguments in submitting the case to Judge Hinman. Mrs. Carpenter asks alimony and the custody of the children.

FOREIGN WAR VETERANS WILL SELL POPPIES

Members of Richard E. Hourigan post, No. 594, Veterans of Foreign Wars, of Norwich, are to offer the immortalized "Flanders Poppy" for sale in this city beginning Friday, May 25th, following the usual custom that has prevailed about every Memorial day since the World war, with similar veteran organizations all over the country.

The idea of wearing a Flanders poppy on Memorial day was first suggested by the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and has the approval of all men in public office, including the president of the United States, the governors of the states, and the mayors of the cities.

Following is the letter written to Colonel Huston, commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, by President Warren G. Harding in which he commends the movement:

The White House.
Washington, April 12, 1923.

My dear Colonel Huston:

I am glad to express my accord with the plan which the Veterans of Foreign Wars have put forth to have the people generally wear a poppy on Memorial day, as a testimony of continuing interest and sympathy in the great cause of which that flower has become in a way emblematic. I hope the proposal will be generally accepted this year, for it is certainly an appealing testimony of the nation's continuing sense of its concern for the men who served it during the World war.

Most sincerely yours,
WARREN G. HARDING.

Col. T. L. Huston,
American League Baseball Club,
226 West 42d St.,
New York City.

In accordance with the letter of approval by the president of the nation, Mayor Milo R. Waters expresses his wish that the custom be continued in the following proclamation:

PROCLAMATION.

Whereas, the president of the United States has expressed the hope that, in accordance with the custom already established, through the symbol of the poppy worn on Memorial day the people of theese United States shall again pay their tribute to their soldier dead, and

Whereas, the Vetgrans of Foreign Wars, which organization has been officially designated to support the poppy movement, will cause to be sold poppies to be worn on Memorial day in commemoration of the heroism of our World war dead; the proceeds of such sales to be used for alleviating the condition of their disabled comrades;

Now, therefore, I, Milo R. Waters, mayor of Norwich, earnestly urge that the citizens of this city give their sincere co-operation to this cause which has for its purpose the commemoration of the sacrifices of those who gave their lives or their health in the defense of their country.

(Signed) MILO R. WATERS.

Dated, May 19, 1923.

In speaking of the Flanders poppy, Richard E. Hourigan post sends the following message to the citizens of Norwich:

The Flanders poppy immortalized by Col. John McCrae's poem, In Flanders Fields, is indissolubly associated with the memory of those who gave the last full measure of devotion on the fields of France and Belgium, and thus has become a living symbol of the souls of our dead.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States feel honored that so great and solemn a task has come under their direction, and will always endeavor to prevent the commercializing of Poppy day so that it may ever remain a lofty inheritance and a memorial to their fallen comrades.

To Americans, Memorial day will always be a day dedicated to those who gave their all to the nation, no matter where or when they fell. On that day every man, woman and child should commemorate their sacrifice by wearing a memorial poppy, and so

SHETUCKET LODGE ENJOYS LADIES' NIGHT PROGRAMME

A most enjoyable evening was spent Tuesday night at Odd Fellows' hall by members of Shetucket lodge, No. 27, I. O. O. F., and their lady friends, a delightful programme having been arranged in observance of Ladies' night.

The programme of the evening opened with an address of welcome by Noble Grand Edward Smith, following which everyone was asked to join in singing America, the accompaniment being played by the orchestra comprising M. M. Osborne, piano; Bruce Rogers, saxophone; George Gulle, violin. After the opening numbers, the orchestra favored with a group of popular numbers which were greatly enjoyed.

The feature of the program was the mystifying work of Prof. Banfield, a well known local magician, who continually kept his audience guessing as one after another he caused the things he touched to do as he bade them.

Following the work of Prof. Bancld, M. M. Osborne gafive a piano solo. Throwing Kisses, by Carl Heins, and was called back for an encore. A touch of bonnie Scotland came with the recitations of Miss Isabelle Shearer, all given in the characteristic Scottish language. For closing numbers Harry Spicer sang For the Sake of Old Lang Syne and Carolina and the orchestra favored with another group of late numbers.

The remainder of the evening was spent in having a social time during which refreshments of ice cream, cake, cookies and punch were served. The committee in charge of the Ladies' Night which was voted a decided success, comprised Noble Grand Edward Smith, chairman; Walter Kelly, Milton Osborne, Albert Fairbanks Harry H. Howard and Louis Waters.

One hundred per cent. attendance is expected.

DANIELSON

State police were investigating during Tuesday an accident that occurred near Attawaugan Monday in which Charles Thibeault, whose hearing is faulty, was struck and knocked down by an automobile driven by Peter Mondor of Lonsdale, R. I. It appears that Thibeault was walking along the left side of the highway, as is his custom, when the accident occurred. He was on the lookout for traffic that would be coming toward him on his side of the highway, but figured he was safe from cars that might come along from behind, on the opposite side of the road. However, the Mondor car struck and knocked him down. He was not regarded during Tuesday as having been seriously hurt.

There is local interest in the announcement that John Smith of New Milford, just appointed by the coming state highway commissioner, John Macdonald to be engineer of the Norwich division of the state highway system is a native of East Killingly, where he was born 34 years ago. He is a graduate of the Concord, N. C., high school and for ten years was associated as an assistant with City Engineer George W. Perry of Putnam, working as draftsman and assistant engineer on sewer work and street layout.

Mr. Smith has been with the state highway department for two years. He had a part in the construction of the Hartford-New London federal aid road, the Washington bridge at Devon, the Derby-Shelton bridge, the Eastford-Chaplin road and is now engaged in work on the Housatonic Valley road in New Milford and Kent. Mr. Smith is a member of the Connecticut Society of Civil Engineers.

Mrs. Susie G. Williams, Brooklyn, secretary of Quinebaug Pomona grange, is sending out notices giving the details of the program arranged for the meeting of Pomona scheduled to be held on Saturday of this week with Natchaug grange at the Congregational church in Chaplin. At 10.30 the business session will open in the fifth degree. Dinner will be served at noon. The lecturer's program is to open at 1.30. All grangers will be welcomed. Prof. Edward H. Gumbert and E. C. Carpenter will make addresses, as previously announced in this paper.

State Lecturer Charles A. Wheeler has arranged for the Connecticut Agricultural college drama club to present a one-act play by George Bernard Shaw, the direction to be by Prof. Beckerson. Mrs. Theron D. Swift, lecturer of Echo grange, has arranged a farce, monologue and musical selection to be included in the program. The meeting promises to be one of the most interesting and entertaining in the year's activities of Quinebaug Pomona grange.

There is another worrisome little matter to be charged against the development of this motoring age. This has to do with the great reduction of fresh water fish in lakes, ponds and streams in territory hereabouts. The motor car not only has made all the old-time "good places" easily accessible, but also seems to have marvelously increased the number interested in fishing. The result of this constant devotion to rod and reel is a vast reduction in the size of this season's catches, even allowing for the wider distribution of the fish caught. At East Killingly, for instance, a Mecca in years gone by for the pout fishermen, no great catches have been made this year, though some good strings of pickerel were taken out early in the season.

The ponds and lakes about East Killingly are literally being fished to death. Where one formerly came away with 100 to 200 pout, 25 to 50 is now regarded as a fine haul. There was a time when the pout supply of these bodies of water seemed inexhaustible, but that day is gone, at least for the present, and restocking seems the only remedy. Things will be somewhat different next year, however, as all fishermen will be required to take out a license and that will serve materially in reducing the number who fish. And those who do fish will be paying a little something into what will be an important fund to be used largely in restocking in order that there may be a constant supply of fish and good fishing.

Delegations from McGregor Post, G. A. R., Woman's Relief Corps and from Colonel Edward Anderson Camp, Sons of Veterans, were among the large number that attended the funeral service for Theodore F. Bailey at his home on Broad street Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock. Rev. J. W. Houck of the Baptist church was the officiating clergyman. Burial was in Westfield cemetery, where the committal service was by Rev. Mr. Houck. The bearers were Commander Vine R. Franklin of McGregor post, of which Mr. Bailey was a former commander; A. H. Armington and Benjamin Rapp, also veterans of the Civil war, F. E. Bitgood, Raymond Allen and Frank Stinson. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Regret is expressed that Byron Larkin is not recovering as rapidly as had been hoped from an attack of pneumonia that for days threatened to end his life during the early days of April. He remains a patient at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam, where he is receiving every attention. The young man is the last survivor of a family of five. His father, Gilbert Larkin, his brother, Cromwell and two sisters, Mary and Ethel, all died, three of them within 24 hours of each other, from pneumonia that ravaged the family during the spring. Byron has been a patient at the hospital since April. His recovery seemed assured some time ago, but of late his progress has not been so steady as had anticipated it might be.

A huge motor bus conveying officials of the Eastern Connecticut Power company on a trip of inspection through towns where the company has important interests attracted attention here. The bus has a seating capacity of 29 and is equipped with air brakes.

PUTNAM

An unusual large funeral congregation was gathered at St. Mary's church Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock to attend the solemn high mass of requiem for Captain Remi Delage, who died in the City hospital at Worcester late Friday afternoon from injuries he received in an automobile accident at a railroad underpass in Oxford, just north of Webster, on the night of May 1-2, a few minutes after midnight.

Rev. Charles F. Bedard, the pastor, Rev. Adrian Dykemans and Rev. W. Arthur Routhier were officers of the mass.

Representatives of the city government, of the police and fire departments, attended the service in their official capacities and numbered among the congregation were relatives of the deceased from Putnam and out of town. Friends who had been closely in touch with Captain Delage during his incumbency as active head of the police department also were at the service.

The bearers were Sergeant George Laird, acting captain of police, Patrolmen Eugene Gibney, John Ryan and Bonini Durand, and, representing the fire department, Phillias Cloutier and Alphonse Dumas. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery. There were many beautiful floral tributes.

Motorists hereabouts didn't cheer any Tuesday when they read of a suggestion made to State Highway Commissioner Charles J. Bennett by Governor Templeton that state road work be curtailed because of the shortage of farm labor and in the hope evidently that labor released by the state highway department would just naturally drift to the farms without looking for any of the jobs so plentiful just now that pay more liberally than do places on the farm.

Last winter's severe weather, coupled with the heavy traffic as spring was coming on, played havoc with the state highways hereabouts. The highways need more than average repair attention in this section of the state this year, and car drivers see nothing at all in the governor's suggestion that the road work program be curtailed. About every driver regards it as a very unhappy suggestion, because if it were followed there is not the slightest guarantee that road workers would become farm laborers. They are under no obligation to do that.

Up to Tuesday noon nothing definite had been decided as to when work on the construction of the projected Putnam Savings bank building and the projected Stoumbelis building would be undertaken. At the place of business of the Stoumbelis Brothers it was said that it was hoped to arrive at a decision this week. Bids for the construction of the new savings bank building have not been opened as yet. While there is reticence in quarters that are well informed as to what is going on relative to these proposed buildings, the definite impression has steadily gained ground in Putnam the past two weeks that high costs of construction are causing hesitation upon the part of those who would build the new structures which are destined to occupy sites in the heart of the business section. These sites, now barren of any structure, are awaiting decisions that indirectly at least interest about everyone in Putnam.

Search for the bandits who robbed the tax collector at Blackstone, Mass., of about $4,000, representing Monday's collections, has extended to this city and surrounding territory, which was visited by a Massachusetts sheriff and his aids in following up a tip that the men who made off with the money headed into this section of Connecticut. The money was taken from the tax collector, as told in Tuesday's Bulletin, just as he was leaving his market after making the day's collection, to deposit in a Woonsocket bank. Not a trace of the robbers was found in this territory.

Former employes of the Manhasset Manufacturing company were steadfastly holding out during Tuesday against returning to work unless they are allowed the advance in wages they sought when the present difficulty was precipitated.

The one especially interesting development of the situation during Tuesday was the warning of counsel for the mill company that prosecutions of former operatives will be undertaken unless picketing ceases. It is held that picketing continues to be indulged in, in violation of the injunction issued by Judge Avery of the superior court during the past week.

Counsel for the mill company gave warning of these impending prosecutions to counsel for the former employes and there was a discussion of the situation between these employes and their counsel relative to the matter.

The intention seems to be to fully eliminate picketing or any situation that might lead to molesting, interfering with or intimidating operatives who are at work in the Manhasset company's plant.

Some cases that were continued from Monday are assigned for a hearing at a session of the city court at 9 o'clock this (Wednesday) morning.

Rush work is being done on the addition and improvements to the plant of the Adams Manufacturing company, which is to bring its business here from North Scituate, R. I. The company is expending thousands of dollars on the work now under way in this city.

A considerable number of Putnam people will make the pilgrimage motor trip to Canada this summer under a plan being worked out by a French language newspaper with its headquarters in this city.

Things Remembered is the title of a newly issued volume of which Arthur Sherburne Hardy of Woodstock is the author and which deals with his reminiscences during a unique literary and diplomatic career. During his diplomatic service Mr. Hardy was United States minister in Persia, Greece, Spain and the Balkans. He is an author of renown.

It is announced that the town of Putnam is now carrying a total of $390,000 on school property. The total has been advanced materially in order that the town would be adequately protected in case of fire and considering present replacement costs.

Salvation Army representatives are hard at work in Putnam this week in their campaign for the home service fund. The object is to raise $1,800 in the towns of Putnam and Killingly.

Sergeant George Laird is being mentioned as successor to Captain Remi Delage in the police department. It became evident during Tuesday that there will be several candidates for the appointment, which will be made by the common council.

Route signs recently placed in position in the city are aiding materially in keeping through traffic going right. These signs point the way to Hartford, Worcester, Norwich, New London, Providence, Springfield and other cities, and are located at intersecting streets where state highway routes wind their way through the city.

Richest Man In The World

Henry Ford, whose wealth rivals that of the once famous Croesus, is today the most envied money man in the world, with assets of over half a billion. The Daddy of all Flivvers has the touch of King Midas—everything about him turns to gold, seemingly without an effort. It was just twenty years ago that the Ford Company was organized in Michigan with total assets of less than $100,000. The profits of the year ended February, 1923, is said to approximate $119,000,000.

ROSWELL MOFFITT HELD FOR SUPERIOR COURT

Danielson, May 22.—When Roswell Moffitt was presented in Justice Mathewson's court at Central Village Tuesday morning to answer to a charge of rape, probable cause was found for holding him for trial at the next term of the Windham county superior court having criminal jurisdiction, in October, and he was bound over under bonds of $5,000, in default of which he was taken to Brooklyn jail in charge of State Officer Merrill Keith, who brought him back from Kingston, R. I., early Monday evening.

Moffitt made no statement at the hearing. His accuser, a girl 15 years of age, testified against him, and there also was evidence from the child's parents.

The girl was assaulted about ten days ago while she was coming down a woodland path that she traverses every day in going to and coming from school. Shocking details of her dreadful experience were set forth for the court. The girl identified Moffitt as her assailant, and there is other evidence to establish that he was in the vicinity of Central Village on the night preceding that on which the alleged attack was committed. However, Moffitt denies having been in the vicinity. He has a state prison record, having served a term in this state for burning a barn near Central Village in 1908.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

CRICKET SANG ALL NIGHT.

"The Bubbling Brook goes singing
Down to the ocean deep.
I guess it knows 'twill get there
Before it's time to sleep.

"The little bird goes flying
All day far from its nest,
But when the sun is setting
It comes back home to rest

And little romping children
At night crept up the stairs,
To creep in bed and fold their hands
And slowly say their prayers!"
sang the little Black Cricket all night long to the three little rabbits, and I guess they heard her in their dreams for the next morning Little Jack Rabbit asked Uncle Lucky:

"Good morning Shanty!" said Uncle Lucky.

"Did you have a dream about the Bubbling Brook and little birds and sleepy children?"

"I believe I did," replied the old gentleman rabbit, helping himself to another carrot griddle cake.

"So did I," laughed pretty Lady Love, "isn't it strange we all had the same dream?"

But the little cricket never said a word. Maybe she was asleep. I should think after singing all night she wouldn't be able to stay awake, but still you never can tell what a lady cricket may do.

After breakfast Uncle Lucky went out to the barn to get the luckymobile which the Old Red Roooster was washing to make it look nice and shiny.

"Good morning, Shanty," said Uncle Lucky, who often called the old Red Rooster "Shanty" because it was short for Chanteoleer, you know.

"Good morning, Mr. Lucky Lefthindfoot," answered the old Red Rooster, brushing off the cushions with his feather tail duster.

Well, by this time Little Jack Rabbit had finished polishing the front door knob and feeding the canary, so the two little rabbits said goodby to Lady Love and drove away. By and by, after a mile and maybe three they met their friend the Old Brown Horse in a nice big pasture, where, after a meal of grass, he would rest under a nice big shady tree.

"I'm having an easy time these days," he said, coming up close to the old rail fence to stretch his neck over the top rail. "My master has bought an automobile and I've nothing to do but eat and sleep."

"Goodness meebus," exclaimed Uncle Lucky. "Don't you get tired of that?"

"No," replied the Old Brown Horse, "I like to eat when I'm hungry and when I fall asleep I don't know anything until I wake up and then I'm hungry all over again."

"Won't you take a ride with us?" asked the kind old gentleman rabbit and in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, May 23—With the announcement made at the meeting of the city council Monday evening of the probable asking of an appropriation of $35,000 to erect a new and larger pier at Ocean Beach and such a pier as would permit the landing there of large excursion steamers that put into port Sunday, merchants at the beach and the general public hope that the scheme can be realized. The merchants are particularly interested in the erection of such a wharf for it would mean the leaving of much money by the visitors. By stopping at the beach a stay of another hour could be allowed. It is believed that Councilors William E. Fox and Thomas D. Grogan, who are advocating the new pier erection will have something favorable to announce to the council for consideration within a few weeks and it is among the possibilities that the new wharf will be erected during the summer.

An emergency case was received at the Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital shortly after 9 o'clock this evening, when a patient who stated that his name was Richard Morris was admitted for treatment for an apparent severe sprain of his ankle. An X-ray picture of the injury will be taken tomorrow morning to ascertain whether any bones are broken. It was not known at the hospital where Morris resides or how the victim sustained his injury.

The condition of John Longo of Shaw street, who sustained five fractured ribs and lacerations as a result of being thrown from an automobile, owned and operated by Joseph Contino, on Pequot avenue Sunday night when the machine crashed against a tree, remains unchanged today at Home Memorial Hospital and there is still a possibility that the victim has sustained internal injuries.

Patrolman George Perkins of the night force, was unable to report for duty tonight because of indisposition. It is believed that his absence from duty will be but a night or two.

Prosecuting Attorney Warren B. Burrows of Groton, is still waiting for Coroner Jeremiah J. Desmon of Norwich to render his finding as to whether Milton Card, a Groton youth, is criminally responsible for the death on the Eastern Point road, Groton, two months ago of Miss Lee Beaman, formerly of No. 1 Park avenue, Groton.

The fire alarm signal system is to be increased probably within a few weeks for it is known that several additional boxes are planned to be located in various parts of the city and in such sections as are now not amply protected against fire. Chief John Stanners has a tentative plan for the location of the new boxes and it is understood, that as soon as it is decided where these boxes will be located, that an order will be placed for their purchase. There are now fifty-three call boxes and it is planned to increased the number to fifty seven or fifty eight.

The police patrol, which was purchased by the city several years ago is fast outliving its usefulness and within a short time another vehicle for the conveyance of prisoners will have to be supplied. The patrol was recently given an overhauling by mechanics and it is again in a garage to receive repairs for new defects that appeared a few days ago.

The health authorities have been appealed to twice lately because of the trouble owners of horses that die experience in finding some one to remove the dead animals from the street or barn where they die. Today the health department was appealed to to solve the problem of removing the carcass of an animal that fell dead in the street Sunday, the body remain where the horse was striken practically three days because no one could be hired to dispose of it.

The same experience occurred three weeks ago when a barn on Main street was destroyed by fire and a horse that was housed in the structure was burned to death. Since the discontinuance of caring for the bodies of dead horses by the C. M. Shay Fertilizing Company at Groton it has almost been an impossibility to procure anyone that would remove the body of a horse or cow and see to it that the body was properly disposed of. Health Officer Benjamin N. Pennell is making an endeavor to secure the disposition of the horse that died Sunday and it is believed that he will find some one tomorrow to take care of it.

News has been received in New London of the death May 18th at Pittsburgh of George Singer, aged 64 years and a brother of Mrs. Mary Alderdice of New York and a summer resident in New London.

That New Londoners will always respond to any charitable cause and there are many to be contributed to in the course of a year, was again evidenced last night when several ladies connected with the Day Nursery passed through the audience at the opening performance at the Capitol theatre and solicited money which will be used in support of the worthy institution. When the silver tokens were counted it was revealed that the theatre patrons had donated $168.

Henry C. Wilmot until a few months ago, a soldier stationed at a Massachusetts post and who pleaded guilty to statutory burglary at the present session of the criminal superior court, was escorted to the state reformatory at Cheshire today by Deputy Sheriff J. H. Tubbs, to which institution Judge George E. Hinman ordered the young soldier committed. Wilmot was charged with the burglarizing of the Noank railroad station.

H. F. Macomber and wife of Broad street are in New York, where they will spend the remainder of the week with their son, Henry F. Macomber, Jr., because of the latter having arranged to sail for Paris next Saturday to complete his studies of architecture and interior decorating.

An automobile, owned and operated by Gerald W. Hart of Hartford and a machine, owned and driven by Ambrose Cassara of No. 363 Williams street, were in collision late this afternoon on Ocean avenue. Cassara's machine was badly damaged.

Both machines were on the avenue returning from Ocean Beach, the Hartford automobile trailing the New London car. When near Gardner avenue, Cassara was compelled to reduce the speed of his auto and when Hart endeavored to slow up his machine, he stepped on the accelerator instead of the brake with the result that his machine crashed against the rear of the Cassara machine.

Police Sergeant Patrick Murphy John Sullivan, who began their annual respite of two weeks several days ago, returned this evening from an automobile trip to Montreal.. ernment needed ?"

Mrs John Nimlitt and baby son of Fisher's Island, and Charles Dill of New Haven, were patients discharged today at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital.

Mary R. Knowlton has sold a house and lot on Lower Boulevard to William B. Westerman.

An automobile owned by the Crystal Candy Kitchen of No. 76 State street, operated by Dennis Patterson, stalled this morning at the corner of State and Washington streets. The car was on a grade at the time and before Patterson could apply the brakes it backed against a commercial car, owned by the United Music company, the collision resulting in a slight disfigurement of a mudguard of the latter machine.

Mrs. Bridget Ennis, residing rear of No. 40 Reed street, reported to the police late last night that her daughter, Elizabeth, aged 9 years, was missing from home, the child having disappeared yesterday forenoon. This morning, Mrs. Ennis located her daughter.

Anna Hayman, aged 24 years, of Norwich, is being sought by the New London police and at the request of the father of the girl.

Hayman telephone to the police station early this morning requesting that a search for the girl be made. He stated that his daughter left Norwich yesterday afternoon to come to New London and that she did not return home on the last car from New London. Hayman stated that when the girl departed for New London she was attired in a black dress and wore a black hat.

A week ago City Manager Barlow awarded the contract for furnishing fuel to all of the city buildings with the Howard Street Coal company and work toward filling the bins with coal in some of the buildings was started Friday. Up to noon today but three auto trucks had deposited the fuel in the bins. The contract for furnishing the fuel requires among numerous provisions that the coal must be weighed by a person designated by the city and Thomas E. Donohue, superintendent of Hillside home, was detailed by the city manager to weigh each truckload of coal to assure the city receiving full weight.

NORWICH TOWN

There was a large congregation at the First Congregational church on Sunday morning, when the pastor, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey preached impressively on The Value of Music in Worship, in commemoration of the fiftieth anniversary of Herbert L. Yerrington, as organist of this church. The text referred to was II Chrohicles 29:38. Come, Let Us Join, by Hall; and Praise Thy God, O Zion, by Claire, were the anthems given by the choir.

In his sermon, Rev. Mr. Bailey brought out several interesting facts concerning music as follows: The Hebrews were musical people, and while perhaps we do not admire their style, we cannot fail to appreciate their enthusiasm.

Music is the highest of the arts and includes the principals of all other arts. It has the rules of mathematics, the building process of the architect, and the color of the painter. Music stirs the emotions and unites the congregation. A sermon, and the recitation of a creed, will sometimes divide a congregation; but they all come back into unity feeling when they open the hymn book.

Christianity began with the song of Bethlehem, and Jesus last hour of fellowship with His apostles was closed with a hymn.

In the Scriptures, the ideal state of human society is pictured as a garden laid out by the landscape gardener, with green fields, running brooks, and unfading flowers; and by the architect as a city four square; and by the musician as a company of the redeemed united in song, whose sound is like the voice of many waters.

At the close, the pastor made personal reference to the help that Organist Yerrington had given to the public worship of the church during the last half century, mentioning especially his effort to conform the music of the hour to the theme of the morning, and to the spiritual quality that he had always put into his musical efforts.

Organist Yerrington's recital on Sunday evening was fully up to the standard of former recitals, being listened to with profound interest by a very large congregation.

This (Wednesday) evening in the chapel, from 8 to 10 o'clock, daylight time, an informal reception is to be given Organist Yerrington by this church parish, in recognition of his long term of faithful service. It is expected that the participants on the musical programme will include Maurice Wallen, tenor soloist, of Hartford; the Misses Ray, talented musicians of Springfield, Mass., also Marjory Merry, pianist, of Norwich Town.

At the Congregational Young People's Christian Endeavor service Arthur Avery was leader. At this meeting reports of the C. E. Acorn institute held recently in New London, were given by the Norwich Town delegates, which included Miss Rose Durr, Miss Ida Beebe and the leader, Mr. Avery.

Paul's address at Antioch and Athens, will be the theme of the church night service Thursday evening in the chapel.

At the Sunday morning worship of the First Methodist Episcopal church the pastor, Rev. James B. Aldrich, preached interestingly from Matthew 16:19, using the first few lines—And I will give unto thee, the keys of the Kingdom of Heaven.

In his evening sermon at 7.30, Rev. Mr. Aldrich followed up the text of the morning, with special reference to the latter part of the verse—Whatsoever thou shalt bind on earth, shall be bound in Heaven; and whatsoever thou shalt loose on earth shall be loosed in Heaven.

Miss Gladys Cruthers was the leader of the Young People's Christian Endeavor service at 6.30, treating the topic—Something in the Bible That Has Helped Me. Ps. 19: 7-14.

Mr and Mrs. George A. Peck of Otrobando avenue, recently had as dinner guests, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore D. Peck and Mrs. Leora Adams of Westchester. Recent callers at the Peck home included Mr. and Mrs. Asa Brainard of Westchester.

Mr. and Mrs. William House of Town street have returned from a motor trip to New Hampshire, where they were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Patterson, of East Jeffrey.

Mr. and Mrs. John L. Browning of West Town street entertained over the week-end the latter's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Pierce of Westerly, R. I.

TRI-COUNTY CONFERENCE OF KING'S DAUGHTERS AT JEWETT CITY

Jewett City, May 22.—The nineteenth annual conference of The King's Daughters of New London, Windham and Tolland counties was entertained by Dorcas Circle of Jewett City in the Congregational church on Tuesday. The order's colors were carried out in the decorations of purple and white lilacs, white carnations, narcissus, lilies of the valley and bridal wreath. Palms and a large silver crown with purple crepe paper completed the beautiful effect. Mrs. J. G. Foster of Norwich, the county president, presided. Rev. H. T. Wilbur, pastor of the Methodist church, conducted the opening exercises, reading from Matthew 24 and offering prayer.

In his brief talk he emphasized that in the present state of unrest in the world, that the King's Daughters must be ready to meet whatever may come. A most cordial welcome was given by Miss M. A. Bardick, leader of Dorcas Circle. Mrs. Edward D. Cady of Oxford, Mass., responded. The minutes of the last conference were read by the secretary, Mrs. H. H. Hiscox of Jewett City. Mrs. Foster appointed Mrs. Bragaw of New London, Mrs. Kukla of Norwich and Mrs. Fox of Greeneville as a resolution committee. The secretary called the roll. There were one hundred and eleven present.

The circles in the counties were represented as follows: Burden Bearers, 0; Charitable 4; Cheerful Doers, 3; Happy Days, 1; Comfort 3; Dorcas 17; Earnest Workers, 10; Euphemian 4; Ever Ready, 0; Friendship 6; Grace 1; Home Chapter 21; King's Bluebirds, 0; Loyal, 13; Mispah, New London, 4; Mispah, Putnam, 1; Pathfinders, 0; Rainbow, 0; St. James 4; Trusting 0; Whatsoever 10; Independent, 1; visitors 8.

In the most matter of statistics the returns from the various circles in the two counties show little change from last year. There is the same number of circles, 19 senior and 1 junior besides an independent list, and while the total membership of 714 shows a decrease of 29 this represents for the most part the withdrawal of a few members who had shown no interest in the organization for several years. Nine circles show a total gain of 32 members, ten show a loss of 53 members, while three show no change in the number of members. The Loyal Circle of Norwich reported the greatest gain in membership, both in numbers and percentage. The other circles which increased in membership were the Burden Bearers of Putnam, Circle of Happy Days of Colchester, Euphemian, Blue Birds and Rainbow, all of Norwich, Friendship and Mispah of New London and Whatsoever of Jewett City. The circles reporting losses in membership are the Cheerful Doers of Central Village, St. James of New London, Mispah of Putnam, Charitable, Comfort, Home Chapter and Ever Ready of Norwich, Trusting of Willimantic, Pathfinders of Jewett City, and the Independent list. One of the circles which lost most heavily is now enabled to resume its work more actively than for some time in the recent past and it is confidently expected that it will show a large gain in the current year. A gratifying feature of the year's activity lies in the fact that the average attendance at the meetings shows a considerable increase.

Sixteen circles reported receipts of $2170.36, and the disbursements of $3,030.36. The five leaders in the amounts received are the Earnest Workers of East Thompson, who seem to have a permanent grip on the first place, Euphemian of Norwich, St. James of New London, Friendship of New London and Comfort of Norwich. The sources from which this income was received and the objects and purposes for which it was expended will be described to you in detail in the reports of the several circles. A great amount of benevolent work was done, which cannot be measured in dollars and cents.

The first five circles to send in their membership lists were the Earnest Workers (at the top as usual), Mispah of Putnam, Circle of Happy Days, Comfort and Friendship. It is urged that care be taken to send in the completed lists as promptly as possible in order that the activities of the circles may be comprehensively summarized. Nearly all the circles subscribe to the Silver Cross Magazine and I hope that next year's report may say that all the circles subscribe.

Last year I suggested the desirability of organizing junior circles in our district. I would like to repeat the suggestion at this time and to emphasize the necessity of a constant influx of new blood if our work is to be carried on indefinitely. In a few years our little juniors will become seniors. Is it too much to hope for that every year may see one junior circle started and one graduated into the seniors so that our membership may show a steady increase in numbers and usefulness.

I desire also to say that I believe we ought to organize one or more circles in Tolland county. Our organization was at one time represented in Tolland and it would seem easily possible to become reestablished there and so feel that our tri-county name properly describes us. This is the only county in the state that is not represented and if any King's Daughter knows or hears of any one who would be interested in organizing a circle in that county either Mrs. Prior or myself would be pleased to cooperate to that end.

The circle reports were read in nearly every case by some member of the circles. They showed splendid work accomplished in many ways, everything done being of a helpful nature to people and various organizations. Mrs. J. W. Dean of New London told what she had in the line of literature of the order. The conference adjourned at noon to the vestry where a luncheon was served by the Ladies' Society of the church.

The tables were very attractive with the spring blossom decorations, and silver crosses for favors with napkins folded by Mrs. George W. Robinson, a shut-in member of the circle, in the form of the Maltese cross.

The devotional service in the afternoon session was conducted by Rev. Charles H. Ricketts of Greeneville Congregational church. He read from Isaiah 35 and offered prayer. He gave the first address of the afternoon. His subject was Historic Mothers, all of his talk showing that there is no power quite so great as that held by the mother.

Some mothers are great in themselves and have become famous. And some mothers have famous children, because of their influence. He spoke first of Mary, the mother of Christ, and of Christ's loving thought for her as she stood weeping at the cross. Next of Rebekah, who was the first to smash the law of primogeniture. Rachel, her daughter-in-law, was the mother of Joseph, to whom more pages in the Old Testament are devoted than any other man but one. Jocheded was the mother of Moses, the biggest man mentioned in the Bible. Hannah, the mother of Samuel, who was so great that he was elected to name two kings, Elizabeth was the mother of John the Baptist, than whom there was none greater.

Then, outside of Bible history there was Cornelia, the mother of the Gracchi, Susanna Wesley, the mother of John and Charles Wesley, Washington's and Garfield's mothers, Lincoln's stepmother and McKinley's mother were all godly women.

Mrs. Buckingham's solo, My Task, came at a most opportune time, following this address. The circle reports were completed. Mrs. G. H. Prior of Jewett City, the state president, was greeted with applause as she rose to give her address. Her subject was A Dangerous Symptom.

The resolutions were read by Mrs. Bragaw, and she called for a rising vote of thanks as the speakers, singer, presidents, Ladies' society and circle were mentioned. Miss Elizabeth Day of Colchester invited the conference to meet there next year. After a hymn and Mizpeh benediction the conference adjourned.

WESTERLY

On Thursday evening Westerly will be the scene of the Rhode Island State class adoption of the Modern Woodmen of America. It is called the Bullard class in honor of E. J. Bullard, chairman of the board of directors, residing in Detroit, Mich., who will be in Westerly on this occasion. Besides the large number of candidates that have been secured locally, each of the other camps in Rhode Island are to bring their candidates to Westerly so that there will be a large class to receive their degrees. To the outsider the noticeable event will be the street parade in which there will be several hundred Woodman. Noticeable will be the delegation from Northcott capp of Pawtucket with a fife and drum corps of its own members in uniform, as well as its degree team. The parade will start at 8 p. m. from the front of the Town hall on Broad street where the addresses of distinguished members will be made to be followed by the initiatory work. Among the addresses will be those of the chairman of the board of directors, E. J. Bullard, John F. Harris, Rock Island, Ill., editor of the official publication of the order and other Woodmen.

It seems to be the tendency of the fraternal orders today to adopt some worthy charitable or public beneficial objective and to devote large funds and combined efforts which could only be carried through by such large organizations. The Modern Woodmen of America pride themselves and gain public commendation in their free sanatorium for tubercular patients, located at Boulder, Col. Here the Woodmen with their nearly 1,500,000 membership are enabled to maintain and operate a thoroughly equipped institution that cares for some 300 patients.

Present at the Westerly session will be Joseph R. Hughes of Hartford, deputy for Connecticut and Rhode Island, Assistant Director Charles H. Verney of Providence with other state officials. Edward W. Taylor, state sentry, is the only Westerly man holding state office in the Modern Woodmen. The degree work on Thursday night will be staged by the degree team of Granite City camp, No. 9459, Modern Woodmen of America. The camp officers are: Consul, William A. Rock; adviser, Stanley Laing, banker; Harold A. Cean, clerk; William E. Martin, escort, Stanley Roode; watchman, John A. Jones; chief of forest, George H. Greenman; camp physician, Dr. S. C. Webster. This is the first visit to Westerly by the Modern Woodmen for a class initiation, the last visit being in Pawtucket.

The line of march as announced for the Memorial day parade at 10 a. m. is through Broad street to the Pawcatuck river bridge where a halt will be made while the ladies of Budlong and Hancock Relief corps conduct the ceremonies in memory of those who fell in our navies after which the line will continue their march through West Broad and Liberty streets to St. Michaels cemetery. After decorating the graves of comrades in St. Michaels cemetery, the line will move through Liberty, West Broad, Broad, Elmwood Beach streets to River Bend cemetery, the program of services at River Bend cemetery will be announced, later. The procession will be made up as follows:

Allen L. Thompson, 22 Cross street, visited his family in Westerly over the week end, returning to New York, where the Eastern Glade on which he returned from Capetown, South Africa as first officer, is docked. The Eastern Glade is a Mallory transport, operating freight and passenger service to Cape Town, Algoa Bay, East London, Port Natal, Delagoa Bay and Beira, American flag steamers. This steamer on the last trip out caught fire off the Azores and the last trip consumed six months. As a survey will be necessary while the steamer is in New York and a rearrangement of steamers and transfer of commanding officers may occur, it is possible that on the next scheduled sailing, June 23rd, the Eastern Glade may sail with Thompson in command as captain.

Frank F. Dodge of Stonington visited his father, E. M. Dodge of Westerly, Tuesday. Mr. Dodge was en route to Kennebago Lake, Me., for a visit to the Maine camp. He was accompanied by his wife, son, maid and guide. Advantage will be taken of the fishing season.

The funeral of Elisha Sperry Cheesbrough who died in Clark's Falls, May 19th, was held at his late home Tuesday afternoon, with Rev. B. U. Hatfield in charge. Committal was in Oak Grove cemetery, Ashaway with the Masonic service by Pawcatuck lodge, No. 90, F. and A. M., Frank Friend, acting master. The bearers were Dr. Thurman Main, E. W. Clarke, Frank L. Harris, John T. Johnson.

Mrs. Rosana Marley died Monday afternoon at the home of her son Robert in Lower Pawcatuck, aged 79 years. The interment will be in St. Mary's cemetery, Greenmanville. Mrs. Marley formerly resided in Norwich.

THE BEAUTY OF HEALTH

Newspapers and magazines are devoting columns to magic or over-night beautifiers. There is a beauty in health that is far more attractive to men than mere regularity of features or a made-up complexion. Health should be the first essential of women who want to win and hold admiration, respect and love. At the first indication of ill health as indicated by dark circles under the eyes, a sallow complexion, headaches, backache, pain in the side, nervousness, irritability and melancholia, women should take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, the standard remedy for woman's ills, which has been proven to help 98 out of every 100 women who try it.

DODGE BROTHERS TOURING CAR

To those who thoroughly enjoy the out-of-doors, Dodge Brothers Touring Car represents tens of thousands of invigorating miles in the open air.

And owners who have had long experience with the car, know how trouble-free those miles are, and how little it costs to enjoy them.

They know, too, how light and convenient the Touring Car is and how easily cleaned.

Dodge Brothers power plant, the all-steel body, the permanent baked-on enamel finish, the genuine leather upholstery—all combine to explain why more than 850,000 owners almost invariably speak of the car in terms of highest praise.

The Real Charity

By Claire Wesson

IN the downtown section of the city two shop girls were standing on the corner waiting for a street car. Any one could have told that they were shop girls because of their regulation dress of dull colored, weather-worn clothing, and the evident attempt at youthfulness in the red cheeks but tired looking eyes which bespoke of hours of unremitting labor.

They were not acquainted, but had just happened to meet. One of them frowned as she gazed intently into a nearby store window, her lips turned up at the corners, her head tilted on one side, and she shrugged her shoulders disgustedly.

"What's the matter, kid? Somethin' harrin' yer?" ventured the black-eyed little girl to the tall, frail, distinctly blonde type.

"Oh, nothin'," she replied, with a bored expression on her face, "only I jest noticed that sign in the window and it sure makes me mad."

"Smile."

A card with this one word on it in red letters was displayed in the center of a window surrounded by expensive jewelry and handsome pieces of cut-glass.

"Smile," repeated the tall blonde girl. "How do you get that way? I couldn't smile if my life depended on it. It's all right for the guys that buy those things there in the window, but not for us poor frozen-up folks. Even I have got the best of the folks at home because I am warm when I'm in the store, but it will sure be a chill for me when I get home. You see, father is dead and Sis and I are tryin' to keep the home fires burning, but we don't have much to buy coal with after we've paid the rent. Gone up three times in the last four months, and we've only got three dinky little rooms on the fourth floor of a dirty old apartment house at 2206 E. Nineteenth street.

"Sis and I are making $10 a week apiece, and here we have to pay our street car fares back and forth to work and even street car faro tokens have gone up in price the past year. I don't like to be a kicker, but this life is sure enough to drive a girl to the cabarets and the bright lights. Mother isn't well most of the time, and she finds it almost more than she can do to take care of the baby while Sis is at work. You see, Sis lost her husband, he was a soldier and was killed in France. 'Smile,—say, that might be good advice to give the kaiser over in Holland, but it don't suit my case at all."

At this juncture in the girl's animated lecture on Causes of Social Unrest, a street car rumbled into view and stopped at the corner. "What's your name?" asked the little girl with black eyes.

"Sally Thomas," replied the tall blonde. And the girls disappeared into the car.

Sally Thomas, as she called herself, did not notice the fine clean-cut athletic appearing fellow who stood near her on the street corner as she related some of the hard facts regarding her life and struggle for existence. She didn't notice him, nor did the little girl with black eyes. But he stood there nevertheless, right behind them and he heard every word and even wrote down in a notebook the blonde girl's name and address as she had given them incidentally in her running-fire of complaint.

The man was none other than the Rev. Dr. Samuel Jenkins of the old stone church on the aristocratic south side of the city.

"Poor little dissatisfied hungry soul, just one of thousands," thought the minister, "I am surely going to investigate this case myself personally and not leave it to any committee."

During the ensuing days Dr. Jenkins more than satisfied himself as to the genuineness of Sally's complaints, and the following Sunday his best paying parishioners were given a first-hand talk straight from the shoulder on a few of the immediate crying needs of their fellowmen right here in their home city.

At the close of the sermon Dr. Jenkins remarked, "If anyone wishes to give immediate assistance to a needy cause, I can furnish plenty of details and one certain address that I have investigated myself this past week."

There was not a center rush to Dr. Jenkins after services but several of the ladies said they would take it up at the next meeting of the Sewing Circle and would telephone right away to their relief committee.

Joseph Atkins wasn't a man who just talked but acted as well, and as he greeted his pastor he said, "Give me that address Dr. Jenkins, and I am sure we can fix things up."

Dr. Jenkins' face registered several emotions in the twinkling of an eye, but he responded, "My dear Mr. Atkins, you are just the man to help me in this case. As you probably wouldn't care to visit the family, tomorrow morning I will get in touch with the most interested party and arrange an interview at your office, if you can spare a little time."

"All right, just as you think best, doctor. Call it 10:30 in the morning. I'll make a place for the interview."

Sally Thomas had found that there was one real human being in the city who had a big heart, and when the following morning she was allowed to leave her work to answer a telephone call she was not surprised to find it was Dr. Jenkins who had worked the miracle. She listened to the following: "This is Dr. Jenkins. There's a chance for you to better yourself in a business way by calling at 10:30 at 713 Rogers building. Be sure to be there as I have said you would be. Don't be scared, but tell the gentleman the same things you did me if he should question you. I've fixed things at the store you work. Good luck Sally. I'll call at your home tonight."

Up went the receiver and up went Sally's head. Didn't she have cause for it when things moved in that fashion, and her way?

Things moved swiftly and Sally Thomas was ushered into the inner office of Joseph Atkins. "Dr. Jenkins said you wished to see me. My name is Sally Thomas, and he said you might be able to help me fix up my affairs a bit."

"Yes, Miss Thomas, but first tell me what's the cause of the trouble. I always get to the bottom of things at once," said the real estate magnate abruptly, but with a touch of sympathy in his voice.

"Dr. Jenkins said to tell you, so here goes. It's just a case of money," and Sally repeated the story the minister had overheard, but with added information.

"But Miss Thomas, where do you live? That about your rent certainly is unjust."

"Oh, out at 2206 E. Nineteenth St."

Atkins nearly jumped out of his chair. He turned first red and then white, and was plainly embarassed. "Why, I own those tenements!"

It was Sally's turn to jump now, and she wanted to run but couldn't. Atkins was the first to recover. "I will see my agent at once," he volunteered, "and straighten out this affair." This will be only the beginning of my house-cleaning, and I shall put my business upon a new basis of justice and fair dealing. Miss Thomas, take this as my apology and as rebate for over-charged rent," and he handed her a crisp bill of larger denomination than she had ever dreamed of possessing.

The Midnight Call

By Hazel Courtney

SLEEK, smooth, affable, the lawyer had a reputation as the cleverest manipulator in the city. Corporations desiring expert advice on how to evade stringent law enforcement sent for Melvin Terhune. Crafty criminals engaged him at fabulous fees to escape the penalty of wrong doing and all found him ten times more crafty than they were. Prosecuting attorneys trembled in anticipation of defeat when the name of Terhune appeared as counsel for the defense. Melvin Terhune had one standard by which all things were measured and that was the sign of the dollar. No matter the means, the end was justified if the coating of gold spread over the surface of his conscience.

He smiled grimly as Elbert Everson, the wealthy wholesale grocer, entered his office and asked him to defend him in the suit for damages brought by a poor widow whose only son and sole support had been killed by the merchant's touring car while he and a jolly party were returning from the golf links. Public opinion demanded that Everson pay a big sum to the bereaved widow. He tried to settle with her by defraying the funeral expense and a paltry sum of money. Urged by kind-hearted women of charitable societies she started suit for a vast sum in the local courts. The truth was, Everson was living far beyond his means, keeping up a bold front to keep his ambitious wife and daughters in the elite circles. His business resources were strained to the utmost to meet these demands. Posing as immensely wealthy he knew he could not pay even a quarter of the sum asked by the widow. Terhune seemed to be his last resort as he knew any jury would favor the woman. Legal evasion was the sole loop-hole. By secretly pawning some personal effects he was able to pay Melvin Terhune the retainer demanded.

Battling earnestly the young lawyer of the charity society used all his limited resources to get a verdict for the widow. Sneering at the efforts of the charity attorney Terhune presented one technicality after another until even the jury smiled as they saw the young lawyer plunging to certain defeat.

"Melvin, why do you try to beat that poor woman?" asked his fiancee one evening of the trial— "she must have some compensation for the loss of her son and Everson can easily pay her."

With a chuckle of cleverness Terhune looked at the beautiful girl whom he was soon to marry.

"Business, Blanche, comes first. I am a lawyer and we are hired to win suit. The right or wrong does not matter. We are paid to win."

Blanche Stanley shuddered at the hard-hearted expressions. At times his indifference to things of sentiment repelled her. A sudden resolve to try and make him be more charitable determined the next speech.

"Melvin, dear, I heard the club women talking this afternoon and they think it is dreadful to beat that widow out of her just dues."

He started forward angrily in his chair. His face was white with suppressed rage. Controlling himself, however, he said quietly.

"You will please not interfere with my cases, Blanche. Nothing can make me lose this case for Everson."

The next day had been designated for the attorneys to present their final arguments. Long after he left Blanche's home, Terhune went over his speech to the jury and felt certain his masterful eloquence and veiled complexities of the law would sway them to a verdict favorable to his client. The evening papers had forecast the verdict as the widow's attorney was hopelessly outclassed.

Pacing up and down his library Terhune rehearsed the dramatic portions of his address. With a final burst of burning logic he addressed the jury supposedly sitting in the room. A slight rustle behind him caused him to turn quickly. A young man stood by the center table. His wan, pained face was intently studying the sheets of the address lying on the table. With a startled cry Terhune drew back for behind the young man was a shining figure all alight with a glory of color. One more look and the cold chills raced over his body, for the body of the young man was transparent and he saw the outlines of the heavy leather chair through the form. He swept his hands across his eyes thinking he may be dreaming. With a pitiful, appealing look the young man slowly raised his luminous eyes to meet those of Terhune. One hand raised pointed at him. A voice like an echo from the grave floated in the room.

"You will thus degrade the dead and impoverish the living?"

"Deny that mother of mine her rights and beware."

Like the blinding glare of flash light the room filled with a dazzling brilliancy; a rush of chill wind and Terhune was alone. Trembling, he sank in a chair to collect himself. Then he looked at the papers on the table, then he laughed. It was all a dream. No red figure of a cross showed on the written pages. With a smile of contempt at his weakness he turned off the lights and went to his room. Confident, dapper and smiling at the jury, he arose to make the master plea of his legal career. A hush fell on the courtroom. Melvin Terhune was the best orator of the profession. He started his talk with a slurring reference to the ignorant mechanics who have to walk and should not get in the way of the equipages of the rich. The open-mouthed boobs who stare at the fortunate ones and lose caution. Then he characterized the whole suit as the effort of an unscrupulous woman to exort blood money from a respected merchant by the accidental death of her careless son. Just as he launched into a lurid vituperation of common folks preying on the rich, slowly on the sheet in his hand a blood red cross took form. He started, stared and gulped as the crimson marks bulged up, then a wail of terror slipped his lips as the oozing blood bubbled over his fingers and trickled to the floor. He tried to speak, to cry out but the words froze in his throat. He reeled and sank in a chair by the attorney's table. The papers fluttered to the floor and a deep stain of blood circled about his feet. Attorneys, bailiffs and judge saw the miracle and a deathly silence fell on the room. With calm assurance the lawyer for the widow arose and addressed the court.

"We leave our case in the hands of the jury," he said briefly.

A Worthless Marcelle

By Phil Moore

GOOD morning, Edith. I thought I'd drop in a minute to let you know I'd come home," and Clarissa Wooff, spinster of uncertain age, walked briskly into the sewing room of her young friend, the village dressmaker.

Edith looked up from her sewing with a smile. "Why, Miss Clarissa!" she exclaimed. Then in amazement, as she viewed her caller: "Miss Clarissa!"

"What's the matter, girl? Don't I look squee? I've been to New York, Edith, and got the styles. If you don't like them, you're behind the times."

"I think I must be," breathed Edith, as she gazed from the plaided green and white fringed skirt to the brown hat, trimmed way across the front with scarlet rosebuds. "But your hair!" she gasped. "Your complexion!"

"Great, aren't they? I went to the most fashionable hair dresser in the city, and had my hair bleached and marcelled. As for my complexion, that's rouge. Every woman uses it in these days. Oh, I know you and your friend Marion Woodworth don't, but who cares how a dressmaker and a story writer looks?"

"Who cares how you look, either?" asked Edith. "I don't mean to be impertinent, Miss Clarissa, but, really, you make me suspicious. You aren't thinking of getting married, are you?"

Miss Clarissa simpered. "You bright little thing, that's just what I am thinking of. And, oh, Edith, he has the most soulful eyes!"

"Who is he?"

"Robert Wolfendale. Probably you have never heard of him, but he has bought that beautiful house on Elliott road, that stands back from the street, and has the large lawn in front. He is a widower. Why, child, how strange you look! Are you going to laugh, or cry?"

"Neither; only it seems queer to think of your marrying that young man. He is not more than 40, is he? Marion Woodworth was telling me about him."

"What of it? I shall look even younger when I get my new dresses you're to make. Be sure to have the skirts very short, Edith, mind; and the waists low-necked. My neck is pretty. As for my ankles—there isn't a young girl around that has more slender ones."

"Where did you meet Mr. Wolfendale, Miss Clarissa? Marion says he is very exclusive, and goes almost nowhere. Besides, he has two little children to whom he is perfectly devoted."

"What does she know about it? If that literary creature is planning to set her cap for my Robert, she had better not. And hereafter, Edith, I wish you to understand my name is Clarice!"

"Why, Miss Clarissa?"

"No; Miss Clarice. Now, remember. I have materials here for my gowns. When can you make them?" She opened a bundle and disclosed a wealth of dress goods.

Edith fingered them in bewilderment. There was a piece of Paisley georgette with a blue border, a soft dandelion silk and some periwinkle woolen goods. What could Miss Clarissa be thinking of? She must be 65 years old, at least.

"How soon can you make them?" repeated the visitor.

"I can begin tomorrow," Edith replied. "I shall finish this dress for the minister's wife tonight, and I have no other work on hand. But tell me about Mr. Wolfendale."

"Well, we are not really engaged, dear" and Miss Clarissa giggled, "but I think we shall be soon. I can tell by the way he looked at me. His little girl got lost, and I took her home. Oh, he was so grateful! He invited me to come to see her often."

"But I didn't think you liked children."

"I don't generally; but little Rosamond is a beauty. Folks say she runs wild, and that he has no control over her, or over the boy. I shall go there this afternoon and inquire if she caught cold that day. She was wading in the brook when I found her. Just wait till I'm her mother! I'll make her keep her shoes and stockings on. Children are such a care, but I'm going to be real sweet with her—gentle, but firm. When she gets at my preserves I shall snip her hands with a piece of whalebone."

"But, Miss Clarice, why should she get at your preserves?"

"My dear girl, children always meddle with preserves. I have seen pictures of them. The mother goes into the pantry, and there is little Mary or little Willie all smeared with raspberry jam. I know children like a book."

"And that's the only way you are acquainted with them," declared Edith. "You don't know them in real life at all."

"Well, I hope to, some time; but there we won't quarrel. I'll run home now, and come over tomorrow to tell you how I want my gowns made."

"Are you sure that Mr. Wolfendale is the least attractive to you?" queried Edith the first thing next morning. "Aren't you rushing things too fast? When he first moved here there was talk that he was going to be married soon."

"What do I care for talk? 'Twas just gossip. Oh, if you had seen the way he smiled at me when he said, 'I am deeply grateful to you for your care of my little runaway.' His voice was like a harp!"

"Please stand as still as you can, Miss Clarice." Edith was taking measurements, and her tone was very business-like.

"I am going to have frills at the wrists," went on Miss Clarice. You know children always like to see their mother with fluffy things, and I want the periwinkle house-dress to have a wide back satin collar and a Roman sash."

An hour later she departed. Every day for two weeks found her at the Horton home. Somehow, she had not made so much headway with Mr. Wolfendale as she had expected. He was always courteous when they met, but he had never called.

She seldom saw Edith, now that the dresses were finished, and it was with surprise that she received one day a note from the dressmaker. She read:

"Dear Miss Clarice—Pardon me for deceiving you. I tried to explain, but you would not listen. Robert Wolfendale and I are old friends. He wanted to marry me years ago but I declined. Since then he has renewed his suit, successfully, for we were married last night.

"I am sorry for your disappointment, but I know you will rejoice that little Rosamond and Reginald have a mother. They are at home with the housekeeper and, knowing your fondness for them, I hope you will look in occasionally to see if they are all right. When you receive this I shall be far away. Try to think as kindly of me as you can, sincerely yours,

Miss Clarice gazed, open-mouthed, at the note for a full minute; then, threwing it down, she stamped on it.

"The idea!" she exclaimed. "I look after her children? Not if I know it!!"

The Stranger's Marigold

By Joella Johnson

CLEARLY he was romancing about her. Miss Mary read the letter through again, puzzled little vertical lines puckering her brows.

She had grown curiously dependent on that heavy, distinctive writing these few months, bringing, as it did, into her drab, monotonous world weekly touches of philosophy and humor, and the bustle of the world beyond her tiny New England home town. But this new phase of their correspondence perplexed her, and—inconsistently enough—pleased her, in a shy, deprecating way.

It had all begun, simply indeed, when she had found his library card, blown onto the lawn in front of the tiny bungalow where she lived in solitary cosiness. The card was issued in a near-by city, and good librarian that she was, Miss Mary had appreciated the difficulty he might have in immediately replacing it. So she had returned it to the address given on the card, with a simple note of explanation.

What she did not know was that a bit of quaintness and of charm crept into the lines—just a mere suggestion; like a breath of delicate fragrance brought on a breeze too remote for acvery illusiveness. So, at least, it seemed to Russell Bangs, who, until now, had fancied he knew every type of woman.

Those friends who had dubbed Bangs "the woman hater" would have been astonished at the painstaking care with which he answered the little up-state librarian's letter, weighing his words carefully so as not to offend, yet unmistakably inviting an answer. He, himself would not have been quite able to explain what it was that prompted him in his eagerness to know the personality behind that charming screen of words. He was sure of the old-fashioned sweetness of her, which he had thought obsolete in these days of jazz and rouge boxes; yet, his cynic's heart told him, perhaps he was suffering another delusion. Anyhow—he hoped it would last!

The arrival of Bang's first letter caused havoc in Miss Mary's small, well-ordered world. He had written with a whimsical impersonality which appealed to her—written of books that she knew, and of things that she longed to know in the outside world.

She lived a life so devoid of romance, so cloistered in the little library,

She longed to answer, yet all her punctilious upbringing made her draw back at the impropriety. She dallied with the thought of writing—thought of what she might say—then, one reckless day, with a guilty little thrill that was delicious, she sent him a shy answer.

They wrote often, now—he, humorously, or whimsically of things in his man's world; she of the library, of the books she read, of the people she met. She even told him of the stranger, because he seemed interested in everything.

The Stranger was another epoch in Miss Mary's existence. He had been coming regularly to the library before she took any active notice of him. Then, one day, he engaged her in a discussion of a book which she had recommended for his reading. And when, later, he brought her marigolds wished the two men might meet; and when he had answered, interested, she wrote him more about the Stranger; about his keen, deep-set eyes, which could twinkle humorously or grow whimsically dark; about his broad shoulders and the odd little way he had of throwing back his head when he laughed. Yes—she had made quite a confidant of this correspondent of her until now—

Miss Mary smile ruefully at the letter which she still held in her hand. It was so puzzling to know what to do! The letter held a new, personal note; he called her beautiful and was coming to see her! Miss Mary, who had never before been called beautiful in all her life, felt conflicting sensations of pleasure and dread. If he came, she feared he would never write again, and the thought of losing that friendly correspondence was unbearable.

mingled with the quick little thrill that she felt at the thought. Her feelings were curiously unintelligible. Even now irrelevant thoughts of the Stranger, the man of the marigolds, tempered her excitement at the new phase which her correspondence with Bangs had taken. It was all so very puzzling! She hurried into the library, to think in the quiet of her surroundings.

The Stranger came again that afternoon. Miss Mary saw him coming up the granite steps, and for the first time she felt self-conscious about him. She busied herself at the catalogue files and did not look up when he entered. But he did not go into the reading-room as he usually did. He came over to her and offered his hand in a friendly greeting. Caught off her guard, she turned rosy with embarassment, having herself, meanwhile for were smiling, quizzical, as he held a letter out to her.

"A mutual friend gave me this introduction to you," he told her; "will you read it now and allow me to come back later?"

Miss Mary nodded, silently, and watched him go out. The letter was from Bangs!

"Dear Miss Marigold:" he began. "Allow me to introduce myself to you—and please forgive me! I kept my identity from you, not to deceive you, but to ascertain whether I could ever win you for a friend before I risked our correspondence by approaching you. When you write me of your Stranger I began to hope that I had succeeded. You have taught a genie a great many things, dear lady!

"You are like the bright old-time flower whose name I like to give you; be your friend, and I shall be content for now." The letter was signed with the familiar scrawled monogram.

Miss Mary went back to the desk, a whimsical smile crinkling about her lips. Everything was so simple now! The puzzles had solved themselves automatically. She laid the letter in the desk drawer, gently, beside a pressed marigold.

An inquisitive young miss was bothering her father as he was trying to read his paper one evening. Question followed question, until finally came this one, "What do you do all day at the office, papa?"

"Oh, nothing," absentmindedly.

This aroused more curiosity and then the inquiry, "Well, papa, how do you know when you're through there?"

SLUMP IN MARKET.

New York, May 22.—Persistent hammering by bear traders sent nearly four score stocks to new low records for the year in today's stock market before sufficient buying support was forthcoming to check the reactionary trend, which has continued with few interruptions since the first week in March. The sharp rally which followed the early decline with its enormous turnover was suggestive of the culmination of a long reaction such as has occurred on many previous occasions in market history.

When the market was at its low point of the day around noon the averages of the barometric railroad and industrial stocks were near the lows of last November, which witnessed the turning point of the previous major reaction. The recovery was aided by a material easing of the call money rate, which dropped to 4 per cent. after having renewed at 5 1-4, and the reported increase of 1 1-2 cents a gallon in the wholesale price of gasoline in the mid-continent field.

Much of the liquidation that came into the market this morning was forced, representing the closing of weakened marginal accounts and extensive selling pools no longer able to support their favorites, large blocks of U. S. Steel common had to be absorbed on the way down to 95, a new low, before bringing about a turn.

Some of the other popular shares which touched new bottom prices for the year were Bethlehem and Republic Steels, Kennecott and Utah Coppers, Standard Oil of New Jersey, the Pan American issues, Texas Company and Pacific, Cosden, and Sinclair Oils, U. S. Rubber, U. S. Alcohol. American Woolen, Studebaker and Chandler Motors, Public Service of New Jersey, Atchison, Northern Pacific, Reading, Lackawanna, Illinois Central, St. Paul, Pennsylvania, Rock Island and Erie railroads.

The afternoon rally started with California Petroleum and American Can and soon spread to the rest of the list. American Locomotive, Studebaker, Kelly-Springfield, Corn Products and American Smelting snapped back 1 to nearly 3 1-2 points above yesterday's final figures, New York Central led the recovery in rails, climbing from 92 to 94 1-4, where it was up 1 1-4 on the day, in a very short time. Canadian Pacific showed a net gain of 2 points on the day.

One of the many causes assigned for the recent decline was the huge sums of capital tied up in the enormous amount of new securities issued in the last year and in real estate mortgages on speculative building projects, thus reducing the liquid funds usually available for supporting purposes.

Time money continues on a 5 per cent. basis with plenty of funds available for all but the longer maturities. New commercial paper is being received in limited volume, the bulk of the prime names commanding 5 per cent.

The feature of the foreign exchange market was the new low record of .0041 7 1-4 cents established for German marks. Trading in the other foreign exchanges was quiet, demand sterling holding steady around $4.63 1-4 and French francs around 6.65 cents.

BOND MARKET.

New York, May 22.—Strength of U. S. government bonds, all of which registered moderate gains with the exception of the tax exempt 3 1-2's, featured today's trading in bonds on the New York Stock Exchange. The 3 1-2's sold off 4-32 of a point. Treasury 4 1-4 bonds touched par at one time but eased slightly and closed at 99.26, a gain of 8-32 of a point.

Foreign government bonds moved irregularly, some of the French issues displaying a reactionary trend. Railroad mortgages also were irregular. St. Paul convertible 4 1-2's advanced a point and Chesapeake & Ohio convertible 5's eased a point.

Price changes among the industrial liens were for the most part unimportant. Virginia Carolina Chemical 7 1-2's, with warrants, gained a point and Illinois Steel 4 1-2's dropped a point.

Total sales (par value) were $12,662,000.

Much of the recent firmness of the bond market is attributed by market bob q observers to the limited amount of new issues which have been offered. It is predicted in many quarters that public offerings will soon be increased greatly. An offering of $17,000,000 state of Illinois bonds, consisting o $10,000,000 4 1-2 per cent. bonus bonds will probably be offered Friday.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, May 22.—Materially higher prices for wheat resulted to a large extent today from unfavorable crop conditions in Kansas and Oklahoma. The market closed unsettled at 1 5-4 to 2 1-4c net gain with July 1.18 3-8 to 1.18 1-2 and September 1.16 1-2 to 1.16 5-8. Corn finished 3-8 to 3-4c higher; oats 1-4@3-8 to 5-8c up, and provisions unchanged to 17c higher.

Kansas reports said the weather was too cold for wheat growth and that the progress of the crop was unsatisfactory, with chinch bugs and Hessian fly doing damage in eastern Kansas. Meanwhile an estimate of the probable yield of wheat in Oklahoma was 6,000,000 bushels less than had been indicated by the government's May returns. Under such circumstances, the market showed an upward tendency from the start. Buying, however, lacked volume until commission house demand broadened and the highest prices of the day were reached just before the close.

An advance in curb prices for wheat at Liverpool counted to some extent as a bullish factor here, and in some quarters was associated with reported war moves by Turkey and Greece. The significance of the rise at Liverpool also was explained as probably due to gossip that after three days' holiday considerable activity in export business might be shown tomorrow. Advices that 95 per cent. of the Canadian spring wheat seeding had been completed were apparently without effect as a bearish influence.

Corn and oats derived much of their strength from the action of the wheat market. Besides the weather was unfavorable for corn, and there were predictions that the Chicago stock of corn would be exhausted by June 15.

In the provision market, packers' buying of lard counted as more than an offset for lower quotations on hogs.

United Effort

In sixty mills, more than 35,000 skilled workers are making a united effort to produce woolen and worsted fabrics of dependable value for the millions who need them.

And through that unity — the elimination of waste, the use of efficient machines and the co-operation which only fairly-treated employees can give — the American Woolen Company is annually producing millions of yards of fabric which enables the people to buy good clothing at fair prices.

STRINGLESS BEANS.

String beans, naturally divided into the two classes, green podded and wax podded, each have their devotees, although it must be said that of late the green podded sorts seem to have grown in popular favor, perhaps because the rust shows so plainly on the wax podded sorts, and often they present an unappetizing appearance when spotted with the rust, although the green podded sorts rust quite as readily. There are two types, the flat podded and the round podded. It is maintained by some gardeners that the more brittle, stringless and productive type is the round podded.

In the very small garden it is advisable to grow the pole varieties of string beans, for the space up in the air will yield more beans than the same space upon the ground, leaving the ground for other crops to be grown between the poles. Where poles are scarce, the simplest way to grow pole beans is to set posts at each end of the row where they are to grow, stretch a wire from the top of one post to the other and a similar wire about six inches from the ground, tying stout cords between the wires for the vines. The bottom wire may be omitted and a small stake may be placed by each plant to which to tie the string.

The poles should be set about two feet under ground and five feet above ground for convenience in picking. The plants should be six inches apart.

Soil for string beans should be very rich. One of the most effective ways to grow pole string beans is to pile well rotted manure about the stakes as they are being set in the ground, covering the manure with from four to six inches of soil. Plant the beans four to a hill about the pole or in a row with strings as indicated.

HOW TO TREAT POULTRY DISEASE OF QUEER NAME

The reports on hatches are running much the same as earlier in the season, mammoth incubators are above normal and lamp incubators are averages or a little below. Much of the difficulty with lamp incubators is due to low room temperature.

Chick mortality is a little higher than normal. The cold changeable weather has made heat regulation very difficult. If chicks have a bowel trouble due to heating or chilling, take away all feed and give bran and charcoal, with one teaspoonful of baking soda in each quart of drinking water. The second day, give bran, a little chick feed and clear water. The third, return to the normal rations. Charcoal should be put in the dry mash.

Coccidiosis was quite common last year and has already appeared in some flocks this spring. Be on the lookout for symptoms. Even before mortality starts the presence of the disease can be noted by the lack of appetite and loss of yellow color. With bad cases the droppings are apt to be bloody and the comb is shriveled up. A post-mortem shows the caeca distended with yellowish white, cheesy or bloody matter and usually white spots on the liver.

For treatment, remove all feed and give bran and charcoal for three days, with one teaspoonful of soda in each quart of drinking water the first day. If this does not physic the chicks, give one pound of Epsom salts to each 400 pounds of chicken in a wet mash the following day. Dissolve one ounce of copper sulphate or bluestone in each 10 gallons of drinking water. Continue feeding the copper sulphate for at least a month. Milk feeding may be continued during the treatment. Feed sparingly of grain the second day and return to normal mash and grain feeding on the fourth day.

While treating coccidiosis, use shavings or other material for litter that can be removed and burned each day. Watch your chicks and if you see any evidence of trouble start feeding copper sulphate as above. It may save you a coccidiosis epidemic.

Poultrymen who are interested in growing crops for poultry should consider green food first. Rye, oats and rape make good early green food; swiss chard, kale and cabbage are good for summer and fall and cabbage and mangels are good for winter.

Litter is perhaps second in importance with rye, oats, wheat and cornstalks being of value in the order named. The grain is really a by-product of the litter crop. Clover and alfalfa are always important crops, being used as range, cut green and cured as hay. A cropping system should be worked out so that the young stock can be grown on a clean clover sod each year.—Roy E. Jones, Poultry Specialist, Extension Service.

LIMA BEANS.

Lima beans, whether the pole or bush varieties are planted, should be put in the open ground, only when it is well warmed up. The season for planting them is now here. In laying out the location, allow for plenty of space. Some gardeners have difficulty with the dwarf limas and have given them up as not worth while because they tried to grow them closely planted in rows just as they did string beans. This is all wrong, and little can be expected of the limas in the way of yield with this close planting. They need at least eight inches between hills and a foot or more is better for the largest development of individual plants. Space in the home gardens seldom permits this, however. With good soil and ample cultivation, they will yield a surprising number of beans as compared with the closely planted patches.

The greater space gives them not only sufficient plant food without too much competition, but permits the plant to develop to its full extent and provide a great number of bearing branches. If you have been discouraged with bush limas, try them again in the warmest spot in the garden—with plenty of room.

Pole limas may be planted in a row six or eight inches apart and trained on a fence or trellis, or two or three beans planted two or three feet apart and trained on poles.

POISON BAIT EFFECTIVE IN KILLING CUTWORMS

Poisoned bait is effective in protecting early garden plants from cutworms. This is made by mixing one teaspoonful of paris green with a quart of dry bran and moistening this with sweetened water until it assumes a crumbling consistency. It is put on broadcast in the late afternoon, about as one would spread fertilizer.

Cabbage maggot may be prevented by use of tar paper discs or by placing about a tablespoonful of a mixture of fine tobacco dust and lime, half and half, about the stem of each plant. In any case, give the plant protection from the day it is set out.

SPRAY FRUIT TREES WHEN FLOWERS FALL

Fruit trees in general should receive a spraying as soon as the flowers fall. They must not be sprayed before or there is danger of injuring the blossoms and killing the honey bees on which the fertilization of the blossoms is largely dependent.

One county agent makes the statement that spraying of fruit trees, as now practiced, is a science and art developed through years of experimenting. The mixtures used are complex and the materials are most carefully prepared so as to protect the tree against its natural parasites and at the same time not to injure the bud, fruit or leaf.

Most fruit trees are now in full bloom, but within a few days, probably by the end of the week, flowers will have fallen and spraying will be in order. By many this petal fall spray is considered the most important of the season.

For apple, pear, quince and European varieties of plum trees, the spraying mixture is made up as follows:

In a 50-gallon spray tank is placed one gallon of concentrated liquid lime-sulphur, or in its place, three or four pounds of the commercial dry lime-sulphur. The barrel is then filled with water and to this is added from four to six ounces of nicotine sulphate. The Casein powder and dry lead arsenate are better mixed to a thin paste before they are in the barrel.

Peaches, Japanese plums and grapes cannot be sprayed successfully with the above mixture. For peaches and Japanese plums, the first spray may well contain only 1 1-2 pounds of dry lead arsenate and three or four of lime to each 50 gallons of spray. For grapes the standard spray is Bordeaux mixture plus lead arsenate. In the case of grapes it is often desirable to double the amount of lead arsenate, that is to make it three pounds to each 50 gallons in order to take care of the rose-bugs when they are abundant. The early sprayings of grapes are given just before the individual blossoms open and again soon after the fruit has set. Home gardeners may find it more convenient to buy the prepared Bordeaux-lead arsenate mixture for grapes.

NEW PRINCIPLES IN NUTRITION DISCOVERED

Experiments in nutrition during the last few years have resulted in the discovery of new principles in nutrition, many of which are important in the proper feeding of dairy cattle, says the United States department of agriculture. It has been found that an adequate diet must contain certain mineral ingredients, and also certain organic compounds whose exact chemical nature is still unknown but which have been called vitamins. It is quite possible to make up a diet from ordinary feedstuffs which will contain sufficient protein and energy and yet be deficient in either minerals or vitamins or both.

There is every reason for believing that the whole subject of feeding for the maintenance of high milk yields can be very much simplified as compared with the systems of feeding now practiced, and also great economies introduced into feeding practices, by a systematic study of the vitamin and mineral contents of dairy feeds and of the relation of these to milk production.

It seems probable also that the mineral and vitamin contents of dairy feeds may be found to have an important bearing on the breeding vigor, or reproductive ability, of dairy cattle. These studies are under way and results of considerable practical importance have been obtained, some of which show that high-producing dairy cows suffer from a shortage of lime unless they are fed much larger amounts of legume hay than is customary in many parts of the country, and that there is a vitamin in fresh, green feed which will probably promote the assimilation of lime by milking animals.

HOUSE VOTES $100,000 FOR DANBURY NORMAL DORMITORY

(Special to The Bulletin)

Hartford, May 23.—What was expected to be the last week of the assembly opened this morning at 10.45 with Speaker Nickerson in the chair. The "shade tree" bill which had been indefinitely postponed by the house came back from the senate, amended so that the planting of shade trees along newly constructed roads is left to the discretion of the highway commissioner.

The Danbury normal school bill that had been rejected by the house and then tabled was called from the table by House Leader Buckley and reconsideration was voted and Mr. Buckley moved that the adverse report of the committee be accepted and the bill rejected. The motion was lost and an amendment was offered by Mr. Andrews of Danbury reducing the appropriation from $225,000 to $100,000.

He said that he had investigated the conditions existing at Danbury and he was of the opinion that this sum would provide, if built on the unit system, it would provide for present needs and the next assembly could add to it. The amendment was voted. His motion that the bill as amended be passed was opposed by House Chairman Keith of Putnam. He was against any appropriation for this purpose at this time. The high cost of construction at this time is almost prohibitive and the amount asked for would provide very little relief.

Mr. Dawley said that Danbury was not asking for any elaborate buildings. It was time that the sum would not provide extensive buildings, but it would be a start. It would accommodate fifty or sixty students. Doctor Allyn, member from Waterford, was against the passage of the bill. Holbrook of Thomaston, chairman of the committee on education, urged the passage of the bill. This was not a local matter but concerned the people from all parts of the state. Shephard of Portland said the appropriations committee had in making their report, relied on the judgment of the state board of finance who had not favored the project.

The previous question was called for by Mr. Buckley. The bill as amended was then voted upon and was carried by a rising vote of 120 nays to 67 nays. The bill was then under suspension of rules transmitted to the senate.

Miss Green Presides

During action on calendar motions, Miss Green, of Tolland, was called to preside. An act providing for a commission and making an appropriation of $75,000 for an armory at Manchester was passed. The bill amending an act concerning private banks was passed as was an act concerning corrections statements to be made to the tax commissioner.

Bills concerning elections in New Haven was tabled and an act concerning oleomargarine and imitation butter was recommitted to the agriculture committee.

Restriction of forfeited rights to William E. Baxter at present secretary of the Prison Association, was denied. The petition of John R. Carroll for restoration of rights, who was originally convicted of white slavery and has been out of prison for ten years came before the house with two reports. The minority report was presented at the request of one member of the committee but as he had not signed the report, the speaker ruled that the report was not properly before the house and the question was upon the unfavorable report. Mr. Hall spoke in favor of the petitioned who since his release has made good and today is a worthy citizen. He is now a resident of Houston, Texas. By a rising two-thirds vote the petition was granted.

Under suspension of the rules resolutions were passed to pay $763.13 to Nellie Cooney, Margaret E. Shahan and Lillian Hancock to reimburse them for taxes paid on the property located on Capitol avenue and recently purchased by the state, and taken over before the titles were settled by the courts.

Recess Till 3 O'Clock

On motion of Mr. Darbie a recess was taken for five minutes upon reassembling a further recess was taken till 3 o'clock.

The arbutus bill which has been before the senate for some weeks was again before the senate and house today, and was received by the house at the afternoon session in the form of a substitute bill. The bill prescribes that anyone who shall sell or purchase for the purpose of resale or expose for sale in any commercial establishment any trailing arbutus taken from land not owned or occupied by him shall be fined not more than $20.

The bill was submitted by the committee on conference on disagreeing action. The bill was passed in concurrence with the senate.

The bill directing the state's attorney of New Haven county to prosecute the principals in the alleged fraudulent enumeration of school children in Waterbury come from the senate with an amendment. The senate amendment strikes all after the enacting clause and directs that all the evidence be presented to the attorney general.

The school bill was taken from the table where it had been placed and the house voted to adhere to its former action in passing the bill. Representative Stingress of Woodbury, Alling of New Britain were appointed on the part of the house.

The house bill that provided for a commission to represent Connecticut at Philadelphia at the Sesqui centennial celebration came from the senate so that the power to appoint the commission is taken from the governor. The commissioners are named as follows: George J. Bossett of New Haven, Mathewson W. Potter of Saybrook and George S. Palmer of New London.

At 3.20 on motion of House Leader Buckley adjournment was taken till 10.15 Wednesday.

Heirs

The object of the recess till this afternoon was for the purpose of gaining a legislative day on the calendar. All business acted upon this morning was transmitted to the secretary's office and what was done after the recess is counted as another day.

When the assembly adjourned last week it was the expectation of the member that the business would be in such a condition that it could be finished this week and a recess taken till June 5th.

The plans seem to have fallen away and the prospects now are that sessions to be held up to the statutory limit, i. e. June 6th. A four day's session is predicted for next week with adjournment on Tuesday over Decoration day, till Thursday.

The purpose is stated to be enable the governor to examine and approve or disapprove bill.

Ex-Congressman La Guardia of New York was a visitor in the house today during the recess and was introduced to Speaker Nickerson by Secretary of State Francis A. Pallotti. Mr. La Guardia is an old time friend of the secretary.

A communication was received from the governor transmitting a letter from the state secretary of Wisconsin, asking action on a resolution to be presented to congress, asking for such legislation as will allow the formation of co-operative agricultural societies, which now enjoined by the courts. It was referred to the committee on federal relations.

MUSIC AND FIREWORKS IN ITALIAN CELEBRATION.

Franklin street park was in gala attire Tuesday evening for the celebration in honor of Virgin Mary of Sovereto held by Italian residents of the city. The park was decorated beautifully in flags and bunting of the Italian colors, and in the center of the green stood the bandstand, also gaily decorated.

As darkness fell upon the city the lights in the park shed their soft glow across the street the hundreds of Japanese lanterns added to the attractiveness of the scene which was purely typical of Italy in holiday dress.

By the time the Italian Columbus band directed by Prof. Pasquale Puca appeared the streets were lined with automobiles and the park with hundreds of people assembled to listen to the band concert. Toy balloons, flying birds and other novelties were for sale and the usual spirit of fun prevailed and balloons were often times loosened and allowed to sail away.

The concert rendered was composed of both classical and popular numbers and held the attention of the large audience until nearly ten o'clock. The concert program was as follows.

March, Symphonique "Idilio" P. Puca
Overture "La Muette de Portici" D. F. E. Auber
Fantasia "Africaine" G. Meyerber
Waltz "Les Patineurs" E. Waldeufel
Grand Selection "Carmen" G. Bizet
Fox Trot "I'm Building Castles in the Air" P. Wenrich
Polka "Clarinet Piccolo Solo" U. Cappett
Characteristic Fantasia "Midnight" O. Carlini
The Star Spangled Banner

Soon after the closing number of the concert program there was a crash followed by a brilliant display of colors and in succession came the many beautiful night firework displays purchased by contributions from the Italian residents of the city. The fireworks were visible from all parts of the city and hundreds viewed them from their homes, the hill of Talman street being used for the display. The displays included set pieces, bombs with double, triple and even more breaks and were equal in beauty to any ever shown in the city.

The committee of arrangements for the celebration was as follows: Francisco Tempesta, Ralph Caldarola, Francisco DiPinto, Michael Barbarossa, Francisco Malarba, and Francisco Cearasola.

WINDHAM COUNTY HOME POSTPONED FOR YEAR

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Hartford, May 23.—A meeting of the Windham county senators and representatives was held at the close of the session of the assembly, at the request of the county commissioners at which they reported that they found that it was impossible to erect the proposed county home buildings with the amount that had been appropriated. They recommended that action be deferred for a year when a meeting could be held for further consideration. The meeting adopted the recommendation and so voted.

SIX SCOUT TROOPS TO RECEIVE STREAMERS

Six Norwich Boy Scout troops of Norwich are to receive the streamers offered by President Harding to Scout troops that have increased their numbers 25 per cent. during the past year.

The awards will be made by Mayor Milo R. Waters and scout council members.

A large streamer will be awarded to the Norwich council whose membership has increased over 50 per cent. Troops having formed other troops or aiding in their formation are likewise entitled to a streamer. The following troops are entitled to these awards:

Troop No. 1, United Congregational church, Troop No. 3, Taftville Congregational church, Troop No. 4, Sacred Heart church, Taftville, Troop No. 6, Trinity Methodist church, Norwich, Troop No. 12, Park Congregational church, Troop No. 1, Plainfield Congregational church.

If the streamers arrive in time, it has been planned to award the streamers at 9.30 a. m. on Memorial Day on the steps of the city hall. These troops are expected therefore to be on hand promptly at that hour with their troop flag in order to have the streamer attached thereto. They will then march to Shetucket street and form for the Memorial Day parade at 10 o'clock sharp.

ASHFORD WILL CELEBRATE ON MEMORIAL DAY

Memorial day will be celebrated by the people of Ashford in the usual manner, under town auspices. The graves will be decorated in the morning by delegated veterans and school children. The community gathering will be at Ashford town district this year. The exercises will begin at 11 o'clock standard time, and at the noon hour a luncheon will be served by the "town fathers," according to custom. The afternoon programme will include a concert by the Babcock Cornet band, singing and recitations by the school children, and the patriotic address in honor of veterans of American wars will be given by the Rev. William Dunn, of Warrenville, pastor of the Catholic parish.

Runaway Auto Does No Damage.

The brakes on a Ford car that had been parked Tuesday morning in front of the Porteous & Mitchell Co.'s store on Main street, suddenly worked loose and the car started to roll down grade. It kept to the street until it reached a point opposite the Manhattan and then veered towards the sidewalk, mounted the curb and headed straight for a large plate glass window. Evidently it changed its mind about doing damage for it suddenly turned and the mudguards just scrapped the window, the car going back onto the street where it came to a stop. The owner came along later and took his wandering Ford home.

Booklets For Camp Tippecan.

Camp Tippecan booklets and applications will be distributed to Scouts Wednesday night this week at inspection. Scouts are expected to register now.

IRVING WILLIS INJURED WHEN TROLLEY HIT AUTO

Irving J. Willis of Grant court is a patient at the Backus hospital suffering a bad scalp wound and possible fracture of the skull as a result of his Paige closed car being struck by a west bound trolley on the West Side line Tuesday afternoon about 1.10 o'clock.

Mr. Willis was driving his car down Asylum street and turned to go east on West Main street when the one-man trolley car operated by Motorman Stanley Bush, headed west, arrived at the corner. There was no time for either party to stop and the trolley struck the Paige car back of the left front wheel, throwing the car to one side, carrying it for about 10 feet. The force of the blow broke the left front door of the sedan, and smashed the window near which Mr. Willis sat, the flying glass inflicted a deep wound over the left temple. He was carried to the store of Robert W. Otis nearby and Dr. J. W. Calhahan was called and rendered first aid, removing a piece of glass from the wound. He then had Mr. Willis conveyed to the hospital where after an examination it is believed the skull has been cracked somewhat.

It is alleged that witnesses and passengers on the trolley car said the trolley and the Paige car were running at a moderate speed and the accident was unavoidable. The trolley was somewhat damaged and was taken to the Greeneville barn for repairs. The Paige car suffered a broken left front wheel, front left fender, bent frame, crushed side dash board and rear fender, and the body and doors on the left side were dented and broken in.

TEN SCOUT TROOPS IN ANNUAL INSPECTION

Ten Norwich Boy Scout troops will compete in the annual inspection at the state armory this (Wednesday) evening for the Ferguson challenge cup.

At 7.15 the inspection officers and Scouts will be photographed by the official photographer in front of the armory, after which each troop will be inspected separately inside the armory, so that absolute fairness will be observed.

Among the inspecting officers will be: Major Charles A. Hagberg, Captain William R. Dennison, Deputy Scout Commissioner Robert Otis, Scout Executive F. A. Benton and the officials of the troops.

Scout headquarters has been a very busy place this week, registering new Scouts, furnishing insignia, neckerchiefs, and uniforms.

This inspection has now become an annual event. John A. Ferguson offered last year a beautiful trophy cup to the Scout troop ranking first in attendance, uniform, insignia, cleanliness, and deportment. This cup is to be awarded to the troop for one year and to be held by that troop until won by another. The cup will become the permanent property of the Scout troop winning it three times in succession. This year there is marked interest and sharp competition manifested by the scoutmasters and Scouts as to who will be the lucky troop.

All friends of scouting are cordially invited to witness the inspection, and to show their interest in Norwich's fine group of Boy Scouts. Following the inspection, Scouts will march to Franklin square and city hall, and be dismissed.

DIVORCE CASES OPENS MAY COURT SESSION

Judge George E. Hinman of Willimantic opened the May session of the superior court here Tuesday morning at 9 a. m., standard time, having divorce cases to come before him after the first case on the trial list had gone off the list.

On a cross complaint Mrs. Elizabeth McFall of Glasgo was granted a divorce from James McFall of Preston. They were married Nov. 30, 1911 and he deserted her in April, 1917. The petitioner's testimony on the desertion was supported by Mrs. Arcine Dayon and Mrs. Margaret Cole. Mrs. McFall was given the custody of a six years old daughter and alimony of $15 per month for the support of the child.

The case of Joseph Paradis of Taftville against Mary Paquette Paradis for divorce for intolerable cruelty was presented by Attorney Hibberd R. Norman for the petitioner Attorney Lee Roy Robbins appeared for the defendant.

Mr. Paradis testified that they were married Oct. 4, 1921 and that on Sept. 13, 1922, his wife wanted more money and threatened to kill him. On the night before Thanksgiving she hit him in the face and she threatened to shoot him and put something in what he ate. He had not lived with her since then. The court had put him under an order to pay $14 per week for her support.

Matthew Paradis, nephew of the petitioner, testified that he saw Mrs. Paradis hitting her husband on Thanksgiving day. Since then the petitioner has lived at his parents' home.

Dora Lemoine told of seeing Mrs. Paradis with a stone in her hand "shacking" Mr. Paradis around the house. The witness said she heard Mrs. Paradis say: "Joe Paradis, you die by this stone. You die by my hand." Louis Lemoine added testimony of quarrels he had seen between the couple.

Judge Hinman granted the divorce for intolerable cruelty.

The first case on the trial list Tuesday was that of Joseph J. Fields of this city against Laura A. Williams, executrix of the estate of their father, an appeal from probate of the will of Manuel Fields, who was formerly janitor of the court house. Mrs. Williams was the largest beneficiary under the will and the appeal was brought on grounds of undue influence and mental incapacity. Attorney J. J. Desmond for the appellant and Attorneys Brown and James for the appellees conferred before the case was called to trial and announced to the court that a settlement would be made out of court. The case went off the list.

INTERNATIONAL LOAN FOR AUSTRIAN RECONSTRUCTION

Banking House of J. P. Morgan & Co. is Prepared to Underwrite $25,000,000 of a Proposed International Loan of $130,000,000—The Total Issue of the Loan to be Divided Among All the Leading Countries—First International Step Toward the Rehabilitation of Central Europe.

New York, May 23—J. P. Morgan today announced that he had advised the loan commission of Austria that his banking house was prepared to organize a syndicate to underwrite $25,000,000 of the $130,000,000 Austrian reconstruction loan.

Mr. Morgan said in a prepared statement that he informed the Austrian commission that his firm was ready to act when the time was ripe for making the issue to be divided among the leading countries of the world.

Mr. Morgan declared his firm stood ready to undertake the work because it believed the bond to be well secured and because it marked a step toward improving business conditions of the world.

"It is the first step," the statement said, "toward the rehabilitation of central Europe taken by all the nations working together, and we believe that the American market should take its part when such a concerted effort is being made to better general business conditions of the world.

"We have been asked by Dr. Zimmerman of Holland, the commissioner general of Austria, and by the loan commission of Austria, if we would be prepared to undertake the placing of $26,000,000 of bonds of the Austrian government, in this country.

After careful investigation of the present condition of Austria, particularly the great improvement made during the past five months, and after consultation with leading bankers in the large centers of the United States, we have advised the loan commission that when their plan for selling this issue of bonds in the various markets of Europe is ready, we would undertake to organize a syndicate to underwrite $25,000,000 of the total issue of $130,000,000 which is to be divided up among all the possible leading countries.

"There for the moment the matter rests, and we are awating advices from Europe that final arrangements are completed with the bankers of England, France, Holland, Denmark, Sweden, Norway, Switzerland, Spain, Belgium, Italy and Czecho-Slovakia.

It is expected that the details in these different countries will be completed n time for simultaneous sale in all of them about the frst week in June, and in that issue we are ready to take the part indicated above."

This will be the first European loan floated here this year although an unsuccessful effort was made a few months ago to raise part of a German internal loan. Subscriptions for the loan were received by a New York stock exchange house but when opposition developed in France and other quarters to the German financing, the local undertakng was abandoned and the subscriptions returned. In March local bankers made a public offering of a $19,900,000 issue of external 30 year 6 per cent. debenture bonds of the Oriental Development company, which were guaranteed by the Japanese government, and represented the first venture of Japan to borrow money in this country on the basis of a dollar obligation.

The only other foreign loan in prospect is one of Canada, which is expected to engage in a refunding operation in the near future. American investment in that country is estimated at $2,500,000,000, equal to that of the British. Several South American countries have been seeking funds in this market in recent months and tentative negotiations have been conducted by local bankers with one or two of them, but there is little likelihood of any financing in that quarter for some time to come.

The Austrian loan will be participated in by virtually all the large banking houses of this city, as well as other large centers including some of the Pacific coast.

PROMPT DIAGNOSIS, EXPERT TREATMENT FOR CANCER

New York, May 23.—Cancer claimed 90,000 victims in the United States last year, and 180,000 more will die within the next two years, all of whom might have been saved, or at least had the course of their disease mitigated by prompt diagnosis and expert treatment, according to Dr. Francis Carter Wood of the Crocker cancer research laboratory, who today addressed the State Medical society.

Relief from cancer, he said, must come first from awakening of the public to the dangers of the disease by means of the publicity work of the American Society for the Control of Cancer.

Then, Dr. Wood said, family physicians must make early diagnosis and submit their cases immediately to competent surgeons who, in their turn, must do all in their power by operating.

The last step, he continued, is transfer of the patient to the specialist in X-ray and radium treatment. In radiotherapy, he said, the X-ray is the cheaper treatment, although both that method and the radium treatment have special merits in varying cases.

Dr. Wood pointed out that dieting cannot influence the course of cancer and that only operating or radiotherapy can influence the course of the disease.

PERFECTING PERSONNEL OF NEW BRITISH MINISTRY

London, May 23 (By the A. P.).—Premier Baldwin has been busy throughout the day consulting with his colleagues and the political leaders, but it is not expected that he will be in a position to submit a list of the new ministry to the king before tomorrow. Four appointments tonight are certain—Marquis Curzon as foreign secretary; the Earl of Derby, war; Colonel Sir Samuel J. Hoare, secretary of state for air, and Lieutenant Colonel Leslie Orme Wilson, chief whip.

Apparently Mr. Baldwin took the opportunity of his accession to the premiership to attempt to effect a reconciliation of the differing sections of his party, and as a first step invited Sir Robert Stevenson Horne to become chancellor of the exchequer. It was supposed yesterday that Sir Robert had accepted, but in a speech at Glasgow tonight he said: "For a time at least I have turned my back on any prospect of any office in any ministry."

Mr. Baldwin has a difficult task in finding a new chancellor, since it is not likely he would care to assume the heavy task of double role of premier and leader in the house of commons combined with the chancellorship.

Austen Chamberlain returned to London tonight and Sir Robert Horne will arrive tomorrow. They will enter into consultation and if reconciliation proves possible it may be that Mr. Chamberlain will become the new chancellor.

Krupp Works Needs Wiedfeldt.

Essen, May 23.—Officials of the Krupp works today confirmed the reports that they had requested the Berlin government to recall Dr. Otto Wiedfeldt, German ambassador to the United States and one of the directors of the Krupp concern, as he is badly needed at the plant in consequence of the imprisonment of Dr. Krupp Von Bohlen and the other heads of the concern by the French courtmartial.

M'ADOO AGREES TO GIVE DEPOSITION IN MORSE CASE

Washington, May 23.—William G. McAdoo, who has been listed as a defense witness in the Morse trial, has agreed to give his deposition in the case here within the next few days. After arranging today with Justice Stafford to have the deposition taken, counsel for the defense said it did not necessarily follow that Mr. McAdoo would not be called to testify in person.

The former secretary of the treasury is now in Washington and attorneys for the defense said it has been decided to take a deposition as a precautionary measure. The evidence given will be held secret until the deposition is offered in evidence, or Mr. McAdoo is called in person to testify after the defense begins the presentation of its case to the jury. That time probably is at least six weeks distant.

Mr. McAdoo, after resigning from the cabinet, became counsel for the Virginia Shipbuilding Corporation, a Morse concern, and in that capacity he made representations to the shipping board in behalf of his client. The government has charged that these representations were in fact erroneous, but there was no information that Mr. McAdoo had any reason to believe that the facts were other than as represented by his client.

At the trial today Attorney Nash Rockwood, of defense counsel, undertook to break down the testimony yesterday of Norman C. Finninger, an expert accountant, that more than $30,000 of the first payment of $360,000 by the Emergency Fleet CoCporation to the Groton Iron Works on account of contract for wooden hulls for the government was spent on "private work" at the Noank and Groton plants. The cross-examination lasted all day and will be continued tomorrow at the one session to be held by the court in the afternoon.

Finninger testified that the statement of the expenditure of the $360,000, which he had prepared, represented his own analysis of the expenditures based on the Groton books and other supporting papers, including vouchers, orders and bills. He conceded that he was without personal knowledge as to whether some of the materials purchased and charged by him to "private work" went into shipbuilding for private account or for the government.

Stating that he knew the Groton company had cancelled the contracts for two schooners on private account, the witness denied emphatically that all of the materials purchased for those schooners had gone into the hulls constructed for the government. He also insisted that improvements made to the plant after the government contract was obtained were chargeable to "capital account" and not against the government ships.

At the conclusion of the day's testimony, Attorney Rockwood moved to expunge Finninger's prepared statement of expenditures from the record on the ground that it was merely a re-writing of the Groton books according to the witness' own theory as to how they should have been kept, but Justice Stafford over-ruled the motion.

CHILDREN RELIEVING SHORTAGE OF LABOR

Hartford, May 23.—Attributed to the shortage of labor in Connecticut resulting from the restriction of immigration, 2,628 children were legally taken out of school to enter employment during the past eight months in excess of those thus transferred in all the last fiscal year, it was revealed today by figures obtained from the state board of education.

Employment certificates have been issued to 7,290 pupils between 14 and 16 years old since last August, as against 4,662 in the whole 1921-22 fiscal year and 5,952 in the previous fiscal year. Applications for such certificates were received by the state board of education on behalf of 13,949 pupils, in the past eight months, 6,659 being refused.

The number of pupils granted certificates to work in that period is the greatest since the war.

PRESBYTERY IS OPPOSED TO LIBERALISM OF DR. FOSDICK

Indianapolis, Ind., May 23 (By the A. P.).—Fundamentalists opposed to liberalism of Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick tonight forced through the Presbyterian general assembly a resolution directing the New York Presbytery to require the preaching in the First church of New York city to conform to the Presbyterian doctrine.

Led by William Jennings Bryan and two Philadelphia ministers—Rev. A. Gordon MacLennan and Rev. Clarence E. Macartney—the conservatives won a five hour fight by a vote of 439 to 859, a majority of 80, to substitute their resolution for a liberal report from the committee on bills and overtures.

CONFESSED SLAYING EIGHT REVENUE OFFICERS IN 1908

Los Angeles, Calif., May 23—A man who gave his name as Joe Buckley Lourie, 28, formerly of Kirby Knobbs, Kentucky, today confessed, according to the police, that he killed eight revenue officers in a clash in the mountains of Kentucky in April 1908.

His story is being checked by Department of Justice agents.

Lourie told police detectives, they said, that he was 13 years old at the time and that after the slayings he and his brother Charles, who had taken part in the affray, wandered from place to place, fearing arrest. They kept together until two years ago, he said, after spending several years at sea.

Berlin is Losing Control of Strikers

Dortmund, May 23—(By the A. P.)—Five persons were killed, including one woman and one child, and from sixty to eighty persons were wounded last night in conflicts between striking shopmen and the police, according to the casualty lists issued by both the workers and the police.

The Dortmund police and citizentry tonght were forming a self-protection force against the riotous elements. This force is being armed with clubs, as firearms are forbidden by the French. The German police say the strikers are organized into units, each of one-hundred men, and are well supplied with automatic pistols.

Many thousands of strikers attended mass meetings today in Dortmund, Bochum, and other towns in the mining district and passed resolutions to use every effort to extend the strike throughout the Ruhr and the Rhineland. It is estimated that 60,000 men have quit work in the Dortmund district. Most of these are coal miners who went on strike last week but have been joined in the last few days by workmen from two big iron and steel plants. The strikers are demanding a fifty per cent. increase in wages because of the high cost of living and the depreciation in the value of the mark.

Speakers at the meeting today said the men were on a "hunger strike". They cited prices to show that the cost of living had doubled in the last few days.

Direct action against the rising cost inliving was taken today in two towns, Steele and Kay, where so-called German commissions of control made the rounds of stores and markets and compelled dealers to reduce their prices by half or more. Sometimes they stationed members of the commissions in stores to supervise sales and handle the cash. Many women accompanied the commissions on their rounds and took advantage of the new bargain prices the commissions enforced.

German officials describe the strikers as communists, but the communist leaders say the workers include men of all parties. The Berlin government is declared to be greatly concerned over the strike and to have sent observers here to make a report on the movement. A number of the newspapers blame the agitation on "foreigners" One of them charges that the French have encouraged the strike. The Dortmund railroad men in a statement describe the strike as "more political than economic."

SIGNS BILL FOR ROAD FROM NORWICH TOWN

Hartford, May 23.—Among the more than 75 bills signed by the governor today was the one introduced by Senator Gibbs including a trunk line system of highways that portion of the old New ondon turnpike leading from Norwich Town Green to Trading Cove, the bill amending the admission tax law, a bill creating a standard for milk being sold, bills forbidding soliciting to institute action for damages, bill requiring the teaching of citizenship in public schools, directing the comptroller to pay $100 for funeral expenses of any deceased soldier, sailor or marine, forbidding use of birds or animals in soliciting alms, regulating the sale of bread and bakery products; also the bill making maintenance appropriations to the Norwich state hospital.

A hearing was given to a large number of residents this morning on the bill that had become known as the West Hartford bill. It provides that at all elections the voting must be either by the Australian ballot or by a voting machine. This eliminates the so-called "fire preferential ballot" which has been used in West Hartford since their adoption of the commission form of government. It is also known as the Buckley Ballot bill as it was introduced by him. Speaking upon its adoption in the house it will be remembered that Mr. Buckley said it was folly to legalize a form of voting that will require a voter moving from one town to another to undertake a kindergarten course of study befor ehe would know how to vote. It has been repeatedly stated that the governor would veto this bill, but soon after the close of the hearing he affixed his signature and the bill is now a law.

RUSSIA MAKES IMPORTANT CONCESSIONS TO BRITAIN

London, May 23.—(By The A. P.)—Russia, in a note signed by Leonid Krassin, the soviet representative here, and personally handed by him to Lord Curzon at the foreign office this afternoon, makes important concessions to the demands made in the British ultimatum to the soviet government recently. The note explains these concessions are made because the soviet goverrnment does not desire to give ground for placing even the smallest degree of responsibility for the results of a possible breach between Russia and England upon the soviet government, even indirectly.

The note offers on behalf of Russia the conclusion of a convention giving Great Britain fishing rights outside the three-mile limit off the Russian coasts, but still insists that an international conference is necessary to settle the territorial limit question.

In political quarters the note was regarded as displaying the moderating conciliatory hand of Krassin, who had a half-hour talk with Lord Curzon in delivering the note.

TWO DISASTROUS FIRES IN MONTREAL

Montreal, May 23—Two disastrous fires swept different sections of Montreal today.

In the city's east end tonight, one man was believed to have lost his life, six others, two of them firemen injured, and many families were made homeless when flames destroyed fifteen dwellings and a new saw mill with estimated damage of $200,000.

Earlier flames started by an explosion of undetermined origin, destroyed the shops of the Montreal Harbor commission on Mackay pier with damage estimated at $175,000.

Nitrogen is tasteless, yet there would be no flavor in foods without it.

"God of Vengeance" Pronounced Indecent

Producer and Twelve Members of the Cast Convicted by a Jury in New York.

New York, May 23.—Thirteen persons, including the cast and Harry Weinberger, producer of the play "God of Vengeance," were convicted by a general sessions jury today of producing an indecent show. The jury deliberated less than two hours.

Rudolph Schildkraut, noted Viennese actor, who played the leading role, Miss Virginia McFadden and James Meighan, three members of the cast of twelve, all of whom were convicted, were not present when the verdict was announced. Schildkraut, it was said, has been ill for several days.

The entire cast, with Weinberger, was indicted several months ago under a section of the state penal laws charging them with producing an indecent show. During the trial, which began a week ago, the script of the play was read, several scenes being emphasized as immoral and the basis for the indictment.

Weinberger, who conducted the defense, cited plays from Shakespeare and others in his contention that the performance was not indecent or salacious and that it taught a moral lesson.

Judge John F. McIntyre, who tried the case, stated he would not be severe in imposing sentence. The maximum penalty, it was said, is three years in prison or a fine of $500.

"Even though a moral lesson was sought to be taught," Judge McIntyre said in charging the jury, "this cannot be done by lines, or words, or actions that might amount to immorality or obscenity. The fact that Shakespeare saw fit to write in a manner that might be characterized as salacious is no defense in this case."

The conviction, it was said, was the first of its kind in thirty years, the last being for presentation of the play "Orange Blossoms."

The defendants were released in $300 bail each for sentence on June 22.

WAS MRS. BOURNE A VICTIM OF RELIGIOUS MANIA

New York, May 23.—Mrs. Jonathan Bourne of Nw Bedford, Mass., mother of Miss Emily Bourne, whose will is under contest here, was a victim of religious mania, and for years lived behind barred doors and spoke to no one, according to testimony given before a jury today.

This testimony was brought out by attorneys for Mrs. Helen A. P. Merriman, of Providence, R. I., a niece of Miss Bourne, who was left only $10,000, while another niece, Mrs. Emily Bourne Michler of Greenwich, Conn., receives $25,000 and the residue of the estate. Mrs. Merriman endeavored to show that Miss Bourne, who died at the age of 85, was mentally deficient, and had been unduly influenced by Mrs. Michler.

Miss Mary F. Keonana, a nurse, testified that she heard Mrs. Michler offer to give one of her eyes to replace one of her aged aunt's, which was affected by cataracts.

15 PERSONS HURT IN B. & M. DERAILMENT

Winchester, Mass., May 23. — The New Hampshire Express, a morning train with commuters from Concord, N. H., and intermediate points bound for Boston, was partly derailed near the Winchester Highlands station of the BoBston and Maine railroad today by the breaking of a brake rigging in the tender. Fifteen persons were hurt in the spill of cars that followed the splitting of a switch thrown by the broken rod, but none was injured seriously. The fact that all but one of the cars were of steel was said by railroad officials to have been responsible for saving life.

Fractured ribs, cuts and bruises constituted the most serious of the hurts sustained by passengers. Only three required hospital treatment.

CHARGED WITH ROBBING A POST OFFICE OF $25,000

Philadelphia, May 23.—Charged with robbing the post office at Oxford, N. C., of $25,000, in 1920, John O'Brien, said to be known to police throughout the country as "Hostile John," was arrested here today by federal authorities. He was taken into custody when he applied for treatment in a hospital, where it was said he was suffering from cancer. He is 64 years old.

Federal authorities have been looking for O'Brien since 1920. The pursuit, they declared, led them to Paris, Rio Janeiro, New Orleans and Tia Juana, Mexico, and then to this city.

P.)—Charges that supporters of a campaign for Henry Ford for president of the United States were seeking to control the convention of the motion picture theatres owners of America were informally discussed today by the delgeates as the nominations for officers of the organization got under way. PLIGHT OF THE CAPTIVES OF CHINESE BANDITS "WORSE"

Italian Chamber of Commerce of Shanghai Has Cabled Italian Foreign Minister at Rome That Foreign Prisoners Are in Jeopardy—Foreign Diplomatic Corps in Shanghai Believe the Kidnapping Was Instigated by Certain Highly Placed Chinese Officials as a Move in Their Political Schemes.

Shanghai, May 23 (By the A. P.)—The situation with regard to the foreign prisoners held by the Suchow bandits is "growing worse" according to a cablegram sent today by the Italian Chamber of Commerce of Shanghai to the Italian foreign minister at Rome.

INTERNATIONAL COMMISSION TO PROBE BANDIT SITUATION

Washington, May 23.—Meager official advices from China today contained no information, except that the Peking diplomatic corps, at the suggestion of Jacob Gould Schurman, the American minister, planned to send an "international commission" to Tsao Chuang with instructions to investigate and report relative to the negotiations for the release of foreigners held captive by Chinese bandits.

There was no intimation in an announcement issued by the state department that the commission would be empowered to deal with the bandits directly in the name of the governments represented, thus waiving the obligation of the Peking government to procure the release of the prisoners. The function of the international commission apparently was confined to investigation.

In diplomatic circles familiar with Chinese conditions and habits of thought, the opinion was expressed that the prisoners were in no immediate danger of death, whatever might be their sufferings from exposure, lack of food and unhealthful surroundings.

Neither at the state department nor in Chinese or other diplomatic circles here so far as known has any information been received tending to substantiate an explanation of the outrage carried in press dispatches from Peking which described the diplomatic corps as being well convinced that high Chinese officials instigated the kidnapping of the foreigners in the furtherance of their own political schemes.

KIDNAPPING WAS PART OF POLITICAL SCHEME

Peking, May 23 (By the A. P.).—It is understood the foreign diplomatic corps is considering demanding the outlawry of certain highly placed Chinese officials who the diplomats have every reason to believe instigated the kidnapping of a number of foreigners in the Suchow train raid as a move in their political schemes.

There has ceased to be any doubt in the minds of members of the diplomatic corps that the Suchow raid was initiated and carried out under the direction of certain officials as one part of a great political plot and that the foreigners in captivity are serving as the pawns of the plotters.

The identity of those who hatched the plan is beginning to dawn on the foreign representatives and it is declared they are now considering as a measure of forcing some action in the case from luke warm political quarters in Peking the project of demanding the outlawing of the plotters and the seizure of their personal and real property which, it is estimated aggregates millions of dollars.

OFFER TO ARBITRATE WITH UNION BRICKLAYERS

New York, May 23.—The Mason Builders' association today offered to arbitrate differences with 2,000 union bricklayers no won strike, if the men would immediately return to work.

Chairman Fogarty, of the strikers, declared that the union would consent to arbitrate other points, such as working conditions, if the wage increases were granted, but that the increase of from $10 to $12 a day, with a two-year contract, was imperative.

Most of the bricklayers are now said to be receiving more than the union wage, while they are on strike, working for independent builders. Seven contractors have already resigned from the builders' organization, and granted the higher wage, according to union officials.

The building situation was further complicated tonight when it became known that twenty crafts connected with the old building trades council had threatened to strike June 1 unless given an increase of $1 a day. Membership of 80,000 was claimed for the unions.

Among groups negotiating with employers on this demand was the Carpenters union, claiming a membership of 36,000, the largest of any other branch in the building trades. They demandad $10 instead of $9 a day.

ANOTHER BILL ADVERSE TO COMMISSIONER DONOHUE

Hartford, May 23.—Disbarment of any compensation commissioner from tendering professional service to any injured workman, as an employe of that workman, or in a purely professional capacity, is provided in a bill which will be favorably reported in the senate tomorrow by the judiciary committee.

A bill somewhat similar, which Dr. James J. Donohue, of Norwich, compensation commissioner for the Second Congressional district, claimed was an attack on him by members of the New London County Medical association, was rejected some weeks ago following an unfavorable report by the judiciary committee. Dr. Donohue claimed that the medical association opposed him as compensation commissioner because he had reduced some of the charges they had made in compensation cases.

The bill which will be reported in reads as follows:

"No employer within the provisions of chapter 284, of the general statutes and no insurance company insuring such employer under the provisions of said chapter, shall employ for any injured workmen of such an employer, any member of the workmen's compensation commission in his professional capacity, in connection with such injured employe; and no member of said commission shall render professional services to an injured workman of such employers in connection with an injury received in the course of his employment."

"I heard reports of the other woman," sad Mrs. Mabel Davis, the second wife, "and I knew something was worrying Joe at times for he was cruel and harsh with me. But I don't hold that against him now. God rest his soul."

ADVICE FOR MICHIGAN PROHIBITION DIRECTOR

Chicago, May 23.—In a statement made public today, W. K. Forman, who investigated the situation at Ecorse, Mich., for the Chicago Daily News which has published articles written by him concerning liquor smuggling over the border from Canada, said he would advise the Michigan prohibition director to "take a bootlegger" to Ecorse and investigate.

James R. Davis, the Michigan prohibition director, yesterday was quoted as saying Forman's story that there were four miles of smugglers' shacks at Ecorse was "absurd."

"If the prohibition director has been unable to obtain any information of actual smuggling operations on the Detroit river he may learn something by merely standing on the curline in Ecorse and watching the rum runners leaving the shacks with their cargoes of booze," Forman said.

The entire session of the Windham county superior court Wednesday was taken up with the trial of the case of John W. Armitage et als. vs. Victor J. Bissonette. The case was started Tuesday afternoon John W. Armitage, one of the defendants had been on the witness stand for a short time. Charles S. Amidon, who testified on Tuesday was recalled to the stand when court opened Wednesday morning and questioned in regard to the number of trees which were cut down. He estimated that the timber was worth $300, either standing or felled. As there were eight acres cut down, the average value was $100 per acre, with the majority of the trees ranging from three to eight inches in diameter.

The next witness was Edwin O. Kidder, of Ashford. He stated that he was one of the two hired men who were paid by the defendant to fell the timber on the disputed land. The work was being done in February, 1923, when he was notified to stop work because of the injunction served on his employer by Armitage and Amidon. Civil Engineer Perry of Putnam was called and asked to testify concerning certain boundary lines.

The first witness for the defense was George Towne of Stafford Springs, a surveyor for the past fifty years, many of which were spent in surveying for the towns of Willington, Ashford and Stafford. He established the boundary lines of the towns of Willington and Ashford some years ago. He then presented a set of maps showing lines of the land and properties adjacent to that in dispute. A recess was taken at one o'clock for luncheon.

At 2 o'clock court was resumed and Civil Engineer Towne returned to the witness stand. Following Engineer Towne's description of the lines and boundaries, Victor J. Bissonette of Stafford Springs, the defendant in the case, was called. He related the incidents leading to his purchase of the property adjoining that of Armitage and Amidon. He stated that he had had several conversations with Mr. Armitage in regard to flowage rights and he said that the latter had stated that there was no question about them. He told of receiving the deed of his property and cutting down of the trees and named the two men whom he hired for the work. Of all the trees felled none had been removed either by himself or through his orders.

Following the defendant's testimony Mr. Raby, part owner of the Brown & Raby property, took the stand and was questioned at some length by both attorneys. He said that he had visited the disputed land in 1920, before the timber was felled and had been it later in 1922 after it was cut down. He stated that in his opinion as an old wood cutter, the work was done in excellent shape, providing the purpose was to cut down all the trees. He thought that the timber was worth about $50 an acre or $400 for the entire tract and that its value was raised after the trees had been felled. He was asked a number of questions concerning the maps on display. Raby was grose examined by the attorney for the defense. Court was then adjourned until this (Thursday) morning.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

The Bread Theatre

The William Fox picture in which William Russell opened yesterday at the Bread theatre scored an emphatic success. Entitled The Crusader, and adapted from that popular author of adventure stories, Alan Sullivan, it caught the fancy of the audience at the start.

It deals with the story of a young farmer who is ambitious to embark on a career. He is the only support of his widowed mother. She realizes his ambitions and tells him to go forth into the world. He goes into a lumber camp and later to the Cobalt mining district.

The story is well stocked with exciting incidents, including a thrilling fight on the banks of some rapids. An unusual feature of the play is that there are two feminine roles of practically equal distinction—one played by Helen Ferguson, the leading woman, the other by Fritzi Brunette.

The star's work throughout is admirable, and the staging most attractive. It is a picture of powerful appeal to all lovers of rapid fire action on the screen.

For the second feature Shirley Mason will be seen in Youth Must Have Love.

Miss Mason's latest production is based on the story of a young man unjustly accused of the murder of an old miser, who had gained wealth and position through the unfortunate circumstances of others.

How Earl Stannard, the young man, is vindicated through the never failing faith and untiring aid of a girl provides a romance of intrigue and adventure that promises to surpass all of Miss Mason's previous pictures for exceptional entertainment.

The story carries the audience through a series of unusual incidents and dramatic sequences to a powerful climax.

Vaudeville at the Broadway Theatre

The B. F. Keith vaudeville scheduled for the Broadway theatre the last half of this week follows:

Frear, Baggott and Frear appear in Baseball Idiosyncrasies; Eddie Bolger is an expert banjoist; Marcus and Barry offer a comedy act; Brad and Ines appear in a comedy variety act; North and South offer When North Meets South.

In making many of the sequences for When Danger Smiles, the William Duncan picture which will be shown at Broadway theatre today, it was necessary for the company to work from sunset to sunrise for over a week. The company was on location in the foothills of California, thirty miles from the studio in the vicinity of Calabasas. A battery of light was necessary to light up the foreground for the action, and in the distance could be heard the thunderous beat of cowpunchers and companions riding to the schoolhouse dance. The music of the singing night groups sifted through the air, and the bright lint in the sky gave evidence through the night to the inhabitants for many miles around that William Duncan was staging another Western.

The night scenes are thrilling and full of people. In several of them William Duncan engages in fistic combats and does specially daring feats of horsemanship, in which he is closely rivaled by his fair co-star, a girl whose fearless daring has won for her a place in the hearts of movie fans.

Heerman's Direction Helps Big Owen Moore Picture

Victor Heerman has made another laughing hit in the Selznick Picture, Love Is An Awful Thing, which is playing at the Strand theatre today. This young man who directed Owen Moore in the hilarious screen farces, The Poor Simp, and The Chicken in the Case, has an unusual knack in doing this sort of thing. While his exceptionally keen sense of the humorous accounts for much of his success a great deal of credit should also be given to the training received by him when working under Mack Sennett.

Heerman has, in a way, improved over the Sennett style, more nearly approaching the stage farce in plot and situation and getting away from the slapstick manner of laugh producing.

In Love is an Awful Thing, which also features Owen Moore as in Heerman's other Selznick pictures, there has been devised as clever a series of situations as can be imagined. The production has all the necessary elements for a complete play unit but underlying it all there is only one thing in mind—the producing of laughs.

The college boys and girls of America, with their amusing pranks, their secret fraternities, their wholesome, jolly good times; the romances of the worldly youth of twenty and the utterly alluring flapper of seventeen; the joys and sorrows of first love, the hopes and disappointments and ambitions of Youth, will be seen in all their co-ed glory in a picturization of H. C. Witwer's story of eager pulsating young America, Fighting Blood, one "pound" of which will be shown at the Strand theatre. A news weekly will also be the attraction.

In Japan, in accordance with the reorganization plans proposed by the war office, several generals and other officers holding high commissions in the Japanese army are to be retired.

FIRPO SIGNS AGREEMENT TO MEET WILLARD ON OR BEFORE JULY 7th

New York, May 23.—(By the A. P.) Luis Angel Firpo, South American heavyweight, today signed articles with Tex Rickard to fight Jess Willard, former world champion on July 7 in New York or vicinity.

The agreement clinching the match was signed after a conference between Firpo and Rickard, at which the promoter was understood to have revised the original offer he made for the fight and which the South American declined.

Terms were not revealed but it was believed that they will guarantee each of the boxers not less than $100,000.

Willard signed articles with Rickard recently, just prior to his departure for a vacation in California.

Rickard announced he had decided definitely to hold the bout on July 7 because it would give Firpo more time in which to train, following his engagements next month in Cuba and Mexico.

The site has not been selected, but it probably will be in the Yankee stadium, providing the state athletic commission raises no barrier. Despite reports that the commission had ruled against further appearance by Willard in this state, because he is over the age limit of 38, that body has as yet taken no official action. Willard still holds the license he was granted for his bout with Floyd Johnson at the milk fund heavyweight show on May 12.

Boyle's Thirty Acres in Jersey City, is available if the bout is not held in New York. The New Jersey boxing commission today announced that it would permit Willard to fight Firpo there providing the former champion passes a physical examination as prescribed by the Jersey authorities.

The winner of the Firpo-Willard match probably will be signed for a title bout with Jack Dempsey, unless the latter is dethroned in the meantime by Tom Gibbons. This assurance was given by Rickard to the boxers when he first began negotiations to match them.

PLAINFIELD WINS EASY GAME FROM ARCTIC TEAM

Plainfield easily defeated the Arctic, R. I., team, 10 to 4, on Sunday. Reyard had one bad inning, the third, a pass and two men being hit filled the bases. He fanned the next batter but two runs scored on an error and the third on an infield out. Reyard fanned 14 men and gave but two bases on balls, and allowed but two hits. The Plainfield team showed a decided better brand of ball both in the field and with the willow than they had showed earlier in the season.

Plainfield has open dates for games either in or out of town and would like to hear from leading semi-pro clubs.

Larry Birby, the star outfielder of the local team, suffered a severe fracture of the ankle, sliding to second in the fifth inning. His loss will be greatly felt by the club and it is hoped that he will soon be on the diamond again. It was Burby's hit in the tenth against Taftville that scored the winning run.

HUSTON NOT TO BUY INTEREST IN BROOKLYN

New York, May 23.—Colonel T. L. Huston, who on Monday sold his half interest in the New York Yankees to Colonel Jacob Ruppert, will not be able to acquire an interest in the Brooklyn Nationals, at least this season.

Colonel Hustons retirement from the Yankee ownership aroused immediate reports that he might buy into the Brooklyn club, but Charles H. Ebbets, president of the Dodgers, and his two partners, Ed and Stephen McKeever, today denied that their interest were now for sale.

GIANTS MAKE SWEEP OF SERIES WITH CARDS

New York, May 23.—The New York Nationals made a clean sweep of their series with St. Louis winning the final game today, 4 to 1. All the Giant tallies were made in the fourth off four hits, a pass and a sacrifice. Jack Bentley, the Giants' $65,000 left hander, pitched impressively for the first time since joining the club. Mann, St. Louis right fielder, made a double play unassisted, in the sixth inning, when he caught Snyder's line drive and ran to first before O'Connel could return. The score:

Jim Bagby, former Cleveland pitcher, started his first game of the season for Pittsburgh but was removed in the eighth when the Phillies tied the score with none out. Cy Williams hit his 16th home run of the current season in the seventh. Traynor also hit for the circuit. The score:

PROFESSIONAL MEN DEFEAT NUGGETS BUT UMPIRE FORFEITS GAME TO LOSER

Who won the game, the Professional Men or the Nuggets, is a question that is still undecided. The score book says that the Professional Men won by a score of 8 to 7, but Umpire Craney has awarded the game to the Nuggets by a score of 9 to 0, as the Profs left the field at the end of the fifth inning, refusing to continue because several of their players had tickets for the theatre. Manager Mathewson claimed that he had an agreement with Manager Madden to play only five innings and Manager Madden claims that there was no such agreement made. Umpire Craney had not been notified that the game was to be called at the end of five innings and as weather conditions permitted the playing of several more innings Mr. Craney's only choice was to forfeit the game to the Nuggets.

Manager Madden in a telephone conversation late last evening stated that he would make no protest over the game and would gladly give the game to the Professional Men if they feel that they really deserve it. If they really think they can adjust their consciences to taking the game they are welcome to it, said Manager Madden.

The game was one that furnished plenty of excitement and some terrific hitting by Pop Murphy, Davis and Ferguson. Murphy got a double and a triple, Ferguson a home run and Davis a triple. Outside of these four hits Doc Thompson was the only other man to get a hit. The Nuggets secured seven hits off Davis in the five innings. Manchester led the hitting for the Nuggets with two bingles.

Both teams scored three runs in the first inning and then in the third came the bombardment in which the Profs drove across four runs on a triple, a single, an double and a homer.

Tonight's Game.

The game tonight will be between the Whirlwinds and the Swanees and bids fair to be a real battle as these two teams have been going strong and have some fast men playing.

WILLIAMS CAPTURES TITLE IN INTERCOLLEGIATE TENNIS

Boston, May 23.—Williams captured the New England intercollegiate tennis championship in both singles and doubles in the final matches of the tournament today. Dartmouth players who had reached the finals in both events went down to defeat.

In the singles final match the Williams captain, Albert H. Chapin, Jr., won from the Dartmouth leader, Wallace E. Howe, Jr., by a score of 6-1, 6-4, 6-3. It was the third meeting of this pair. When schoolboys in Connecticut, Howe at Loomis Institute and Chapin at Taft school, Chapin eliminated Howe in the first round of the national junior singles. In the 1920 New England intercollegiates, Chapin again defeated Howe, this time in the semi-final round.

Captain Chapin and Fisher, representing Williams in the doubles, won from Captain Howe and Osgoode, of Dartmouth, 3-6, 6-4, 6-4, 6-2.

AUSTRALIA AND HAWAII AT ORANGE IN JULY

New York, May 23.—The Davis cup first round match between the teams of Australia and Hawaii will be played on the courts of the Orange Lawn Tennis club at Orange, N. J., July 26, 27 and 28, the United States Lawn Tennis association announced today.

The committee stated that the selection of a Metropolitan club for the match was made at the suggestion of both the Australian and Hawaiian teams. Pacific coast cities had been seeking the match since it was decided to abandon the original plan to play it in Honolulu.

Australia's team which probably will have J. O. Anderson, J. B. Hawkes, W. B. Schlesinger and I. D. McInnes as member, is booked to sail from Sydney May 31 on the Makuro, which will touch at Honolulu about June 16. It is likely that the Hawaiian team will arrange to sail on the same boat.

PROFS WIN FIFTH STRAIGHT FROM BRIDGEPORT

Bridgeport, May 23.—New Haven won its fifth straight game over Bridgeport, trimming the Americans 7 to 5 here today. The contest was featured by the wildness of the pitchers of both teams and the hitting of Post and Goff. The Profs won in the ninth when Goff doubled and went to third on a wild pitch. Bowman was purposely walked and Osborn sacrificed scoring Goff. Bowman came home on Mathog's two ply wallop. Score:

New Haven	0	1	3	1	0	0	0	0	2	—7

Two base hits, Mathog 2, Fisher, Loftus, Goff. Three base hits, Bowman, Rodergrez, Mulien. Home run, Post.

THREE ADVANCE TO FACE JOHNSTON

St. Cloud, France, May 23.—Cochet of France, Tegner of Denmark and Van Lennep of Holland today advanced into the quarter finals as possible opponents of the American player, William M. Johnston, in the hard courts tennis championship.

Johnston was idle today. In the lower end of the draw Johnston has yet to meet Count De Gomar of Spain and the French schoolboy La-Coste, before he reaches the semi-finals.

Miss Goss, the only American woman player remaining in the tournament, will meet Mrs. Beamish of England in the third round of the women singles.

ALBANY TROUNCES BRASSCOS IN HARD HITTING BATTLE

Albany, N. Y., May 16—Albany came from behind to win from Waterbury 14 to 4. Two home runs by Frankie Emmer over the left wall featured. Score:

HARTFORD COMES FROM BEHIND AND BEAT PHILLIES

Pittsfield, Mass., May 23.—Hartford came from behind and defeated Pittsfield 7 to 4, here this afternoon, Batcheldor allowed only three hits for the first six innings, but was ineffective in the last three innings. Hartford used three pitchers. Score by innings:

Pittsfield	0	0	0	1	1	2	0	0	0	—4

Two base hits, Leary, Bosse.

Tilden and Favorites Survive

Philadelphia, May 23—William T. Tilden, national tennis champion, and the other favorites survived the first round today in the tournament for the Philadelphia championship. Wallace F. Johnson, wizard of the chop stroke, gave Tilden a hard battle but the champion won 6-3, 6-8, 6-3.

ALL INSURANCE TEAM TO PLAY AT TAFTVILLE

The baseball fans of Taftville are looking forward with interest to the opening of the baseball season in the village when the Taftville A. A. will clash with the speedy All-Insurance team of Hartford, an undefeated organization which recently trimmed the fast Middletown club and slaughtered the Norwich State Hospital last Saturday.

The All-Insurance team needs no introduction to the sporting public in this vicinity, as they have appeared here before, and rumor has it that they are stronger than ever and in better shape to win. The locals under Manager Troland and his able lieutenants, realize that they have a good job ahead of them, and have put in many golden hours getting into shape for the contest. Taftvillites have all the confidence in the world in their baseball representatives and a fast match is anticipated as soon as the first ball goes over.

All-Insurance have announced that they will use Doust as pitcher and Thorsell for the receiver, a combination well known to all who follow the destinies of the diamond. Howard on first, Brennan on second, and Fallon on third will make a good infield combination when reenforced by Islieb at short. The outfield will be composed of Atwood, Finn, and Fannon. The locals will use the three Murphys, Liberty, Cardie, Lemieux, Jarvis, Paradis and Blair, and Morin will put them over. The Taftville team will have on their new uniforms for the first game on the home grounds, and Geo. W. Weller, president of the association, will throw out the first ball. Harold Hull will umpire.

LARGE ATHLETIC PLANT PLANNED FOR HARVARD

Cambridge, Mass., May 23.—A tentative program for the development of an athletic plant at Harvard university which will make possible increased opportunities for sport and exercise by the individual students as distinct from those who are members of teams was outlined today by Major F. W. Moore, graduate manager of athletics.

The additional equipment that the athletic authorities have in mind in the order of probable construction are as follows:

A special athletic plant at Soldiers' Field, including a small plunge pool, an indoor running track, baseball cage and all necessary facilities, including spacious locker accommodations.

An extensive development of squash tennis courts, including several new buildings.

A similar development for rowing, including new sheds for the present houses, a new boathouse exclusively for scullers located on the Charles river, just above the present Newell varsity house.

Actual work on some of these plans is not far in the future, Major Moore said, while others will of necessity have to be delayed.

"We want to get away from the though of compulsory physical training," Major Moore said. "Rather we shall inculcate a desire for fun, play, recreation, and to that end we shall encourage the students to engage in those sports to which they most naturally respond, and in which they find the greatest enjoment. The word 'gymnasium' too often connotes something tedious and tiresome, whereas our new organization will be more in the nature of 'plants' where we will manufacture recreation on a wholesale basis.

BATTLE ROYAL AT HIGH SCHOOL GAME

New York, May 23—Sox lines vanished today on the baseball diamond of Manual Training School of Brooklyn when 8,000 boy and girl students, angered over the umpire's decision, staged a fist fight between spectators of the two schools instead of centering on the umpire as that official expected when he ran at the first outbreak.

The game was between Manual Training School and Erasmus Hall. Erasmus, at the end of the "lucky seventh" inning, was on the long end of the 7 to 6 score. Nerves were tense when Manual Training came to bat. A runner got to third and the team's "Babe Ruth" came to bat.

The slugger got no chance for the runner was caught watching the crowd and was run down. But as he was about to be tagged out spectators on the field and interfered with play. The umpire decided the runner was out, then reconsidered and ordered the game resumed where the crowd interrupted.

The runner refused and the umpire declared the game forfeited to Erasmus Hall, 9 to 0.

Immediately the umpire ran through the crowd, which had p

THE ONE-MAN CARS.

From time to time there have been outbursts against the one-man cars. Such opposition has been for different reasons. It has been sponsored at times by those who were not pleased at the economies that were being effected, and it has come from those who had gotten the idea that the duties of the one man were so great that they invited accidents.

Accidents in which trolley cars are involved are by no means confined to the one-man cars. They happened before such cars were provided and they will continue to happen in the natural course of events, though it is to the credit of the one-man cars that investigations show that such cars are involved in less accidents and less serious accidents than the two-man cars.

Waterbury is one of the cities where much opposition has been displayed toward the one-man cars because of accidents. At least, accidents have been the grounds on which efforts have been based to have them excluded from the city, and only recently new pressure has been brought to bear against this type of car because of a fatal accident resulting from the collision of an electric car and an ice wagon.

The Brass city has maintained, or at least some residents of that city have held that the one-man car constituted a menace to safety. Hearings have been held and from the facts brought forth each time those claims have been shown to be grossly magnified. Concerning the latest hearing the Waterbury Republican declares that it "failed to bring out any genuine evidence that the one-man car is the menace that it has been called by the demagogic and hysterical."

The one-man car has been a benefit to the trolley companies and through the economies effected thereby it has helped to bring about lower trolley fares. Efforts to drive such cars out have failed in other cities and states and until it can be shown by genuine evidence that they are a menace there is no good reason to expect that they will be banned by the public utilities commission.

TIME FOR OTHER ACTION ALSO.

The offering of a reward for the information that will lead to solving the mystery surrounding the death of a student at Northwestern University, Chicago, is all well enough. It deals with a situation about which too little is known an which is deplorable enough without disclosures which seem necessary if the affair is to be cleared up.

It is well that the university is stirring itself relative to what appers to be the murder, intentional or not, of one of its students. But even with these efforts to clear up that affair and bring the guilty to justice it is not too soon to realize the importance of preventive action against the possibility of more such cases in the future.

There is not and cannot be any justification for the practice of hazing. From all indications the case that is now arousing the university is the outcome of a hazing escapade. The university has known what has happened at other institutions where hazing has been winked at and yet it failed to rule against it until it was confronted with perhaps one of the worst cases to come to light.

Toleration of hazing had probably prevailed under the belief that nothing serious had ever happened there. Under the same reasoning it might now be held that this case would be a lesson and no students would again think of indulging in such conduct. It is a wrong policy. The authorities of that institution should have acted a long time ago before the idea became prevalent that hazers could do about as they pleased.

Northwestern University does well to offer the reward but it needs also to take steps at the present time for future prevention and while that institution is suffering the remorse that comes from such an affair it would be a capital idea if all educational institutions where hazing is tolerated put an immediate ban thereon. Northwestern would have been saved a lot of unenviable publicity had it acted sometime ago as the result of the experiences of others instead of waiting for its own glaring revelation.

IN THE NEAR EAST.

To judge by the statements that are being made by the respective sides one cannot be impressed by the possibilities of an amicable adjustment of affairs in the near east. One is no more disposed to yield than the other. One is as confident of success as the other.

Verification of the reported blowing up of an important bridge in Thrace by the Turks is lacking, but something of that character can easily serve as the match for starting a new conflagration in that region.

Though they have made plenty of mistakes the Greeks stand in a position that cannot fail to arouse much sympathy. They have been guided by bad advice and directed by unwise leaders. They have lost heavily and repeatedly, but the Turks have not succeeded in breaking their fighting spirit. The morale of the Greek army has been restored and Athens today is not willing to pay a big indemnity to Turkey. When it advances claims that offset Turkish demands and urges a cancellation the suggestion is one that cannot be entirely disregarded. When it declares its determination to fight rather than pay there's admiration for its courage. It is only the spirit that might be expected in view of the enmity between the nations.

And yet with conditions what they are bluff has a chance to play an important part. It can help to make or break. Just what influence other countries may be able to exert in the situation is problematical. Many would like to see Turkey licked and to see Greece do it, but even that anticipated satisfaction doesn't warrant the bloodsed that would be involved. Efforts sould be directed toward a sensible settlement of the indemnity claims.

CHARACTER BUILDING.

It will not satisfy some, and probably it was not intended to, but from all corners of the state there are reasons to believe that there will come spontaneous and genuine approval of the address that was made by Lieutenant Governor Bingam in Southington this week when he deplored the modern tendencies in literature, dress and personal habits and praised that character building among the old New Englanders which some scornfully call old fashioned and puritanical.

It was one of those addresses that is needed from time to time to halt the discarding of some of the sound ideas of past days. It wasn't a talk against progress, for it is to be expected that present problems must be judged by the conditions that exist, but he took occasion to direct thought to the fact that the responsibilities of parents, the duty of right living and respect for law should not be decreased or lessened because much stress has been laid upon them in the past.

Well does he say that "Laws do not make the commonwealth, wise, just or good. Fairplay cannot come from laws unless public opinion consists of the desires of a number of individuals. If we desire to see the America of the future stand strongly for justice, we must maintain American morality, composed of certain great principles such as self control, helpfulness, cheerfulness and courtesy."

Much depends upon the amount of justice and fair play that prevails from the training which the youth gets in that direction. Respect for majority opinion and for the laws has done much to make this country what it is. There should be no falling away from it and there should be no backsliding of American morality.

AUTO STEALING.

Auto stealing has been a profitable business for those involved in it. So many cars have been lost by the studied efforts of auto thieves that the situation has called for unusual efforts to detect the guilty and a drastic enforcement of the law when guilt has been proved.

The idea that leniency can be practiced in such cases cannot be entertained without conveying the impression that encouragement is being given to such actions. Those who go about the stealing of cars do it deliberately, quite the same as do the horse thieves or other crooks who expect to make a handsome profit from the property of others.

Drastic measures were necessary to discourage the stealing of horses and the same policy will have similar effects concerning the theft of automobiles.

When Judge Haines in Bridgeport gave a prison sentence of three to eight years to a garage owner in that city who had pleaded guilty to the stealing of four automobiles his purpose was to let it be understood that crime of that character cannot be indulged in without involving a serious penalty. There must be protection for the law abiding citizens. Responsibility may rest to some degree upon owners to see that the stealing of their cars is not made easy, but those who so disregard the rights of other people as to steal their cars for what they can sell them for get only what they deserve when they are sent to prison for their actions. There is nothing whatever in such intentional conduct that calls for lenient treatment.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

When it comes to troops France finds that there's always room for more in the Ruhr.

It is getting close to the time to bow down to those graduation day orations and declamations.

The man on the corner says: Occasionally there is a day when the influence of June can be felt.

Sugar may catch more flies than vinegar, but this is a year when there's no desire to waste the sugar.

It is noticed of course that there isn't any talk about the return of Lloyd George to the prime ministership.

Some people will not consider the temperature right until the newspapers carry daily reports of persons suffering from sunstroke.

We are getting to that season of the year when some persons usually find out that they are not good judges of edible mushrooms.

Someone ought to tip off the Chinese bandits to the less risky methods that are employed by the profiteering robbers in this country.

Inasmuch as the people of this country gave $30,000,000 to home charities last year soviet Russia will probably demand an explanation.

The son of the old fashioned fellow who used to drive about with one foot out of the buggy is now carefully housed in an attractive sedan.

If New York doesn't want to accommodate the Leviathan for the business it will bring, a second appeal would not have to be made to Boston.

Those Scotch immigrants who crossed New England would not have been excluded had they gone to New York on their steamer, but they saw something of an admirable part of the country in which to settle.

KEEPING A PROMISE

"I just dropped in for a moment," said the out-of-town customer. "I brought the wife down from her aunt's and I promised I'd come back and get some stuff for the kids with her. She's been away from home two weeks and you'd think she'd been gone a year, she's so crazy to get back. I said I wouldn't be gone more than an hour."

"You're a man of your word, all right," laughed Wilkinson.

"My wife and I started out that way," declared the out-of-town customer. "And we've sort of got into the habit of keeping promises. I heard my wife tell my sister once that I had my faults, but you could rely on my word, and that made up for a lot. The sort of compliment, you know, that makes you wonder a little. Maybe it was a good thing for me to know that I had faults, but the discovery was something of a shock just the same."

"She probably knew you were listening," said Wilkinson consolingly.

"My wife had a cousin she'd been nearing about," the out-of-town customer said, "who doesn't hold to the principle of truth telling at all times, evidently. Perhaps she had a stronger temptation to break her word that particular time, but anyhow, she got into a pickle once.

"I don't mean to malign my wife's cousin, Dora," explained the out-of-town customer. "She did sometimes keep her word—in fact, she did generally, I believe, for her husband always felt he could rely on Dora, no matter what came up. They went abroad this summer for quite a while and had a first-rate time. Dora brought home some pretty things to all of us and gave my wife some lovely lace. It seems her husband had not wanted her to buy lace, but she had done so, inspite of saying she would not buy a piece. She said she had not enjoyed having it, because she had not kept her word to her husband, and there was a bad taste in her mouth—you know."

"I like your insinuations," declared Wilkinson resentfully. "You seem to think I have an uneasy conscience like your own."

"She must have purchased quite a bunch of lace," the out-of-town customer continued, "because it worried her husband when he found that she had bought some and he made her promise solemnly that she would declare every single piece of it when they came into the country. She said there wasn't any danger in hiding lace, as the customs officials were not going to search people when there was such a crowd on the steamer, but her husband said that they might and he did not want any trouble about duty. He is a strict man in matters of honesty and he was anxious to show his wife the proper course, as well as to avoid any unpleasant publicity that might follow."

"Mixed motives like all the rest of us," laughed Wilkinson. "Go on, let's hear what happened."

"Well, Dora insisted that he was mistaken in thinking that anybody was ever searched for contraband articles," went on the out-of-town customer. "And it was only after arguing about it and telling her all the scare tales he could think up that she finally promised that she would not hide a single piece of lace when the American customs officers came aboard."

"She was a good child," said Wilkinson. "He must have used some strong arguments to teach her the lesson."

"The lesson came latter," declared the out-of-town customer. "He felt that she did not credit his story about persons being searched and it touched his pride quite a bit, as he liked to have her see at all times that he was quite correct.

"So after the customs officers appeared on the steamer he and his wife handed in their declarations and went off to await the pleasure of the inspectors. Just before the whole examination was finished George went up to one of the biggest guns he could find and said that he had certain knowledge that the lady standing by that post had lace she had not declared. The big gun was grateful and thanked him profusely and in a few minutes Dora's husband saw her led off by a woman searcher, while he walked away to have a quiet smoke, confident that his wife would soon know that he was right when he made a statement like that."

"A good idea," laughed Wilkinson. "I think I'll concoct some sort of scheme to show my wife something of the sort."

"Well, you see, it didn't work," said the out-of-town customer dryly. "For she had not declared the lace and the woman inspector found a lot sewed into her skirt and George was sent for in a hurry to pay not only the duty but a very heavy fine!"—Chicago News.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Dr. Stratton D. Brooks, who has been called to the presidency of the University of Missouri, has been president of the state university of Oklahoma since 1912, prior to which he was superintendent of schools in Boston, Mass., for four years. Dr Brooks is a Missourian, whose training for his work began at the Michigan State Normal College, and was continued at the University of Michigan and at Harvard University. He held important administrative and teaching positions in the schools of Illinois and Michigan cities till 1899, when he joined the faculty of the University of Illinois. In 1902 he was called to Boston, and during his administration of the schools of the city, effected not a few reforms. Dr. Brooks earlier in his career found it possible to write more or less for pedagogical journals. Of late years the duties of administration have made such extension of his influence difficult.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Evolution.

Mr. Editor: In Mr. Eno's letter to The Bulletin this morning, the 22nd, he has given the proper thought to the evolution theory, and excludes man from that theory, which is as it should be. There has been sharp, nevertheless, unnecessary friction generated over this theory and the Bible. Only in respect to man does the Bible declare a special, direct creation of God. The statements of Genesis in respect to the lower creatures rather favor something along the lines of specialized evolution. God said, "Let the waters bring forth abundantly the moving creature that hath life, and fowl that may fly above the earth." (Gen. 1.20, 21). This is exactly in harmony with our scientific findings that the beginning of life came from the waters, and later extended to the birds, and later to land animals.

The Darwinian theory has disappointed those who have swallowed it without a sufficiency of demonstration as to its truth. (1 Tim. 6:20.)

Recent demonstrations show that every mixture of species and kind, even where partly succesful, means a reversion to the original standards within the third or fourth generation in plants, flowers, fruits and animals. The correct thought wood seem to be that under divine supervision various orders of creation were brought to a state of development and a fixity of species, not to be turned aside nor thereafter altered. As to human evolution from a monkey or any other lower creature, not one suggestion is offered in the Bible respecting it; but quite the contrary. The Bible furnishes merely a basis for faith, "that the man of God may be thoroughly equipped." 2 Tim. 3.17. It was towards the close of the sixth day, or approximately forty-two thousand years (a day with the Lord is a thousand years) from the time of beginning the ordering of earth, that God created man. The first man, Adam, was especially made by his creator. And in His image, and that image of his Creator consisted in his moral and intellectual likeness. The specialization in the case of man's creation is shown in his vast superiority over the lower animls. It would be difficult now to judge from present human conditions all that is meant by God's image, because we have no sample of perfect humanity for comparison. "All have sined and come short of the glory of God," in which Adam was created (Psa. 8:5). Sin and death have reigned and the Godligeness has been lost. All need restitution. When thinking of man in the image of God, we instinctively look back to "The Man Christ Jesus," "holy, harmless, undefiled and separate from sinners" and like the first Adam, whose penalty He came into the world to meet. 1 Cor. 15:22. "After our likeness let him have dominion." Adam's dominion over the lower animals was like God's dominion over the universe. Angels, although in God's image (spiritual)), do not have a Godlike dominion over creatures of lower order. Man's dominion, overthrown by sin, is to be restored by Messiah's Kingdom. Acts 3:19:21. "In the days of these kings (earthly) shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom." Dan. 2:44.

The Estimate For a White Way.

Mr. Editor: What Norwich could do with $2,000. The suggestions that follow are made up from public reports of our city officers, and therefore appear worth our time for serious consideration. In the city estimates for the next year is the item: "White way—$2,000."

Mayor Waters pleads for more policemen. Instead of spending $2,000 for a needless white way, couldn't we pay one more policeman with it, and so give our citizens and stores some of the needed protection suggested by Mayor Waters? Under the present scheme of things the police are called in at two o'clock in the morning, and thus the residential districts of the Rose of New England are left unprotected during just the hours when yeggmen, second-story chaps and porch-climbers are supposed to do their most artistic work. Just one "job" of this kind may cost some happy home in Norwich more than $2,000. But if the $2,000 are made $30,000, and if all of it is spent for white waying Norwich, what good can come of it, if there are no officers on beat when the "job" is done? What would a husky yeggman care for a white way blazing like daylight, if he knew the coast was clear, and knew he could easily sandbag a sleeper or two and get away with nice trinkiets without being caught? A white way all over the plains quarter would simply make a yeggman laugh—would make his labor an illuminated joy!

At such a time a good, alert "cop" right on the beat would put several white ways back into the never-was class.

Our mayor calls us to look the water situation in the face. That means money, a lot of money—perhaps a million or more of dollars. Why not begin to save up for the new reservoir? Why not forego the white way until the water question is settled?

And the supervisor of the water department says Stony Brook watershed needs attention. There are other allegations about Stony Brook that strongly support his complaint for improvements. If the supervisor needs help to check pollution on Stony Brook watershed, it would appear that all of those citizens forced to drink city water would greatly prefer to aid him, even to the cost of $2,000, rather than spend the same sum for a white way, the need for which seems to be mostly the "bunk" of a glib-tongued salesman. Really and truly white water, not whitewash, would be better than a white way, even if we could have the needless white way for nothing. If we must have a white way, let us turn it over to the supervisor to help him in his suggested need in cleaning up Stony Brook.

It is the belief, Mr. Editor, that you command many sources of information, I want to ask you if the increased taxation to accrue from the town's voted liability for the Academy expansion, together with the oncoming tax map and the new bridge for Eighth street will not bring our tax rate to about 50 mills in about 18 months hence? If that estimate is true, or nearly true, then why should we junk a lighting system that has done us good service for years upon years?

Well, Mr. Lynch, the eager salesman for white way art columns and fixtures, thinks we ought to junk it just the same; for he told 100 Chamber of Commerce banqueters, orchestra playing softly, that one reason for a white way was that it "would help places get ahead of their neighbors" and then he "sprung" a lot of statistics isn't Norwich already quite a little ahead of it's neighbors?

When our annual city meeting comes in June very not let us have one of our old-fashioned get-togethers and vote the white way project into the background, whence we may call it forth when we really need it? Couldn't we vote it back about 5 to 1? or perhaps 6 to 1?

Warning About Spraying Fruit Trees.

Mr. Editor: I wish to sound a timely warning regarding the spraying of fruit trees. Many fruit growers are tempted to start their spraying before the blossoms have fallen. This, as should be generally known, is not only harmful to the trees, but is death to the best friends of the fruit growers—honey bees. This spring the bees are very active on apple blossoms, the flowers being unusually rich in nectar. An orchard sprayed this spring before the blossoming season is over would be very disastrous to bug-life.

I strongly urge your readers to use all their influence to prevent this needless death of the honey bees.

Yours much interested,

ALLEN LATHAM.

Stories That Recall Others

Her Version of Thunder

Rosie's mother had been weeks at the spring house cleaning. Papering had been done, woodwork varnished, etc. Carpets and rugs had been off the floor for some time and the noise of furniture being pushed over bare floors becoming familiar. When the first thunder was heard Rosie said: "Mother, God is cleaning house, I heard him rolling the table over the floor."

He Knew His Arithmetic.

Mother was laid up with the "flu" and told her six-year-old Billy to answer the telephone if it rang and to tell any one who called that she was lying down and to call in an hour. Shortly after the phone rang and the following is what she heard:

"Mother is lying down, call in an hour."

The party at the other end of the line seemingly could not understand and the little fellow repeated several times, "call in an hour," and then finally losing patience he said, "Oh, call in sixty minutes."

FRIENDS NOTICED IMPROVEMENT

Wonderful Results from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Bethel, Wis.—My female trouble was brought on by overwork. I had worked in stores and had to do heavier work than my strength could stand, and had to be on my feet most of the time. Finally I had to give up this work entirely and stay at home. Doctor's medicine did not give me much relief, and my mother wanted me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took a couple of bottles of it and thought it did not help me as much as it should, so I gave it up to try something else. Nothing I took helped me much, so I finally decided to give the Vegetable Compound another trial and to take enough of it to make sure it would help me. I have taken it over a year now and it has brought wonderful results. I have gained from 98 to 110 pounds and am keeping house now. My friends all notice the change in my health. I will be glad to answer all letters that women write to me about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. W. G. Monson, 1515 Park Ave., Beloit, Wis.

TRAILING ARBUTUS.

Darlings of the forest!
Blossoming alone,
When earth's grief is sorest
For her jewels gone—
Ere the last snow-drift melts, your tender buds have blown.

Tinged with color faintly,
Like the morning sky,
Or, more pale and saintly,
Wrapped in leaves ye lie—
Even as children sleep in faith's simplicity.

There the wild wood-robin,
Hymns your solitude,
And the rain comes sobbing
Through the budding wood,
While the low south wind sighs, but dare not be more rude.

Were your pure live fashioned
Out of air and dew
Starlight mingle-tinctured,
Dawn's most tender hue,
And scented by the woods that gathered sweets for you?

Fairest and most lonely,
From the world apart;
Made for beauty only,
Veiled from nature's heart
With such unconscious grace as makes the dream of art!

Were not mortal sorrow
An immortal shade,
Then would I tomorrow
Such a flower be made,
And live in the dear woods where my lost childhood played.

—Rose Terry Cooke.

THE MONTHLY BALANCE.

Every month I go over my balance
And check up the checks I have made,
And always I come out uneven,
With something or other mislaid.
I check and recheck with emotion
All day and far into the night,
And still I'm utterly baffled—
For the bank is invariably right.

'Twould seem that with thousands of clients,
And millions and millions of checks,
And hashings and lavings of money,
They'd fall now and then on their necks:
You'd think that perhaps in addition
Or maybe subtraction they might
Slip up on a dollar or nickel—
But no—they're disgustingly right.

I'm sick and disgusted with finance:
There's something of mystery and guile
In the sneerful and smug satisfaction
Of the teller's insidious smile—
Although all my footings I total
With intelligence certain, if slight,
I'm always yes, always, in error.
And the bank, curses on it, is right.

—J. P. McEvoy, in Chicago Tribune.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"Charley, dear," said young Mrs. Torkins, "don't you think a woman should be guided by the taste of her husband?"

"Of course.'

"So do I. That's why I'm going to have my hair cut short and learn to smoke."—Washington Star.

"Bob, does your father play?"

"Yes," admitted Bobby, without much enthusiasm.

"Well, what does he play, the cornet?"

"No, answered Bobby, half-heartedly. "He plays the organ.'

"And does he sing?" persisted the small friend.

"Goodness, no!" indignantly exclaimed the musician's son. "We wouldn't stand for that!"—Harper's Magazine.

"This," said the guide, "is the room in which the Duke de Guise was murdered!"

"When I came here two years ago I was told it was the room opposite."

"Oh," said the guide, quite calmly "this room was undergoing repairs at that time."—London Tit-Bits.

NORWICH TOWN

The fiftieth anniversary of Herbert L. Yerrington, as organist of the First Congregational church, was celebrated Wednesday evening from 8 to 10 o'clock in the chapel parlors, with an informal reception to members of the church parish and friends.

In response to the very cordial invitations sent out by the reception committee—Dwight W. Avery, Mrs. Sarah W. Chapin and Miss Mary M. Bacheler, there was a large assemblage present, representing the church membership, out of town friends of Organist Yerrington among the musical circles of Norwich.

Receiving with Mr. and Mrs. Yerrington, were the church pastor and wife, Rev. and Mrs. Gurdon F. Bailey; Senior Deacon Dwight W. Avery and Mrs. Avery; Miss M. Jeanie Case, a very close friend for many years; and George F. Hyde, the latter a brother of Mrs. Yerrington.

The ushers, who presented the guests, were two of the church deacons, Henry T. Frazier and John L. Browning, also Clyde M Beebe and Frank E. Sterry, the two latter being associated with Organist Yerrington in the choir, Mr. Sterry having served in this capacity for a great many years. While friends were assembling and extending their congratulations to the guest of honor, Miss Marjory Merry rendered several piano selections.

The chapel was very prettily decorated with green branches and spring flowers of various showering bouquets being placed in each window, making an attractive setting for the palms and ferns which formed the background for the receiving party. The committee on decorations comprised Mrs. Charles P. Learned, Dwight W. Avery and Clyde M. Beebe.

At 8.45, a delightful musical program was given, in which the participants included, Maurice Wallen, tenor soloist, Hartford; and the Misses Ray, musicians of Springfield, Mass., also G. Avery Ray, tenor.

The programme was as follows:

Spanish Dance, by Sarasate; violin and piano, Ruth Avery Ray and Miss Alice Ray; I Would That My Love, Mendelssohn-Bartholdy, G. Avery Ray and Ruth A. Ray; Thank God for a Garden, Del Riego, Maurice Wallen, Mrs. Wallen at the piano; Nordische Sage by Bohm, violin, Ruth A. Ray; San Bois, Stuab, piano, Alice M. Ray; For You Alone, Geehl, Mr. Wallen; Aria by Tenaglia, Etude Fiorillo Gammert, violin; Ruth A. Ray; You and I, Stephens, Mr. Wallen.

Miss Ruth Ray, who sings soprano, also is the violinist. Her sister, Miss Alice Ray was pianist. Both are very talented musicians.

During the evening, in behalf of the church parish and interested friends, Rev. Mr. Bailey in a felicitous manner presented Organist Yerrington a gift of $120 in gold in appreciation for his long and faithful service of half a century. The gold coin was concealed in a choice case of blue, lined with gold coloring. To Mrs. Yerrington, Rev. Mr. Bailey presented a beautiful basket of hothouse flowers. These few moments were pleasant ones for Mr. and Mrs. Yerrington, who were somewhat overcome with surprise and appreciation for the substantial token of the love and esteem in which they are held, not alone by the church membership; but by the entire community.

Following the programme, under the direction of Mrs. Frank E. Sterry, assisted by Mrs. Charles W. Chapin, Mrs. Henry T. Frazier, Miss Rose Durr, and Miss Bessie M. Grant, ice cream, cake and punch was served. The waitresses included the Misses Marion L. Louise P., and Lucile D. Bailey, Bernice Underwood, Ida Beebe, Mabel Cerigeux and Alice Peck.

The committee on arrangements was ably assisted in the festivities by the church pastor, Rev. Mr. Bailey. Out of town guests were present from Springfield, Mass., Hartford, New London, Preston City and Portland, Me.

TIBBETTS FARM AUCTION BRINGS OVER $5,000

The quiet farm of William Tibbetts, the missing Pitchville man, experienced the biggest day of its history Wednesday when Trustee Charles L. Stewart had the personal property sold off by auction.

Total receipts for the day had not been figured when the last article had been disposed of close to nightfall but it was estimated that they would run between $5,000 and $6,000 which would be close to the inventory figure of about $5,500, Mr. Stewart said.

The Tibbetts farm looked like a county fair all day. Both sides of the road, above and below the farmhouse were lined solidly with automobiles and scores more were parked in the lots on each side of the house. Something over 250 machines were on hand, besides many farmers' teams, and a crowd of several hundred people circulated around the grounds and strolled through the house and barns.

In the front yard, where apple trees and lilac bushes were in full bloom, the Ladies' Aid society of the Pitchville Baptist church, ran a lunch counter that did a rushing business, while another lunch counter was located across the road in the barn.

Auctioneer Stanton Briggs did a full day's work and finished as fresh as a daisy. It was strictly a cash and carry event, the auctioneer and cashier, Gilbert S. Raymond, on the cash end, and the successful bidders on the carry end, as the auctioneer's snappy "You bought it" closed sale after sale.

Auctioneer Briggs took his stand first at the she din the rear of the house, close to the steps and door where spots of blood were found when the disappearance of Tibbetts first at the shed in the rear of the After a miscellaneous collection of small articles had been disposed of here, Mr. Briggs moved around to the front of the house and took a post in the front door from which he disposed of the furniture that was passed out by his assistants. This part of the auction was cleaned up shortly after noon.

Mr. Briggs took one rest to snatch a bite to eat and a cup of coffee and while he was eating the sale went on with Auctioneer Perkins of New London crying the sales.

After the house articles had been disposed of the crowd moved across the road to the barn, where a number of small articles were sold before the fine line of farm machinery was reached. This was all arranged in the barn yard where prospective buyers could look it over. After the machinery the sale of the cattle closed the auction and finished a day that brought buyers and curiosity seekers from all parts of the county.

ED WYNN AT BROADWAY IN "THE PERFECT FOOL"

Ed Wynn brought "The Perfect Fool" to the Broadway theatre here Wednesday evening, playing before a S. R. O. house that rocked with laughter at the scintillating perfect foolishness of which Wynn has the copyright, and revelled in the gorgeous costumes and scenes for a chorus that was a most satisfying eye-ful. Wynn's new musical concoction is put on in two acts and nineteen scenes that move swiftly along in a bewildering variety of music, motion and color, with Ed's characteristic comedy never absent.

Flo Newton and True Rice supported Wynn in the leads, tuneful in voice and clever in dancing, while the Meyakos, a Japanese trio, who have been seen here with him before, were given enthusiastic applause and John Dale and Jay Velie were favorites for their fine acrobatic act.

The daisy song, She Loves Me, She Loves Me Not, was the musical hit of the show and the big crowd went home humming the music.

During the performance an immense basket of flowers was sent up to the stage for Wynn, a gift from Charles F. Wells, general manager of the United Metal Manufacturing Co., and old friend of Wynn. Wynn acknowledged the gift in a little speech and mentioned that he had a peculiar friendly feeling for Norwich as he first, 22 years ago on the 8th of August in Norwich that he made his first appearance on any stage.

Wynn took the basket of flowers to the tuberculosis sanatorium after the show so that they might be distributed there among the patients at the institution.

Utley; secretary, Miss Bessie Grimes; treasurer, Miss Helen Moore. Various committees were also appointed.

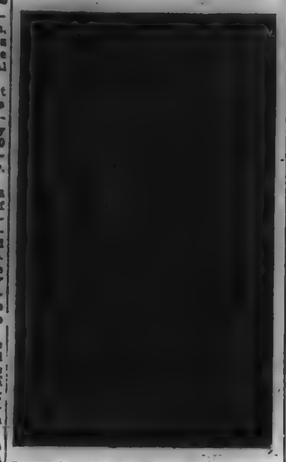
ARCHDEACONRY BANQUET WITH BISHOP BREWSTER AS GUEST



BISHOP CHAUNCEY B. BREWSTER

One hundred and thirty-two clergymen and laymen of the New London archdeaconry enjoyed a get-together banquet and meeting Wednesday evening at the Wauregan banquet hall. During the banquet the members indulged in several song hits, after which Judge Gardiner Greene of this city, toastmaster at the banquet, welcomed the men to the meeting, stating that it was the fourth affair of its kind held by the New London archdeaconry and that he hoped there would be many others. Touching on the speech made recently at an archdeaconry meeting by President Lowell of Harvard, Judge Greene said that the eminent speaker was setting a dangerous example by his remarks and that the people of the nation had settled the question of the league of nations at the last election and cited the case of Poland as an example of the failure of the league to function according to the ideal policy mapped out for it. If, however, we decide to enter some sort of a league let us as a country not go in by some indirect way but let us first decide what is right to be done and then do it.

The first speaker of the evening introduced by Toastmaster Greene was Bishop Chauncey B. Brewster, who also touched on the league of nations, stating that no nation could live unto itself, and that he hoped to see some sort of world court established among nations that would make peace and righteousness sure for the world. Speaking of religion, Bishop Brewester said in part: You men gathered here have a definite work to accomplish, a great work which it is your privilege to take a part in, and it is your duty to take hold and do the work before you with a will. Religion is not speculation but of will, intellectual processes are subsidiary. To chose the acts and select the purposes it is the will, the vital touch that is necessary. Religion in man is that he will do and he shall know rather than that he shall reason out. Let us all be loyal, intellectual churchmen, ready for action by will, and let our services be loyal to bring everyone the freedom Christ intended they should enjoy. That is the service we owe to our church.

The second speaker of the evening was Dean Carroll M. Davis of theadomestic science department of missions of the national council of the church. In his message Dean Davis said in part: It is a pleasure to find so many men of our church gathered together that we may all enjoy a talk on the work of this organization of which we are a part. It is the greatest organization in the world, and it has a world mission, that given by Christ who said go into the world and make known my message. Like the first disciples waited for the spirit to descend upon them before they went out to preach the word, the church today has the same commission, never has it been changed.

You and I, said Dean Davis, are not just members of our church, parish or diocese, but are members of Christ, we are here to do the work of his church. The board of missions is doing your work, it is simply carrying out the program adopted as the program of the church of the country, and you as members of the New London archdeaconry have just as much a part in the work they are doing as the men and women in the foreign fields. Only through Christianity can we bring peace out of chaos and turn hatred into love. There is but one name that can do this and that is the name of Jesus Christ.

We must bring the Christian influence to bear upon our country and see that it is enacted in the legislation of of our country. In the last three years this country has gone back from the great idealism that prevailed during the World war. We have as a nation of Christians set back and watched the Turks grow in power and defy the partial league of nations. Great opportunities lie before our nation but still greater opportunities lie before our church.

One of the great programs began in our church in 1910 will reach great heights in 1925, when all religious sects from all nations, except the Roman Catholics, and we hope they will come, too, are to gather in America to talk of uniting in world wide church movements. Our worth is by the amount of fellowship and good will we spread among those with whom we live. Praying "Thy kingdom come" will never amount to anything, we must devise some practical method, do things by will, by concerted action, not wishing but thinking. The church gives to us the only message for this action and by which we can make our lives count for something in this world.

The final speaker of the evening was Suffragan Bishop E. Campion Acheson, who spoke on four things of great interest to him and which should be to every professing Christian. First, said Bishop Acheson, there is now before the governor of New York an act to nullify the Volstead act, and great pressure is being brought to bear on Governor Smith to sign the bill. As bishop I am opposed to his doing so, and I believe that every church member should be against the bill that he is asked to sign. The time has gone by for personal opinions, we have the law and it must be obeyed, must not be tampered with. I am opposed to every man, woman and child of our country who support such an act and stand against a law which in years to come will mak this a new world in which to live.

As a second point, I believe that the thing most needed in the world today is the worship of Almighty God. When you appraise a thing you place a value on it. It is the same when you praise God, appraise God. You see His value and you praise Him. The story of men not attending church has gone past the laughing stage, either a Christian man goes to church or he is a hypocrite. Every one of you should say, and mean it, I shall worship God and be with God's people.

Roosevelt and many of the greatest men of our land never missed attending public worship; these men lived close to God. We need in the church more of the spirit of that heroic Roman Catholic priest who faced death by the bolsheviks rather than to betray Christ. He knew the bolsheviks had made a law punishable by death if he told them of Christ, but he followed his Master and taught them and died a martyr, a shining example of the highest type of Christian man.

My third message is that today the church is going through a period of reconstruction and that you must not think for a minute that the fundamental principles are being changed. The church today has the same Christ, the same cross, the same purpose and just because some things are changing as the scope of intellectual learning touches things not known years ago, we must not think the church itself is changing.

In closing, I want every one of you to say to yourself, How do I personally support the church? I want you to look the money you give squarely in the face and ask it honestly if it is sufficient. Many will know that the amount is not fair.

The work being done by the missions is your work, the amount of the work that can be done depends on what you give weekly in the envelope, and I want you to face the issue, look your money in the face, and then give honestly what you know is right.

At the close of the meeting a vote of thanks was tendered Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Osgood and Mrs. Albert H. Chase for the gift of flowers for table decorations, also to the women who so kindly gave their time to decorate the dining hall.

Arrangements for the banquet were made and successfully carried out by the following general committee and sub-committees: Chairman, Walter E. Gilbert; treasurer, E. Allen Bidwell; secretary, John W. McKinley; speakers, Archdeacon Brown, Rev. Frederick Williams; music, William J. Banfield, James Johnson; invitations, J. Frank Corey, John W. McKinley; dinner, Henry P. Woodmansee, Percival W. Chapman; overhead, Rev. R. R. Graham, Archdeacon Brown.

BASKET OF FLOWERS FOR HYDE OF BROOKLYN

Hartford, May 23.—After the house had come together today Miss Elizabeth Green of Tolland arose and said: "Today marks the passing of another milestone on the highway of life for a member of this legislature. Thirty-five years ago this gentleman and a maid joined hands to travel through life together and today is the anniversary of that event. It is with much pleasure that the members of the assembly of 1923 present to Mr. Hyde of Brooklyn this basket of roses as an expression of our highest esteem and with a wish for many happy returns of the day.

Mr. Hyde in responding said that this presentation was "as much of a surprise as when the fellow proposed to his girl. Thirty-five years ago, as today, the sun was shining bright. The intervening years have also been bright." He called attention to the fact that while he was sitting on the democratic side of the house his sister-in-law (Miss Lillian Frink of Canterbury) was also sitting on the opposite side. Notwithstanding this the relations were happy.

Vigorous applause was given both Miss Green and Mr. Hyde.

SEND THIS BILL ALONG TO GOVERNOR TEMPLETON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Hartford, May 24.—The afternoon session of Tuesday apparently had a debilitating effect upon the members as there was a very slim attendance today when Speaker Nicharpon called the house to order at 10.15. After prayer by the chaplain matters on the calendar were taken up, the speaker calling Miss Mary R. Weaver of New Milford to preside.

A bill was passed making an appropriation of $2,000 for the purchase of twenty-one acres of land in the town of New Fairfield on the east side of Beavis's pond, so-called, for the purpose of a state park. The bill appropriating $2,500 for sidewalks at the state normal school at New Britain was passed without opposition.

An act that corrects a defect in the law concerning death certificates, especially relating to the embalming of bodies, was explained by Dr. Eddy and was passed. The usual validating act was passed.

The resolution creating a commission to consider the advisability of this state participating in the sesquicentennial exposition at Philadelphia was passed in concurrence with the senate.

Twenty minutes after the opening of the session, there being no business on the clerk's desk a recess was taken for ten minutes which lasted for fifteen minutes.

After this recess, the vaccination bill came from the committee of conference in an amended form. It requires that every child who attends school shall be vaccinated. It provides that the child may be excused if a certificate has been received from some reputable physician resident in the town in which the child resides or in some adjoining town, that it would endanger the health of the child.

All matters received from the senate were placed on the calendar.

During the recess yesterday, the committee appointed to ascertain the status of legislation before the legislature, visited the secretary's office and had 115 bills that had been passed by both houses, forwarded to the governor's office. By so doing a legislative day was gained as bills must be delivered during the time when the assembly is in session. The governor as allowed three days in which to take action. Within that time he must either approve, veto or allow a bill to become a law without his signature. Several important bills were among the number.

As adjournment was about to be made Leader Buckley announced that it would be necessary in order to complete legislative days to have a session on Friday, also on Tuesday, Thursday and Friday of next week. The work of the session is practically finished and there will be but little work for the house on Friday and the only object of meeting on that day is to create a legislative day in which to get bills to the governor. Mr. Buckley said that if any of the members had private matters to attend to that no harm would be done as adjournment would be taken as soon as the house convened.

The house then adjourned at 12.10 (s. t.) till Thursday at 10.15.

MIDDLESEX REJOICES AT ROAD TO NORWICH

The Hadlyme and Norwich trunk line highway which Governor Templeton vetoed last week is now a law. The house of representatives on Tuesday passed the bill over the governor's veto 205 to 5, and the senate on Wednesday followed suit by a vote of 27 to 2. In all the history of Connecticut legislation probably no veto was ever more decisively overridden.

The chief performers for Middlesex county were Representatives Peck and Gates of this town, but all the other county members put in good work for the bill. The New London county end was handled by Representative Brockway of Lyme and Rogers of Salem. The larger part of the proposed road runs through Salem, but several miles of it are in the towns of East Haddam and Lyme.

The western end of the road will be at Brockway's four corners at Hadlyme. From there it will run in an easterly direction to North Plain, thence easterly to Salem, crossing the Hartford and New London road at The Willows. East of there the road passes Gardner lake, one of the finest sheets of water in the state, terminating at the Norwich fairgrounds.

When built, the road will open up an isolated but beautiful section of the state and will be a great benefit in developing the country through which it passes. It will be a connecting link between the Connecticut river at East Haddam bridge and the Thames at Norwich.

There has been some fine team work among the Middlesex county members this session, and East Haddam is naturally proud of the part her representatives had in it.—Connecticut Valley Advertiser.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

In the most important real estate transaction that has had to do for several years with property in the central and business section of the borough Attorney Adolphus M. Burroughs and Louis S. Levi of Boston have taken over five parcels of real estate from Miss Florence M. Johnson, who inherited them from the estate of her father, William S. Johnson.

The properties include the Evans block, a two and a half story brick structure on lower Main street, occupied by stores on the street floor and by tenements above; the two business blocks on Main street opposite the Attawaugan hotel occupied as stores, by a restaurant and by tenants; the string of small business blocks extending along the easterly side of Main street just below the railroad crossing and from that point to the Davis block, those known as the Knight properties, and the Johnson residence on Main street, opposite Davis park.

Miss Johnson retains of all her real estate holdings only the cottage on the Johnson property at the park.

Estimates of the value of the property transferred by Miss Johnson to Messrs. Burroughs and Levi runs as high as $50,000. The location opposite the Attawaugan hotel is particularly valuable, being in the very heart of the borough. The buildings on the Knight property are good revenue producers and all are fully occupied. As a business proposition the Evans block is the least attractive of the properties included in the big deal, though it is the most substantial and imposing of any of the structures that figure in the sale. It is fully occupied, but the rents are very moderate.

Messrs. Burroughs and Levi were holders of second mortgages on the properties they have taken over. It is understood that they purchased the first mortgages and then took the properties over in their own interest. What plans they have, if any, for changes or developments, were not known here Wednesday.

Warden William A. Burrows during a stay at Oakland Beach this week is making a study of a proposed traffic ordinance intended for application in the borough. It has been drawn by an attorney of distinction and covers in very thorough manner the matter with which it deals. There is a possibility, it was stated Wednesday, that some changes may be made in it before it is presented to borough officials for discussion and there is no doubt the public will be given ample opportunity to be heard relative to it before it is finally adopted. No inkling has been given out as to the details of the proposed regulatory measures, but they are certain to be of very general interest when made available for public review.

The Killingly town school committee will receive bids for coal and wood to be used in the schools of Killingly during the coming year. Lists may be obtained by applying to the superintendent of schools.—adv.

A score of women representing Killingly, Brooklyn and Wauregan gathered Wednesday afternoon at the home of Judge and Mrs. M. A. Shumway to hear an address by John J. Whitehead of Putnam as director of the campaign to raise $35,000 in eastern Windham county for use in the construction of a nurses' home at the Day Kimball hospital, an institution of inestimable value to the people of the town of Killingly, which has depended upon it for years in hundreds of emergency and other cases.

Mr. Whitehead outlined in detail what it is hoped may be accomplished for the fund in Killingly and Brooklyn and the town of Plainfield and his enthusiasm over his subject was communicated to those who heard his talk. He told the meeting something of what is being accomplished for the fund in Putnam, Pomfret, Woodstock and Thompson. He explained that the money is to be raised in units of $50 each and that individuals and organizations, especially societies, can win a place on the honor roll by raising one or more units.

Mrs. Shumway was chairman of the meeting and will be at the head of the woman's organization that will have the drive in charge in this town. A list of organizations that it is hoped will help has been prepared and officials of these will be approached relative to the matter within a few days. Dances, teas, entertainments—a hundred ways are available for any organization to raise one or more of the $50 units.

Francis E. Storer will head the men's committee that will work in Killingly and a variety of plans for getting money will be worked out. Fifty units would be a small minimum—$2500—for Killingly to turn in, but it is hoped to double that figure and make it $5,000 and this can be done if everyone lends a hand. A boxing match is almost certain to net several hundred dollars for the fund, as Promoter Frank Barber of the Casino Amusement company has offered to turn over every penny of the net proceeds from a big event to be staged here next month.

All fraternal societies are wanted to lend a hand, that those who care for patients at the hospital, now without suitable quarters for nurses, may do something for them and only time will tell what good may revert personally at the hospital to those who do something now for this very worthy project.

A. W. Buchanan, state employment officer, has asked that publicity be given the fact that he will be at the office of the superintendent of schools in the town hall building at Danielson on Tuesday, June 12, in the morning, for the purpose of examining those who wish to obtain employment certificates. This is of special interest to young people who hope to have the opportunity to work during the vacation season.

PUTNAM

There was every evidence Wednesday that what Manhasset Manufacturing company officials describe as a lockout and what a large percentage of their former employes plainly call a strike is settling down to a siege basis. There was evidence, too, Wednesday that the employes who are out are not going to be easily whipped in this industrial trouble, for the entire Connecticut Valley district organization of the American Federation of Textile Operatives has rallied to their support and by next week this support will be augmented by further support from the New England organization and the New York and Pennsylvania districts, assuring the local workers and their families of strike funds amounting to at least $2500 weekly and probably more.

Oliver Christian, Salem, member of the executive committee of the American Federation of Textile Operatives and directing the movement here against the Manhasset Manufacturing company's wage scale, said Wednesday afternoon that organized textile operatives all along the Quinebaug valley are solidly back of the Manhasset's former workers. At a meeting held in Taftville Tuesday evening, Mr. Christian said, organized workers there pledged $300 weekly for the support of the Putnam strikers. Baltic, where a meeting was held Wednesday evening, has pledged $500 a week from its textile workers for the support of their Putnam brethren and their families. Organized mill workers in Wauregan already have given $200. Friday evening in Weavers' hall at Plainfield there will be a general meeting of representatives of all of the organization's locals in eastern Connecticut and a general assessment will be levied to help the Putnam organization.

When the general executive committee of the American Federation of Textile Operatives meets in Fall River on Friday and Saturday of this week a general assessment on the more than 30,000 members of the organization in New England will be levied to aid Putnam and next week the same thing will be done in the New York and Pennsylvania districts. It is readily apparent from this that the Putnam local has impressive backing and is not required to stand without support in what is really a vital struggle to labor—being the first test of strength in this section of eastern Connecticut, where textile labor heretofore has been practically without organization, between textile unions and mill operators. Every manufacturing concern in this district is watching the proceedings and awaiting the outcome with the keenest interest, as are the organized operatives who are now pledging themselves to help members of the Putnam local.

Mr. Christian said Wednesday that the Putnam local members are holding out with the greatest confidence and settling down for a long fight. Families are receiving strike benefits varying from $5 to $15 per week, the amounts regulated by the number of members in a family. This liberality is made possible, Mr. Christian says, because the situation here does not involve so many workers as is often the case in strikes in large cities and because the federation has ample funds and is in a position to get additional large amounts each week from federation members throughout New England and other parts of the country. Usual in strikes involving great numbers of workers the maximum benefit paid by the organization is $7 weekly, but that has been more than doubled in some instances in Putnam.

Wednesday marked the beginning of the third week of the strike. As has been their daily custom the union members met in their hall in the morning and again in the afternoon. A matter of special interest to them was a warning that they were to expect arrest of their pickets near the Manhasset company plant unless the picketing ceased forthwith, it being regarded as a violation of the injunction order, issued by the superior court the past week. Mr. Christian said the picketing would not cease. The pickets were molesting no one, were under orders not to hold any conversation with workers at the plant, nor to speak to them nor molest them in any way. He insisted, however, that the pickets, as individuals, had a right to see who was going in and coming out of the mill as well as any other citizen.

Discussing a request that the union members walk through the streets near the plant instead of on the sidewalks, Mr. Christian said this request also would be ignored as ridiculous. The streets are for vehicles and animals, he said, and the sidewalks are for people. We are citizens and residents of the United States, so we intend to continue to use the sidewalks. We have no intention whatever of making any trouble but we shall insist that our rights be safeguarded. We also intend to continue our morning walks pats the mill property, quietly and decorously as though we were going to church, and to do this as long as we please.

Speaking of the evictions that are about due to begin, Mr. Christian said evicted families will be taken are of by the union. "We will find comfortable quarters for these families and see that their living expenses are paid," he said.

At the executive board meeting in Fall River Friday and Saturday Mr. Christian will report on the Putnam situation and obtain further financia laid. He will return here after the conference and remain here until the present situation is cleared up, even though it endures for six months or longer, he said.

Outwardly there was no change in the situation, during Wednesday.

A Putnam young man—W. J. F. Rafferty of this city, a son of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Rafferty, will be included in the class to be graduated from the United States Naval academy at Annapolis next month, on June 7. Mrs. Rafferty and Miss Elisabeth Rafferty will spend commencement week at Annapolis and Mr. Rafferty will be there for the commencement exercises.

Ensign Rafferty will return here with his parents for the remainder of June and then will join the Utah, which will be at Boston throughout the summer period, a fact that will allow of Ensign Rafferty spending week-ends at his home here.

Four cases were disposed of at Wednesday morning's session of the city court, Judge M. H. Geissler presiding. Arthur Paries, Pierre Patren and Joseph Salvas were each fined $20 and costs of $10.14 for having been intoxicated. A charge that they engaged in a three-cornered fight from which all emerged more or less battered Sunday evening was not pressed against them. Francis Noel, also charged with having been intoxicated, was fined $20 and costs. It appeared for a time as though Noel would have to go to jail as he was short of funds, but he managed to raise the required amount and was permitted to go his way.

Three more cases that have been pending will be disposed of, it is now arranged, at next Monday's session of the city court.

The decision of the Windham county members of the legislature to delay the expansion and improvement program at the County Home for Children in this district for another year did not come as a surprise to many citizens who have been making a study of the project. Building costs are too high at present to enable the county commissioners to carry out their improvement plan within the appropriation of $25,000 that was made available for the work. It is understood that the same arrangement for schooling the children that exist at present through co-operation with the town of Putnam will be continued during the coming school year.

One of the large weddings planned for this territory during June will be that of Miss Mary Elliott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dexter Elliott of Thompson, and Charles Van Brunt Cushman of Washington, D. C., and Pomfret, at Thompson on June 26. Rev. John N. Lewis, rector of St. John's church, Waterbury, will perform the marriage ceremony. Miss Frances Elliott, sister of the bride, is to be maid of honor and the bridesmaids Miss Harriet Roger of Boston, Miss Josephine Jenks, Providence, Miss Mae Rosamund of Boston Miss Boocook and Miss Anne Sullivan of New York, Miss Mary Bulkeley of Detroit, Miss Birch Warner of New Haven, Miss Josephine Choate of Southboro, Mass., and Mrs. Geoffrey Smith of Philadelphia.

Mr. Cushman is a son of Dr. Allerton Cushman and the late Mrs. Cushman and a grandson of Mrs. Courtland Hoppin of Pomfret. He is a member of the class of 1925 at Harvard university.

The following is relative to what appears to be the sequel in a case that has been of special interest to Putnam people, because one of the prominent figures in an affair that claimed wide attention in Boston was married here a few years ago—Clarence E. Foster, who has been Mrs. Nichols' chauffeur.

A reconciliation between John H. Nichols of Wellesley, a wealthy Boston wool broker, and his wife, Ruth Buckingham Nichols, is looked forward to by relatives and close friends before the cross petitions of father and mother seeking custody of the three Nichols children are heard in Norfolk probate court today.

Today Mrs. Nichols will see her three little ones at their father's home in Wellesley. It will be the first meeting of the mother and children since Mr. Nichols took the two girls, Barbara and Peggy, from the mother following an exciting battle at Camp Margaret, Bellerica, ten days ago.

Mrs. Nichols claims that she will not return to her husband. Attorneys for Nichols say that there is no chance for a reconciliation, but despite the assertions of both sides it is known that there was a conference between attorneys held before the master in called before Judge McCoole in the probate court today. It is believed that the strongest arguments on both sides will be brought to bear in an effort to effect a reconciliation. The intense desire of both husband and wife to secure the custody of the children is believed to be the point on which a reconciliation will be based.

This is the case in which Mr. Nichols charged undue intimacy between Mrs. Nichols and Clarence E Foster, their chauffeur, who was married here in Putnam in 1917 to Miss Aline Samuelson, and was inducted into the military service by the local board the same year.

The Crompton Knowles Loom Works at Worcester have recently presented the trade school a set of cards for new design in jacquard weaving. The design was originated at the schobl.

The variety of experiences received by students in this department includes instruction in plain loom weaving, jacquard loom operation, spinning, yarn calculations, to say nothing of the numerous elementary processes and related subjects involved in textile manufacture. The school is fortunate in having a special equipment of testing machines and instruments and as the instruction is very practical, this point being stressed among all textile schools throughout the country and especially the New Bedford school, which is insisting upon actual mill conditions for all instruction, it is thought that the textile department of the trade school is meeting the educational needs in this textile manufacturing community.

Carpentry department boys have begun work on the garage for the Quinnitisset Country club. They expect to complete this work in about two weeks.

The school has been fortunate in securing work for training its students from the Crompton Knowles Loom Works at Worcester, consisting of four special jigs. These tools must be built in accordance with very definite specifications and will be used in the manufacture of looms by the Crompton Knowles Works. This is not ordinary machine work but tool-making of a very high order and the boys training on this type of work will be certainly qualified to carry on successfully at the trade. Patterns for the work were made by the Torrington Trade School and castings turned out by the local foundry.

The electrical department has a splendid enrollment and a wide variety of experience provided for the boys, including house wiring, special apparatus installation and especially good work has been done in motor re-winding, the boys having successfully re-wound several motors and this work involves a great amount of skill and general electrical information in the proper setting of coils and making of connections.

Special emphasis is being laid on mathematics and drawing as related to the trades taught at the school and it is hoped to establish a minimum standard of requirements for academic studies in the various trades. This is arrived at by proper analysis of the subject and what academic knowledge is particularly required in the respective trades.

Boys soon to graduate from the school are John J. Farrell of Pomfret in the machine course, and Clinton B. Smith of Elliotts in the electrical course.

At the present time the school can by no means supply the demand for graduates of the various courses.

You don't need to bother with bar soap any more

The hardest part of washday—rubbing, rubbing with bar soap. Extra rubbing on the dirtiest places. Heavy rubbing of the wet clothes on the washboard. What a cruel drudgery it is!

Today you don't have to go through all that back-breaking, hours-long labor. A new kind of soap is freeing women from washday drudgery.

With this new soap—Rinso—soaking takes the place of hard rubbing. Just soaking the clothes loosens the dirt and a thorough rinsing leaves things white and shining as you never could get them before.

Only spots where the dirt is actually ground-in such as neckbands, cuff edges, and so on, will need a light rubbing with a bit of dry Rinso. Then these obstinate spots disappear.

You don't have to change any of your washday habits with Rinso. Just use it wherever you used to use bar soap—for soaking, for boiling, or in washing machines.

Rinso is made by the makers of Lux, the largest soapmakers in the world. Get Rinso today. It comes in two sizes—the regular size and the big new package: At all grocery and department stores.

NEW LONDON POLICE ROUNDING UP AUTOMOBILE LAW VIOLATORS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 24.—New London autoists should begin to realize that the New London police intend to enforce the ordinance relative to parking on Bank street. If they do not realize that there is to be no parking on the east side of the street after 6 o'clock in the evening, they will be compelled to contribute to the city treasury.

Although a number of autoists have already been fined, two more were ordered to appear in the police court tomorrow morning when patrolmen on the Bank street beat detected cars that had been parked over a half hour in the restricted territory. The owners of the cars were John Manier of No. 43 Riverview avenue and B. N. Hansen, a chief petty officer from the submarine base. To make the latter's trouble double greater, Hansen did not possess an operator's license, making the excuse for this law violation because of having changed his clothing and neglecting to transfer the license to the suit he wore when he reported at the police station.

The police have been called upon numerous times of late to investigate reported thefts, and in most instances the articles reported to have been stolen were not taken away by a thief, but were mislaid by the owner.

Today Charles H. Smith reported that a set of lead pipe thread cutters had been stolen from his place of business. After an investigation had taken place, and with no tangible results being obtained, the owner reported that the article had been recovered and had not been stolen.

Frederick W. Mercer, J. P. Taylor Armstrong and Theodore Bodenwein, who recently purchased the Williams property at the corner of State and Huntington streets, have asked for bids for the removal of the structure. It is planned, as already stated, to remove the residence and then cause the tract to be divided into 18 or 20 sites for stores. It is safe to predict that there will be no stores erected on the site for a year or more, for it will require the best part of the summer to remove the structure, grade off and get the tract into the number of parcels called for on the blue print prepared by the owners.

Miss Barker, registry clerk at the postoffice has resumed his duties after having been confined to his home a week with illness.

Dr. M. [illegible] of Groton, with offices in this city, has resumed his practice after having been incapacitated several days by illness.

The Day nursery was enriched the past 48 hours $317 through the generosity of theatregoers. Last night at the Lyceum theatre ladies connected with the nursery passed through the audience before the rise of the curtain on the opening act and received $149. At the Capitol theatre the night before the audience turned $168 into the receptacles handled by the ladies.

Nonswantuc tribe of Red Men are planning to hold a big class initiation in their lodge rooms on Bank street on Tuesday evening, June 26th. The tribe has invited Tountonemoc tribe of New Haven to send the latter's degree team to New London on that date to exemplify the adoption degree. The class to receive the degree will be candidates from Norwich, Westerly and Essex.

Mrs. Mary Hampton Bedell died this morning at the residence of her son, Charles H. Bedell, of No. 349 Ocean avenue. Mrs. Bedell was 86 years of age and the widow of Edwin Bedell. She had long resided with her son, who is electrical contracting engineer in the employ of the New London Ship and Engine company.

Mrs. Robert Graham of Waterford, Dr. Louis Allyn of Mystic and Terrence Saunders of Ocean avenue, patients at Lyons Memorial Associated hospital, were able to return to their respective homes today.

Dr. S. B. Gibbs is the latest victim of automobile thieving. The physician attended the performance at a theatre last evening and during his stay in the playhouse he left his machine parked off Washington street and in the rear of the home of the National Bank of Commerce. While Dr. Gibbs enjoyed the performance a thief visited his automobile and stole a spare tire valued at about $50.

A real estate owner who has erected many houses in this city prior to the year 1923 says he now finds that the buildings he puts up must be supplied with garages or he cannot rent them. "In my boyhood days in New London," he said today, "there were not a dozen horses kept by individual owners for pleasure driving, while now there are thousands of automobiles, many of them owned and operated by workmen in the trades that are not supposed to pay high wages. Brakemen on the railroads, carpenters, printers and other tradesmen sport their cars, and still they are asking for higher wages. Their employers cannot afford cars, either."

Mrs. Elizabeth K. Fowler, wife of Thomas Fowler of No. 331 Ocean avenue, died this morning at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, following an operation she underwent a week ago. Mrs. Fowler was of advanced years and until a few weeks ago, she enjoyed apparent sound health.

Mrs. Fowler conducted a boarding house and catered to select patronage.

Mrs. Thomas May and baby of Reed street, Miss Gertrude Leiter of Bank street, Cadet Stetson of the United Coast Guard Academy, Lawrence Balade of North Bank street, Elizabeth Caldwell of Waterford, Miss Mary Pascetelli of Bank street, Mrs. Henry Holt, employed at Pleasure Beach, Cadet Marron of the United States Coast Guard Academy and Mrs. Benjamin Middleman and baby of Middletown, were patients discharged at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital today. Mrs. Middleman was formerly Miss Sadie Hendle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip J. Hendel of Broad street.

Rudolph Morris, a member of the crew of one of several craft that are undergoing repairs at the Thames Towboat company's plant at Riverside and who sustained severe sprain to his ankle last evening by falling between two boilers in the shipyard, will be able to leave Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital during the present week. An X-ray of the injured limb today revealed that none of the bones were broken.

Fire Chief John Stanners has decided upon the location for the additional fire alarm boxes that are to be installed about the city and as soon as the boxes arrive in New London no time will be lost in putting them in position and making them ready for sending in alarms. The locations are all important ones, for three of the four boxes to be installed will be located at public buildings, where hundreds of adults and children are continually housed. One of the boxes, No. 58, will be located on Ocean avenue, near Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital; another, No. 55 at the corner of Alger street and Riverview avenue, where a new school house is to be erected; a third, 47, will be placed on Montauk avenue, in front of Nameaug school, while a fourth, No. 313, will be located at the corner of Green and Golden street. With the new boxes in working order, the city will be supplied with 57 boxes.

Abel P. Tanner has sold a house and lot on Huntington street to Rose Brax.

An automobile, owned and operated by Kenneth B. Avery of No. 185 Main street and a machine, owned and driven by Ernest Daboll of Groton, were in collision this forenoon at the corner of State and Union street. No damage of consequence resulted from the crash.

In order to have the police properly armed in case of an emergency, Police Captain Charles A. Pinney today issued orders that all of the cartridges be taken from the revolvers of the sergeants and patrolmen and replaced with new ammunition. The order was given because of the discovery of some of the cartridges possessed by several of the patrolmen being useless because of their age.

All of the trolley cars of the Shore Line Street Railway company being operated between New London and Keeney's corner, Golden Spur, were taken from the line this morning, and buses put on the route. The buses are of the latest type and will have a terminal with the buses of other lines in the block between North Bank and Potter street, on the east side.

Following repeated complaints to the health department the past 48 hours because of the body of a dead horse being allowed to remain on Archer court since Sunday, when the animal was shot after it had collapsed, the department today caused the carcass to be removed to Waterford and disposed of. The animal was owned by a man named Stapling but neither the owner nor Health Officer Bingham N. Pennell could obtain labor to remove the body until this afternoon.

Two alleged violators of the automobile laws will be arraigned in the police court Saturday morning. One of them to tell his story to Judge Prince is David Alter of No. 96 Montauk avenue, who was complained against last Saturday by John G. Arnold of Broad street, who alleges that while alighting from a trolley car on Broad street Alter operated his machine past the trolley car at a reckless rate of speed and the complainant had a narrow escape from being run down.

The other alleged offender is Fred O. Johnson of the U. S. S. Camden, who parked an automobile, owned by his mother-in-law, Joseph Shea of No. 13, West Pleasant street, on Massasoit street, opposite the fire house of the Nameaug Engine company. The place where Johnson parked the automobile is restricted against parking by city ordinance as it prevents egress from the fire house of the apparatus in the event of an alarm being sounded.

There is no change today in the condition of Joseph Longo, who was hurt Sunday night by being thrown from an automobile, owned and operated by Joseph Contino of Shaw street, when the automobile collided with a tree on Pequot avenue. Longo is still a patient at Home Memorial hospital suffering among other injuries from a fractured pelvis, five fractured ribs and the partial filling of both lungs with blood.

Contino, who was arrested following the accident, charged with operating an automobile while intoxicated, will be given a hearing in the police court Saturday morning.

WESTERLY

That a new thread manufacturing concern, a New York corporation and licensed under the laws of New Jersey, will locate its plant in Westerly was the announcement made Wednesday morning by a director, H. E. Still of New York city. On Wednesday morning Chilton W. Campbell, chairman of the manufacturing committee of the Board of Trade, accompanied Mr. Still on an inspection trip which included the old Lennox shirt mill on the Connecticut side of the Iron bridge in Stillmanville, at present occupied and also the old Bethel mill in Ashaway in Hopkinton, now being operated by the Mystic Manufacturing Co., in a small way.

Included in the party was J. B. Hale, engineer, of the Textile Engineering Co., of Rhode Island with offices on 43rd street, New York, who had been called by Mr. Still in a consulting capacity. The requirements of the new company was for a mill structure of from 15,000 to 20,000 square feet of floor space and sufficient room about the structure for expansion, which could be bought or leased.

Superintendent Brooks Gerrish of the Ninigret mill, Rockville, piloted the gentlemen through the Lennox shirt mill property. The Ninigret company, will be known in Pawtucket as the new concern desires to settle this week on a site for their plant. Examinations of the Stillmanville mill property showed the building in condition to be very satisfactory, the 15,000 square feet of floor space available. At the conclusion of the visit Engineer Hale, who has been a cotton mill engineering business for many years, said that he had always been most favorably impressed with Westerly as the location for an industrial plant and the more he saw of it the better his favorable impression became. A pleasant feature was the available area for expansion on both the up and down stream ends of the mill. Many questions were asked by Mr. Still on civic, industrial and social conditions and he reported the replies as most favorable.

Visit was then made to the Bethel mill in Ashaway. John Fribbance of Mystic met the party and accompanied them on the inspection trip. Return was made to Westerly and then to Mystic, where the Olneyville plant was considered. The location of such an industrial concern can but add to the industrial activity with its accompaning increase in business along all lines.

Tuesday evening in the vestry of the Pawcatuck Seventh Day Baptist church on Main street was served the 6th anniversary dinner of the Women's League for Christian service. The occasion was presided over by Mrs. Clayton A. Burdick, who has been president of the organization since its inception which followed the dedication of Evangelist Reese. The men were invited to the dinner, consisting of cold ham, escalloped potatoes, pickles, pineapple salad, cake and coffee. During the evening hymns were sung and a talk by Miss Galley, Rensselaer Home, New York, was enjoyed. There was an attendance of more than eighty.

Charles H. Wilcox of 141 West Broad street died Wednesday morning at the Homeopathic hospital in Providence. A week ago Tuesday Mr. Wilcox was operated on for a gland trouble and was reported as progressing favorably toward recovery but complications set in which terminated in his death. Mr. Wilcox is remembered as the faithful tender of the crossing gates at Canal street before the highway was cut down to pass under the railroad tracks. For many years Mr. Wilcox on frequent occasions was able to prevent injuries and loss of life by quick action [illegible] inland.

The annual removal of rubbish in the residential section managed by the Westerly board of Trade began on Tuesday morning. On the Pawcatuck side of the river A. G. Martin has charge and Councilman Farquhar Smith on the Westerly side. That this event is taken advantage of is attested by the presence of much rubbish on the curb line of every residential street. No ashes, paper or garbage is handled but rubbish is carted to the dump lot on Liberty street where it is burned. It is expected that the greater part of a week will be required for the house cleaning.

PLAINFIELD

One of the live wire organizations of this village, the Parent-Teacher association, which so successfully put on the play Springtime a few weeks ago, held its first annual Fathers' night Wednesday evening at the Community house. Allen G. Ireland, M. D., director of physical education in the schools of Connecticut, was the speaker.

The class of '23, Plainfield grammar school, surprised Principal and Mrs. Cecil L. Butler Friday evening with a large May basket. A lively chase ensued until they all were rounded up, after which they went into the house, where games were played.

Several interested athletes from the grammar school, with Principal C. L. Butler, were in Brooklyn at the fairgrounds Saturday attending the county track meet. The town of Plainfield did well, considering the lack of training, to take third place.

Plans are nearly completed for the graded school field day to be held on Tuesday afternoon, May 29th, on the school playground. The program includes gymnastic drills, games, folk dances and athletic events.

Moosup lodge, No. 113, was entertained at a splendid dinner Saturday evening by the ladies of Rebecca chapter of the Eastern Star. After dinner the Masonic lodge was opened in the presence of a large number for the purpose of raising four candidates, the worshipful master, John Rider, presiding. Deputy Jacobsen of Stafford Springs was the guest of honor and made a brief but interesting address on matters pertaining to the order. Samuel N. Brainard and his son, Frank Brainard, past masters of Orient lodge, No. 62, of East Hartford, were guests of the evening. Interesting features of the evening were the brief addresses by Dr. Arthur A. Chase and George Weston on their visit to the ancient quarries of King Solomon under the city of Jerusalem during their recent Oriental cruise. Three unique gavels were presented to the lodge by Dr. Chase and Mr. Weston one made of stone taken from the ancient quarry and the other two of layers of the native wood. These gavels were made in Jerusalem and will be greatly prized by the lodge.

Ray Greene and Clifford Marston were recent visitors in Worcester going by automobile.

Mrs. Edward King has returned from a visit in Cambridge and her mother accompanied her home for a short stay at the inn.

Fielder Wilson of Providence returned home recently after spending a short time with his brother Dr. William E. Wilson.

KIDNEY TROUBLE BECOMES SERIOUS

"Suffered with severe headache, backache and pains in my legs and under my shoulder blade. My kidneys and bladder were in bad condition. I was weak and nervous and felt tired and worn out. Walking made me short of breath. Every morning my face and hands were bloated. Medicines failed to help my condition and doctors advised an operation," writes Maggie Nelson, Moosdale, Pa. "Fortunately I read about Foley Kidney Pills, tried them and got relief." Lee & Osgood Co.

MARKET WAS STRONG.

New York, May 23.—Prices continued their upward course at the opening of today's stock market in response to further short covering and a moderate amount of new buying atracted by the recent low prices. The recovery, while generally regarded as a correction of an over-sold condition, undoubtedly was aided by the statement of the advisory council of the federal reserve board setting forth that business conditions were sound and that there was no immediate prospect of an increase in federal reserve bank rates.

The rally was checked in the late dealings, however, by another bear attack on steel shares which was founded on the announcement that the claim of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation for $8,500,000 alleged to be due under war time contracts had been tentatively disapproved by the shipping board's claim committee which was said to have the approval of a majority of the board. Bethlehem Steel which had sold as high as 54 3-8 dropped to 52, a new low record for the year, and then moved back to 52 1-2, where it was off 1 1-2 on the day. Several other popular shares, particularly in the steel and equipment groups, eased in sympathy but the general level of closing prices was higher than that of yesterday although the volume of the sales was considerably lower.

The weekly steel and iron trade reviews report no change in that situation but emphasize that the test of prices is ahead, and that the falling off of structural work as well as in oil field drilling will be factors. Thus far there has been little or no sign of duplicate orders or cancellations.

California Petroleum was one of the outstanding strong spots touching 104 5-8 and then easing off to 103 7-8, when it was up 4 points on the day. The ready absorption of all offerings of this stock indicate accumulation by important interests. Some good buying also was noted in Marlin Oil, which crossed 47 and then eased off to 46 1-2, up 2 on the day. Impressive strength also was shown by General Electric, American Car, Godrich, American Ice, Associated Oil, Austin Nichols, Brown Shoe, Montana Power, Lorillard Tobacco, Sterling Products, Postum Cereal and Jewel Tea preferred, the net gains ranging from 2 to 6 points.

Call money opened and renewed at 4 3-4 per cent, but softened to 4 1-2 before the close. The demand for time money continued quiet with occasional maturities up to four months arranged at 5 per cent, bankers asking 5 1-4 for the longer rates. New commercial paper is being received in fair amount, the bulk of the prime names commanding 5 per cent.

Trading in the foreign exchanges was quiet with Continental selling causing a slight drop in some of the principal rates. Demand sterling held fairly around $4.63 and French francs around 6.66 cents. Norwegian kroner dropped 19 points to 16.05 cents, a new low. German marks advanced slightly to .5019 cents despite the publication of the weekly reichsbank statement showing an increase of nearly 280,000,00,000 marks in circulation, bringing the total in excess of seven trillion marks.

BOND MARKET.

New York, May 23.—Bond prices continued firm in the trading today. All of the active U. S. government bonds registered advances. With the exception of the Mexican issues, which improved in active trading, the foreign group was quiet with price changes relatively small.

There was notable improvement in the demand for railroad mortgages and a majority of those listed on the New York Stock Exchange recorded fractional gains. Among those which gained as much as a point were Seaboard Air Line adjustment 5's, Louisville & Nashville 4's, Chesapeake & Ohio convertible 5's, and Norfolk & Western convertible 6's. Tractions also were in better demand, Kansas City Terminal 4's gained a point.

Trading among industrial liens was not so brisk, but a majority of the list registered moderate gains. Cerro De Pasco Copper 5's jumped 2 points at one time but eased in later dealings and closed up 1-4. Virginia-Carolina Chemical 7 1-2's, with warrants, advanced 1 1-8 and Pierce Arrow 8's were up 1 1-4.

Total sales (par value) were $9,988,000.

COTTON.

New York, May 23.—Cotton—Spot quiet; middling 23.40.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, May 23.—Wheat declined in value today chiefly owing to lack of speculative interest and to slowness of export demand. The market closed unsteady 1-2 to 1 1-4c net lower with July 1.17 1-2 to 1.17 5-8 and September 1.15 3-8 to 1.15 1-2. Corn lost 5-8c to 1 1-8c; oats 1-8c to 3-8c, and provisions 2 to 12c.

Notwithstanding reports of decreased acreage in the northwest and of crop deterioration southwest, the wheat market failed to develop any aggressive buying, and prices finished at almost the bottom figures of the day. Bears had an initial advantage because the Liverpool market had proved unresponsive to yesterday's advance here.

Increased offerings of Argentine wheat for prompt shipment were said to be responsible for the comparative weakness of wheat prices in Liverpool, the Argentine wheat being available on a cheap basis owing to lower freight rates. On the other hand, bears contended that although the domestic crop season is about two weeks late the growth from now on was likely to be rapid under favorable conditions. Under such circumstances and with flour business reported as por, buying power dwindled, and the bulk of wheat trading at the last consisted of spreading operations between here and Winnipeg.

Talk of probable enlarged arrivals of corn here from Iowa had some bearish effect on the corn market. Prices, however, were steadied by a god export demand in the late trading. Oats followed corn.

Lower quotations on hogs weakened the provision market. Considerable selling was done by the small packers.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

Old Brown Horse Wins the Race.

Let me see. In the last story the Old Brown Horse was going for a ride in the Luckymobile with the two little rabbits. That's right. I wasn't quite sure at first whether he was safe in the Luckymobile or not, for it's hard for a horse to climb on the back seat of an automobile without losing one of his iron shoes.

Well, no sooner was he comfortably seated than Uncle Lucky honked the horn and away they went and pretty soon they came to the Fair Grounds where Uncle Lucky bought three tickets. Driving through the big gate, he parked the Luckymobile in a long shed under which the farmers put their horses and wagons.

"Now, You look like a real jockey!"

and then with Little Jack Rabbit and the Old Brown Horse hopped over to watch the horse races.

Pretty soon the Old Brown Horse got so excited that he wanted to go into the race, too. At first, the man who managed the fair wouldn't let him, but the Old Brown Horse begged so hard that at last the man answered:

"If you'll let Little Jack Rabbit ride you in the next race, I'll let you try."

"All right," said the Old Brown Horse, kicking up his heels and neighing, he was so happy, you see.

"Now, you look like a real jockey, and lifting up the little bunny he placed him on the Old Brown Horse, who at once trotted over to the track to wait the other horses until the race started.

Well sir, and well mum! You should have heard the people shout when they saw the little rabbit on the Old Brown Horse. The men threw up their hats and the women waved their handkerchiefs, and Uncle Lucky shouted:

"He's my little nephew bunny,
Watch him win the race,
If he doesn't I'll go home
And never wash my face."

Then the race started. Away went the horses as fast as they could go—all but the Old Brown Horse. He was the last of all and everybody thought he'd be left a mile behind. Maybe some thought he'd turn around and come back but not a bit of it, he just kept right on and by and by he came up close to the leader and pretty soon, not so very long he got ahead and when on the home stretch, he let out his four legs, the first thing everyone knew he had won the race. Wasn't that wonderful? And in the next story you shall hear what they gave Little Jack Rabbit for winning the race.

CONNECTICUT WOODLANDS SHOULD PRODUCE MORE

Woodlands of Connecticut now covering nearly half the state, should be producing five times the amount of wood material they now furnish, and meet a large part of the requirements of the people and industries for wood products, declared Col. Henry S. Graves, dean of Yale Forest school, before a large gathering at the spring field meeting of the Connecticut Forestry association at Middletown Wednesday.

"At present we bring 85 per cent of our wood material from other states paying a freight bill of $3,000,000. Our forests are progressively deteriorating in quality and rate of growth though the actual area of forest is increasing. While our forests should be virtually fire proof, last year there were over 1,900 fires that did a direct damage of over [illegible]

"We need a broader and more effective forest policy, a better tax system that will encourage rather than discourage forestry by private concerns, more extensive state forests that will serve as centers of cooperation with private owners; and we must spend more money on fire protection. 'The outlay on it all will bring large returns in increased land values, in furnishing a strong basis for rebuilding local industries, and in aiding farmers in less fertile sections of the state."

TWO PETITIONING WIVES ARE GIVEN DIVORCES THEY ASKED FOR

Judge George E. Hinman in the superior court here Wednesday morning heard two cases that were on the contested divorce list and granted both divorces to the petitioning wives.

The first heard was the petition of Annie Magura Daniel, formerly of Huntington, this state, against Andrew Daniel of Stonington in which intolerable cruelty was alleged from Jan. 1, 1907. The case was on the list as contested but the defendant did not appear in court in person or by counsel.

Mrs. Daniel testified that they were married May 18, 1901 in Groton and that her husband had kept up his abusive treatment of her for a long time so that as long as twelve years ago she had consulted Attorney B. H. Hewitt about what she could do. She said her husband had struck her and left marks on her, and she had finally been compelled to leave him when she could stand it no longer. Lately he had been annoying her by following her in the streets, and she had moved from Stonington to Mystic to avoid him.

Dr. John K. Bucklyn of Mystic corroborated her testimony as to her physical condition.

Her daughter, Annie, told the judge she had seen her mother struck and had heard her father use bad language. After the couple had once made up and were living together again, she said she had seen her father strike her mother with his fists.

Mrs. Katherine Madras, formerly of Mystic, who had known Mrs. Daniel for several years, testified she had seen marks on Mrs. Daniels' arms and that the woman seems afraid of her husband.

Judge Hinman granted the divorce for intolerable cruelty and gave the mother the custody of three children, aged 18, 13 and 8, whom she has had with her.

In the suit of Regina Ballestrini Pensalfini of New London against Gino Pensalfini of the same place, divorce was granted on the ground of adultery with one Clothilde Franzini and the mother was given the custody of two children, aged 4 1-2 and 2 1-2 years. The father is to be allowed to visit them at suitable times and places.

The couple was married by Justice of the Peace F. J. Lawless in New London on Sept. 1, 1917. Mrs. Pensalfini gave her testimony through an interpreter, Mary Perfredici, and told the court that they lived after their marriage near Fort Trumbull, where she had seen her husband with other women in the sentry boxes. The witness also told of her husband coming home drunk and threatening to kill her.

Victoria M. Foster and Mrs. Ersilia Ballestrini, mother of the petitioner, were witnesses, who corroborated testimony of the petitioner.

Judge Hinman took the papers and handed down his decision later in the day, granting the divorce.

The cases of Minnie T. Wilson and others, exrs., vs. Ezekiel Spitz of New London and Morris Goldberg vs. Rosie Goldberg were withdrawn without costs from the assignment list. The court was informed the matters may be adjusted out of court.

The case of Charles T. Topliff vs Estelle M. Topliff went off for re-assignment.

Court adjourned for the day after a short morning session.

LEGION AUXILIARY BEGINS FLANDERS' POPPIES SALES

The Womans Auxiliary of Robert O. Fletcher Post, No. 4, American Legion, began its annual sale of Flanders poppies Wednesday noon when a representative of the auxiliary visited the meeting of the Norwich Rotary club where the members 100 per cent. strong bought them.

For the past several months, the women have been busy making the poppies by hand rather than to purchase them from concerns dealing in them, fearing that they might find themselves in the same situation as the auxiliaries of Cedar Rapids and Mason City, Iowa, and other cities that purchased them in large amounts for sale for Memorial day only to discover that the poppies were made in Germany.

All funds derived from the sale of the home made poppies will be used by the auxiliary to aid the crippled war veterans, this work having been done to a large extent by the auxiliary during the past year. In Norwich there are disabled veterans or veterans suffering from effects of war in the various hospitals and institutions and in the past year the women of the auxiliary have furnished them with bathrobes, sweaters, reading matter, clothings and many kinds of edibles, all of which have made the life of the unfortunate veterans somewhat brighter.

Beginning today (Thursday) there will be young women of the auxiliary on the street with the poppies for sale, every worker wearing an arm band on which are inscribed the initials A. L. A., reading for American Legion Auxiliary.

The sale of the poppies will continue until Memorial Day and the girls will be found in the Wauregan Hotel, Porteous & Mitchell Co., Reid & Hughes, and other of the mercantile establishments of the city. The auxiliary has also secured the privilege of visiting all local banks and similar institutions.

Over 1500 poppies have been made by the women of the auxiliary during the past few months and it is hoped that the citizens will remember the dead of the World war on Memorial Day by wearing the immortalized Flanders poppy.

STARTS OILING STREETS ON LAUREL HILL

Since the permanent street work was started on Laurel Hill avenue there has been heavy traffic over Winchester, Talman and Spruce streets and residents along these streets have been bothered with the clouds of dust kicked up by the automobiles.

To stop this nuisance Street Commissioner Albert E. Cruthers had his men begin oiling these streets Wednesday. The oiling of the streets will meet with the general satisfaction of everybody.

Work of pouring the cement on Water street is progressing rapidly and the street should be ready for public travel within a couple of weeks. With the coming of warm weather the street commissioner is kept busy repairing streets and laying new streets and will endeavor to have Norwich streets in first class condition before many months have passed.

The winter months were hard on roads in Norwich as well as on those in cities all through New England. Compared with the condition of roads throughout the state the local streets on the average are in good condition. Those that suffered the worst will be worked on as quickly as possible, as soon as funds are available to continue the work.

ROUND TABLE FINAL AND ANNUAL MEETING

The final meeting of their program season was held by the Norwich Round Table Tuesday evening with Mrs. C. C. Gildersleeve of 29 Lincoln avenue. The entertaining program opened with an instructive and thoughtful paper upon The Future of New England, by Rev. Allen S. Bush.

At the intermission the play, How the Story Grew, was given by the same cast as recently presented at an entertainment at the Central Baptist church. Between the acts there were musical numbers, consisting of a violin solo, The Gypsy Dance (Weir) by Reginald Laubin and two solos by Donald Gildersleeve, who sang A May Morning and The Ringers. Miss Caroline B. Freeman was the accompanist.

The annual meeting was also held during the evening. Officers were re-elected as follows: President, Edwin A. Tracy; vice president, William H. Collins; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. John E. Fanning. The following programme committee was elected; John McWilliams, Rev. Allen S. Bush, Miss Caroline B. Freeman, Miss Jennie L. Congdon, Miss Mary G. Henderson, Mrs. A. N. Foster.

HOW A PRESTON FARMER HAS DOUBLED MILK YIELD

Although the census figures show the average milk production of New London county cows to be but 3,600 pounds annually, a Preston Plains farmer more than doubles this average by raising his own heifers. Making one cow do the work of two is his way of meeting the increased costs of dairy farming.

Maplelawn Meadows Farm at Preston Plains is owned and operated by J. Kellogg Hall and his son, Sidney G. Hall. At present they are milking eleven cows and the average production for the herd is 7,359 lbs. of milk in a year. This average has been cut down by the fact that in the past two years the owners have found it necessary to buy cows to replace several well bred animals that were lost when he started to produce milk from a tuberculin-free herd. The average production of the best four cows in the herd was 8,013 pounds of milk last year.

Results at Maplelawn Meadows answer the argument that Connecticut farmers cannot afford to raise their own cows. Less than half of the dairy cows in New London county are raised on the home farm, most of them being brought in from Vermont and other states, where the practice is to keep the best cows at home and sell the less desirable animals in Connecticut and other sections where calves go to the butcher because of the high cost of raising them to maturity.

For twelve years Mr. Hall has kept only pure bred bulls on his farm. They have been such bulls as any farmer can afford to buy. Heifer calves from his pure bred cows are kept on the farm and the milk records he has kept, show the great value of good dairy breeding. Some of his best cows have produced more than 10,000 pounds of milk in a year, practically three times as much as the average New London county cow produces. As it costs little more to feed and care for a good cow than a poor one, the difference in breeding is the chief factor in profit or loss.

"I cannot see how the price of milk can go up now," said Mr. Hall. "Grain prices remain high and the cows must give big yields of milk to pay their upkeep. The cows we buy from dealers are not satisfactory. When you buy good cows from outside, you have to pay big prices and take chances. I don't see how farmers can make a living these days with scrub cows. Milk is low in price, compared to the cost of grain, and only the good cows can return a profit."

By raising his own cows, Mr. Hall expects to reduce the danger of tuberculosis in his herd. He has had the experience, which others in New London county have had, of buying cows from outside the state that had passed the tuberculin test, only to develop the disease some months later. Within the past two years he has lost many of his best cows from this source. He is starting again to build up a purebred herd of his own raising. There are stalls for twenty-six cows in his new barn and except for the losses caused by tuberculosis he would now have use for most of this space.

Milk from Maplelawn Meadows is sold at wholesale on the Providence market. The milk is picked up at the farm daily by truck. Mr. Hall prefers this plan to retailing milk directly to the consumer. Milk tests this winter showed 3.85 per cent butterfat, which is exceptionally high for Holstein milk.

Mr. Hall combines the breeding of Holstein-Freisian cattle with potato growing. It is for potatoes, rather than milk, that Preston Plains is famous. This small valley of a few hundred acres is considered one of the best potato districts in southern New England. There are very few sections of Connecticut that contain more desirable farm lands than does Preston Plains. Mr. Hall is putting out about seven acres of potatoes this year. The combination of dairy farming and potato growing has proved ideal on Maplelawn Meadows.

Of the 150 acres in the farm—about one-third of it is in the smooth, tillable part of the Plains. Mr. Hall successfully grows clover and finds that, with silage, it helps cut the cost of the grain bill.

High producing cows and clover hay are in line with the campaign of the New London Farm Bureau to help lift the dairy industry of the county out of the ruts.

I. J. WILLIS REPORTED NOT SERIOUSLY INJURED

Irving J. Willis of Grant court who was injured Tuesday when his Paige closed car and a one man trolley car collided at the intersection of West Main and Asylum streets is resting comfortably at the Backus hospital.

It was announced Wednesday that he is not suffering from a fractured skull as was first believed Tuesday and that his condition is not considered serious, although the injuries sustained from cuts by flying glass are painful.

CORNER TABLE KNIGHTS CONDUCT ROTARY PROGRAM

An entertaining and unique program was put on at the noonday luncheon of the Norwich Rotary club on Wednesday by a committee dubbed as "The Knights of the Corner Table." Thereby hangs a tale. The Knights of the Corner Table are a group of younger members of the club who have been picked on in weeks back because of their lack of musical ability and have been made the butt of many a good natured joke. But as the old saw goes "every dog has his day" and Wednesday was the day for the Knights of the Corner Table. Revenge is sweet and the knights took plenty of it, evening several old scores.

Frank P. Welch, who was commander-in-chief of the knight presided at the meeting and conducted the programme. "Bunk", as he is called by the Rotarians, was introduced by President Charles A. Saxton, as the new gas and electric commissioner, was received with enthusiasm and immediately started in to get even. Last week a ballot was passed among the members on which were questions regarding the qualifications of the various members of the club, which he described as an inventory showing the assets and liabilities of the club.

The first question on the ballot was "who is the most eloquent member of the club?" Arthur M. Brown was unanimously elected and Mr. Welch called on him to tell the club "How he got that way," referring to Mr. Brown as "the silver-tongued Demosthenes of Jewett City." Art responded with a witty little bit of verse entitled "I am the Lawyer," thereby proving his right to the distinction of being the most eloquent.

The next victim was Lou Wheeler, voted the most original member of the club. Lou responded with an original story and a popular song, "Yes, We Have No Bananas." As Chairman Welch said, Lou was most original as he did not insist on singing the entire 47 verses to the song.

"Bunk" double crossed the rest of the committee in charge of the meeting when he announced that four members of the club were tied for the questionable honor of being the "worst singer." The four he said were tied were J. Lincoln Crawford, James P. Madden, Dick Tarrant and Myles E. Standish, but when the committee counted the ballots the result was unanimous for Bert Gager. However the "Silent Four" sang a delightful old ballad "Sweet Adeline," singing with great expression but with lack of volume, all the vocalists doing their stuff in pantomime. When nearly through there came a most derogatory request from the sorrel-topped head waiter that the singers stop "that awful noise." Again it was a case of "revenge is sweet" for the "Silent Four" had not made a peep when it was expected that they would really do their "worst."

Lew Young who was voted the "best sportsman" told how he had taken up hunting, angling and cow-pasture billiards, simply to take the place of his "daily dozen." Grosvenor Ely, voted the "handsomest man," told of the advantage of systematic use of cosmetics and astringents, etc., when called upon to deliver a talk on "The Effect of Daylight Saving on That Skin I Love to Touch."

Ex-Mayor Leroy who was tied with Mayor Milo R. Waters for the "most public-spirited member" spoke in a more serious vein and urged that it was the duty of every citizen to take an active interest in public affairs and that it was no one man's duty but everyone's. Chairman Welch in announcing the result of the election of Bert Lerou said that all the republicans voted for Mr. Leroy and all the democrats for Mayor Waters.

E. Howard Baker was the choice for the "greatest social light" and said that while proud of the distinction, it was sometimes more or less of a trial to be so lionized. Joseph C. Worth, the "luciest man" spoke for himself and George W. Carroll, who ran him a close second with Charlie Wells, in third place. Charles A. Saxton was voted the "most popular" and Secretary Joseph N. Weymouth was voted the "Best Rotarian." Both spoke in a serious vein regarding matters of Rotary and attendance.

All credit for the entertainment is due to Chairman Welch for it was he that thought out the whole programme rather than members of the committee. James P. Madden furnished the cigars for the meeting.

At the business session, notice of the field day to be held at the Connecticut Agricultural college on July 19th was read and a sub-committee from the local club will be appointed by President Saxton. It was voted by the club to comply with the request of the Hartford club to make a donation for a most worthy cause.

It was also announced that there would be practice for the baseball team on Friday evening at 6.30 at the Academy campus and those who do not show up can consider themselves fired.

SEEKING DIVORCE FROM WIFE IN NEW HAVEN

Ralph O. Bump of New London has brought suit in the superior court here for divorce from Alma Wells Bump, now of New Haven, whom he married Sept. 19, 1917. He alleges unfaithfulness at New Haven and elsewhere between Jan. 1, 1920, and May 8, 1923, with persons unknown to him. He asks the custody of children aged 4 and 3 years. The suit is returnable in June.

Fined in Police Court

In the city court Wednesday morning a Danielson man paid $3 for failure to obey city traffic laws. Ralph Muchalkiwicz who was found Tuesday night sleeping in a freight car on the West Side is being held for the Cheshire authorities, as he is a parole violator of that institution, having been committed for breaking into a place in Hartford. He is 18 years of age and his parents reside in Versailles.

An officer from Cheshire came here Wednesday afternoon and took the young man back there.

Hike and Picnic at Park.

The Okiya Camp Fire of Park church entertained the Bluebirds with a hike and picnic at Mohegan park, Tuesday evening. About fifty girls enjoyed the hike and eats. The girls were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Louis H. Walden, Mr. and Mrs. Benedict Pullen and Miss Mary Tirrell.

A petition signed by about 125 residents of New Haven requesting the reappointment of Dr. Stephen J. Maher to the state tuberculosis commission was presented to Governor Templeton Tuesday. The petition says Dr. Maher "has devoted the best part of his life to the cause."

TIBBETTS LETTER RUMORS ARE PROVED GROUNDLESS

Another one of the flock of rumors that has cropped up in the Tibbetts case since his mysterious disappearance from his Pitchville farm on the night of April 9 came to the light of day Wednesday and like many of the others was found to be groundless.

It was reported that letters had been received from some point in Ohio by Michael Shea of Yantic and Michael Ahearn of Thamesville, threatening them with something the same as William Tibbetts got unless they stopped activity in searching for him.

Mr. Shea, who is a section foreman for the Central Vermont road, was seen at his work at Yantic Wednesday, and questioned about receiving such a letter. He said he had heard the rumor but had received no letter.

Mr. Ahearn, who is a rural free delivery carrier, had also received no such letter, according to a statement made by his brother, who said he had also heard the rumor and had questioned his brother about it.

PRESIDENT MILLERAND REFUSED TO ACCEPT THE RESIGNATION OF PREMIER POINCARE

M. Poincare Resigned After the Senate, Sitting as a High Court, Had Decided That It Was Incompetent to Bring Marcel Cachin and Other Communists to Trial—President Maintains That the Vote of the Senate Was Purely Judicial and Without Political Effect.

Paris, May 24.—(By the A. P.)—Premier Poincare and his colleagues in the cabinet submitted their resignations today to President Millerand, but the latter declined to accept them. The action of the ministers was the result of the action of the senate sitting as a high court in the trial of Marcel Cachin and other communists charged with crimes against the French state. The ministers informed the president that they interpreted the senate's decision as proof of want of confidence which made it impossible to fight against communism.

The ministry remains in office, however, and holding that the senate's vote was purely juridical and without political effect.

Before the meeting of the cabinet was called a council of ministers was held at the premier and president Millerand left subsequently for Elysee palace. The resignations in the form of a letter relative to the action of the senate sitting as a high court in the trial of Marcel Cachin and other communists, were presented to the president following the decision of the court declared itself incompetent; the question of competency was referred to a committee; which found the court competent.

The cabinet then met and in the negative on the two questions, the vote being 464 to 104.

It was then taken the high court's decision in submitting the matter before the chamber of deputies, a matter reserved for the latter, hence if is not necessary for the court to proceed with the trial. The case against M. Cachin and the others should therefore be sent before a competent body for trial.

The decision followed a particularly stormy session in which his opponents brought out the unprecedented measures taken in the senate.

The premier was more surprised than the chamber, which after the chamber had decided to prepare to attend a reception at the Elysee palace in honor of Premier Poincare, when M. Colrat learned that the senate had dashed to the Elysee where M. Poincare was dining and told him that, as minister of justice, urged the cabinet before the high court vote amounted to a censure, and he was bound to resign.

The premier replied that in his opinion the senate's decision involved the entire cabinet, it having been called to repress communism.

After a discussion the ministers left the premier's view, Poincare and handed in the joint resignation.

The senate argued that it was the senate was the senate's capacity and that it could be considered in the light of votes in the bench and not be considered as votes of confidence of the government's general policy. He therefore declined to accept the resignations.

It is expected that the general policy of the government will be raised in the senate at the earliest opportunity through interpellations, and no one doubts what the result will be. There the matter rests for the moment. But President Millerand is so confident his view is correct that he will leave as planned to morrow night for a visit to Alsace-Lorraine.

Premier Poincare has been at the head of the French ministry since January 15, 1922, when he succeeded Aristide Briand. M. Poincare's direction of foreign affairs has been marked by unusual firmness toward Germany, the occupation of the Ruhr being carried out under his desertion.

This policy has led to much opposition from elements in Great Britain and other allied countries as well as in France. A debate has been in progress in the French chamber of deputies during the last few days relative to the Poincare policy in the Ruhr. This has been marked by bitter attacks from the socialist element, to which M. Poincare has maintained that the Ruhr occupation would be unswervingly carried out.

POINCARE DETERMINED TO COLLECT REPARATIONS

Paris, May 24.—(By the A. P.)—Premier Poincare once again told the chamber of deputies today that France would not reduce her share of reparations due from Germany except insofar as inter-allied war debts were cancelled and repeated the determination of the government to remain in the Ruhr until France's share was paid. A precedent for such actrom, he said, was furnished by the Germans themselves, who remained in France after the war of 1871 until the last centime indemnity was paid.

The premier declared that conditions in the Ruhr so far as they concerned operation of the railroads and transportation of seized products were improving. He denied that reduced deliveries of coal and coke were seriously crippling the French iron trade and asserted that France was in a position to wait as long as Germany was disposed to.

The premiers declaration made a marked impression on the chamber, and many of the deputies wanted a vote immediately on appropriations for the Ruhr occupation, but M. Tardieu, M. Herriot and other deputies, who were listed for speeches, demanded a continuation of the discussion, which was put over until tomorrow.

M. Poincare added that, if the occupation was prolonged and if further pledges were seized, it was only because of the Germans' attitude. He denied that th Ruhr occupation had so reduced the coke and coal deliveries to France as to endanger French industry, and added,

"We can wait as long as necessary, and we shall stay in the Ruhr until the Germans come to terms. If they want to prolong the occupation and provoke further penalties they have only to prolong their resistance."

STRIKE AT DORTMUND CONTINUES TO SPREAD

Dortmund, May 24.—(By the A. P.)—The strike here continues to gain ground. Many mines have been shut down, making a total closed. The woodworkers also have struck and at three mines the electric workers have gone out.

One of the most important of the measures issued in appeals to workers to remain loyal to the republic and the German government appeal says the Moscow agents have begun systematic agitation in the Ruhr in an effort to embitter the labor organizations against the government declares that if the bolshevist movement in the Ruhr should gain strength in the Ruhr this would have a tendency to benefit the plans of soviets and weaken the unions.

The Germans today used a mine thrower against one of the locks of the Rhine canal. The detonation was audible in Bochum causing much excitement, owing to the prevailing state of the inhabitants over the damage done by the explosion two days ago.

The communists who are active here are unemployed men, but are controlling against the high prices existing. The city officials at Gelsenkirchen assert that there are only a few men out of work there, and that the leaders in the disturbances were sent from outside the Gelsenkirchen district.

PRISON SENTENCE FOR AUTO THIEF SINGER

Bridgeport, Conn., May 24.—George E. Singer, who pleaded guilty to a charge of automobile stealing in the superior court this morning, was sentenced to not less than three and not more than eight years in state's prison by Judge Frank Haines late this afternoon. Singer pleaded guilty to four counts of the charge.

Singer was alleged to have been a member of the gang of automobile thieves led by the Goldy brothers, one of whom, Harold Goldy, committed suicide in his cell yesterday morning, after he had been given a similar sentence in prison.

TEN PERSONS WERE KILLED IN RUHR RIOTS

Berlin, May 24.—(By the A. P.)—Ten persons have been killed and seventy wounded in the fighting here last night and early this morning. Ten persons more are reported to have been killed between the strikers and police at Gelsenkirchen, in the occupied area.

The trouble is said to have ended with an agreement under which a committee, formed of four trade unions, assumes responsibility for the maintenance of order. The Berlin newspapers say the disorders resulted directly from the expulsion from the Ruhr of the German security police.

GOV. TEMPLETON HAS 115 BILLS BEFORE HIM

Hartford, May 24.—While no business of any consequence will be transacted tomorrow in the general assembly, the session will count as a "legislative day" and will give the governor an opportunity to send in any vetoes he may have. In addition by increasing the number of legislative days between now and final adjournment, the legislative leaders are destroying any chance of "pocket vetoes," an action by the governor they are anxious to avoid.

Although Governor Templeton has not intimated that he will veto any of the bills which have been passed, there is doubt about his attitude on several bills which were the center of controversy when they first appeared. Among them is the bill appropriating $100,000 for the construction of a dormitory for the state normal school at Danbury.

Governor Templeton at present is busy on the 115 bills which were sent to him yesterday, most of which were passed some three weeks ago.

Although virtually all legislation of importance has been acted upon, there are still a few bills which are being watched closely.

In the house the pollution bill, which was passed in the senate yesterday, was tabled today and will come up for action next week. The senate has still to consider a bill concerning home rule for towns and cities and a bill providing for transportation of crippled children to and from school.

VOTE TO TAX NATIONAL BANKS IN MASSACHUSETTS

Boston, May 24.—Both branches of the legislature late today passed to be engrossed a bill providing for the taxation of national banks in this state. Final legislative action on the measure was set for tomorrow.

The bill provides that all national banks shall be given back one-third of the taxes which they paid to this state in 1931 and 1923, and that the First National bank of Boston shall be paid $1,500,000 refund for taxes paid under protest during the years 1917 to 1920 inclusive.

In order to meet this expenditure the state treasury will receive taxes from all foreign and domestic business corporations, trust companies, public service corporations, savings banks and individuals who pay a state income tax in any form. This tax will amount to ten per cent of the amount due under the income tax law and in addition to the income tax. Moreover national banks will be assessed at 12 1-2 per cent of their net income. Tax exempt securities held by banks are not excluded in the term net income.

The reimbursements to the banks will amount to about $3,500,000 of which $2,293,328 will be raised by the additional tax of ten per cent, it is estimated.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

For Prohibition in Egypt

Cairo, Egypt, May 24.—The Egyptian premier has promised to submit to parliament a petition handed to him by the American ministers, J. Morton Howell, signed by 6,000 Egyptian women, advocating the prohibition of intoxicating liquors.

NATIONAL FIRE LOSS IN 1922 WAS $522,000,000

New York, May 24.—More rigid prosecution of firebugs, greater vigilance against insuring bad risks, continued education of the public toward elimination of costly carelessness about fire hazards, and the application of uniform commission rates for agents in all states were urged today by speakers before delegates from 157 companies attending the National Board of Fire Underwriters' annual convention.

Harry A. Smith of the National Insurance Company, Hartford, was elected president; Neitt S. Bartow of the Queen's Insurance Company, this city, vice president; Norman T. Robertson of the Continental Insurance Company, this city, treasurer; and Sumner Vallard of the International Insurance Company, this city, treasurer.

The increasing menace of incendiarism or "arson and burning for profit" was reported upon by Waite Bliven, who cited that 332 persons, many of them members of organized bands of fire setters, had been arrested in the last year. Of 256 already tried, 161 have been convicted, he said.

Private insurance organizations are being joined by federal, state and local officials in a concentrated effort which, according to Mr. Bliven, promises the dismemberment of arson rings known to be operating in many cities.

Arson helped in 1922—along with carelessness and the low fire resisting qualities of flimsy structures—to pile the national loss up to $522,000,000, a new record, J. B. Morton, retiring president, reported. The rate per capita was $4.75 as compared with 75 cents in Great Britain, he said.

Francis R. Stodard, New York state superintendent of insurance, and Joseph Dutton, insurance commissioner of Virginia, advocated abolition of varying rates for agents in each state, and the establishment of a national rate fixing board.

MORSE COUNSEL STILL EXAMINING FINNINGER

Washington, May 24.—Another staggering array of figures was presented today to the jury at the Morse trial as counsel continued their examination of Norman C. Finninger, a government expert accountant, who had presented an analysis of the expenditures on the first payment of $360,000 made to the Groton Iron Works on account of a contract for twelve wooden hulls for the emergency fleet corporation.

The defense scored what it considered an important point in a ruling by Justice Stafford, over objections by government counsel, that it could question the witness as to the commitments made for materials for the 12 hulls on July 1, 1917, fifteen days after the contract was awarded. Such commitments did not appear on Finninger's statement, but he said the records showed that they had been made for lumber for the 12 hulls.

Counsel for the defense contended that the $360,000 payment was made on account of these commitments for material and that under the wording of the contract the builder was not to be held accountable for the uses to which this fund might be put. Finninger's statement set forth that all except $11,043 of the $360,000 had been spent for "private work," including general betterments and overhead.

Because of objection by District Attorney Gordon the taking of the deposition of William G. McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury, was deferred today until his return early next week from Geo—.

Mr. McAdoo, who was an attorney for the Virginia Shipbuilding Corporation after he retired from President Wilson's cabinet, has been summoned as a witness for the defense.

THREE MOTOR BOATS CAPTURED ON RUM ROW

New York, May 24.—The coast guard cutter Seminole, under command of Captain E. S. Addison, today brought in three motor boats captured on Rum Row off the New Jersey coast. One of the boats contained a large quantity of liquor but the others were empty.

According to the officers of the Seminole the liquor-laden craft, the K1712, was alongside the French auxiliary schooner Gerberviller said to be the first French member of the rum fleet.

When the Seminole bore down on the French craft her crew promptly cut the motor boat adrift. She was picked up several hundred yards from the schooner.

The motor boat K16723, was also alongside the schooner. The one man on the craft was taken on board the Seminole and his boat hooked on to the cutter, which then steamed to the British schooner Thorndyke, where the Dollie A., a substantial looking motor craft, was found moored. Two men were arrested, but no liquor was found.

The three men will be arraigned tomorrow.

RESIDENTS OF ECORSE DERIDE "RUM" STORIES

Detroit, May 24.—Residents of Ecorse, a suburb of Detroit, on the Detroit river, are expressing great amusement over a statement made in a Chicago newspaper to the effect that the village is becoming prosperous through the activity of rum runners, that 100,000 gallons of beer and liquor is being smuggled across from Ontario into the United States in each twenty-four hours, and that "a row of cottages and boathouses four miles long in the vicinity of Ecorse" is the base of these operations.

The corporate limits of Ecorse extend exactly two and one-half miles along Detroit river. All but about one-half mile of the waterfront is marshland, so that no houses can be built upon it. The remaining shore line extends for exactly six city blocks in the form of a horseshoe.

Four Women Burned To Death in Cottage

Three Sisters Sacrificed Their Lives in an Attempt to Rescue Their Aged Mother at Mountain Park, Md.

Mountain Lake Park, Md., May 24. Mrs. Mary O'Connor, aged 94, and her three daughters, who arrived this morning for a summer vacation met death when burning leaves ignited accumulated gas in the cottage occupied by Mrs. O'Connor. The three daughters were some distance from the cottage when the explosion occurred. When they reached the building it was a mass of flames. Disregarding their own safety the daughters rushed into the cottage in an attempt to rescue their mother. They never came out.

The dead, besides Mrs. O'Connor, who lived at Clarksburg, W. Va., are: Miss Kate O'Connor, Clarksburg. Mrs. Jett Grannon, Fairmont, W. Va. Mrs. Mary E. Rooney, Clarksburg. When rescuers removed the four bodies from the ruins late today, $25,000 in gold was found hidden in the chimney. It was turned over to authorities.

ARE STILL SEEKING A BRITISH CHANCELLOR

London, May 24.—(By the A. P.)—Whatever plans Premier Baldwin may have had for reuniting the conservative party in the formation of his new cabinet by bringing in Sir Robert Horne, Austen Chamberlain and others, they apparently have miscarried. Mr. Baldwin is still seeking a chancellor of the exchequer, and Mr. Chamberlain, who was reported to have arrived in London last night, is still in Paris and has seemingly no present intention of joining the government.

The court returns to London tomorrow and the king will hold a council, at which the prime minister will submit his cabinet list. This is said to be completed and is practically identical with Mr. Bonar Law's ministry, with the addition of Lord Robert Cecil as chancellor of the Duchy Lancaster.

A temporary solution of the chancellor difficulty, according to the most authoritative reports tonight, is that Mr. Baldwin himself will combine the premiership with the exchequer portfolio. The budget has already been adopted, so for a few months the double office would entail little extra work, and it seemingly is the hope that Sir Robert Horne may yet be persuaded to accept the portfolio.

Sir Robert was in consultation with Premier Baldwin today, so it may assumed that his refusal to join the government is not altogether final. Parliament will reassemble Monday without any special ceremony incident to the change in the premiership.

The meeting of the conservative party to confirm Mr. Baldwin in the leadership of that party has been set for Monday; invitations have been extended to Sir Robert Horne, Lord Birkenhead, Mr. Chamberlain and other dissidents. Lord Curzon will plead for the unity of the party and express his loyalty to Premier Baldwin.

SENTENCED FOR CONSPIRACY TO DEFRAUD THE GOVT

Philadelphia, May 24.—Ten defendants, including Matthew P. Griffin, former secret service operative in Philadelphia; Harold L. Smith, export broker and former intercollegiate sprint champion, and Dr. George I. Kherilla of New York, were sentenced to prison today for conspiracy to defraud the government. They were convicted last March on a charge of plotting to substitute water for whiskey and alcohol which was to have been shipped to Greece.

Griffin was sentenced to six months in the Mercer county prison at Trenton, Smith to a year and one day in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., and Dr. Kherilla to six months in the Atlanta prison. Other defendants and their sentences were John McTamney and Herbert Simon, former employes of Griffin's private detective agency, six months; Martin Levy, eight months; Lewis Levy and Samuel Gottesfeldt, five months each, and Joseph Kleinman, three months. The Levy and Kleinman were truckmen and Gottesfeldt proprietor of a warehouse.

With the exception of Smith, Hamil and Kleinman, who pleaded guilty, the defendants announced they would take their case to the United States court of appeals. Bail for the other seven was fixed at $5,000 each.

SPANISH LINE TO CEASE ALL AMERICAN SAILINGS

New York, May 24.—The Spanish Royal Mail Steamship Line, operating between Barcelona and New York has ordered discontinuance of all American sailings, Luis Ilanso, local agent for the company, announced tonight. The discontinuance was ordered because of the recent supreme court decision forbidding foreign vessels from bringing liquor into American territorial limits, he said.

All ships will be diverted to Havana and Vera Cruz after that date, Llanso said.

"The company decided to cancel sailings because of the conflict between American and Spanish laws," said Llanso. "The Spanish laws require us to carry liquor for the use of crews, but the American laws forbid us to bring it within its territorial limits."

Views on Merger of New Eng. Railroads

President Pearson of New Haven Road Declares Road Has Fair Chance as Single System.

Washington, May 24.—Two presidents of New England railroads—James H. Hustis of the Boston and Maine and E. J Pearson of the New York, New Haven and Hartford—today laid their views on railway consolidation before the interstate commerce commission.

Differing with the government's tentative plans, Mr. Hustis asked the commission to leave open several alternatives in proposing consolidation plans for his road so that its stockholders and users might have opportunity to make the best adjustment possible.

Mr. Pearson, while of the opinion that his road might be left by itself, expressed, with qualifications, approval of the government's plan of putting all New England lines into one system. The Boston and Albany, now a part of the New York Central system, while the Lehigh and New England and the Lehigh and Hudson, which the commission proposes to put into the New England group, should be left outside.

With E. C. Buckland, vice president of the New Haven, Mr. Pearson went into a discussion of the system's financial condition, after expressing his general conclusion that the road had a fair chance to earn satisfactory returns as a single system.

As to a consolidated New England system along the lines he proposed, Mr. Pearson said that it would "perform distinct territorial service" and give New England free opportunity of access to sea and water routes.

Mr. Buckland, drawn into a discussion of the New Haven's corporate deficit of $22,000,000, said this would be "turned into a substantial surplus after proper valuation" of the road's property. Its Central Vermont line, its leased lines generally and its physical property, he asserted in responding to questions from Commissioner Eastman, will work out to give it treasury valuations than the present book figures.

FORMER MANHASSET EMPLOYES GIVEN JAIL SENTENCES

Putnam, May 24—Sentences of [illegible] days in jail were imposed by Judge M. H. Geissler at a session of the city court Thursday afternoon on [illegible] former employes of the Manhasset Company, who went out when the union called a strike a little more than two weeks ago, or who were left out when the mill closed down and reopened under a lockout arrangement, in effect. Execution of the sentences were suspended for a period of [illegible] months, however, and the defendants [illegible] their reappearance in court.

Two men—James Tarpy, Rosario Breault, Louis Flagg, Lewis Caisse, Henry Bousquet and Arthur Diotte—were charged with having indulged in acts regarded as in the nature of intimidation. Testimony showed that groups of from 40 to 119 of the former employees of the mill company had made daily walks past the plant when employes were going in or coming out from work, that these walkers crowded the sidewalks and obliged some of the workers to leave the walks and go out into the streets. There was also evidence that in one instance names had been called a worker and that some workers had been followed home from work.

Judge Geissler in commenting on the [illegible] his opinion that the acts complained of constituted a technical violation of the law and imposed the sentences. These were appealed from by Attorney Arthur S. Macdonald, representing the defendants in a very able way, on behalf of his clients.

VERDICT AGAINST CHARLES B. MANVILLE

New York, May 24—A Supreme court jury late today awarded Dr. Alonzo E. Austin $21,000 with interest, in his suit against Charles B. Manville, aged asbestos manufacturer, based on notes which Dr. Austin claimed to have signed to accommodate Manville.

Manville's counterclaim for 20,000 based on an allegation that Dr. Austin had induced him to invest in worthless oil stock with the aid of a "black art" practitioner, who turned out at the trial to be a spiritualist medium, was denied.

The jury spent two and three quarters hours deliberating on the case, returning finally with a verdict for Dr. Austin in the sum of $25,092.50.

Manville's lawyers, who had characterized him as "a rich old man, whose money the gang was after", gave notice of appeal.

CHINESE BANDITS IN PANIC AS GOV'T TROOPS ADVANCE

Government is Determined to Force an Issue in the International Problem Caused Kidnapping of Foreigners—General Connor of the American Troops at Tientsin, is to Head International Commission to Investigate the Bandit Situation.

Shanghai, May 24 (By the A. P.)—Panic seized the bandits of Paotzuku today as Chinese government troops launched a determined advance against the outlaws in an effort to break up their communications and force an issue in the international problem revolving about the kidnapping of foreigners from the Shanghai-Peking Express May 6.

The Peking government's plan to release the captives by force apparently is to be put into operation at once.

The cordon of troops about the Paotzuku stronghold today was tightened in all directions. Messengers traveling to and from the outlaw hill retreat have been stopped. Troops engaged in breaking up all the bandits' lines of communications in an effort to isolate the band that is holding the foreigners.

Chiefs of the brigands are said to be greatly discouraged at the refusal of the diplomatic corps at Peking to deal with them and are reported to be anxious to come to some sort of terms before it is too late to save their own lives.

Fresh parleys are expected to be opened immediately with the Chinese government representatives.

A bandit envoy, accompanied by one of the captives as mediator, is said to have left Paotzuku to reopen negotiations, but so far they have not arrived at Tsao-Chwang.

The outlaws, who are declared to have been pinning their hopes to Chang Tso-lin, dictator of Manchuria, and head of the Fengtien party that was in control at Peking prior to its defeat at the hands of the Chihli party last summer, have been discouraged in that direction as well.

AMERICAN GENERAL TO HEAD INTERNATIONAL COMMISSION

Peking, May 24. (By the A. P.)—Brigadier General William D. Connor, commander of the American troops stationed at Tientsin, will head the international commission which will proceed immediately to Tsao Chwang to investigate the bandit situation, it was announced here today.

The commission, which will be composed entirely of military men, will include the commanding officers of each foreign detachment stationed at Tientsin and the army or navy attaches of those legations at Peking whose nations have no troops in China, but whose nationals are among the captives held by the brigands on Paotzuku mountain. The Japanese government has been invited to name a representative and has accepted.

TROOPS IN BATTLE WITH BANDITS IN THE HILLS

Tsao Chwang, May 25 (By the A. P.).—Gunfire heard near here today is taken to indicate that government troops are engaging the bandits in the hills, or the bandits are fighting among themselves as a result of a disagreement at their conference which was scheduled for today. It was learned today from different sources that the brigands have taken their captives from Paotzuku mountain and have moved them two miles farther back into the hills.

The sudden retirement appears to indicate that the troops, acting under orders from Tsao Kun, inspector general of Shantung, are following the plan advocated by the tuchun of the province to "dig the bandits out."

THOUGHT $1,500 SPURIOUS; TOSSED BILLS OVERBOARD

New York, May 24.—Fifteen hundred dollars in crisp ten-dollar bank notes, which represent somebody's profits on a transaction in liquor that took place some weeks ago on Rum Row, off the Jersey coast, are floating gaily somewhere in the Atlantic, it was learned today when Michael J. Sullivan, former boxing promoter, of Salem, Mass., thought they were counterfeits.

Sullivan, himself once fined $1,000 in Salem for participating in a rum-running venture of the schooner Lorran, but who now describes himself as manager of the Canadian Shipping company—was detained on suspicion of having passed counterfeit bills, when he arrived here in the yesterday on the Homeric after a visit to Glasgow, alleged starting point of rum running vessels for America.

He got the money, $1,800 in all, Sullivan said, as payment for a shipment of freight taken on one of the vessels of his line from Nova Scotia to Scotland. Finding several counterfeits among them, bearing the name of the bank of Ozone Park, Long Island, Sullivan said he made hasty tests of the others, marked "First National Bank of Amityville Long Island," and became convinced that they also were counterfeits.

So he tossed 150 of them overboard, keeping 50 to amuse himself with on the Homeric and to show his friends, as it [illegible] "show the Americans as bootleggers are putting it over on the English rum runners." [illegible] of the bills [illegible] real, good money came out when he was released, secret service agents have [illegible] found that he had not technically "passed" any of the few counterfeits [illegible] were mixed in with good bills, he thought spurious. With him was released Isaac Jacobs of this city, who had passed a steward on the Homeric with a couple of the bills, but who technically had not "passed" them, since he got nothing for them, and had told the steward they were "no good."

CHILD'S LIFE SAVED BY NEW TREATMENT FOR DIABETES

New York, May 24.—How the life of Edna Neilson, 6-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Neilson of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., was saved by the use of insulin, the new treatment for diabetes, was told in a clinic for the [illegible] medical society, in convention today.

Dr. Benjamin Jablons of St. Mark's hospital, said the girl had been brought to the hospital a month ago, in an apparently dying condition from an acute case of diabetes. She was in a comatose state, he said, but half an hour after the first injection of the medicine, revived. Other treatments were given her and today she was pronounced as cured. The sugar content of her blood, he said, had dropped to normal.

That insulin had been used with marked success in the treatment of spontaneous gangrene also was reported by Dr. Jablons. He exhibited in the clinic six patients suffering from gangrene who had responded to the treatment and who were rapidly recovering.

MORRIS COVE TO BECOME A PART OF NEW HAVEN

New Haven, May 24.—After lively campaigning the question whether or not the 33rd ward of this city, known as the Morris Cove section, will become a part of the city by annexation was settled tonight, when the result of the second referendum showed 291 in favor, against 220 nays. The ward will become a part of the city on June 1 when the city will assume the responsibility for police and fire protection and civic improvements.

Bitter feeling developed between the opposing factions the petitioners for the annexation declaring that the Cove needed to be made dry and certain objectionable features eliminated. The 33rd ward which lies between the city proper and Morris Cove has voted to remain out of the city.

The total vote cast as shown on the machine was 17 higher than the yes or no vote cast.

ADDRESS IN LONDON BY NICHOLAS MURRAY BUTLER

London, May 24.—President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia University today delivered at the Mansion House the first of a series of addresses on notable phases of American history, under the terms of the Pilgrim Foundation.

The opening [illegible] dealt with the forerunners [illegible] Samuel Adams and Benjamin Franklin. Dr. Butler traced the events leading up to the Declaration of Independence, pointing out particularly the part played by Adams and Franklin in giving expression to what was passing in the minds of the American colonists before the outbreak of the revolution. He also traced the various steps in the unification of the colonies.

After the address Dr. Butler motored to Cambridge, where he is the guest of Sir Charles Walston, and where the second address of the Watson course will be delivered tomorrow.

A distinguished audience listened to the address, which was received with enthusiasm. In seconding a resolution of thanks to Dr. Butler, however, Dr. Ernest Barker, principal of Kings College, London University, took friendly exception to the remark of Dr. Butler that America's break with the mother country was inevitable because of America's consciousness of nationality. Dr. Barker said he still was convinced that if English politicians and statesmen of the revolutionary period had been equal to the emergency the British empire would have occurred, for history had proved the British empire capable of including within its limits peoples of far greater differences in nationalities than the English and Americans.

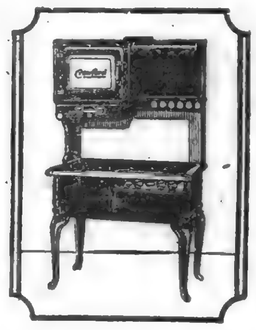
You wouldn't think of a furnace fire in August!

A coal fire in your range during the hot summer months is just as unnecessary, for it heats the kitchen unbearably. And kitchen heat, so important in January, makes cooking so tedious in August.

Let us show you how the State Crawford Combination Range makes it possible for you to regulate your kitchen heat. It gives you a cool kitchen in summer, a warm kitchen in winter, and better cooking the year 'round. This range is furnished in black, or gray enamel finish.

Come in and see this newest Crawford today. In design, appearance and efficiency it is the latest word in cooking ranges. If you haven't seen the State, you haven't seen the best.



The 18-36 Crawford Gas Range has been called "the biggest little Range ever built." It occupies but 36x26 inches of floor space, yet it furnishes more actual cooking space than many of the larger cabinet ranges.

In making this sequence William Duncan was severely bruised about the legs and arms, but persisted in continuing his work his work, and the next day just to show he was suffering no pains from his experience did a buck and wing dance in the set.

William Duncan is an exceptionally good buck and wing dancer and in his younger days won an enviable reputation on the vaudeville stage in a dancing act.

Strand Theatre

The Strand theatre have another Owen Moore picture; this time it's "Love Is An Awful Thing," which opened yesterday for a three day engagement. These Owen Moore pictures are always worth seeing for the reason that they are in a class by themselves. Moore has achieved a really remarkable success in having developed the ability to translate to pictures all the good points of the genuine old farce comedies which were quite the rage when Charles Hoyt was producing for the legitimate stage. He creates a lot of laughter in a perfectly legitimate way—the kind of laughter one doesn't have to feel ashamed of. "Love Is An Awful Thing," is a merry mix-up which results from the smouldering ashes of an old love affair suddenly bursting into a near-flame at the most inopportune time. Marjorie Daw and Kathryn Perry are prominent among the women folks of the supporting cast.

The fifth round of H. C. Witwer's famous Fighting Blood stories was also shown and proved to be a success. A news weekly completed the bill.

Greatest Speed Ever Reached in American Racing Power Plants

Unparalleled high engine speed is being shown during tests of power plants for cars entered in the Indianapolis races.

Engines built by the Packard Motor Car company for the three cars which it has entered in this year's big international speed contest have been operated in tests at 5,000 revolutions a minute. This is expected to be the motor speed of most of the cars in the race. Such speed has been developed as a result of the size of the motors being cut down to 122 cubic inches of piston displacement.

On May 23rd Joe Boyer in one of these Packard cars made one lap on the speedway in one minute twenty-four and eight-tenths seconds; a speed of one hundred and six miles an hour; breaking the track record. All three Packard cars have done better than one hundred miles an hour on this track.

There will be no deep throated barking roar of exhaust as the little cars tear around the big Hoosier oval on Memorial day. The noise of each motor will be more like the singing hum of a saw mill buzz saw.

In face, the armory will be a playground for the entire family, and an attempt has been made to attract every member.

Members of the Ladies' Aid society of the Versailles M. E. church spent an exceptionally pleasant afternoon at the home of Mrs. Fred C. Vocal soles by Miss Allen, piano so, Mrs. Fred Lacock, Wallace Maines and recitations by Mrs. Hargreaves added to the afternoon's pleasure. The home was tastefully decorated. A buffet lunch was served during the afternoon.

NEWBURYPORT TO HAVE STRONG TEAM HERE TO OPPOSE NORWICH CLUB SUNDAY

Newburyport is coming to Norwich Sunday with a strong lineup to give battle to Bill O'Leary's Norwich team at the Fairgrounds. Newburyport is much stronger than when they appeared here a year ago and with Andrews in the box some good pitching was considered a good prospect for faster company but decided to remain in semi-pro circles.

Playing with Andrews will be Dahler in centerfield one of the fastest outer gardeners in the Bay state, Dailey or Barrows in the short field, both good snappy boys, Ganzel on first, Smith in left, Dillon at second, Deane third and McCarthy in the right pasture. Newburyport has the choice of three catchers, O'Brien, Bagley or Chapman, all good men at backstopping.

Manager O'Leary will use Chippie Gaw or Gene Berry against the Newburyport Staters and either one will turn in a victory provided they receive fairly good support. Last week's game was marred by errors that were costly and lost the game. The same lineup will be used on Sunday with a possible change in one position.

RAWLINGS PLAYS WITH PIRATES FOR FIRST TIME

Pittsburgh, May 24 — Pittsburgh pounded three pitchers today and kept their home slate clean by defeating St. Louis 11 to 4. It was their eighth victory without a defeat on their own grounds. Traynor hit a home run in the seventh inning, Lavan, St. Louis shortstop, struck in the face by a pitched ball during batting practice, was unable to play. Score:

Boston, May 24—Zachary's pitching was too much for the home coming Boston club today and Washington won, 7 to 1. The visitors got 13 hits for a total of 18 bases. The fielding of Bluege and Stan Harris was steadily brilliant. After three straight hits Goslin was compelled to retire because of a wrenched ankle.

ATHLETICS HUMBLE MIGHTY YANKS FOR FIRST GAME

Philadelphia, May 24—Philadelphia took the opening game of the series from New York today, 1 to 0, when the Mackmen's brilliant rally in the last half of the ninth resulted in the only run of the contest. For eight innings "Bullet" Joe Bush, a former product of Connie Mack's pitching school, and Eddie Rommel hurled splendid ball, but in the ninth the Yankee's star weakened. Welch came through with the hit that won the game, a hot single to left scoring Mathews. Only four batters could fathom Rommel's knuckle ball curve, Ward getting three singles, Witt two and Pipp and Meusel one each. Ruth was walked four times by Rommel. The score:

The Godaire brothers will be the battery for Baltic. The following will make the trip: A. Godaire, P. Godaire, Taylor, Massey, Ashworth, Shaw, W. Charron, A. Charron, Scribner, Despathy, Peloquin.

For Sunday's game Sterling will make their first appearance in Baltic with a strong lineup. This club defeated Taftville last Sunday so the fans will have a chance to see one of the fastest teams in eastern Connecticut. The home club will have White in the box and is in great shape to take a fall out of Sterling. With Godaire behind the bat, Burke at short, Taylor on first, Massey on second, Shaw third, and the two Charrons and Scribner in the outfield, Despathy and Peloquin subs, the home club looks good.

INTERCOLLEGIATE TRACK MEET STARTS TODAY

Philadelphia, May 24.—Hundreds of college athletes were here tonight primed for the opening of the annual intercollegiate track and field championships on Franklin field tomorrow. Nearly 900 men, representing 33 colleges are entered in the meet. Contestants from nearby institutions will get in tomorrow morning.

Yale, with a squad of 34, one of the largest the Elis have ever sent to the championships, arrived at noon and went to an inn near Swarthmore. Harvard, Pennsylvania state and West Virginia also are quartered at hotels in the outlying sections.

Princeton, Pennsylvania, Cornell and Yale have all strong teams, and were believed by many to have a good chance for victory.

There will be no finals tomorrow, but performances in the field events stand for Saturday.

MARBLE SHOOTING TOURNEY TO BE HELD SATURDAY

It is expected that there will be some lively marble shooting on the courts back of the YMCA building Saturday afternoon when the Y will conduct a marble tournament. This contest is being conducted to discover the marble champion of Norwich and many boys have signed up blanks, which means that there are at least some boys in the city who think they are in the championship class. The game to be played is known as "fat" which is used in the tournaments that have been conducted in various large cities and which requires a little more skill than many of the other marble games. Three medals are being offered to the three high scorers of the tournament, while the ten next best will receive ribbon awards. The entries have not yet closed and any boy in the city may enter free by calling at the Y. M. C. A. and filling out his entry blank.

Cornell Crews Arrive

A. P.)—William M. Johnston, American champion, and Count de Gomar, of St. Cloud, France, May 24—(By the A. P.)—William M. Johnston, American champion, and Count de Gomar, of St. Cloud, France, May 24—(By the Associated Press)—Johnston's second-ranking tennis star, today won his way into the semi-finals of the International hard court championships here by virtue of a clean-cut victory over Count De Gomar of Spain. He won in straight sets, 6-3, 6-2, 6-1.

Tomorrow he meets La Coste, the youthful Frenchman, who, after witnessing today's match expressed doubt of his ability to take even one set from the brilliant Californian. The French champion, Cochet, came through in the upper half of the draw, but must defeat Washer of Belgium, tomorrow in order to qualify for the finals.

Johnston played superb tennis in the game with the Spanish nobleman. The forearm drive for which he is famous was working perfectly. Count de Gomar played some of the best tennis of his career but was helpless against the sizzling drives that shot down the sidelines or cross court out of his reach after "Little Bill" had maneuvered him into awkward positions. Time and again the American caught his opponent flat-footed or going he wrong way.

Johnston's service was also a great factor in the result. Many of his first balls got over and these the Spaniard either fooled or returned in short, soft lobs close to the net which Johnston, racing forward, smashed for certain points.

In the women's singles tomorrow Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen meets Mrs Beamish of England, who today put Miss Eleanor Goss, American, out of the running in a three-set match, the score of which was 4-6, 6-2, 6-2. In the other half of the draw Miss Kathleen McKane of England tries conclusions with the winner of the match between Mlle. Vlasco, Greece, and Mme. Golding of France.

Miss Goss, paired with Miss Leslie Bancroft, defeated Mme. Dane and Mlle. Conquet of France, in the second round of the women's doubles, 6-3, 6-2.

Count de Gomar and Eduardo Flaquer, of Spain, defeated William M. Johnston and Clifton Herd, Americans in the quarter-finals of the men's doubles, 6-3, 6-4, 6-3.

COMPENSATION LEGISLATION.

What appears to be a bill for carrying out much the same purposes of a measure which has already been turned down by the legislature is that which has been reported favorably in the senate by the judiciary committee concerning the compensation commission. It is the second bill that has come from the judiciary committee within the past two weeks dealing with the compensation commission without having provided for a hearing, indicating that it is the intention to have it jammed through without giving anyone interested therein a chance to be heard.

The bill appears to be the outgrowth of the effort which was made earlier in the session by certain physicians to have legislation adopted prejudicial to one member of the board of compensation commissioners. At that time it was brought out that the commissioner had failed to endorse the high fees which were being demanded by certain doctors in compensation cases. Because he stood in the way of such a hold-up the effort was made to have the legislature punish him and give free rein to the exaction of the exorbitant fees.

The legislature rebelled at that time as it was thoroughly justified in doing after a hearing had been granted on the bill. Now there comes from the committee a measure on which there has been no hearing and yet which is aimed at the same commissioner and intended to accomplish the very same purposes sought in the previous measure though drafted in different language.

The power of the legislature is great. It can do many things. Committees can originate bills and slip them through without providing for a hearing or without letting the merits or demerits of the legislation be disclosed. It can railroad personal legislation by ways which are best known to itself but it doesn't properly impress the people of the commonwealth when it makes such use of its powers.

Until it is established that there is good reason for such legislation as is proposed the legislature should refuse to adopt it.

GASOLINE TRAINS.

Transportation costs have come in for much consideration in the past few years. They have risen in keeping with other things and the effort which such has had upon the operation of trains has called for the scaling down of the expense of running trains and trolleys or the curtailment of the service.

The fact that vehicles driven by gasoline have become so numerous and that automobiles have been turned to to help meet the transportation situation has naturally caused consideration to be given that type of power for the propulsion of cars on the steam railroad tracks. Trains have been discontinued for lack of patronage, or because patronage was not sufficient to meet the expense of operation. If lighter trains driven by gasoline can be run on such lines at a sufficient reduction in expense to provide a profit to the railroads it not only means good business but it means a restoration of that service which the public formerly depended upon and which it desires.

Such a train, consisting of two cars, propelled by a gasoline motor has been put in operation by the Hoosac Tunnel & Wilmington railroad between North Adams, Mass., and Wilmington, Vt. It replaces the steam train that has been run and renders the service at that much desired decreased expense which seems bound to interest other short lines where high costs under present methods of rendering service are causing restricted service.

It is through the testing out of just such trains that relief should be obtained on short railroad runs. There was the hope expressed at one time that Norwich might even get such service to replace certain of the trains which were taken off between this city and New London because the operating expense was too great, and there are many points throughout New England that might get adequate service from the use of equipment of this or similar character.

RUSSIA'S REPLY.

From the second reply which has been made by soviet Russia to Great Britain it becomes apparent that Moscow does not desire a break in the trade relations. The attitude of having a chip on its shoulder and inviting the British to come and knock it off has changed.

The ultimatum has had the effect of causing the Russians to accept a majority of the British demands, to back up on certain notes that have been considered offensive and to ask for a conference for the purpose of considering the other points that remain in dispute.

For a country that is seeking to get into the better graces of the world this is a logical attitude. If Russia hasn't hitherto accepted the idea of a three-mile limit for itself as French it has recognized it as existing among other nations it indicates that it is willing to come to an understanding thereon and promises not to interfere with fishing activities outside such a line while an understanding is being reached.

Soviet Russia hasn't provided the trade that the British had anticipated previous to making their agreement. It has probably been of greater advantage to the Russians than to the British, but Moscow cannot cut itself off from the rest of the world entirely. It has indulged in a bit of sober second thought that takes that fact into consideration.

It is not to be supposed that the British intend to have the wool pulled over their eyes by Moscow, but the response that has been made to the ultimatum gives indication that there will be an adjustment and that Moscow will meet the requirements that are demanded by international understanding and the trade agreement.

THE PRESIDENT AND THE LEAGUE.

There are those pro-leaguers of both parties who are endeavoring to get President Harding to espouse the league just because he has declared himself in favor of the court of international justice and has sought the approval of the senate for the support of that court by this country. There is no reason for them to believe that they will be successful and it is not believed that they consider that they will succeed in their effort.

When the question was raised just a short time ago over the connection of the court with the league and the effort made to show that supporting the court would simply mean entrance into the league of nations by the back door, President Harding took care to let it be known that such was not the case, that there was no thought of joining the league and he even made it so emphatic as to say that even though entrance into the league of nations were approved by the senate it would not be sanctioned by the administration as long as he was chief executive.

That doesn't look as if the president was endeavoring to get in by "back door, side door or cellar door" as he expressed it. The efforts that are being made to have the support of the court considered the same as joining the league are bound to be as futile as those which are calling upon the president to defy the senate and join the league.

Those who are endeavoring to maintain that the president never closed all league doors may as well realize that he has closed all that are necessary to make certain the fact that neither is he going to become an advocate of joining the league nor is the government going to take any such action.

CANAL TROUBLES.

Within a few weeks in connection with the reports concerning the large volume of traffic that is being handled by the Panama canal there was the statement to the effect that one steamer, drawing 33 feet, had struck bottom in going through the Culebra cut. That indicates that there is considerable water there but not as much as was supposed and no enough to permit the safe passage of such ships.

At that point a depth of 40 feet is supposed to exist and when it doesn't it means a menace to navigation. Much of the water of the canal is utilized for the purpose of operating the locks and the greater the traffic the more water is required. In the Canal Zone as well as elsewhere none too great provision for storing water has been made. A dry season and much traffic mean big drains on the supply for the canal.

In connection with the increasing size of vessel, this low water and the steadily increasing traffic there has been a revival of the talk of building a second canal on the Nicaragua route. The rights to do so exist but it will probably be many years before such is undertaken. What seems more probable is the provision for increasing the dam at the headwaters of the Chagres river so that a larger part of the water which is now going to waste can be held in storage until such a time as needed and thus overcome the chances of low water interfering with navigation through the canal. Without sufficient water the canal would not serve its purpose and that handicap not only can be remedied but probably will be before serious attention is given to a new canal.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

HER DISCOVERY

Absolutely, disgustingly hopeless! Connie Speare slammed the closet door on her complete wardrobe. There was no joke about the cry that she hadn't a single thing to wear, she hadn't. They wouldn't do.

"I haven't—haven't a decgone thing but this old blue suit I wear every day!" Connie gulped. "And stockings with runs in them—and my shoes—" Her woe overcame her and she sat down and cried it out.

Then she jumped up and powdered her face preparatory for inspection by her mother. Ever since those doctor's bills had accumulated so frightfully every cent they could scrape between them beyond their scrimpy living expenses had gone toward payment. And then there were the furniture installments.

She had been glad to help, thankful that her mother was still alive. This was the first faint stir of rebellion and it could have been traced back to the day several weeks before when Norman Billings had joined the office force of the Shiner Paint company, where Connie worked.

Norman was the kind of youth who impels every girl looking at him to pat her hair into order and wonder about the probable shine on her nose.

With a sudden decision Connie slipped a bill from her pocket book under the paper lining of her top bureau drawer. They had given her a little raise at the office.

Her mother met her entrance with the smile which passes between two who have worked and suffered together and Connie experienced a little stab. Her mother's still delicate health allowed her no harder work than hand sewing at home, and she never questioned the amount Connie faithfully paid over each week. From this night on the sum was a dollar or so less for, in addition to the raise which she was saving, Connie edged in a little more each time.

Any day now Norman might say during one of his pauses by her desk, "How about a movie tonight?" or "Let's go some place and dance, what say?"

The secret hoard grew. She could have the dress by paying $15 down, and maybe if he held off a trifle longer she could accomplish new shoes. So engrossed was she in her hopes and struggles that she had not studied her mother's face of late or noted the signs of fatigué and worry growing upon it. Connie had stepped into fairyland where every girl wanders with romance some time.

And then Norman, with that look in his eyes growing stronger, stopped just at closing time and asked her not to a movie but to go to the theatre the next night. With burning cheeks Connie had quivered her acceptance. Fate was kind, she thought thankfully, all the way home, for there was enough now under the lining paper of the bureau drawer to get the dress and shoes at noon the next day.

She burst into the tiny back flat with grand opera in her heart, to find her mother huddled on the sofa in the dusk, trembling.

"I tried my best," Connie's mother told her, the tears coming at last, "but somehow since I was sick I can't work fast any more! I thought I could earn some extra but I haven't been able to—and the furniture installments have run behind. And I promised the rest of the doctor's bill a month ago and it's the first time I've missed. I can't bear to have people think we're as poor as that! But it's the furniture! They're coming tomorrow—"

Connie was curiously conscious of the veined, shaky hand she was holding comfortingly. It was very gray and thin on the temples, her mother's hair. Getting up abruptly she went into her bedroom and when she came out she did not in the least look noble and martyrized.

"You should have told me before!" she said rather quietly. "It's bad for you to worry this way, mums! I didn't dream—give the men this twenty tomorrow. I just happened to have it on hand. Now I'll get us some supper—you lie still!"

"You don't know how beautiful you are!" Norman Billings said fondly the next night, when he brought her home after the theatre, and seemed loath to leave her. "Did you know it, Connie?"

"Silly!" said Connie. But her eyes were shining as she looked that night into her mirror which reflected the old blue, shiny suit. "I actually believe," she told her reflection, "that when a man really—cares for you—he doesn't give a whoop for what kind of a dress you have on! I really do!" —Exchange.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Services Greatly Appreciated.

Mr. Editor: Our little village, though not illuminated by the glow of electricity, is proud to harbor a dweller whose deeds emit far brighter rays.

Though known to few, the humanitarian services that Miss Frances C. Kingberger performs are indeed many, and of a most laudable nature. Without monetary reward or even such expectation, Miss Kingberger, the school nurse, would reach the most secluded homes in some backwoods, regardless of traveling difficulties, and offer her services most willingly. Not infrequently did she secure medical attention in time to preserve a life. Such tasks were not found easy, with the past severe winter. This cites only one of the many ways in which she rendered her services so god-spiritedly this year.

With the approach of the closing of the school year, I cannot fail but pay tribute to one who so modestly performed such noble deeds and deserves the highest esteem.

Wives of Famous Men

Guilelma Springett, Wife of William Penn.

Guilelma Maria Springett was descended from the same royalist stock, and was heir to the same loyalty to country as her husband, that brave, God-fearing man who settled the state of Pennsylvania. Guilelma's father, like the elder Penn, had fallen from his high position in the aid of parliament during the civil wars in England. Both of these men were warlike in their tastes, but the minds of their children were of peaceful bent.

Mrs. Penn was a charming woman and her outward beauty was rivaled by her intelligence and her beauty of soul. Her views coincided with those of her husband and both of them were very religious. She was a charitable woman and did all she could to allay the suffering of the poor. Her kind and gentle manner, her humility, and her sweet disposition won her many friends. She accompanied William on many of his trips and became known publicly as a famous character of her day.

For the 20 years that they lived together, the Penns maintained ideal relations. The only unhappiness that entered their lives was due to the arrest of William Penn upon charges that were wholly false. He had spent most of his private fortune for the benefit of the public, reducing his family to almost poverty. And his compensation was imprisonment. This was too much of a burden for the soul of his wife. Her health failed rapidly. Fortunately, she lived long enough to rejoice in his acquittal, but shortly after she died in his arms.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

Nantasket Beach.

"A disastrous fire at Nantasket Beach, Massachusetts, directs attention to a stretch of New England coast which has a triple geographical interest," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"Here nature has laid bare to the most casual observer a frequent, but generally hidden, process of the making of this continent. The federal government has erected nearby one of the world's most remarkable lighthouses. The state of Massachusetts has made its citizens, not the concessionaires, the sovereigns of one of the finest beaches on the north Atlantic coast.

"Nantasket Beach stretches for an unbroken five miles along the seaward side of a peninsula which distends its scrawny neck from the juncture of the towns of Cohasset and Hull, turns it's Adam's apple toward the pleasant inland waterway from Boston harbor, and bends its head low, as if in reverence to historic Hingham, on this island shore. The formation of the peninsula bears an uncanny likeness to that of Cape Cod, farther south.

"Minot's light flashes its '1-4-3' signal over a granite shore which once was the bane of mariners and now is the blessing of Boston. A lighthouse is symbolic of man's conquest of nature; this one seems to epitomize the steadfastness of the people who for years picked the splintered wreckage of every storm from the rocks where they now plant their summer homes and along the sands where they now find surcease from the city's summer heat.

"Within a nine-year period ending in the forties two score vessels were dashed to pieces on the Cohasset reefs and in six of these the entire crew perished.

"The first lighthouse was built in 1850. One year later a great gale snapped it off as if it had been an old stick, and engulfed its two tenders. Then began the task of building, on this sea-circled rock, exposed only at low tide in certain season, a tower that would defy any storm.

"From the quarries of Quincy came the granite and the stone cutters who worked with a sculptor's precision to shape and fit the blocks of the new structure. Even harder was the task of chiseling off a base for the structure on the half-submerged reef.

"In all of the year 1855 the jealous sea allowed but 130 working hours, and the following year was little better. No man could work on the rocks who could not swim, no boat was landed there except in company of another boat, and while the men were working during the precious low-tide, smooth-sea hours a boat always was waiting to rescue those washed from the rocks.

"After three years of this precarious and patient task the first stone of the present structure was laid. Meanwhile the stones had been cut, fitted, and assembled for conveyance on an island in Cohasset harbor. One by one with no single loss of life, nor a single wasted trip for a wrong stone, 1079 of these great granite blocks were put in place. Today the New World Solomon's temple stands as firm as the day the first light flashed from its beacon, in 1855. Often the spray of the waves dashes against the windows of its light, 85 feet high.

"'Threading its way between the boulders of the shore and the salt marshes runs Jerusalem road with its beautiful summer homes, linking residential Cohasset with the state park reservation at Nantasket. Upon a rocky eminence at one end of Nantasket beach is a fashionable hotel, at the other are rows of modest cottages. Between are bath houses, operated at cost, by the state of Massachusetts, models of cleanliness, convenience, and comfort.

"Two characteristics of this beach impress the visitor. New England takes its liberties seriously; even to refraining from any restrictions upon bathing suits. No policemen are armed with tape measures, there is no code posted anywhere about the style of bathing suits. The authorities hold that this policy makes for modesty. Those who prefer Coney Island type of amusement may indulge their taste, but the amusement parks are far back from the shore line so that even at highest tide tens of thousands of bathers can find ample space in the sand and under the sun.

"The granite boulders of Cohasset tell a long, long story of world-building forces, active in many regions, but seldom so apparent as here. A geologist need only scan the rocky pages of Cohasset and Hull to reconstruct the past.

"Once upon a time, his story runs, perhaps a hundred million years ago during the age of the first life on this sphere, lofty Alpine mountains pierced the clouds in this region.

"Far beneath them, they exerted a tremendous pressure, at least fifteen thousand pounds per inch, and formed granite. In the course of millenniums these mountains were worn entirely away, at the rate of an inch or so per century, and then the buried granite began to warp and corrugate as the asphalt does in a pavement on a hot day, and the softer materials about it were worn gradually away.

"Finally the granite reached the surface, cracked and faulted in places, mixed with lava in others, at which time formed the ledges much as they now appear along this coast.

"Nature had not quite finished her work. They had yet to be given their final dressing and polishing. The ice age came to New England, and slowly over the granite crept millions of tons of ice. Glaciers ground their way southward, ripping channels in granite and lava, scraping and scratching ridges, and filling in depressions with the gravel and clay they carried along.

"Before the ice withdrew it contributed the final touch by deftly poising numerous boulders on ridges where they remain today, inexplicable 'balanced rocks' to the uninitiated. Such a rock is 'Tipping Rock' at Cohasset.

"At Nantasket Beach this granite ledge dipped under the sea a bit; waves set to work piling up sand thereon. The rocks reappear at Allerton and Pemberton, at the north end of the peninsula, so that the beach is literally a cushion of sand, placed in a hammock of rock, for a city's summer resting place."

A German barber, fined for beating one of his customers, with whom he had a heated argument, offered to pay in shaves. The court and the aggrieved customer accepted the offer.

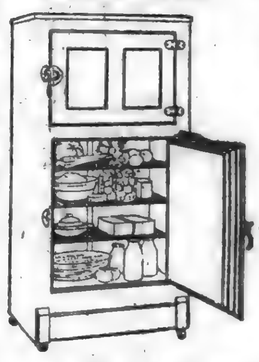
We can well afford to make this remarkable offer, because we know that the Alaska, with its efficient insulation, will preserve your foods with an astonishingly small amount of ice. Don't fail to take advantage of this special offer. Come in and pick out your Alaska at once, and begin to benefit by its convenience, cleanliness and economy immediately.

These Splendid Features of Convenience and Economy

The Alaska offers you many special features that cut your food or ice bills or save you work. Among them are:—



Seven insulating walls to keep out heat and keep in cold.

Famous "cubed cork" insulation, the most effective refrigerator insulating material known. Its myriads of tiny cells, filled with air, act as a barrier to the passage of heat and cold; keep the ice and food compartments cool in warmest weather.

The patented circulation system draws the warm air from the food compartments over the ice, where it is chilled and the moisture removed, returning it to circulate about the food in the food chambers. This constant supply of CHILL, DRY air preserves food perfectly.

The linings of the food compartments are of sanitary, seamless porcelain or white enamel; easy to clean.

The non-rusting shelves are removable; as are also the galvanized steel ice racks.

The tight-locking doors exclude heat.

Stories That Recall Others

Amusing to Watchers

It was in front of a tailor shop when the rain was falling the hardest Monday afternoon that two men furnished entertainment for those who happened to be trying to keep out of the showers. Both were voluble talkers. The visitor was wearing a straw hat and was without umbrella. After he had set forth his views he invariably stepped out into the sidewalk into the downpour and stood there while the other fellow expostulated. When he decided to make reply he would step back into the shop, talk and return to the sidewalk and the rain. After this alternating had gone on for some time the man with the straw hat either decided that he was getting wet or had more time that he thought he had and went into the shop, took a chair and the fun was over.

He "Topped" 'Em

A man with a dome like a billiard ball was in a barbershop recently getting shaved. Some of his friends began kidding him about his lack of hirsute adornment. He is good natured and stood it calmly for a while and then said:

"Well, I'd rather have a head and have it bald than have just a neck run up to a top and all covered with hair!"

From then on the subject of conversation changed.

This year the new college catalogue shows a total registration of 421, including 90 seniors, 100 juniors, 94 sophomores, 131 freshmen and 6 specials. Last year's catalogue contained the names of 389 students of which 41 were seniors, 93 juniors, 117 sophomores, 127 freshmen and 11 specials. Twenty-two states were represented and two foreign countries. This year twenty-five states are represented and two foreign countries. In the senior class there are 57 Connecticut girls, 10 from Massachusetts, 12 from New York, 5 from Pennsylvania and one each from Vermont, New Hampshire, Nebraska, Iowa, and the District of Columbia.

CENTRAL BAPTIST CHURCH CALLS PASTOR'S ASSISTANT

Members of the Central Baptist church have unanimously endorsed the recommendations of the board of managers and extended a call to Miss E. A. Ellis of Portland, Me., to come to the church and serve as pastor's assistant immediately after her graduation from the training school at Philadelphia.

C. Edward Smith, who presided at the meeting Thursday night, said that the board of managers after an investigation had determined that an assistant to Rev. David A. Pitt, pastor of the church, was needed, and that Miss Ellis was a young woman fitted in education and business to take up the duties of that office.

She is to graduate from the training school at Philadelphia during the coming month, where she has been fitting herself for this kind of church work. For several years she was in charge of the business office of her father in Portland and, feeling that she would like to engage in work for the church, went to Philadelphia to take up the courses in the training school.

Her work as pastor's assistant at the Central Baptist church will be mostly among the young people of the church and among the children of the church school.

Miss Ellis will probably assume her duties about the first of July, her engagement being for one year.

ORDERS FEDERAL AGENTS TO KEEP UNDER COVER

Orders from Washington have placed the ban upon giving publicity to the names of federal prohibition agents, according to the directions that have been sent to Agents Robert Church of this city and Joseph Fitspatrick of New London who have been doing the work in this territory. The order is that no agent can make public his name in connection with a raid. The government holds that more efficient work can be done and more tips discovered, if the identity of the prohibition officials is not so well known.

Statistics for Norwich, New London and Stonington are to be secured by the agents upon the number of local arrests on intoxication charges since prohibition went into effect; to secure the number of saloons in the city before the dry era, and the saloons in operation since; the number of liquor violations in grocery stores, illicit stills and other cover-up agencies; the number of aliens engaged in illicit liquor handling; the number of automobiles captured while engaged in liquor running, and the amounts of fines imposed.

POLICE ARREST MAN THEY HAD WATCHED FOR

John Foster, 37, a woolen mill employe, for whom the police have been on the watch since Monday, was arrested about 10 o'clock Thursday night at his home, No. 11 White court, and is charged with indecent assault upon a six-year-old Montville girl by the name of Brown.

The alleged assault was committed at the girl's home last Sunday afternoon, according to the information given to Deputy Sheriff Michael Hickey of Montville, who came here with a warrant Monday afternoon to look for the man. He was not found at his work then, nor was he at home. It is believed he has kept away from home since then until Thursday night when the police learned that he was again at home. Sergeant A. C. Matthews and Officer P. Murphy were at once sent to the house by Cap. D. J. Twomey. They found the man they were looking for and as he seemed disposed to resist arrest, they promptly clapped the leaders onto him and took him between them to police headquarters where he was locked up to be held for delivery to the Montville officer.

CHARGES CRUELTY IN HER PETITION FOR DIVORCE

Mrs. Sadie M. Richardson of this city, whose maiden name was Casey, has brought suit for divorce from John G. Richardson of Norwich on the ground of intolerable cruelty since Jan. 1, 1919. They were married in January, 1919. She asks the custody of a 17 months old daughter. The suit is returnable before the superior court in June.

Arrests Follows Fight Evidence.

After Conny Coughlin had been brought to police headquarters on Wednesday evening with his face and head so badly battered that he was sent to the hospital, a police investigation settled that he must have been in a fight and Peter Bileski was arrested for hitting him.

In the police court Thursday morning, the case against Bileski was continued to Saturday morning to give time for Coughlin to appear against him.

About fifty sacks filled with parcel

RECRUITING CAMPAIGN FOR CITIZENS' TRAINING CAMP

Under the direction of Major F. Russell Smith, who has been appointed chairman of New London county, an intensive recruiting campaign for the 1923 citizens' military training camp to be held at Camp Devens Aug. 1 to 31, opens today (Friday) in this city.

Every county has a quota for enrollment and Major Smith hopes that New London county will come up to its full quota. Application blanks and circulars of information can be obtained at the office of Major Smith, 282 Franklin street, and young men desiring to enroll are urged to lose no time in procuring and filing application blanks. Principals of high schools throughout the state are unanimous in their praise of the results of the month's training at Camp Devens and figures have shown that those who have attended the schools show a marked increase when in competition with others who have not received the training.

Major Smith expressed a desire that the high schools of New London county join with other schools and be among the progressive and wideawake schools of the state who are sending their students to the training school.

The course of instruction lasts four weeks and young men eligible to attend the camp receive their transportation to and from the camp, are outfitted, and for one month undergo military instruction and enjoy camp life under the most beneficial conditions.

It is the purpose of America in this manner to build up a large organized reserve force all ready to be mobilized if an emergency should ever arise. An army of citizens trained in organized units, fitted through drill and instruction for the duties of a soldier, backed by regulars and the guard, gives the nation a strength not to be trifled with.

Courtesy and honor is the watchword which the students bring home with them. Strength of character and self-discipline are stressed. Physical training is only one of the several means to an end and many students have voted this only worth the month in camp. The majority of those attending the camp are graduates of high schools, ages ranging from 18 up, but the camp also takes in unskilled laborers, machinists, mechanics, chauffeurs and farmers.

Major Smith in speaking of the requirements of the camp states positively that enrollment in the camp for 1923 will leave no one under any obligation whatsoever to join the army. It is a citizens' camp only, to fit young men physically and train them as soldiers, that New England in another emergency would not find herself with 45 per cent. of her young men totally unfit to serve the colors.

SLEPT TWO NIGHTS IN AUTOMOBILE IN STREETS

A man and woman from Roselle Park, N. J., who had been sleeping for two nights in an automobile in the streets of Norwich because they had no money to hire rooms slept Thursday night at police headquarters. The man had the plank in a cell for his bed and the woman had the more comfortable quarters in the woman's room.

The pair left New Jersey the latter part of last week in order to visit a sister of the woman who lives at Yantic. She accepted the offer of the man, who was well known to her, to make the trip in his machine. They reached here all right and stayed two days and nights with her sister. When they came to leave the city the man's money had run out and an expected remittance had not arrived. In the emergency they solved the situation for two nights by running the machine down into some of the side streets in Thamesville and sleeping in the car. They were preparing to do the same again Thursday night when State Policeman Sterling noticed the car and brought the man to police headquarters when he and the woman told their story.

If the money the man expects arrives today, the couple will be able to leave.

ELLINGTON MOB FORCES QUICK ARREST OF MAN

On the charge of assault on a 13 year old girl, Bernard Johnson, colored, a pupil in the eighth grade in the Center school at Ellington, was presented Wednesday before Judge Hamilton at Ellington. The case was continued until Saturday and bonds of $2,000 were provided by the boy's father.

The alleged assault took place Tuesday. It is said that the Stafford police, on investigation, declined to arrest the schoolboy before morning. During the evening a crowd of 50 or more gathered and went to the home of Judge Hamilton, threatening violence, it is said, in case the boy was not arrested before midnight. Two state police officers from Hartford arrested the boy late Tuesday night.

"GOD'S CALL ANSWERED", BIBLE STUDY TOPIC

"God's call answered" was the topic at the Men's Bible study class at the Norwich Y. M. C. A. Wednesday evening. The scripture was taken from First Samuel, the third chapter. Among the points brought out in the discussion were the following:

Hannah was so very intense and anxious in her prayer that God might give her a son, that Eli suggested that she must be intoxicated, a rather strange suggestion for a Godly man. It is strange that one can become very earnest and enthusiastic about everything else and nothing is said, but when one becomes enthusiastic about things religious, people seem to think it strange. Eli had two very wicked sons, and evidently he was as much to blame because he was too easy with them; "he restrained them not". Home authority is exceedingly vital, for when a son disregards the authority of the household, he is not very apt to be particular about obeying the civil laws. Hannah, did a very wise and significant thing when, after the Lord had given her a son in answer to her prayer, she "lent him to the Lord". Samuel's first service was to wait on Eli; a very humble service but he did it with great faithfulness and obedience; he served God as well as Eli. Every task, well done is a service unto the Lord; the most common place tasks, if right, may be done as unto the Lord. Not many however, of us are called to prominent places, but it is a great thought that however humble our position, we may serve God. Samuel exemplified the splendid trait of obedience to Eli, when he so quickly arose and Eli discovered that the Lord was calling Samuel, he gave the lad a very significant answer with which to respond to the call of the Lord. "Speak, Lord, for thy servant heareth". God doubtless speaks just as truly today as He did then, but because our spiritual ears are so that the Lord desired him to give Eli the terrible message that he and his house should perish, it must have made young Samuel feel very sad, for he had doubtless learned to love the old Saint of God, but it being his duty, he "told him every whit". The sad end of Eli's two sons, and his own untimely death, though extremely sad, illustrates quite forcibly the warning text, "whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap." Samuel became a great leader as might have been expected of on ewho was early consecrated to Jehovah, and obeyed him so fully. Some of the elements of leadership are courage, singleness of purpose, strategy, obedience to duty and especially goodness and soundness of character. No man can be a real leader in the highest sense unless he himself is obedient to a leader greater than himself, even to God.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Benny Leonard, lightweight boxing champion of the world was in Danielson Thursday morning, not looking for a scrap, however, though boxing is very popular here just now. Benny's car developed tire trouble while it was rolling through this town and he stopped at a garage to get attention. Benny was promptly recognized by some wakeful urchins and the chauffeur agreed that his employer was the famous pistol marvel. Benny made friends that were on their way home from school, buying chocolate bars for one group that happened along and stopped for a chat with him. He left here en route to Hartford and New York.

There was a frost in Danielson Thursday morning and tender plants in some cases were killed by this unexpected visitation. May 24 is exceptionally late for a frost in this section of the country, but this appears to be an exceptional spring, set on breaking all old records and hanging up some new ones. Some home gardeners protected their crops by getting up very early and spraying all plants with a garden hose. One of them was Orrin A. Mahdon of Winter street. Mr. Mahdon said that he put water in the end of the nozzle of the garden hose where it had dripped on the grass during the night.

Incident to this unusual slump in May's good behavior the following from Crane Lore's semi-annual prediction and made March 23 last for publication in a New York paper is of interest.

"To begin with I look for an early spring and a fruitful summer. The spring of 1923 will be far better advanced than was the season for twenty-five years. Much of frost in the ground followed by early nourishing will destroy many insect pests and worms that prey on tender roots and shoots, and I look for a wonderful harvest of early vegetables. The frost season will end about May 10 in New England with little danger after that except for a late frost in June when the New England and middle states will pass the most critical period, probably accompanied [illegible]

There you are! Those who dispute the Good Farmer have this prediction made two months ago to reckon with. It's now the first of June and the frost arrived. However, it did not appear Thursday that damage to crops was very widespread horseboats.

Thursday morning there was a solemn high mass of requiem at St. Joseph's church in Danielson for Mrs. Della Wilcox, wife of Benner Wilcox, Rev. Ignatius Rossi, Rev. John Roux, M. S., and Rev. John Mongsier, M. S., being officers of the mass, attended by many relatives and friends. Burial was in St. Joseph cemetery. The bearers were Mrs. Wilcox's five brothers—Paul Mondor, Joseph Mondor, Louis Mondor, Delor Mondor and Peter Mondor and her brother-in-law, Felix Beaulac. There were many beautiful floral pieces. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Thursday evening marked the beginning of the mid-week dancing season at Wildwood park. The beautiful weather and the moonlight seemed to serve to draw a particularly large attendance for so early in the season and the dancing continued until midnight. As has been the rule for several season past, attendance was attracted from all this section of eastern Connecticut.

Postmaster E. H. Keach announced Thursday that the postoffice will close for the day at 10 a. m. on Memorial day, Wednesday of next week. However, the lobby will remain open during the day and holders of boxes will be able to get their mail as usual. The carrier and rural service will be suspended for the day and there will be the usual restrictions as to money order and postal savings business.

As had been anticipated, a vast amount of heavy trucking is being diverted to the Providence-Little Rest-Danielson route from other state highways over which this traffic moved prior to the opening of the new route last fall. On long hauls such as those between Philadelphia, New York, Providence and Boston, many miles are saved by using the new route, a fact that drivers have not been slow to ascertain. Many large trucks covering these long hauls now run through Danielson every day—and every night, for that matter. Passenger traffic through Danielson has practically doubled over what it was two years ago and seems to grow from week to week, as the touring season advances. These tourists leave considerable money in Danielson in the course of a week and are cordially welcomed by tradesmen.

As indicating the amount of traffic moving through Main street in a day, a count of cars last Sunday showed approximately 2400 in a period of nine hours.

From among the considerable number of Nobles of the Mystic Shrine resident in Danielson there are some who have their plans made to be in Washington the first week in June for the triennial gathering of representatives of the order from every state in the Union. The event is one of the most striking ever arranged in Shrinedom and likely will surpass anything of this kind arranged by an order noted for the elaborateness of its events of a semi-public nature.

The first five units from this territory for the nurses' home fund of the Day Kimball hospital have been received and are appreciated by the director of the drive now underway. The units total $250, which is regarded as a good start for an afternoons work. Organization plans for the work to be done here are being worked out and will be completed within a week, when the real drive will be on in this locality.

The annual session of the Thursday afternoon whist club was held yesterday with Mrs. W. H. Judson of Academy street and in addition to playing whist the seventeen members who made up the attendance stayed to enjoy a fine supper and the social intercourse that was a happy feature of the gathering. At whist first honors went to Mrs. Mary Potter and Mrs. John Reed and the consolation honors to Mrs. Henry Thompson and Mrs. Roland James. While the club meets regularly Thursday a meeting was regarded as the annual event and it was one of the most pleasant of the entire season.

Mrs. M. A. Shumway will have the members of the Fortnightly club at her home for a meeting next Tuesday afternoon.

Pierre Boulaine, rapidly regaining his strength after undergoing a surgical operation some weeks ago at St. Vincent's hospital in Worcester, was able to walk down town Thursday afternoon and was greeted by many friends. Mr. Boulaine looks well and says he feels better day by day.

George A. Leighton of Bridgeport was a visitor with friends in Danielson on Thursday.

Though ample flowers for all needs will be available it now seems likely that there will be a dearth this season of some favorite blooms customarily used in Memorial day decorations.

A. P. Woodward returned Thursday afternoon from a few days' stay at Oakland Beach, where he was the guest of Warden and Mrs. W. A. Burrows.

Many friends of the family and acquaintances while they were resident in Danielson were at the chapel at Westfield cemetery Thursday afternoon to attend the services for Mrs. Frank I. Hammett, who died Monday of this week in Needham, Mass. An automobile cortege conveyed the funeral party from Needham to Danielson. Burial was in Westfield cemetery.

A shift of the wind out of the north and into the southwest late Thursday afternoon relieved the fear that frosts might recur again this morning.

PUTNAM

Eli Larose and Albert Menoch, former employes of the Manhasset Manufacturing company, have been summoned to appear before Judge Webb in the superior court at Willimantic at 10 o'clock this (Friday) morning to answer to a charge that they are in contempt of court for violation of the injunction issued by Superior Court Judge Avery a few days ago against picketing, molestation, etc.

Messrs. Larose and Menoch will be represented by Attorney Charles L. Torrey as counsel.

This is the first action of this kind in the present industrial difficulty in this city and the outcome of it will be awaited with very general interest, not only in Putnam but throughout the territory from which the strikers are drawing support in the Quinebaug valley mill district and in other sections.

Another development of Thursday was the arrest of six former employes of the Manhasset company to answer to charges of intimidation. A warrant also was issued for a seventh man formerly employed at the mill, but he had not been located up to early afternoon.

The hearing on these cases was held in the city court room Thursday afternoon, as told elsewhere in this paper this morning. All of those arrested were promptly released under bonds of $35 each.

There is great interest among members of the order here in the triennial conclave of the Nobles of the Ancient Arabic Order of the Mystic Shrine to be held in Washington during the early days of June. This mammoth gathering is expected to bring 500,000 visitors in the national capital, which is making elaborate preparations for the entertainment of this host.

Fifty thousand of the visitors will sleep nights in a Pullman city in the railroad yards, which will be cleared to make space for stateroom and sleeping cars to be occupied during the stay of the visiting Shriners by those unable to obtain hotel accomodations.

Public buildings, private homes and parks will figure in the plan for providing sleeping accomodations for the visitors. The parade and entertainment features will be remarkable. For dancing a mile and a quarter stretch of Pennsylvania avenue will be in use. The avenue will be closed to all traffic, the pavement washed and "mealed" and the available area divided into 49 sections—one section for each state of the union and one for the District of Columbia. Forty-nine bands will furnish the music and at the evening's end all these bands will be assembled into one vast musical organization to play The Star Spangled Banner.

Cities and towns within a radius of 40 miles of Washington are expected to be crowded with the overflow of the visiting hosts in which Putnam and other towns hereabout will be represented.

Not a trace of the car of Guy Zito, stolen from his garage on Mechanic street a week ago this morning had been found up to Thursday afternoon. As the days have lengthened into a week hope of recovering the car, which was strong at first, has dwindled. It is taken for granted that the car is far away from Connecticut by this time and that only some stroke of chance may lead to its recovery. The loss is a serious one to Mr. Zito who was not insured against theft.

Such splendid progress is being made in the drive for a fund of $20,000 for a nurses' home at the Day Kimball hospital that it is now felt that the entire sum will have been raised within a few weeks, a feat that is certain of accomplishment if the present momentum can be maintained. Director J. J. Whitehead said Thursday that over $6,000 has been raised already and more units of $50 each are being reported from day to day. Two meetings which Mr. Whitehead addressed Wednesday—one in Danielson and the other in Thompson—produced $450. The fine success of the early days of the movement is encouraging to all who are actively interested, but the hope is that others who can raise units if they will be not too complacent and become negligent in their personal effort. The towns in eastern Windham county that are figuring in the canvass can well afford to extend themselves to the extent necessary to make the project a complete success. The work can be accomplished without being a great drain on anyone and once achieved it will be the means of making possible a home that will stand as a monument to those who have had a part in it.

Commencement week in Putnam will open on Sunday evening, June 17, when the baccalaureate service is to be held in the Second Congregational church. Principal E. H. Snow of Putnam High school will deliver the address. Final classes will be held on Monday, June 18. For Tuesday, the 19th, the class picnic is scheduled and on the following day the class day exercises will be held in the auditorium of the high school. Graduation will be on Thursday, June 21, the exercises to be held in the Bradley theatre. Dalla Sharpe, professor of English at Boston Institute, Hingham, Mass., will deliver the address and there will be the usual features on the program, including special music. The class reception will be held Friday evening, June 22 in Union hall.

Final examinations in all subjects are to be held at the high school on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, June 13, 14, 15.

Aside from the court proceedings there were no developments of special interest Thursday in regard to the industrial upset at the Manhasset Manufacturing company plant, which is continuing to operate with a reduced force of workers. It is estimated that about 200 former employes are remaining away from work. All was quiet about the plant during the day, as has been the invariable rule since the inception of the difficulty. Strikers held their usual meetings during the day when an absence of pickets was noted from their usual places of observation near the mill.

"Tanlac gave me such an appetite, I jumped from eighty-nine pounds to a hundred and twenty-five in just a little while, and at morning—I eat fruits, oat meal, a regular breakfast, and two other good meals a day. I'll always feel grateful to Tanlac."

Then You Have Something to Learn.

Thousands who have piles have not do the same for you.

Learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with internal medicine. Neither cutting nor any amount of treatment with ointments and suppositories will remove the cause.

Bad circulation causes piles. There is a complete stagnation of blood in the lower bowel and a weakening of the parts. Dr. J. S. Leonhardt was first to find the remedy. His prescription is HEM-ROID, a tablet medicine, taken internally, that is now sold by druggists generally. Dr. Leonhardt tried it in 1,000 cases with the marvelous record of success in 98 per cent., and then decided it should be sold under a rigid money-back guarantee.

Don't waste any more time with outside applications. Get a package of HEM-ROID from Lee & Osgood today. It has given safe and lasting relief to thousands of people, and should do the same for you—it seldom fails.

TWO MINOR AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENTS IN NEW LONDON THURSDAY NIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, May 24.—An automobile, owned and operated by William F. Curtiss of No. 713 Montauk avenue, was struck and slightly damaged by an unidentified machine on Oneco avenue this evening, the colliding car being operated by a woman. The mudguard of the Curtiss automobile was damaged.

An automobile, owned and driven by Wallace B. Wilson of No. 159 Crystal avenue, was damaged this evening on Union street when it was run into by a car owned by Morris Gilston of Hartford and operated by Michael Zeff also of Hartford.

Rev. C. Harrison Rigg, a summer resident of New London, having a spacious mansion on Ocean avenue, and Catholic chaplain at Yale university, will address the members of the local branch of the National Council of Catholic Women in New London tomorrow afternoon at four o'clock. The address will be made in the parlors of the Knights of Columbus, Huntington street and a large gathering is sure to greet the clergyman.

One week from tomorrow, Mrs. Alice Hunt, the recently appointed policewoman of New London, will assume her duties and will exercise her ability as a sleuth by watching dance halls, restaurants, motion picture houses and, in fact, all places where the younger set, particularly girls, assemble. Mrs. Hunt, now connected with the State Farm for Women at Niantic, has been in New London recently in conference with City Manager Barlow and it is believed that she is ready for taking up the duties of the office with a clear knowledge of what she is expected to do.

Major Kenneth P. Lord and wife will entertain Lieutenant Commander and Mrs. H. D. Hinckley at the Lord residence, No. 213 Broad street, next Monday night, the occasion being complimentary to Lieut. Commander Hinckley who will depart a week later for a three months cruise on the training ship, C. G. Hamilton.

Detective Sergeant Charles P. Hammond, who departed from New London last Monday for Pittsburgh, where he will take charge of Thomas Grunby, wanted in New London for diamond theft, will return with his prisoner, it is believed late Saturday. Grunby has concluded his sentence in the Pittsburgh jail of the charge of vagrancy and Detective Hammond is provided with all the papers necessary to bring the fugitive back to New London.

Grunby visited the jewelry store of H. M. Roddy on State street last August and was shown diamonds, one of which it is claimed he secreted while the attention of the clerk was taken to another part of the store. The theft was not discovered until after Grunby had left the store and he had then made good his escape. Recently he was arrested in Pittsburgh and it was then that a warrant for the more serious crime was forwarded to the Pittsburgh officials.

Since Thomas Meighan and company of moving picture stars arrived at the Hotel Mohican several days ago, the populace of New London, particularly the women and girls have been paying the screen artists much attention, giving them receptions whenever Meighan and Lila Lee appeared in the audiences at the theatre and throughout the hotel. Tonight at the Thames shipyard, where the movie actors are engaged making a picture, seven patrolmen under Sergeant Nelson Smith kept the sight-seers a considerable distance from the shipyard, much to the disappointment of the New Londoners. The police were detailed to the shipyard by Captain of Police Charles Pinney at the request of the movie stars.

Saturday will be automobile day in the police court for there are some half a dozen cases to come to trial. New London was given an unenviable reputation for having more accidents with automobiles than any city in the state and it seems to be maintaining that reputation.

A shark weighing 250 pounds is on exhibit at a fishing schooner at the public pier. It was brought in by Capt. Rose of the fishing schooner Aunt Edie and has been seen by a very large number of persons the past two days.

Another house is to be erected on Bellevue place, leaving only one vacant lot on the avenue. Bellevue has attained the distinction of being the handsomest street in the city, the residences being occupied by their owners almost wholly and the grounds being maintained in good order the year around.

The federal officials are showing more interest in the sale of liquor in this city now than they have manifested since the prohibition laws became effective, for they are seeking to ascertain the number of arrests for drunkenness during the past three years as well as the number of persons arrested and prosecuted for selling liquor. What use will be made of the figures is not apparent, unless they are desired for comparison.

The bureau of patents at Washington recently granted Arthur G. Burdick of New London a patent for a grinder head guide stud and running key.

Joseph Young, colored of Providence, who received an indeterminate sentence of not less than two nor more than four years in state's prison, was escorted to the penal institution at Wethersfield yesterday by Sheriff Sidney A. Brown. Young pleaded not guilty to an attempt to break jail by force, at the present term of the superior court, but later changed his plea and was given the prison sentence by Judge George E. Hinman.

Beginning tomorrow the ferryboat Mohican, plying between New London and Groton and now operated by the borough of Groton, will start on a summer schedule. The boat will make three trips hourly, instead of two trips as heretofore.

Rt. Rev. Chauncey Bence Brewster, D. D., bishop of the state Episcopal diocese, was in New London for a short time yesterday, being the guest of Rev. and Mrs. Philip M. Kerridge. Rev. Mr. Kerridge is rector of St. James' Episcopal church.

City Manager and Mrs. James E. Barlow last evening entertained friends at their residence, No. 236 Hempstead street, in honor of Lieutenant Commander H. D. Hinckley of the United States Coast Guard Academy. Commander Hinckley will depart June 1st as commander of the U. S. S. C. G. Hamilton, which will start on a three months practice cruise. Among the attendants at the affair were Lieutenant and Mrs. Gordon W. MacLane and Principal and Mrs. Homer R. Underwood. Prof. Underwood being one of the instructors at Bulkeley High school.

Several New London physicians and Surgeons attended the 131st annual convention of the Connecticut State Medical society at New Haven today. Among the New London medicos in attendance were Dr. Daniel Sullivan, Charles B. Graves, Carlisle F. Ferrin, Thomas A. Woodruff, Stuart J. Lawson and Oliver E. Winship.

The bureau of pensions at Washington recently granted fourteen pensions to Connecticut residents. Among those to receive a pension were three residents of Groton. They were Isabell F. Dobson, $20 per month; Daniel B. Scoville, $12 per month and Edward R. Gorman, superintendent of the Groton Water & Light company, $18 per month.

Julian D. Moran, administrator of the estate of James O'Neill, is completing negotiations for the sale of a house and lot at No. 815 Main street to Alexander Bois. It is expected that the transfer will be made within a day or two.

Mrs. Lillian A. Potter, widow of Charles A. Potter, died last night at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Augustus Stone, of No. 2 Starr street, death ending a lingering illness. Mrs. Potter was 68 years of age and besides her daughter, is survived by a son, William Potter, also of New London. She was born in Rhode Island, but had made her home in New London, the greater part of her life.

Wallace Perkins of No. 271 Crystal avenue, reported to the police last night that while his automobile was parked in the rear of the Texas Oil company, off Sparyard street, yesterday afternoon, the markers and a kit of tools were stolen from the car. Later in the night the police recovered the markers, but the tools were not located.

The Knights of Columbus will work two degrees on classes of candidates this week. Tomorrow evening at Temperance hall, corner of Huntington and Jay streets, the second degree will be conferred and Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Lyceum theatre, the third degree will be exemplified on a large class of candidates.

Miss Fannie MacFarlane Scott, daughter of George H. Scott of No. 104 Riverview avenue and sister of Malcolm H. Scott, of the Union Bank & Trust company, died at Home Memorial hospital this morning, her demise ending a long illness. Miss Scott was employed as clerk at the Mariners Savings bank several years and until ill health compelled her to abandon her duties.

Hyman Friedberg of Norwich has purchased a house and lot on Moore avenue.

Mrs. Alice Breher of Tilley street, John Bloomfield of West Colt street, Joseph Ward of Eastern Point, Groton and Mrs. Harry Williams and baby son of Quaker Hill, were patients discharged today at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital.

Three automobile law violators were in the court today. Each was fined, but not any considerable amount. Teaching the lesson of compliance with law was the purpose of the court.

A social session was conducted by New London lodge of Elks this evening in their clubhouse on Washington street, the affair being attended by a large number of members because of the event being the first of its kind to be held in a long time. Talent from the Capitol theatre provided much of the entertainment and during the evening a bounteous repast was served.

A New London young man may find himself in serious difficulty with the laws of Canada within a short time for it has become known that he enticed a girl from the city to the Canadian dominion about two weeks ago. The girl has since returned to her home, but her return did not cause the matter to be dropped and as a result they have secured legal counsel in the matter.

When the case of Frank Knight, colored, of Colchester, is called in the police court Saturday morning Knight may be dealt with severely. When arrested Knight was operating a machine of Virginia registration, and registration that was two years old and he did not possess an operator's license. Knight informed the court that a woman passenger in the car, Mrs. Davis, possessed a license, which permitted him to operate the car. Inquiry at the office of the motor vehicle department today revealed that no license has been issued a woman by the name of Davis in Colchester, so it is probable that Knight will be given a stiff fine.

The case of John Ramistella, of No. 197 Bank street, charged with reckless driving, is still untried in the Groton town court, because of Ramistella's alleged victim, G. T. Royer, a sailor at the submarine base, being unable to appear in court. The case was to have been tried last Monday, but has been continued until June 4th. Royer, who had been under treatment since being run down by a machine on the highway between the Groton railroad and the submarine base, has been transferred to the naval hospital at Newport for further treatment.

THE TENDENCY OF THE TIME IS THE RULE OF THE SHIRK.

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

When some one writes a series of stories or photoplays showing up the stupid behavior of this or that "Get-rich-quick-Wallingford," we just shake our sides over it. We can't imagine how any sane human being can dream that such trickery and fraud will win out. It's too absurd on the face of things. We grow virtuously indignant over the possible existence of such crooks. We eagerly remark that they are most likely just creatures of a vivid imagination. They can hardly exist in real life.

And all the time a big lot of us—if not a majority, then certainly a much swollen minority, are doing about the same things—or trying to.

"Get-rich-quick Wallingford," and his disciples, imitators and followers, act upon one broad general rule. That is to get as much as they can out of other folks, as quick as they can, and with as little return as they must. "Something for nothing," is their motto. "Let George do it, and we'll collect the profits," is their daily rule.

They're perfectly willing to let the other fellow sweat—digging out the dollars, if they can only pick them up as fast as dug.

We of the every-day working world, we laborers in the earth's fields and shops—we profess to despise such conduct and to condemn such thimble riggers. At the same time two or three out of every half-dozen of us are doing or trying to do the same thing in a more or less shamefacing way.

We are, oh! so virtuous in our professions and preaching, but our practice is along different lines.

Of course in saying this I am not referring to you who read it. Far from it. You and I are all right, of course. It is a rule even of rural good breeding that "present company is always excepted" from all criticism. Moreover, I have too high regard for the remaining hairs of my old head to risk them by accusing younger and stronger men.

But, if you've ever hired help or if you've ever been a member of any sizable party of hired men, yourself, you know that it is the truth that a considerable proportion have been shirks at heart, and shirks in action whenever it was safe. Furthermore, you know that this condition is growing worse. Every day in every way shirking is becoming more general. It is even made the motive of conduct and the desideratum of life by many existing organizations.

The manufacturer thinks not of how good he can make his product but of how cheaply; the farmer not of how high quality potatoes and onions he can grow but of how many bushels to the acre he can force out; the railroad magnate not of how swiftly and safely and surely he can transport freight, but of how he can route it so as to bring in the biggest income for his road; the distributor not of how economically and efficiently he can deliver the goods but of how he can manipulate them so as to levy the largest possible tolls; the farm hand not of how much and how good work he can do but of how long a nap he'll be able to take when he gets behind the brow of the hill and out of sight of the house; the shop or railroad employe not of how much service he can return for his wages but of how little he can do without danger of getting fired.

It would be a libel on humanity to say that this is the universal rule, it would be falsehood. There are manufacturers and farmers and merchants and workmen in all occupations who scorn such conduct. I would not even deny that these better and honester men are still in the majority. But no unbiassed observer of the times can fail to see that whatever majority they may now maintain is decreasing; that the movement is in the other direction; that the tide is ebbing.

The tendency of the times is towards the Rule of the Shirk. To altogether too great a number the call of the golf course is more insistent than that of the desk; the lure of the fishing pool stronger than that of the counter or bench; the state of the ball game much more important than the work of the loom or the furnace; the evening's loaf at the village resort more desirable than the doing of a fair day's work in the field.

Probably the most outstanding and widely visible example of this tendency is found in the constant drives of so-called "labor" organizations for higher wages and shorter hours. Such manifestations are recorded in almost every issue of every daily paper. Does a plasterer get $14 a day for a day of eight hours? He isn't satisfied, but demands $15 or $16 a day. Has the old 12-hour day of the factories and shops you and I knew in our youth given place to a ten or even an eight hour day? That means forty-eight hours a week, and first one, then another union goes out on strike for a forty-four hour week.

But such occurrences, as I have said, more open and outspoken, are by no means any more real or more ominous than the unorganized and under-the-surface movement which we farmers are daily feeling.

Can you get a hand to work for your interests single-heartedly and strenuously any more? One who will come to work a minute ahead of time rather than ten minutes late? One who will stick to his particular task till it is finished, even if it keeps him busy till after "quitting time?" One who will regard his work as more important than his pleasure? One who actually prides himself on the character and finish of that work?

If so—if you really know of such a treasure, you're luckier than any of the employing farmers with whom I am thrown into association. Most of those with whom I talk have practically given up trying to hire any help at all, because such as they can obtain want city wages for city hours—two things which are not and will not be possible in farm work till potatoes sell for $5 a bushel and butter for $3 a pound.

Probably there is no more use in crying out against this wide and wider-spreading condition than there would be in trying to blow back an approaching cyclone with a palm-leaf fan. In any open contest between the hankerings of greed and the promptings of wisdom, there is no need to wait for the counting of the ballots to know which side will come out ahead.

What was that famous saying of "Ike" Bromley's about the New London editor "who mistook the regurgitations of a sour stomach for the meanings of remorse?" The average man is far too prone to regard the prurience of his own greed as the urge of shrewdness. And his mind is as impervious to reason as a duck's back to rain-drops. "Seest thou a wise man in his own conceit? There is more hope for a fool than for him. Nevertheless, it is the duty of the watchman to give the alarm, whether the hearers give heed to it or not.

And there is one eternal and immutable truth in this universe which not all the manoeuvrings of human concupiscence can out-flank or budge—the truth that when one man shirks his fair share of the world's work, some other man has to do double duty in accomplishing it.

It always has happened and doubtless always will happen that some loafer has been able, through one pretext or another, to evade his fair share of work. By the same token it always has happened and always will happen that every hour's work he selfishly and unfairly shirks has to be done by some one else working overtime.

You can't take a cup-full of water out of a pint pot and still leave the pot full. You can't change the clock of the universe, no matter how much you monkey with that on the town hall. You can't supply the world with either potatoes or undershirts by going fishing at planting time or golfing while the loom runs unattended.

The work of the world must be done. That's flat. Your share of it may be so small as to seem to you quite unimportant. But, no matter what its relative amount, it must be done—by you or some one else. If you shirk it, no matter for what reason or excuse, some one else will have to do it for you.

Dick Turpin used to say that the world owed him a living, and so he took to highway robbery to collect it. He did a rushing business till the outraged intelligence of his fellows led him to Tyburn Hill and kicked him off the tail of a cart with a noose around his neck. A certain school of shallow thinkers are today parroting the same untruth, that the world owes every man a living.

As a matter of cold fact, the world owes no man anything whatsoever—except what he earns. His parents may owe him protection and support till he grows able to protect and support himself. After that nobody owes him anything, beyond fair pay for fair work.

There may, indeed, be room for question between him and the world as to what is his fair share of its work, and what are the fair wages he earns. But there is never any question that he owes the world that proper share before it owes him even living wages.

If accident or other external fault prevent him from doing his share, then the mercy of the kind-hearted old world—not its justice—steps in and tries to help him over the bad places. But, so long as he is physically and mentally able to do his share, his refusal or neglect to do that share, in full and with zeal, is not only a shirking of his own burden, but a deliberate imposition of that burden on some better man's shoulders.

I understand perfectly well that it is almost impossible to make many men and women take large views of their problems. He who can see beyond the end of his nose is keener-eyed than most. Those whose vision is limited by the shining extremities of their own probosees find it very difficult to grasp the idea that they have a non-transferable share in the work of the big world. But even such ought to find it possible to recognize that they owe decent treatment to their neighbors. Especially that they are forbidden to bind their own share of the daily task on the backs of those neighbors.

Nor should it be impossible for them to appreciate that their neighbors are not just those living in the same block or on the same street or in the same village. In these days the farms are neighbors of the factories, and Hiram with the hoe is neighbor to Tom of the trowel.

He who does his own full share of the world's work, day by day—and perhaps a little over to assure good measure—he is thereby acting justly towards all those neighbors of his wherever they be. He who shirks one detail of that day's work thereby casts so much of an additional burden on those same neighbors, already loaded down to the lawful limit.

The object of a real man, whether he be president of the United States or ditch-digger on a country back-road, is not to show how little he can do nor how much he can get, but to insure how fully and fairly he can accomplish the task which God and nature have laid on his shoulders—his and not another's.

THE FARMER.

THERE'S SOMETHIN' GOIN' ON

"There's somethin' goin' on" is what you town folks always say
When you advertise a speakin' or th' band's a-goin' to play.
You have your melodrama troupes, your movie shows an' such,
But th' country's got a circus now th' city couldn't touch.

"There's somethin' goin' on" along th' old back orchard fence,
A show that you are welcome to—free grajis, no expense.
Th' violets—spring beauties, too—are out upon parade,
A gay an' grand procession such as man has never made.

"There's somethin' goin' on" among th' orchard blossoms fair—
Th' jaybirds an' th' robins are a-holdin' prize-fights there!
Th' squirrels in th' sycamores are playin' acrobat—
There never was a circus man could beat them doin' that!

"There's somethin' goin' on" out here 'bout everywhere it seems—
Th' plowin' an' th' harryin', th' shoutin' at th' teams;
Th' old hens in th' furries, too, are in a cheery mood,
A-follerin' th' plows to git a banquet fer their brood.

"There's somethin' goin' on" I guess, in every country heart—
There's somethin' in th' atmosphere that gives th' blood a start.
You feel it in th' mornin' at th' very break o' dawn,
An' you're glad clear through to sunset—"there's somethin' goin' on!"

State Commander Edward L. Kelly, American Legion, paid his official visit to Oscar W. Swanson post, 97, at North Grosvenordale last Saturday, attending a banquet in his honor and a dance following. In concluding, Commander Kelly thanked the legion and its auxiliary unit here for the fine work done by them, saying that of the 35 posts visited during the year, Oscar W. Swanson, No. 97, was among those at the top of the list for carrying on the legion work.

John T. Reardon, chairman of the war memorial committee and also chairman of the welcome home celebration back in 1919, delivered a short address. Edward McKeon, historian of the post, gave in brief the history, starting back from the welcome home celebration in 1919, when the post was organized, to the present date.

There were 100 reservations at the banquet. John T. Reardon, Jr., of North Grosvenordale was toastmaster

MARKET WAS ACTIVE.

New York, May 24.—The sharp rally in today's active stock market was generally regarded as a further correction of an oversold condition. The apparent halt in the recent relaxing tendency of commodity prices undoubtedly prompted much of the short covering, which provided the main impetus for the advance, but in a few stocks there were indications of fresh buying by strong financial interests.

The announcement by J. P. Morgan & Company that it had agreed to underwrite $25,000,000 of the Austrian loan was regarded as conclusive proof of the soundness of underlying investment conditions in the domestic market. Other favorable developments of the day were the publication of statistics showing that car loadings for the week ending on May 12 were the largest this year; resumption of dividends by Virginia Iron, Coal & Coke; a decrease of 11,650 barrels in the daily average gross crude oil production for the week ending May 19 and several favorable earnings statements.

California Petroleum was again the outstanding individual feature, establishing a new high for the year at 21 1-8 and closing slightly below that figure for a net gain of 2 1-8 point son the day, and approximately 56 points above the year's low. Buying of this issue has been attributed in some quarters to the large Mexican producers on the theory that they are seeking a source of supply to take the place of the loss in Mexican production.

The run-in of the shorts was a veritable rout in the last hour when the best prices of the day were made. Scores of stocks closed 2 to 7 points above yesterday's final levels. Some of the most conspicuous industrials were Bethlehem, Republic, Crucible and Gudf States, Steels, Baldwin, American Can, American Woolen, Studebaker, Stewart-Warner, Mack Truck, Phillipe Petroleum, California Petroleum Preferred, Houston Oil, duPont, Famous Players and National Lead, all up 3 points or more.

Rails were more active than usual with some strong buying noted in New York Central, Canadian Pacific, "Soo," St. Louis & Southwestern, Rock Island, Delaware & Hudson, Southern Pacific, Union Pacific and Missouri Pacific Preferred, up 2 to 3 points.

Call money held steady at 4 1-2 per cent. throughout the session. Time money continues on a 5 per cent basis with business quiet. New Commercial Paper is being received in fair amount and had a ready demand, the bulk of the prime names commanding 5 per cent.

Foreign exchanges were somewhat easier. The slight heaviness of sterling which dropped 3-8 of a cent to $4.63 was attributed to British buying of American Securities. French francs sagged 3 points to 6.64 cents. German marks sold just above $18 a million.

BOND MARKET.

New York, May 24. — Speculative bonds were exceptionally active and pointed upward in today's trading in bonds. The higher grade issues also displayed a firm tone but were not quite so active.

Active U. S. government bonds continued to climb, advances ranging from 3-32 to 7-32 of a point. The volume of these securities, however, was small and there seemed little on which to base the belief, in some quarters, that much of the buying of these issues is for the account of Great Britain. Foreign government bonds were steady with some improvement in French and South American issues.

J. P. Morgan & Company's decision to undertake the sale in this country of $25,000,000 Austrian bonds undoubtedly influenced the increased activity in the bond market. Railroad mortgages showed considerable improvement over a big list, some of the larger advances including New York Central 6s, and Seaboard Air Line Consolidated 6s, 1 1-4 each, and St. Paul Refunding 4 1-2s, Chesapeake & Ohio Convertible 4 1-2s, and Frisco Income 6s, 1 each.

Trading in the industrial group also was more active than has been the case recently, the sugar and copper company lieas particularly being in demand. Punta Alegre 7s advanced 2 points and Cerro De Pasco Copper 8s, 3 1-4. Sinclair Pipe Line 5s gained a point.

Total sales (par value) were $13,563,000.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Ills., May 24.—Apparently as a result of an overbought condition, the wheat market averaged lower in price today. Closing quotations were easy at 1-8 to 3-8c net decline, with July 117 1-4 to 117 3-8 and September 115 1-4. Corn finished unchanged to 3-8c higher, oats varying from 1-4c off to 1-8c advance, and provisions at 2c to 10c gain.

At the outset, the wheat market was somewhat depressed owing chiefly to the fact that Liverpool quotations were lower and that liberal shipments from Argentina to Europe were reported. Bullish advices, however, regarding the domestic winter crop, together with some export business, led quickly to rallies, as did estimates that the 1923 acreage of spring wheat would show a decrease of 15 per cent compared with last year. For a while, sympathy with an upward swing of values in the stock market tended also to induce wheat buying and to lift wheat prices temporarily.

Weakness, though, occurred during the last part of the exchange session, when early buyers found that unloading could only be accomplished at some sacrifice. Lack of sustained demand seemed evident, and the bulls were further handicapped by indications that export business would hardly total more than 400,000 bushels, with European buying of gulf wheat restricted to 96,000 bushels.

Strength in the corn market came largely from reports that much replanting of corn would be necessary throughout important sections, Illinois in particular. Export buying of corn also was a factor. Oats trade was slow.

Provisions although at first easy responded later to an advance in hog values.

LEGISLATURE CAN FIX WAY TO KEEP MAHER

If the two houses of the general assembly should decide to enact legislation to secure the continuance of Dr. Stephen J. Maher on the tuberculosis commission, notwithstanding the supposed intention of the governor to supersede him when the doctor's term ends, they would have legislative precedent for their act.

At the session of 1911 when the republicans, who were in control of both houses, thought that Governor Simeon E. Baldwin would supersede James H. MacDonald as the office of highway commissioner, they added a rider to the appropriation bill which prevented the governor from carrying out his intentions in case he entertained them. The rider was effective. Under the constitution the governor cannot select the part of a bill which he desires to veto. He may veto an entire bill, but not a part of one. The rider on the appropriation bill for a continuance of Mr. MacDonald was an integral part of the bill. Governor Baldwin could not have vetoed it without vetoing the appropriations.

The general assembly has still plenty of time to pass a bill for the continuance of Dr. Maher in office and to override the veto of the governor in case it is vetoed. The bill could be passed under suspension of rules and sent to the governor in time to meet the constitutional requirement which gives the chief executive three legislative days for the consideration of measures submitted to him.

ALL IMPORTANT BUSINESS IN LEGISLATIVE COMING THURSDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Hartford, May 24.—Next Thursday is to be the day for any important business in the legislature, as it was definitely stated today when both branches of the general assembly adjourned that no important measures would be considered either at the extra session tomorrow or at next Tuesday's session. Because of this "gentlemen's agreement" the attendance at the next two sessions will undoubtedly be small.

IN THE HOUSE.

The house was called to order at 10.10 by Speaker Nickerson with a slim attendance.

The bill concerning the practice of law by corporations was received by the house from the senate on disagreeing action. The house voted to adhere to its action in passing the bill and asked for a committee of conference.

Mr. Buckley of Union and Alling of New Britain were appointed on the part of the house.

The bills creating the diocesan bureau of social service and incorporating the state agricultural society were passed, as was the bill creating state psychiatric commission.

A bill was introduced and passed that takes the building of the dormitory at the Danbury Normal School from the state board of education and places it in the hands of a commission consisting of Comptroller Frederick M. Salmon of Westport, Senator Howard E. Bidwell of East Hartford and Mayor William C. Gilbert of Danbury. The board of education is directed to turn over to the commission the appropriation that was made for the building. Passage of the amended bill was moved by Sturgess of Woodbury and Merz of North Haven and an effort was made to table the bill but this the house refused to do.

Mr. Sturgess contended that the board of education was the proper body to construct the building. He was opposed to any building at this time, but if it was to be built, they should do so. He was fearful that the proper building would not be constructed. Leader Buckley pointed to the fact that the building would be constructed under existing statutes and it would insure a proper building. Mr. Andrews of Danbury earnestly supported the bill and said that one of the proposed commissioners was an experienced builder. Bell of Salsbury also urged the passage of the bill. The bill was accepted by a large majority.

The Oleomargarine bill as amended was passed. The amended bill concerning elections in New Haven, which is now made to include all the elective officers was opposed by Mr. Faulkner of New Haven. He claimed that the present charter of New Haven gave the board of aldermen the power to change the time of the election if they saw fit and the people wanted it. It was unnecessary legislation. He was supported by Representative Straits of Hartford. Mr. Adamdo of New Haven was opposed to the bill and urged rejection and quoted from a section of the New Haven charter which gives the freemen of New Haven the power to change the time of election if they so desire.

Mr. Faulkner moved it be indefinitely postponed. As the viva-voce vote was doubtful, a rising vote was taken on the motion to postpone. The chair disclosed that a number had not voted and declared that every member must vote. The result was 57 for indefinite postponement and 89 against.

Upon the vote for the passage of the bill the viva-voce vote was uncertain, and a rising vote was taken which resulted in the passage of the bill, by a vote of 89 yeas and 54 nays.

Notice was given that it was necessary for every member of the house to be in the house that a quorum may be obtained so that important business could be considered and suggested that the speaker exercise his power to close the doors. The speaker said that he hoped that he would not be called upon to exercise that power.

In concurrence with the senate the section of the general statutes that permits the flogging of prisoners was passed and it was immediately transmitted to the engrossing clerk.

As the senate by the report of the committee of conference had voted to adhere to its action in rejecting the bill relating to corporations practicing law, the house also voted to adhere.

The judiciary reported favorably upon the nomination of John R. Brooks of Danbury as a judge of the superior court and upon ballot he was elected by a vote of 133 yeas and 9 nays. The result was immediately transmitted to the senate.

A resolution was passed authorizing Dominick J. Murphy to compile the laws passed at this session of the assembly and directing him to send to each senator and representative a copy of the same.

The bill concerning the weight of a bushel of various articles was reached and after amendment was again passed. It changes the some of the weights of green stuff so that they may conform with the laws of other states.

The amended water pollution bill as received from the senate was tabled.

During the call on the calender Mrs. Nevins of New Fairfield occupied the chair. Speaker Nickerson has now given every woman member of the assembly this opportunity. The only male members that have been honored in this way are Darbie of Killingly, Fenton of Windham and Brinsmade of Washington.

House adjourned till Friday at 10.15 (s. t.)

SENATE

On motion of Senator Ells a resolution was passed authorizing the comptroller to pay Dominick J. Murphy of Hartford $500 for the preparation of the completed list of bills.

The committee on executive nominations reported favorably on the nomination by the governor of George M. Burgess of New Haven and Louis H. Warner of Orange to be commissioners of New Haven harbor, and Fred F. Lovejoy of Norwalk to be shell fish commissioner. The nominations were confirmed and the appointments ratified.

The committee on the judiciary reported favorably on the following bill relating to employment of compensation commissioners by employers and insurance companies: "No employer within the provisions of Chapter 284 of the general statutes, and no insurance company insuring any such employer, shall employ, for any injured workman of such employer, any member of the workmen's compensation commission to render any professional service to any injured employe of such employer and no member of said commission shall render any professional service to any injured workman on account of any injury received in the course of his employment. Any person violating any provision of this act shall be fined not more than $100.

On the motion of Senator Ells the bill was ordered printed in the journal.

On the motion of Senator Bidwell the following bill relating to corrected statements to be furnished to the tax commissioner, was passed: "The provision of this act shall apply to companies which have made return or which may make return of income received by them for any fiscal or calendar year. Any minimum tax not exceeding the amount of twenty dollars levied and assessed by the tax commissioner against any company which has carried on business in this state and whose fiscal or calendar year ended prior to April 1, 1922, is validated."

The committee on the judiciary reported unfavorably on the bill introduced by Senator Golden for the removal of sex qualification in the selection of jurors. The bill was rejected.

On the motion of Senator Beiseigel a bill was passed requiring physicians to make out death certificates in duplicate, one blanks furnished by the state department of health within 24 hours after the death of persons whom they attend.

On the motion of Senator Ells the bill from the house in relation to appeals from the juvenile court was ordered printed in the journal.

For Danbury Normal School

In the absence of Senator Rogers the chairman of the committee on appropriations, the bill from the house appointing Frederick M. Salmon, Howard E. Bidwell and William C. Gilbert a commission to take charge of the work at the Danbury normal school for which an appropriation of $100,000 has been made. Later, when Senator Rogers had taken his seat, the bill was taken from the table on the motion of Senator French. On the motion of Senator Bakewell the bill was passed in concurrence.

In concurrence the senate passed a bill amending the law concerning the powers and duties of the warden of the state prison in relation to the punishment of prisoners.

The bill relating to the sale of imitation butter, which came from the house, was passed in concurrence on the motion of Senator Child and transmitted to the clerk of bills.

On the motion of Senator Brooks the senate adhered to its action in rejecting the bill relating to the drafting of wills by banks, etc., notwithstanding the request of the senate for a committee of conference. Senator Brooks said the house was fully aware of the attitude of the senate on the bill and the refusal to accede to the request of a committee of conference should not be taken as an act of discourtesy to the house.

State Aid to Towns

Senator Bakewell explained a bill from the committee on education of which he is chairman to enable towns receiving state aid for the fiscal period of 1925.

The bill was passed and transmitted to the house.

Huxford for Judge

A communication was received from the governor appointing Frederick W. Huxford of Stamford judge of the court of common pleas for Fairfield county. The appointment was tabled for calendar. Mr. Huxford was speaker of the house at the session of 1921.

Judge Booth Confirmed

On the favorable report of the committee on executive nominations the senate by an unanimous vote concurred with the house in confirming the appointment of William R. Booth of Danbury as judge of the superior court. Twenty-nine senators voted.

Senator French announced that the hearing on an amendment to the state had been postponed from today to constitution relating to associations Thursday next at one o'clock.

RAINBOW CIRCLE WILL HAVE SPECIAL GUESTS

Birthday Surprise Party.

A birthday surprise and May basket party for Miss Inez Antonetta Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brown, was given Tuesday evening at their home No. 157 West Main street. They gathered at the house while she was away and gave her a greeting upon her return. The birthday cake, with her initials on it in pink candles, and the beautiful May basket, made pretty decorations for the table. She received 23 beautiful presents. Ice cream, cake and candy were served.

Among the gifts were several from Cumberland Co., Va., sent by her Grandfather and Grandmother Booker, Grandmother Brown, Uncles Lee and Peachie and Aunt Ethel.

PROBATE APPEAL OVER PAPER REVOKING WILL

An order of the Norwich probate court on May 1, 1923, finding that Jennie Potter of this city, who died Nov. 18, 1921, died intestate is challenged in an appeal from probate that has been brought in the superior court by Samuel H. Stephens of Providence.

At a probate court hearing an instrument purporting to be the will of Jennie Potter was produced, having been executed in Norwich on May 18, 1915, in which Stephens was made executor of her estate. But at the hearing another instrument purporting to be a revocation of the will was presented to the court. This had been executed Aug. 9, 1917 in Warren, R. I., Mrs. Potter at that time being a resident of Rhode Island.

Probate Judge Nelson J. Ayling admitted the revocation, declared the decedent intestate and appointed Dwight L. Underwood administrator of the estate.

"I, Jennie Potter of the city of Providence in the state of Rhode Island do hereby cancel, annul and revoke all former wills and testaments by me heretofore made." The witness to her signature was P. H. Gardner, Providence, R. I., and Henry W. Hopkins, M. D., Warren, R. I.

SUIT OVER CARLOAD OF ONIONS FROM CALIFORNIA

Trial of the suit of Isadore Cohen and others of Los Angeles over a shipment of a carload of onions in February, 1920, to the New London Fruit and Produce company, occupied the superior court here all day Thursday. Just as court adjourned, the attorneys in the case, A. T. Keefe for the plaintiff, Morris Lubchansky and F. L. McGuire for the defendant, made brief arguments and Judge George E. Hinman took the papers.

The New London company refused to accept the onions, claiming they were defective. The price of the carload was $1,260, but when sent to Boston for sale they brought $560. The California people sued for $1,500, and the New London firm has a counterclaim of $200 for return of money paid to the California dealers.

Testimony for the plaintiffs was by depositions which were read at the morning session of court.

In the afternoon the testimony for the defendants was put on by the following who were called as witnesses: Bartholomew J. McCarthy, Alex Jordan, John Baraiz, Abraham J. Maloff, Irving Lipton, Thomas W. Duffey and James E. Moore.

Suit Withdrawn in Court.

The suit of the Adams Steel Products corporation of New York against M. J. McCarthy & Son of New London was withdrawn in open court here Thursday during the superior court session. The plaintiff company brought suit on Oct. 8, 1920, for $1,500 damages on a claim that they made a purchase of bolts and steel from McCarthy in June, 1920, but that the material delivered was not up to specifications as to size, quality or amount.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

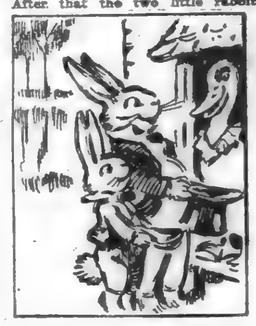
By DAVID CORY

A Call On Mrs. Goose.

You remember in the last story that Little Jack Rabbit on the back of the Old Brown Horse won the race at the Fair Grounds. Well, after the race was over, the manager of the Fair pinned a lovely blue ribbon on the Old Brown Horse and a great big diamond horse shoe pin on the little rabbit.

"You can keep your jockey suit, if you like," he laughed. Wasn't that fine? Well, you can just bet the little rabbit thought so and so did Uncle Lucky. Indeed, he was so proud of his little rabbit nephew that he promised to buy the Old Brown Horse if the Old Brown House wanted to sell himself, but he didn't. He said he'd rather go back to the green pasture and eat nice, sweet clover.

After that the two little rabbits



"How are You today?" he asked.

drove off in the Luckymobile and by and by, after a while, they came to a pretty green house in which Mrs. Goose lived, close to the pond. Hopping out of the Luckymobile, the old gentleman rabbit knocked on the front door.

Mrs. Goose was delighted to see them for she was very fond of dear Uncle Lucky and so is everybody, let me tell you for he is always kind to the poor little children.

"How are you today?" he asked, taking off his wedding stovepipe hat, and bowing very politely to Mrs. Goose.

"Oh, I've got the rheumatism," answered the old lady goose. "It's damp in the house and the kitchen stove's out of order."

"Why didn't you let me know sooner?" asked Uncle Lucky. "You see, he owned the little house and rented it to Mrs. Goose for three goose eggs a month which was very cheap for rents, are dreadfully high in Goose Creek, let me tell you.

"I didn't have any eggs to pay the rent with," sobbed poor Mrs. Goose "and I didn't want to trouble you".

PERSONNEL OF NEW BRITISH MINISTRY IS ANNOUNCED

Will be in Readiness for Parliament Which Reassembles on Monday—Reginald McKenna Has Consented to Take Office of Chancellor of the Exchequer When He Has Recovered from His Present Illness—In the Meantime Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin Will Conduct the Office.

London, May 26—(By The A. P.)—The new administration was completed tonight and is in readiness to meet parliament, which reassembles Monday.

The official list of the cabinet and other officials issued tonight shows the net change of personnel is the substitution of Lord Robert Cecil as Lord Privy Seal for Andrew Bonar Law, who had held this portfolio in addition to the premiership, and the promotion of Mr. Bonar Law's secretary, John C. C. Davidson, to a place in the government — as chancellor of the duchy of Lancaster. The men guiding the country's destinies are practically the same as those who had this task in hand before Mr. Bonar Law tendered his resignation.

Prime minister and first lord of the treasury, leader in the house of commons and chancellor of the exchequer, Stanley Baldwin.

Lord privy seal, Lord Robert Cecil.

Lord high chancellor, Viscount Cave.

Secretary for foreign affairs and leader in the house of lords, the Marquis of Curzon.

Secretary for the Colonies, the Duke of Devonshire.

Secretary of state for war, the Earl of Derby.

Secretary of state for India, Viscount Peel.

First lord of the admiralty, Right Hon. L. S. Amery.

President of the board of agriculture, Right Hon. Sir Robert A. Sanders.

Secretary for Scotland, Viscount Novar.

President of the board of education, Right Hon. E. F. L. Wood.

Minister of labor, Right Hon. Sir Montague Barlow.

First commissioner of works, Right Hon. Sir John Baird.

Attorney general, Right Hon. Sir Douglas Hogg.

Solicitor general, Sir T. W. H. Inskip.

Paymaster general, Major Archibald Boyd-Carpenter.

Lord advocate for Scotland, William Watson.

Solicitor general for Scotland, F. O Lunnan.

Count Balfarin, the new prime minister, in assuming the post of head of the government, had two objects in view: First, to secure a stronger government than that under Mr. Bonar Law; and, second, if possible, to reunite the conservative party. To some extent he is considered to have succeeded in his first purpose, but to have entirely failed in the second. None of the conservatives who "went into the wilderness" with David Lloyd George when the coalition government have seen their way to enter the Government.

All negotiations with this aim with Sir Robert Horne and Austen Chamberlain failed, apparently because, although Sir Robert seemed willing, the others were disinclined to acquiesce unless all could enter together, and the "die hard" section of the conservatives obstinately refused to have anything to do with Lord Birkenhead.

Mr. Baldwin, nevertheless, has succeeded. In the popular belief, in strengthening his government in a somewhat unexpected manner. He has secured Lord Robert Cecil, who, while holding the sinecure position of lord privy seal in order to permit him to continue his work for the league of nations, will prove a great accession to the debating strength of the government. He has also obtained a promise from Reginald McKenna, famous head of the Great City and Midland bank, to take over the chancellorship of the exchequer a few months hence should Mr. McKenna's health permit.

When Mr. Baldwin failed to secure Sir Robert Horne for the chancellorship, he invited Mr. McKenna, who was a member of the Asquith administration but lately has shown signs of veering toward the conservative side of politics, to accept the portfolio. Mr. McKenna was just recovering from an illness. He has promised to join the government, provided at the end of two months his health has reached a satisfactory state. This promise of Mr. McKenna will tremendously enhance the government's prestige in all financial and commercial circles.

Meantime Mr Baldwin holds double office in order to pilot his finance bill through the remaining stages of parliament. He has appointed the former postmaster general, Sir William Joynson-Hicks, as financial secretary of the treasury. The post of postmaster general for the present is left vacant.

Mr. McKenna is not a member of the house of commons. He did not seek a seat in the last general election, although he delivered addresses in support of the Bonar Law government. If he takes office in the autumn, as expected, he will need to enter parliament and probably will be provided with a seat one of the city of London constituencies, where his election would be certain.

It is in the realm of foreign policies that the new ministry will be most closely watched. Here Mr. Baldwin is a new and untried man, his previous offices as president of the board of trade and chancellor of the exchequer having limited his activities to commercial and financial matters.

The appointment of Lord Robert Cecil is considered to bind Great Britain closer than ever to the league of nations. Lord Curzon remains in the foreign office, thus insuring in a great measure a continuation of his foreign policies. But much will depend on how far the new premier gives him the lead in foreign affairs. Some of the liberal critics seem to foresee friction between Lord Curzon and Lord Robert Cecil.

POINCARE CHEERED IN CHAMBER OF DEPUTIES

Paris, May 26 (By the A. P.)—The chamber of deputies today took the first occasion since Premier Poincare's attempted resignation to express their approval of his policies. When M. Poincare entered the chamber for the continuation of the debate on the appropriations for the Ruhr occupation costs, nearly the entire body arose and cheered in lengthily. The demonstration as interpreted as the answer of the chamber to the senate's action on the Cachin case yesterday which prompted M. Poincare to proffer his resignation to the president.

After the ovation the debate dragged on in the midst of the general impatience of the deputies, who were seemingly ready and eager to vote the money asked for. Political exigences, however, seem to require that some of the political leaders, such as douard Herriot and Andre Tardieu, have their way. The former, representing the views of the radical party, made the sharpest attack on the government's policy in the Ruhr yet heard in parliament, but expressions of approval of his views came only from the radical and socialist benches.

The debate went over again until next Tuesday, when M. Tardieu will have the floor. The general opinion is that a large majority is certain for the cabinet.

HAD BEEN RINGING IN FALSE ALARMS OF FIRE

Bridgeport, May 25.—Willing to sell his friend and accomplice in crime to police for the sum of $100 in reward money, a 20 year old youth today unwittingly entrapped himself as well as his 19 year old chum, who secretly gloried in the self-given name of "the Mysterious Shadow," into being jailed in default of $1,000 bonds. Each is charged specifically with ringing in eleven false alarms of fire between them, within a period of several months, and they are suspected of being responsible as well for 14 other fake fire department calls and the summoning of the police patrol and emergency hospital ambulance on needless runs.

The prisoners, each of whom is said to have made a confession, are: George Clemann, 19, of 73 Boston avenue, who describes himself as the "Mysterious Shadow" and Robert Kissen, 20, of 894 Madison avenue, whose willingness to inform on Clemann for cash cleared up the worrisome false alarm menace.

CAPTIVE OF BRIGANDS SENT OUT HIS WILL

Tsaochwang, May 25.—(By The A. P.)—Leon Friedman, one of the Americans held by the Shantung bandits in the hills beyond here, today sent out his will, drawn up in legal form and witnessed by two of his fellow captives.

Friedman's will, which was brought out by J. B. Powell, American publisher of Shanghai, released on parole as a messenger to carry what the bandits say are their "final terms," bequeaths everything he owns to his brother, Max Friedman of Shanghai. The testament was witnessed by Powell and G. D. Musso, Italian attorney, who also is one of the prisoners.

Powell, as the bearer of the brigand's "last word" is to participate here in an all-night conference between foreign consular officials and Chinese government officials.

Three brigades of Chinese troops have taken the field against the outlaws and are slowly tightening their cordon about the bandits' hill retreat.

TRAIN HELD UP 200 MILES SOUTHWEST OF MOSCOW

Moscow, May 25.—(By The A. P.)—Thirty bandits armed with rifles held up the Odessa-Moscow express 200 miles southwest of Moscow at midnight Wednesday, according to Dr. W. R. Smith, of Taunton, Mass., district superintendent of the American Relief administration, who was a passenger from Odessa on the held-up train and arrived in Moscow today.

The bandits refrained from looting the relief administration's mail pouch, but took from Mr. Smith and the Russian courier of the relief administration who was accompanying him all their belongings of value. At the request of the courier, however, the bandits returned 50,000,000 rubles to the courier so he would be able to pay tips for the handling of the administration's pouches at the station here.

The train was held up two hrours while the bandits were looting it, nobody being allowed to leave the cars during that time.

SHIPPING WARNED OF ICE FLOES AND BERGS

Washington, May 25.—A special warning to shipping in the North Atlantic was broadcast today by the naval hydrographic office which has received reports from coast guard cutters on ice patrol that ice floes and icebergs have drifted unusually far south and across both the east bound and west bound traffic lanes.

Vessels were warned to increase their caution, double their lookout and "slow down or even stop during thick and foggy weather."

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Hugh McCalmont Dead.

Dublin, May 25.—(By The A. P.)—Hugh McCalmont, noted yachtsman, is dead from injuries he received when he fell from a cliff near his home at Ballycastle, County Antrim. McCalmont represented Sir Thomas Lipton on the American yacht Columbia in the America's cup race some years ago.

Russian Agitators in the Ruhr.

Berlin, May 25.—The correspondent of the Achtuar Abendblatt in the Ruhr reports that the Dortmond police have arrested three Russian agitators who were apparently acting as bicycle couriers. Declaring that a growing unrest is noticeable among the population and that the situation is serious, the correspondent says reports are current that the communists are organizing military companies and attempting to spread the strike movement throughout the whole Ruhr.

LOANED MORE THAN $2,000,000 TO THE GROTON IRON WORKS

Washington, May 25.—Documents and figures purporting to show that the Emergency Fleet corporation was obliged to loan more than $2,000,000 to the Groton Iron Works to assist it in carrying out its contracts for the construction of twelve steel freight steamers during and after the war were read into the record of the Morse trial today by government counsel. They were intended to support the government charge that the Morses knew when they obtained the contracts that they were without sufficient financial backing to execute them.

There were two separate loan contracts, one date April 7, 1918, and providing for an advance of $1,000,000 on account of completion of the Groton, Conn., yard, the purchase of material and the meeting of payrolls, and the other, dated Sept. 5, 1918, calling for an advance of $800,000 for the same purposes. Entries in the books of the Groton plants indicated, however, that the fleet corporation advanced a total of approximately $3,300,000.

The agreement for the first loan was entered into less than eight months after the first contract was awarded the Groton concern for six steel steamers. Less than a month after this agreement was executed the fleet corporation awarded the Groton company second contract for six steel steamers.

There also was offered in evidence by the government a settlement agreement between the fleet corporation and the Groton company respecting the contracts for twelve wooden hulls at the Noank, Conn., plant. This was dated Sept. 30, 1918, and provided that for each of the two hulls completed up to that time under the original contract dated June 15, 1917. The government should pay $450,000 instead of $300,000 and that it should pay a like amount for three hulls, and $400,000 for three others, the contracts for four other craft to be cancelled.

Aside from these documents counsel also read into the records the steel ship contracts and the mortgages on the Groton plant taken by the government as security for the loans. Justice Stafford suggested that there should be provided a reading clerk "as they do in the house of representatives."

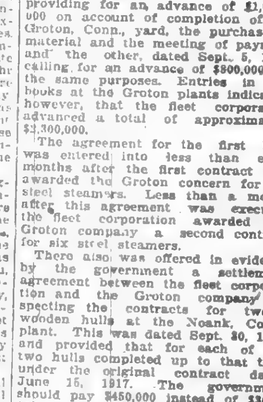
ORGANIZE "CONFERENCE ON RAILROAD VALUATION"

Chicago, May 25.—(By the A. P.)—Railroad labor leaders, representatives of the "progressive bloc" in congress, members of various agricultural organizations and proponents of government ownership of the railroads meeting here today, organized the "conference on railroad valuation" for the announced purpose of promoting and protecting "public interests in the valuation of railroad property."

Approximately 300 invited delegates, meeting in executive session this afternoon after a two-hour public gathering nominated Robert M. Lafollette, republican, of Wisconsin, chairman of the conference, and Representative W. T. Logan, democrat, South Carolina, secretary. Representative Huddleston, democrat, Alabama, was elected chairman of a committee on permanent organization and Warren S. Stone, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineer of Cleveland, was named to head the committee on finance.

The meeting today was the outgrowth, Senator Lafollette said at the public session, of a "conference of the progressive leaders in the halls of congress."

Establishes Fund To Bring English Scholars Here



A "reverse Rhodes fund," to be called "The Henry P. Davison Scholarship Fund," has just been established by Mrs. Henry Pomeroy Davison, of New York, in memory of her late husband. The income from the fund will be used to defray the expenses of six English scholars, to be selected each year from the great English Universities of Oxford and Cambridge, for a year at the "big three" American universities—two each to Harvard, Princeton and Yale. The late American financier was, like the late Cecil Rhodes whom he greatly admired, desirous of promoting friendship between America and Great Britain and the new fund will, in a measure repay to England what Cecil Rhodes did for America in establishing the Rhodes Scholarships at Oxford and Cambridge.

Agree on Payment for U. S. Rhineland Army

Paris, May 26.—(By the A. P.)—The agreement between the United States government and the allied powers providing for the repayment of the costs of the American army in the Rhineland was signed today after a two-hour session of the delegates during which certain alterations were made in the text as previously drawn up.

The agreement, which has taken three months to negotiate, does not include the clause to which the United States delegate, Elliot Wadsworth, objected, namely that providing that the allies should have the right to abrogate the agreement in case the United States sought to recover war damages direct from Germany. The agreement as summarized as follows:

The net cost of the army of occupation, about $250,000,000 is to be paid in twelve equal annual instalments without interest, the first of which shall be due on or before December 31, 1923.

For the first four years the annual instalments due the United States shall constitute first charge upon all payments in cash made each year by Germany or for the account of Germany up to 25 per cent. of such payments.

As the reparation account is credited with German payments only after the allied army costs are reimbursed and other treaty expenses are met during each of the first four years, the current cost of the allied armies of occupation shall have priority over the annual instalments due the United States.

For the last eight years the instalments due the United States shall constitute first charge upon all cash payments made by Germany on account of reparation up to their full amount, and shall have priority over the current costs of the allied armies of occupation.

It should be understood that the priority granted the United States does not bear upon payments in kind, upon the proceeds of acts of recovery or upon transfers and cessions of property, rights and interests made in execution of the treaty of Versailles, unless such transfers are converted through sales in to cash. However, the allies agree to apply all such payments in kind, etcetera, to their current army costs so that, unless the value of these payments is insufficient to meet such costs, all actual cash payments from Germany will be available for the instalments due the United States.

In case there is not sufficient cash available to liquidate fully the annual instalments of the first four years, the deficit is to be carried over to the last eight years, one-eighth of such deficit being added to the instalment due in each of the last eight years. During these eight years, should any deficit in the annual instalments develop because of insufficient available cash, then such deficit is to be carried forward with simple interest at four and one-half interest and be liquidated from the first available in the following year over and above the amount required to pay the annual instalment for that year.

The agreement provides that, if at any time the arrears due the United States reach a total such that the United States considers there is a risk of its being paid within the prescribed period, the American government has the right to abrogate the agreement, provided that within three months after notification of such a view, the agreement has not been modified in such a way that complete liquidation appears assured.

It is understood that, should the United States at any time arrange to receive German dyestuffs through the reparation commission, the value of these dyestuffs received in any one year shall be deducted from the annual instalment due the United States in that year.

In negotiating the agreement the governments concerned voluntarily avoided any question of the rights of interpretation.

HARDING NOT PLEASED WITH THE STEEL REPORT

Washington, May 25. — President Harding was represented at the White House today as "disappointed" in the report of the committee of the Iron and Steel Institute recommending against abolishment of the twelve hour day in the steel industry.

The institute's committee has for more than a year been making a study of the industry to determine the possibility of changing the working day to eight hours. The study was initiated after a dinner at the White House attended by the heads of the principal steel companies who asked the president to make such a change if it could be found practicable.

Crisis in the Greco-Turk Controversy

War or Peace is Likely to be Decided at a Private Conference Today—Situation Tense.

Lausanne, May 25.—(By The A. P.)—War or peace in the Near East is likely to be decided at a private conference tomorrow, originally planned between the British, French, Italians, Greeks and Turks, but which will really comprise the chief delegates of all the nations attending the Near East conference, including the United States. Jugo-Slavia insisted upon being invited; therefore the allies decided to include the delegates of Rumania and Japan, and Joseph C. Grew, the American minister, had to be asked as otherwise he would have been the only one absent.

Allied leaders describe as critical the situation growing out of the Greco-Turk reparations controversy, but they hope, apparently, to save the conference on the basis of some form of territorial concessions by Greece.

Ismet Pasha, the Turkish spokesman, is busy communicating with Angora, counseling moderation. His government is said to be as uncompromising as the cabinet at Athens it is understood that he received word from Angora early today that he demand cash payments by Greece, instead of territorial indemnity as offered by the Greeks, but that he urged his government to give the question further consideration.

Both Eliptherios Venizelos, the Greek representative, and Ismet have been in conference with the Jugo-Slav leaders, seeking to learn Jugo-Slavia's probable attitude in the event of a Turko-Greek conflict. M. Javanovitch, the Jugo-Slav delegate, made it known that it was the desire of his country to see conciliation. He emphasized the necessity of peace, as the Balkans already were prostrated by successive wars.

The allied delegates are working hard to prevent a rupture, warning that renewed warfare would mean the ruin of Greece and Turkey.

Part of the fund, it was announced, would be used to prevent the eviction of strikers from houses owned by the company. It was said that proceedings had been started by the mill owners to this end. Discussion of the Putnam controversy occupied practically the entire day.

GREAT BRITAIN'S POSITION ON SHIP'S LIQUOR QUESTION

Communication Contends That American Port Authorities Have No Jurisdiction in International Law Over Liquor Brought Into American Waters as a Part of the Regular Supply of Foreign Vessels—Maintains That the Authority of American Officials Extends Only to Portions of the Cargo of Foreign Ships Intended for Importation.

Washington, May 25.—(By The A. P.)—Great Britain's position on the ship's liquor question, as communicated to the state department today by the British embassy, is understood to be based on a contention that American port authorities have no jurisdiction in international law over liquor brought into American waters as a part of the regular supplies of foreign vessels.

The authority of American officials, under this construction, extends only to portions of the cargo of foreign ships which are intended for importation into the United States, and in no way permits of interference with either the physical merchandise, rations or stores of such vessels when they put into American ports.

While this principle apparently conflicts with that recently laid down by the supreme court, indications are increasing that the treasury department has found a way to reconcile the two by permitting ships under foreign registry to list the wine rations of their crews as a part of the medicinal stores allowable under the law.

In the new regulations now being drafted treasury officials are said to have taken due cognizance of the fact that the opinion of the supreme court made no mention of the medicinal liquor clause. Some officials are known to hold this clause to be broad enough to protect liquor stocks from confiscation if they are placed under the charge of the ships' doctor when a vessel comes inside the three mile limit.

It was the original intention of the British government to await issuance of the new regulations before making representations on the subject. That also has been the position of the other maritime powers. The action taken today, however, aparently was for the purpose of making known that there is a fundamental objection to application of the prohibition law to foreign shipping.

Suggestions have come from some quarters that special treaties might be made exempting foreign ships from the operation of the Volstead law while in American waters. Something of that kind was hinted at by the Dutch foreign minister, Van Karnebeek, in a statement in his parliament yesterday. But, it is believed to be improbable that the British government would be willing to adopt such a course, since it might be regarded as an admission of the legality of the American claim to jurisdiction.

The British communication submitted today to Secretary Hughes bears the signature of Sir Auckland Geddes, the British ambassador. It is characterized as in no sense a protest, but rather as an appeal to the sense of justice of the American government, making the points that application of the Volstead law to foreign shipping constitutes a radical departure from all well established principles of maritime intercourse and involves the making of new international law.

It is understood that the British communication is probably the forerunner of similar representations from powers. It is believed here that these chancelleries of other foreign has been a general exchange of views between the various European foreign offices and while there is no prospect of anything like an identic note it is believed probable that the attack will be upon parallel lines, the underlying purpose being to induce the United States government to confer with the others before inaugurating what is regarded abroad as a new principle of international law.

Although no advices have been received by the Spanish embassy concerning the decision of the Royal Spanish Steamship Line to eliminate its direct service from Spain to New York, it is fully expected that the embassy, will be, among those to in due course submit representations to the state department. Spain is one of the countries whose municipal law requires that liquor be served as part of the ship's crews.

Abandonment of Royal Spanish steamship service to New York is not expected here to affect materially the traffic between the two countries, as ships of other countries in the Atlantic service touch at Spanish ports and sailings of the Spanish company's steamers are only on a monthly basis.

The outburst came after Richardson had testified that Miss Amy Jacques who later became Garvey's bride, had on several occasions been given complete charge of the line.

If, however, the hands are in very bad condition—if they crack open and smart after being in water—use Resinol Ointment as follows—

Bathe the hands freely with Resinol Soap before retiring. Dry completely. Rub in Resinol Ointment gently but thoroughly and cover with old gloves. In the morning bathe again with Resinol Soap. In most cases a few such treatments produce very satisfactory results.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

The New World Beginning.

Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock Mr. C. E. Stewart of New York will deliver a free lecture at Odd Fellows' hall, 322 Main street, on the subject, The New World Begun. He will explain from Biblical prophecy now being fulfilled that the old world has come to an end and that the new world has begun, and that this will bring blessings and life to the people and that millions now living will never die.

Trouble has a tendency to make the peoples of earth think. For eight years they have suffered greatly. The lecturer will point out that this has been permitted to awaken the people to the fact that the old world is done and the new is beginning.

The rulers of earth are desperately attempting by international conference to patch up the old order. The lecturer will prove from Biblical prophecy that such is impossible and that the new world under the Messiah will establish a righteous reign, bringing the desire of the peoples and nations of earth.

The speaker next Sunday afternoon will explain how the blessings will come to the people and that shortly, through the new world that is now beginning; and how it can be confidently said at this time that millions now living on earth will never die.

Everyone should hear this lecture. Seats free; no collection.

COLLEGE MAY FESTIVAL AND BRIDGE AT ARMORY

On Saturday, May 26, Connecticut College alumnae and undergraduates will give a May festival and bridge in the armory, in combination with a children's afternoon. The scheme for the entertainment was worked out with a double object—that of providing entertainment for adults and at the same time giving pleasure to the children. A doll sale and exhibition will be the feature attraction for the children, dolls of all sizes and types being offered for sale. An unusual feature will be the Mother Goose characters who will be present to distribute grabs. Norwegians, Irish peasants, gay Chinese girls and Turkish children will dispense ice cream, candy, cake and balloons.

Of particular interest both to the adults and to the children is the exhibition of foreign dolls, a collection gathered from local people. Among this gathering is a doll brought from Paris in 1860, and one of the first to move its head, an American doll 90 years old, a Japanese doll, dolls from Mexico and Honolulu, besides European dolls of every nation.

An opportunity will be offered to the adults to purchase Conn. College Cook Books, a collection of recipes published by Mrs. Nancy Brown Morgan and her daughter, of New London, in memory of "Aunt Colie" a cook in their family.

Tufted bedspreads, the work of the mountain whites of Georgia, especially beautiful in design will also be on sale. In combination with these bazaar features will be a bridge, and a program of music and dancing.

Miss Dorothy Gregson is general chairman, assisted by a committee of undergraduates and alumnae. Miss Annie Ruggles, assisted by Miss Jane Bill and Miss Elizabeth Huntington will be in charge of the doll exhibit.

Tickets may be obtained at Cranston's.

Unusual Patriotic Future at Y. M C. A.

In keeping with Memorial Sunday, May 27th, the Norwich Young Men's Christian Association has secured a very special moving picture feature, Betsy Ross, the maker of the first American flag in five reels, which will be shown in the big gymnasium at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. The public (both sexes) are invited to see this feature picture. Closely connected with the origin of our flag is the fascinating story of the life of Betsy Ross, who lost her husband, John Ross, in the cause of liberty, but conducted her upholstery establishment so well as to attract the attention of General Washington who entrusted her with the making of the first Stars and Stripes. During its construction the general appointed a guard to protect Widow Ross. The picture is filled with interest and imparts a splendid spirit of patriotism. A large audience will probably be present on this occasion.

The Town That Forgot God at the Breed

Another William Fox special production will be given its local premiere at the Breed theatre tomorrow when The Town That Forgot God, a melodramatic story of small town life, will open a four days' engagement.

Directed by Harry Millarde, who staged the famous drama of the Civil war, Over the Hill, The Town That Forgot God promises an offering of unusual merit and is said to be one of screen actions worthy of special mention.

What probably is the most sensational storm and flood scene ever shown upon the screen forms the climax of this photodrama, according to advance reports, a whole city being demolished by the resulting torrent and terrific wind.

While the storm and flood scenes were being photographed a number of cameramen, stationed at various points around the area to be flooded, narrowly escaped drowning when the platforms upon which they were standing were washed away by the rushing current. The photographers, their cameras and all were caught in the torrent, it is announced.

A notable cast of screen artists portray the various difficult roles in this sensational story of rural life, including Jane Thomas, who has played featured roles in a number of William Fox special productions; Ben Grauer, a youngster who started his career with David Warfield in his recreation of The Return of Peter Grimm; Warren Krech, Harry Benham, Grace Barton, Francis Healy, Edwin Dennison, James Devine and others of equal note.

The Town That Forgot God is from a scenario by Paul H. Sloane who wrote the scenarios for a number of recent Fox successes.

Today's bill at the Breed consists of John Gilbert in Calvert's Valley, Pearl White in Plunder, the Pathe News and a Sunshine comedy. Continuous show today, 1.30 to 10.15.

Broadway Sunday Night.

A notorious bandit, Captain-Fly-By-Night, keeps the Californians in terror. A stranger arrives with the tale that he has been accosted and robbed of his horse by the mysterious Captain. A second stranger arrives with a similar tale. The two are regarded as suspicious. They play cards for the second stranger's horse, and the first one wins and rides away. He goes to the conspirators' headquarters and warns them not to attack the mission until he sets the time. They address him as Captain-Fly-By-Night. Meantime the government has sent out an agent to arrest a stranger who is traveling without a pass. In the resulting complications which involve a beautiful Spanish girl, engaged to a man whom she has never met, the first stranger proves to be a secret agent from the government, and the second the notorious captain, who is justly punished.

The Rustle of Silk at the Strand.

A happy motion picture story ending that doesn't include a marriage or an embrace!

That is one of the unique distinctions claimed for The Rustle of Silk, Herbert Brenon's Paramount picture, featuring Betty Compson and Conway Tearle, which will be the feature of the bill at the Strand theatre for four days, commencing Monday next.

The story, adapted from Cosmo Hamilton's novel by Sada Cowan and Ouida Bergere, centers about a humble English girl who falls in love with a great British statesman who is already married. The girl, serving the statesman's wife, adores the husband from afar.

By accident the man learns of the girl's love. Unhappy with his wife and disheartened by the course of political events, he offers to get a divorce and marry the girl.

Unlike so many screen plays of the day, The Rustle of Silk does not introduce an episode five or ten years later showing the principals happily married. It ends as real life stories so often end—in happiness achieved through sacrifice, but with promise of happiness to both in the future.

Buster tapped his comedy ingenuity very hard for laughs in the making of his latest, The Frozen North. He has drawn a burlesque of Alaska that is going to make it very hard for us to treat real seriously any pictures dealing with the rigors of Alaskan winter life.

We suspect that in this picture, which begins a four-day engagement at the Strand theatre Monday, that Buster took for his inspiration that famous poem by Service, The Shooting of Dangerous Dan McGrue. Our hero, however, or villain as he prefers to be known in this picture, doesn't meet any such violent end.

A news is also included.

Community Picnic for Lowthorpe Meadows.

Now that the long summer evenings are here people are recalling the successful community picnics that have been held in Lowthorpe Meadows for the past three years. The Norwich Rural Association is arranging for another of these picnics to be held in Lowthorpe Meadows from 5 to 8 p. m., Friday evening, June 1. Everybody who enjoys watching the sunset, getting together for an out-of-doors supper with friends and later participating in some sneppy community singing on the hillside is cordially invited to attend.

CALIFORNIA TRACK MEN STEP OUT IN LEAD IN INTERCOLLEGIATE MEET

Philadelphia, May 25 (By the A. P.).—Displaying sensational form today in leading a picked field of eastern rivals in the qualifying tests of the 47th annual track and field meet of the intercollegiate A. A. A. A. at Franklin field, the University of California's sturdy band of athletes strengthened considerably their chances of carrying off the championship in the finals tomorrow for the third successive year.

The Golden Bears, favorites from the start, proved even more formidable than expected, scoring heavily in the field events to qualify 17 men for the deciding contests. Barring an upset of the most sensational character, experts tonight were practically unanimous in predicting a decisive victory for the Pacific coast stars tomorrow.

Yale, who showed surprising strength by finishing next to the Californians with 16 qualifiers, and Princeton were looked upon as the main hopes of the east in the title struggle. The Tigers qualified 10 men the same number as Pennsylvania, but the Orange and Black possessed several outstanding stars who were counted upon to score heavily, while the Quakers were conceded only a fighting chance.

Cornell, winner of many a championship in former years, qualified eight men and was virtually out of the running.

Twenty four colleges altogether scored in the qualifying events, which brought together close to 900 athletes from 31 institutions, the best in the east as well as the lone but powerful entry from the far west.

The other qualifiers were distributed as follows: Williams, Syracuse and Harvard, five each; Lafayette four; Pennsylvania state three; Pittsburgh, New York University, Johns Hopkins, Georgetown, Dartmouth, Columbia and Boston College, two each; Amherst, Bowdoin, Colgate, Fordham, Holy Cross, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Rutgers, one each.

Two inter-collegiate championship records were broken and a third was threatened, all in the field events, most of the track events being devoid of feathers.

Most noteworthy of the record-breaking feats was that of F. D. Tootell, crack Bowdoin eight man, who threw the hammer 181 feet, 6 1-2 inches, bettering by more than ten feet the former record of 171 fet, 2 inches, made by Jack Merchant of Jack Merchant, of California, last year. Tootell's loss also bettered the American collegiate record of 175 deet, 10 inches, made by Karl Shattuck, also of California, in 1913.

ATHLETICS AGAIN HUMBLE THE MIGHTY YANKEES

Philadelphia, May 25.—Connie Mack's team today took another game from the New York Yankees, three home run drives wrecking the hopes of the league leaders. The score was 4 to 2. Babe Ruth scored New York's first run in the first inning on his three base drive and Pipp's single. The score:

FABER HOLDS TIGERS TO FIVE HITS

Detroit, May 25.—Urban Faber held the Tigers to five hits today, duplicating Robertson's performance of yesterday, and won the second game in a row for Chicago from Detroit, 5 to 3. ACADEMY LOSES LEAGUE GAME TO STONINGTON

Ellie Siegal after striking out 13 batters received such wretched support that the Academy team was shut out 7 to 0 by Stonington yesterday afternoon at the Academy campus. Nine costly errors gave Stonington practically all of their runs while the inability of the local team to hit kept their own score down to nothing. The Stonington team played a fast and clean game with very commendable spirit and ability. Outside of Siegal, Mileski, Burke and Tombari the team was a stotal loss. The score:

EAST ENDS AND DUWELLS PLAY FAST GAME THAT RESULTS IN TIE SCORE

TWILIGHT LEAGUE GAMES FOR COMING WEEK

MONDAY
Atlantics vs. Profs
TUESDAY

WEDNESDAY

THURSDAY
Cornets vs. Swanees
FRIDAY
Jail Hills vs. Harddigs

The best game by a good deal in the Twilight league was played Friday evening between the Duwells and the East Ends and resulted in an 8 to 8 score. The team fought tooth and nail for seven thrilling innings and were still fighting when the umpire called the game in the seventh inning because of darkness. The fans that attended the battle were kept on their toes from the first inning until the last and play after play of a sensational nature was made by both teams.

The Duwells started off strong in their half of the first inning scoring one run but in the third the East Ends scored three runs stepping out in the lead. The Duwells in their half of the third annexed four runs putting them in the lead again. They added two more in the fourth inning and it looked as though the East Ends were due for a trimming. But the old fighting spirit was there and in the fifth inning the East Ends scored one run and in he sixth by scoring three runs evened up the score. The excitement in the seventh inning was at white heat, with each team clamoring for a run. The East Ends in their half through great coaching and daring base running got the eeded run to win the game. However their hopes were blasted, when the Duwells in their turn fought like bulldogs and evened up the game. The darkness had shut down and it was impossible to continue and with the score tied the two teams called it a day. The game will be played over at a later date.

No little credit is due the pitchers, especially Harris who had the Duwells baffled in many tight places. Stone also pitched a good game. The score:

CASEY IS COMING WITH NEWBURYPORT TEAM

That long, lean and lank individual with that good old Irish name of Casey is coming with Newburyport team on Sunday. This is welcome news for Casey made many firm friends when he was here last season. Casey is the Nick Altrock of the semi-pros and his burlesque on baseball and his activities on the coaching line are worth the price of admission. Casey who has regularly played on first base will be in the outfield and if he is as good out there as he is in the infield he is some ball player.

The Newburyport team will present a strong lineup and will give the local team plenty action. With Andrews in the box for Newburyport and with Gaw on the mound for the locals the fans will see a good game, much better than last week when Ware was here.

There has been one change made in the local lineup. Mickey Spillane who played at third last week for the local club has been released. Mack Hillis who played at second last week has been shifted to the dizzy corner and Massey who was on the bench last week will play the keystone position. This is welcome news also, for Massey is not only a fast fielder but is a bad man with the stick. He is small but mighty with the war club and many is the ball game that has been broken up through his smashes.

With this change the local team will have an infield equal to any semi-pro team in New England. Eddie Hart at first, Massey at second, Hillis at third, Faulkner at short. The outfield compares favorably with any other teams, Gene Berry in left, Lester Lee in center and Jack Clabby in right. With Gaw in the box and Bergen doing the catching this is a sweet looking team and should win most any ball game that they start.

OPENING GAME AT JEWETT CITY

The 1923 baseball lid will be pried off at Jewett City Sunday, when the fast Ashland club take on their old rivals, the New London independents.

The fact, that the New London crowd won the championship of last year's Eastern Connecticut league, and in so doing took the honors which were generally conceded to belong to Ashland. Naturally there is a sore spot between the two clubs, and there is bound to be something doing when they get together.

Manager Chase of Ashland has rounded together what looks like a real team, and the baseball situation is entirely in the hands of the fans this season. Every effort will be made to maintain a fast club this year and if the fans turn out this will be easy. The Jewett City fans themselves have already made an enviable reputation of sticking by the home club, but the situation is dependent on the surrounding territory as well as locally.

Zwick and Liberty will be the selection for battery duty in the opening game, and the home club will also present three new infielders, all of whom are qualified to hold their own in the best of semi-pro ranks.

Sir Peloquin of Southbridge will do the umpiring this season.

Owing to the memorial exercises of the local legion post, the game will not be called until 3.45 p. m., D. S. T.

TAFTVILLE ALL SET FOR HARTFORD TODAY

The stage is set for the battle royal between the Taftville A. A. and the fast visiting team, All-Insurance of Hartford, this afternoon on the Providence street grounds. It is understood that there has been considerable speculation on the outcome of this first game on the home diamond, but Manager Troland stated Friday that the more he looked his boys over the better equipped he thought they were to associate with fast company. Early in the week the Hartford organization announced that they would use Daoust for pitcher in the game. He has been the talk of the Connecticut sporting world for some time, and has taken a leading part in overthrowing the various teams with which his club has crossed bats. The crowd who witness the game are certain to see something worth while. The Taftville nine will be selected from first class material and picked from Cardle, Jack Murphy, Liberty, Bus Murphy, Paradis, Jarvis and Jim Murphy at the correct time. Morin will be in the box and Belair will receive. Manager Troland has signed up Jack Clabby for the Saturday games for the rest of the season and he will hold down the outfield garden. Through Troland's efforts, negotiations have been carried on with some of the best teams in the state, and some of them are booked to appear here at early dates.

HORNSBY MENTIONED IN DIVORCE PROCEEDINGS

St. Louis, May 25.—Roger Hornsby of the St. Louis Cardinals, champion batsman of the National league, was mentioned in a divorce proceeding here today.

John D. Hine, an automobile salesman, who was seeking to have the divorce recently granted his wife set aside, alleged that Hornsby was seen emerging from a New York hotel with Mrs. Hine. Hine exhibited a typewritter the ball player is alleged to have written the former Mrs. Hine, referring to her as "my darling little sweetheart," and saying it would be better "if my

WEEK-END ACCIDENTS.

The department of motor vehicles is calling attention to the large number of accidents that occur over the week-end. That is of course only what others who have given any thought to the matter are fully conscious of. But when the department directs attention to the fact that the majority of the accidents, excepting those in which pedestrians are hit, is due to the violation of some phase of the state motor vehicle law it plainly stamps them as avoidable, and places the burden upon a considerable number of drivers each week-end to show better respect for the regulations that greater safety in the highway may prevail.

With Saturday fast getting to be the same as Sunday as far as employment is concerned there is bound to be greater congestion on those days than on others. Those who have cars can be expected to use them if they have the time and are favored by good weather. That means big days on the highways of the state.

The greater traffic, however, does not justify a greater accident list. That it has ppens to be so simply calls for the efforts on the part of auto drivers to change it. Greater traffic most certainly calls for the exercise of greater care and a closer observance of regulations. Rules which might be halfway disregarded without taking chances on some days should get strict observance when the roads are crowded.

There is no mistaking the fact that unless each and every driver is doing his part to insure the safety of himself and others he is contributing to the growing dangers of the highway.

The motor vehicles department is directing attention to a matter that concerned a hundred or less drivers last week-end. There is no question about the need of a big reduction, but it will not be obtained unless those who are responsible for the disregard for the highway rules take home to themselves the strict compliance with the rules of the road.

PREVENTIVE LEGISLATION.

In the legislature of Pennsylvania an anti-lynching law has been adopted.

The Keystone state isn't one of the commonwealths where such a practice is so frequently indulged in as to make it notorious, and therefore the significance of the legislation is not such as it would be if it were a southern state that has taken such a course. But it is bound to serve nevertheless as an expression of the state sentiment even though there are very few instances when it may be invoked. Pennsylvania recognizes the importance of prevention and it has set an example that others might well follow whether they are in the lynching belt or not.

Under this law participation in lynching is held to be murder, officers who give up their prisoners to a mob are heavily penalized, a large fine is placed upon the county in which a lynching occurs and if such a fine is collected it is to be paid over to the dependents of the person lynched unless there are none, in which case it goes to the state.

This will be recognized as having been drawn up in keeping with the provisions of the federal anti-lynching law that has aroused so much favorable comment and which passed the house but failed of action in the senate at the last session of congress.

No one imagines that Pennsylvania is anticipating a series of lynchings here, but it had nevertheless taken a step that should recommend itself to other states. It is time that there was just such an expression against crime as that character. It stands for the proper enforcement of the law and the insistence upon the law being followed instead of having it disregarded for mob rule and the murder of accused but possibly innocent persons.

Pennsylvania by its action is much better prepared to deal with the distressing conditions surrounding a lynching than many of the other states which are by no means any more favorably disposed thereto. Likewise it must be regarded as wise preventive legislation.

THE AUSTRIAN LOAN.

Conditions in Austria got about as bad as they could get and still permit that country to hold its head up. It was then that Austria realized that it was no time to ride a high horse. It was necessary to face the situation, heed golden advice and take steps that were recognized as necessary to prevent it from submerging. Through the display of its willingness to accept the plan proposed and the cooperation which it has given to support the efforts in its behalf Austria has profited. It hasn't by any means gotten back home its feet, but it has demonstrated its desire to and its eagerness to give all possible assistance to such an end. It has in fact reestablished confidence in its integrity to the extent that other nations are prepared to lend it the funds that are going to be needed in the next two years to carry out the reforms that have already been started. Austria had nothing on which to establish credit but it has so impressed other European nations that they are ready to guarantee the payment of the greater part of the loan.

Austria has come about as near being down and out as any country that was involved in the war. It hasn't undertaken to dodge the fact that it was a loser and because it has accepted its humble position in the way it has been able to arouse sympathy not only for the relief of those who were suffering from conditions prevalent there, but it has been able to get the loan of funds for its rehabilitation with good prospects of a happy recovery in time.

Of the $130,000,000 loan which is to be raised and of which this country will undertake to provide $25,000,000, European countries will furnish the major part, but it is greatly to the credit of Austria that it has so conducted itself when realizing the real predicament that it is able to command the confidence and support of a dozen countries some of which participated in the war and some did not. Austria stands out in marked contrast to Germany.

SUBURBAN DAY.

Suburban day is not a new institution. It has been put forth from time to time by the merchants of this city for the purpose of giving the trading public of Norwich and vicinity an opportunity to share with them in the benefits of the renewal of a larger volume of goods.

The service that is provided by the Norwich stores, the large supply of goods to select from and the favorable prices were long ago firmly established in the minds of the people who buy.

Suburban day today means the repetition of one of those trade days that have made such an excellent impression in the past. Having been arranged that the purchasers may participate in the reduction of stock at this period none can afford to miss the opportunity.

With excellent values at better prices Norwich should be filled with buyers from all the towns in this part of the state. It is the natural trading center for many thousands of buyers whose wants have been anticipated with a large supply of high grade goods which cannot fail to appeal to a discriminating public.

Suburban day is one of those trading occasions that might as well be called Opportunity day. The fact that it is repeated from time to time makes evident the fact that it has met the requirements before and can be expected to on this week-end. It is one of those times when the merchants delight in demonstrating the shoping advantages of Norwich.

THE LEGION FOR ENGLISH.

When the national executive committee of the American Legion adopts a resolution favoring national legislation that will require all instructions in the public, elementary and high schools of the country to be in the English language, it may be regarded by some sections of the United States as a needless requirement.

For such sections it can be safely said that the Legion is not concerned. It understands that in those sections the conditions which it favors prevail at the present time. But it is likewise aware of the fact that there are parts of the country where the English language is not the language in which instructions are given in the public schools, and it is fully acquainted with the facts that were disclosed during the early days of the war.

It is because of the disclosures that were made at that time that action is being demanded. It is likewise realized, and justly so, that the English language should be the language of the schools of this country. There need be no denial of the opportunity for those who desire to learn other languages in addition to English if they so desire. The Legion does not stand in the way of such instruction and legislation that would prevent it could not be expected.

While it may not have been considered that the time would come when anything but the English language would be taught as the language of the schools, it is nevertheless the fact that conditions require it and certain states have taken belated action to correct a deplorable situation.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The man on the corner says: Suburban day helps those who are willing to be helped.

This is the day when all roads lead to Norwich and all Norwich will welcome the traders.

It would seem a bit strange to cut ice in May, but there has to be a first time for everything.

The bricklayers in New York and the shoeworkers in Brockton have started their vacations early.

With a large supply of ice on hand it will never suit the iceman unless there is plenty of hot weather.

From the large number seeking jobs on the Leviathan no one would suppose that there was a shortage of labor.

These are the days when the interesting combination of strawhats and overcoats is not only possible but in evidence.

It will not be necessary for those having claims against Germany to worry about their effect on the next income tax.

We don't hear many crowing about the fact that they have already started their 1923 series of daily dips in the bring.

There is talk about a LaFollette presidential boom, but that is one of the things that can be relied upon to die getting started.

Word has been served in the general assembly that it must stay on the job until it is completed and finishing touches put on.

Even though the mark is going down there may be some glimmer of hope in Germany after it is noticed what is happening in Austria.

An Illinois legislative committee wants two more years to complete its investigation of the Herrin massacre. Might as well string it out for life.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

Every now and then someone, not necessarily a fundamentalist, breaks out with "What would Jesus do?" It is so very easy to put Jesus into a given situation, and then evolve a definite course He would be sure to take. Those who do this almost invariably read their own ideas of what Jesus ought to do in a given case. Within a week the following paragraph has appeared in print: "What would Jesus do if he were at the head of a family, if he were a father of children? What would he do if he were a mother? What would he do in educational, social and political life? What would he do with our newspapers, our theatres, our movies, our dances? What would he do in our business occupation? What would he do in our own individual private life?" In other words what would Jesus do if he were the one propelling force, personally and solely back of all modern activities?

Of course the inference here is that whatever there is in the world is wrong; that man makes a muddle of every blooming thing he touches; that everything in the universe today is all askew; that nothing on earth is white and nobody straight. We ought, for one thing, to be thankful that these chronic growlers are giving Chicago a rest. For awhile the holy cry was: "What would Jesus do if he came to Chicago?" Evidently Chicago has been dropped for a wider sphere of activity. The whine now is "What would Jesus do if he were the whole business in modern life? The article above referred to assumes that if every person would would put that question to his own conscience, and act accordingly, America would at once became the paragon of the nations. Still we ask the question, under naturally changing conditions, who can tell just what Jesus would do in our age and country?

A very suggestive article on "Better Brains Or—Bedlam" will be found in the last issue of The Pictorial Review. We may not be prepared to accept all his conclusions, but Mr. Wiggam has written an article that has stimulated our thinking, and provoked not a little amount of alarm. To say the very least he has said things that has "made us sit up and take notice" from the first word to the last. We leave the article with the feeling that it is the most brilliantly stated argument for race betterment that we have seen. The first sentence is the keynote to the whole article: "Our Puritan forefathers lived on parched corn but they talked about God." Today much of our food is very rich and our talking very poor. These Puritans "shot Indians through the porthole with one eye and taught the Bible to their children with the other." But they lifted America out of the wilderness by having children that numbered from five to fifteen per family.

More than once has the statement been made of late by those whose judgment is not to be ignored that the next war that the United States will have on its hands will be an industrial war. It may be that the statement is exaggerated; that the facts in the case are not quite so bad as they appear on the surface. Still the situation is such as to warrant some alarm in this direction. It is perfectly clean that labor has worked itself up to a chronic state of dissatisfaction. Wages were never better and strikes more numerous. Plasterers in New York are asking to be raised from $12 to $14 a day, which is more than the average college president gets. As wages go up so does the price of commodities, until the people, feeling the outrage, cease to buy, and the manufacturer must either reduce wages or close his plant. Only a few months ago we were told that the outlook was bright, but at least at present there is the shadow of a slump in view.

Much is being said and written these days about modifying the Volstead act to that extent that the sale of light wines and beer may be legalized. Would this not mean virtually the restoration of that unqualified nuisance, the saloon? What other institution would be able, or would be willing, to handle these wares? If prohibition has accomplished nothing else it has certainly put the saloon out of business. No one who is not stone blind will admit that "booze" is not sold, and in more places and in larger quantities than most of us imagine. But it is the sheerest nonsense to state that it is sold in quantities anything like it was before the Volstead act was put on the statutes. If more is sold why are the "wets" moving heaven and earth to enact the Volstead act? If the saloon is gone, let it stay gone. It disregarded the law when it was here and it would if dealing with wine and beer.

Many of us have wondered exactly what is meant by the phrase, "student activities," and especially at the exclusive application that is made of it. According to usage we understand the term to include all forms of athletic sports, including baseball, football, golf, tennis, promenades, dances, etc. There is no question but what the word "activity" applies to all this. But are we to infer that other things, and presumably more important things are to be known as "student passivities?" Dr. Flint in his inaugural address as chancellor of Syracuse university says we are cramming students with knowledge rather than making thinkers. These are his words: "Is there too much coddling, too closely supervised development, too much spoonfeeding of predigested intellectual pabulum?" The plodding professor constantly wonders why a coach gets so much activity out of a boy and he so little. May it not be that the enthusiasm is there but less noisy and spectacular?

There are some old sayings that had a pertinent meaning in an age of ignorance, but lost that meaning when ignorance passed and science came. I once heard a farmer who had recently discharged an incompetent hand say that "he wasn't worth a hill of beans." He couldn't think of anything more scathing to express the poor fellow's utter worthlessness. If that farmer had come to me last year I would have proven to his eminent satisfaction that a hill of beans wasn't to be sneezed at. Counting in my time in spading up a small patch for the beans, for the seed, commercial fertilizer, for a broken spade fork, for arnica and rum to restore a nearly broken back; what I suffered from a blight in July, insects in August, an early frost in September and an old brindle cow a few days later, I found that I had just one good hill of beans left, and when counted those beans had cost me nearly 87 cents apiece. Let no man in my hearing ever compare a human being to a precious hill of beans.

Before another full week passes Memorial day will have come and gone. There will not be many more of them as far as the day relates to the survivors of the Civil war. It is now 63 years since Fort Sumpter was fired upon, and 60 years since President Lincoln issued his Emancipation Proclamation. Just these dates are enough to show that any who were old enough to be in the war of the Rebellion must now be far advanced in life. What will be done when the last of the G. A. R. men has passed the great divide is at present a problem. It would seem fitting that out of respect to them and their services that the day should be one of great grateful recognition of their services, and those of their dead comrades, that the day should not be given over to sport and pleasure. Let us respect the day.

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

He Knoweth

The Lord knoweth the days of the upright and their inheritance shall be forever, Psalms 37, 18. This is a most comforting assurance. He knows not only how many they are, but how full of toil and care, affliction, and need all the days of our pilgrimage are. Then He being so wise, so good, knows, too, full well how to succor us, and befriend us even "as He doth the upright in heart." For "as thy days so shall thy strength be." We must ever remember, therefore that "our times are in His hands," and commit our all into His faithful keeping, assured, whether living or dying, we shall be accepted of Him and share for both worlds His heavenly benedictions.

Thus assured, let storm arise and clouds overshadow our way. He can dissipate them all and become to us more than the light of meridian day, and the calm after the tempest. Have we days of affliction? He knows them—their source, their pressure and the support they require. Have we days of danger? He knows them, too, and will be gracious defence in the midst of them. Have we days of tried and duty? The Lord knoweth these days and will furnish the health and strength they need. Have we days of doubt and despondency? Then let us stay ourselves upon God and trust wholly in the Lord, "for in the Lord Jehovah is everlasting strength.

Thus reposing in God as our present help in all the emergencies of life and clearing with the Lord in all the dangers of the way, and supremely blest. And when accident and disease confine us to our rooms He will be preeminently near and gracious, both to comfort and to cheer. Then when hoary age arises, with its infirmities and "days of darkness," God remembers His children still." Even in old age I am He and to hoary hairs will I carry you," saith the Lord. "Lo, I am with you always." "I will guide thee by My counsel." "I will never leave thee." With long life will I satisfy thee, and show thee My salvation.

Problems Prompting President's Visit to Alaska

Concerning the trip of President Harding to Alaska, Secretary Work of the Department of the Interior says:

Whether this vast expanse of land, containing huge mineral riches surrounded by almost endless tracts of ocean water teeming with sea food and fur-bearing animals, shall be developed or allowed to remain dormant is the question that has induced President Harding to visit this territory during the summer.

The president will be accompanied by the secretary of the interior, secretary of agriculture and the secretary of commerce, and for the first time in history will the chief executive of the government tour this northern country.

Inestimable riches and hidden treasures are still hermetically sealed in its natural recesses awaiting development. The total area of Alaska is 590,884 square miles. Its immensity can only be realized when a comparison with the area of the United States shows that it is one-fifth as large as the total territory embraced in the forty-eight states of the union.

The population of Alaska presents an interesting problem. For years after this country became American territory there was a slow but gradual increase in the number of inhabitants. Ten years ago, following the census of 1910, the population began to dwindle, and as a result 10,000 persons left Alaska between 1910 and 1920. Its permanent population is now fixed at approximately 60,000 of which about one-half are whites and the other half Indians, Eskimos and persons of divers nationalities.

Alaska's greatest resource is its mineral wealth. There are gold, silver, copper, tine, antimony and tungsten in immense quantities. Deposits of coal, including bituminous and lignite, have been found. So have oil and petroleum, in addition to platinum, lead ores, quicksilver, graphite and asbestos.

The fisheries of Alaska make up its principal commerce. Salmon, herring, clams, shrimps and other sea foods in abundant quantities are taken from its water annually, and an immense canning industry has been built. In 1922 $84,720,000 in fish products were shipped from the territory, representing an increase of $12,000,000 over the previous year.

In the popular fancy, Alaska is supposed to be a forbidding, ice-covered, glacier crowned land of dog teams and polar bears. The truth of the matter is that it is a country of delightful climate many months of the year, with an area of 100,000 square miles fitted for agricultural development and capable of producing crops of almost endless variety.

The American government has just completed the construction of a railroad through the far-off wilderness of Alaska at a cost of about $56,000,000. This line extends from Seward to Fairbanks, a distance of 467 miles, penetrating into the very heart of the territory, and is the first railroad ever built and operated by this government.

The administration of the affairs of the territory of Alaska is now in the hands of thirty-five different departments and bureaus of the government. The various functions performed by them consist of 135 activities dealing with every conceivable phase of governmental supervision and jurisdiction.

The complexity of governmental activities that govern the territory, present an enigma in itself that must be untangled before this country of vast resources can be opened up. A summary of some of the problems that the president and the members of his cabinet will study during their tour to Alaska follows:

Whether the complete jurisdiction over the whole of Alaska shall be vested in a single department of the government.

Whether a colonization and immigration plan shall be immediately put into effect.

Whether there shall be built up a corps of trained men with headquarters in Alaska to search out and report regularly upon the mineral resources of the territory.

Whether branch lines and spurs to the Alaska railroad shall be constructed to bring it into fuller usefulness in meeting industrial needs.

Whether there shall be more liberal appropriations for the building of roads and trails in the interior of Alaska, a regular appropriation of $1,500,000 annually being asked.

Whether the fishing industry is to be wholly checked and regulated through the vesting of supreme power to control it in the department of commerce.

Whether the government is to eliminate the dangers of navigation on the coast of Alaska by providing a sufficient number of lights and other warnings to navigators.

Whether steps are to be taken to further protect the seals.

Whether all law-enforcing agencies in the territory shall be consolidated under the Department of Justice.

Whether the mining and land laws of Alaska shall be liberalized.

Whether improved facilities for travel and commerce to Alaska shall be put into effect by placing vessels of the United States shipping board into the Alaskan service.

Whether an administrative building or territorial capital shall be erected by the government.

Whether tourist roads shall be constructed into the national parks of Alaska in order to open them to the public.

Whether a new game law shall be enacted covering the territory of Alaska that will secure conservation of its wild animal life.

Whether an allotment of a percentage of the revenue derived from the Pribilof Islands located in Alaskan water shall be made to general fund of the territory.

Wives of Famous Men

Princess Augusta, Wife of William I of Germany.

Like most regal marriages, that of William the First of Germany and the Princess Augusta was a matter of state. William married Augusta because he did not wish to disturb the succession of the dynasty. Not alone was he completely uninterested in his wife, but he was in love with another woman. And Augusta was insanely jealous.

Her violent rages simply aggravated the domestic conditions, for kings are men in spite of royal trappings. Her constant "nagging" drove him even further from her than he naturally was, and he became more of less profligate in his relations with other women. So greatly did she weary him with her repeated recriminations that he once remarked that he would have preferred a plot against his life rather than his wife's jealousy.

There was nothing to do about it, however. Deferential as he always was to her Augusta sensed that William did not love her, and lost no opportunity to wreak her vengeance upon any possible victim, no matter how innocent.

One story that is told to illustrate her petty, jealous nature is of a lady-in-waiting to herself, whom she suspected of a too great interest in her husband. One day she noticed her husband kissing the lady's hand, and although that was a simple court custom observed regularly, the empress decided that it was unnecessary, and as she could not punish her husband directly, she did so indirectly by punishing the young woman, who was banished for life to the Leopoldi convent.

She devoted her life, one commentator says, to making her husband miserable, and to her dying day she never let one such incident pass unattended by something disagreeable.

Buffield—Napolio Gianni of Holyoke, Mass., arrested for reckless driving of an automobile, was given a hearing in the town court before Judge H. D. Sikes and found guilty and fined $100 and costs of court amounting to $124.65, which he paid.

Walking made me short of breath. Every morning my face and hands were bloated. Medicines failed to help my condition and doctors advised an operation," writes Maggie Nelson, Moosdale, Wis. "Fortunately I read about Foley Kidney Pills, tried them and got relief." Lee & Osgood Co.

CHILD TRAINING

Catalog and Booklet Fun

By Lydia Lion Roberts

There are all kinds of pamphlets, booklets and descriptive matter printed nowadays to advise and show busy people about almost everything. A great many of these find their way to a housekeepers door and are often glanced at carelessly and thrown away. This is a mistake if there are children in the home, for out of these booklets may come lessons and some good times. A mother will find it worth while to watch the magazines and send for the most attractive of these, not only to learn about the newest and best ways of doing and buying things but to help the children learn about this big unknown world.

When a rainy day or "what shall I do now?" times comes, the lucky mother brings out her group of booklets and gathers the children around her. Many a mother can explain about these things easier than tell a story, and this is the way she can use the booklets. It will start a lot of questions all of which she cannot answer, but it will prove an interesting time. There are booklets telling of our parks, scenery, birds, woods, and the kind that tell how things are made. These are free for the effort of writing for them and give the children some idea of what is going on in their country. The pictures may be used for scrap books and clippings made of the most interesting facts told. It will make the children think about the bigger things of the world and want to know more about them.

As an illustration of the uses to which these booklets may be put, a few of the ways we have used them in our home may help other mothers. There came in the mail one day a booklet describing a set of nature books in which there were colord pictures of birds. The oldest boy of the family became interested in the many varieties of birds and decided to start a bird scrapbook. We sent for other booklets and he cut out the bird pictures, many of which were very beautiful, and one of them had an interesting account of udubon's life which was read carefully and added to the book.

Another time we sent for a catalog describing different kinds of wood and giving a short history of the different trees and the way the wood was used. The children were much pleased with this and gathered woods of many uses and noted the differences.

The railroad folders are often illustrated artistically and we used these to help in geography lessons, as the pictures and descriptions of the train routes and scenery besides the brief accounts of important landmarks helped geography seem more real and vivid to the children.

Almost all of these catalogs helped in school work as the children had interesting or odd bits of information to give to the class and when making collections to go with the booklets, took these to school to show the teacher and the children. The teacher liked this and encouraged other children to bring outside illustrations to the lessons.

In the children's bookcase there is a special shelf for booklets and catalogues, and they are very useful for references and handy to pick up in idle moments and read. The tiny tot of the family likes to have a slight story woven around some of the illustrations in which a little girl or boy visits the various places pictured, and has child adventures. The mechanical boy of the family writes for every booklet on machinery that he can get, and studies them to see the new ideas and inventions of the world, getting all the information possible to help him in his chosen work.

It really seems as if there is a catalogue or booklet to suit each one of the children, and if a child has a special talent or interest it is wise to help by sending for every thing that will in any way broaden and enlighten.

Soft drinks composed of syrup and water are popular in Italy.

Stories That Recall Others

Early to Bed Stuff

This youngster had gone to visit with relatives in the country. His mother talked over the telephone to him one day, and she could tell by his tone that he was a little homesick. It was apparent that what he was missing was his occasional trips downtown, the lighted streets and picture shows.

Do you really wish to come home?" the mother asked.

"Yes," he said, "I think I do. There's too much night here in the country."

The Movie Factory

Betty, taken to the country for a visit, had run around the village. She saw things that were strange to her, but a passing glimpse of a blacksmith shop filled her with wonder. When she got back to the house she burst into the room with great excitement. "Daddy," she said, "I've just seen a man that makes horses!"

"Nonsense," said daddy. "You've made a mistake."

"No, I haven't," she persisted, "I saw him. He had one nearly finished. He was just nailing on its back feet."

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

GOING TO EXCAVATE AT AMERICAN LUXOR

Neil M. Judd, director of the Pueblo Bonito expedition of the National Geographic society, has left Washington to resume exploration of the most important prehistoric ruin in the United States at Chaco Canyon, New Mexico.

By May 15 Indians will be swarming over the walls of the ancient village, teams will drag wagon loads of earth and stone away, and steel dump cars will scurry back and forth over a miniature railroad. Almost overnight a canyon which has been deserted since years before Columbus came will become a beehive of industry.

Pueblo Bonito was an aboriginal apartment house of 900 rooms, four tsories high, encircled by a single outer wall.

Viewed from the towering cliff the ancient village is semi-circular, with the greater portion of its dwellings, or suites, grouped along the curved side.

A long row of one-story houses connects the extreme wings of the semi-circle. From the middle of the straight row a cluster of ceremonial chambers extended to meet the curved section, thus dividing the village, and providing for each half an open court. In these courts sacred dances and religious ceremonies were performed.

Some ancient walls still stand more than 80 feet high. Its 400 ground-floor rooms occupy an area almost equal to that of the U. S. capitol.

Rooms of Pueblo Bonito are grouped in suites as in modern apartment houses. If they were all occupied at the same time the resident population of this aboriginal family hotel was between 1,500 and 2,000 persons.

The National Geographic society has been exploring Pueblo Bonito for three years but many puzzling problems remain to be solved.

Where was the water supply for this prosperous community? What forests furnished the hundreds of beams used in this colossal village standing now 40 miles from any timber of comparable size? Extensive fields in which our earliest farmers grew corn, beans, squash and other food plants now are buried.

Mr. Judd is a widely known American anthropologist and, within the past ten years, has organized and directed twelve archeological expeditions.

POETRY

THERE IS NO DEATH.

There is no death! The dust we tread
Shall change beneath the summer showers
To golden grain or mellow fruit,
Or rainbow-tinted flowers.

The granite rocks disintegrate
To feed the hungry moss they bear;
The forest leaves drink daily life
From out the viewless air.

There is no death! The leaves may fall
The flowers may fade and pass away—
They only wait through wintry hours
The coming of the May.

There is no death! An angel form
Walks o'er the earth with silent tread;
He bears our best loved things away,
And then we call them "dead."

He leaves our hearts all desolate—
He plucks our fairest, sweetest flowers;
Transplanted into bliss, they now
Adorn immortal bowers.

The birdlike voice whose joyous tones
Made glad this scene of sun and shade
Shines now in everlasting song,
Amid the tree of life.

And when he sees a smile so bright
Of hearts too pure for hate and wrong
He bears it to that world of light
To dwell in Paradise.

Born into that undying life,
They leave us but to come again,
With joy we welcome them—the same
Except in sin and pain.

And ever near us though unseen
The dear immortal spirits tread;
For all the boundless Universe
Is life—there are no dead.

TO A BUTTERFLY.

I've watched you now a full half-hour,
Self-poised upon that yellow flower;
And, little butterfly! indeed,
I know not if you sleep or feed.
How motionless! not frozen seems
More motionless! and then
What joy awaits you, when the breeze
Has found you out among the trees,
And calls you forth again!

This plot of orchard-ground is ours;
My trees they are, my sister's flowers;
Here rest your wings when they are weary;
Here lodge as in a sanctuary!
Come often to us, fear no wrong;
Sit near us on the bough!
We'll talk of sunshine and of song,
And summer days, when we were young;
Sweet childish days that were as long
As twenty days are now.

—William Wordsworth.

In Belgium, 13,000 people, more than two-thirds of the pre-war population, have returned to Ypres. Many are living in cellars and temporary huts, while the rebuilding proceeds as fast as possible.

Gums are the glutinous matters which exude from certain trees. They are all more or less soluble in water. Resins are obtained in the same manner as gums, but differ from gums in being insoluble in water, and therefore more suitable for varnishes.

The air is free, however much the rest of our environment may be in the possession of other folk, is a consoling thought that may now be denied to us. At any rate, an American citizen has become so depressed in his mind that he has entered court and declared that even the atmosphere and all of its contents and component parts have passed into the hands of conspirators who violate the Sherman act by hopping up all the 25,000 meter wave lengths available to his broadcasting station.—The Nation's Business.

The oldest manuscript written on cotton paper in England is in the British Museum, and bears the date of 1049. The most ancient manuscript on the same material in the Library of Paris is dated 1050. In 1095 A. D., the Christian successors of the Spanish Saracens made paper of rags instead of raw cotton, which is recognized by its yellowness and brittleness.

On his Scottish estate of Falloden, Lord Grey has for thirty years maintained a sanctuary for wild fowl; in all those years not a gun has been discharged on the estate. The ten British and thirteen foreign species feed from the hand of their master, who has many stories of their habits and behavior. One is that of a faithful drake; after ten years with one mate, the mate died. The drake searched disconsolately for her for several days and was last seen winging far out over the North sea.—Scientific American.

A method of avoiding the new Portuguese income tax has been found. The tax varies from 1 to 10 per cent. on all incomes exceeding 2,400 escudos, that is to say about $200. Journalists and men of letters are exempted from the tax. The number of Portuguese journals and of books of verse and prose issued yearly is already formidable, but in the future it is expected that even the busiest merchant and richest proprietors will take time to publish a little book of poems and so demolish a claim to be considered mere men of letters.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

FUNERALS.

John J. Hoar.

Friday morning the funeral of John J. Hoar, son of Edward Hoar, was held from the latter's residence at 96 Central avenue. Rev. W. A. Keefe officiated at the service at St. Mary's Memorial church which was attended by numerous relatives and friends of the family and by a number of former shipmates of the deceased. The music for the service was by Henry J. La Fontaine, assisted by members of the choir.

For the past several years Mr. Hoar had been in the United States navy, having spent a period of three years in overseas service during the world war. He had by study and application attained the rank of torpedo gunner. Full military honors were accorded him at the funeral. The casket, draped in the national colors, was born by Ernest Maynard and William Powers, shipmates from the U. S. S. Preston, and Robert Swanton, Joseph Nolan, John Morrison and Thomas Nevins, of this city. A squad of marines accompanied the funeral procession from the house to the grave in St. Mary's cemetery, where a final salute was fired and taps were sounded as the last evidence of the esteem and regard in which he had been held.

Cummings and Ring were in charge of the arrangements.

SCHOOL FLAG ROPES TIED ON BOZRAH BRIDGE

How and why ropes from the flagpole at the Johnson school in the town of Bozrah came to be tied across the end of the bridge above Fitchville is a question that the authorities were trying to solve Friday night.

Dr. Harry E. Higgins of this city discovered the ropes closing off the road ahead of him as he drove down along the road from Colchester Friday after midnight. Sensing a possible hold-up, Dr. Higgins drove his machine against the ropes and broke through without being halted.

The doctor came onto his home in this city and notified Capt. D. J. Twomey at police headquarters of his experience. Captain Twomey let Constable Jerry Sweeney know and the Bozrah officer found that the ropes tied on the bridge came from the school house flag pole and had been securely tied across the end of the bridge, three strands thick.

SALEM MURDERER IS FOUND TO BE INSANE

On the report of a commission of doctors that John C. W. Wilbur, 68, a Salem woodchopper, is insane, Judge George E. Hinman in the superior court here Friday committed Wilbur to the Norwich state hospital for the insane.

Wilbur shot and killed Frank Early, 55, of East Hampton in Wilbur's shack on Saturday night, Jan. 6, claiming that he shot the man because he would not get out of the place and was in the bed where Wilbur wanted to sleep.

After firing the shot that killed Early instantly, Wilbur left the body where it fell on the bed in an upper room in the house. He slept that night down stairs and the next morning walked 2 1-2 miles through the snow to the grand juror's house to ask to have the body taken away.

He has been in jail since then on the charge of murder.

Drs. W. K. Tingley, A. C. Freeman, and J. J. Donohue, who were the commission named to examine him made a unanimous report that they found him insane.

Wilbur was at the court house Friday in charge of sheriff Sidney A. Brown and was seen there by Dr. F. S. Wilcox who had examined him also earlier in the week. After the doctors' report the commitment order was issued and Wilbur was taken to the state hospital by Sheriff Brown.

INCIDENTS IN SOCIETY

Mrs. Frederick A. Byrnes of Warren street has been the guest of Mrs. Aron C. Burnham of Brooklyn, N. Y., for the past week.

WOMAN AND CHILD HIT BY AUTO ON NORTH MAIN ST.; TWO CARS BUMP

Mrs. Rose DeMale of 288 North Main street, who was to have left the city today (Saturday) to join her husband in New Jersey, was knocked down on North Main street near Third street by an automobile Friday afternoon about 5 o'clock and is a patient at the Backus hospital. A little girl named Caron who was with her was also knocked down by the machine, which was driven by Everett Barnes of Preston. The girl went to her home on Second street and has symptoms that may indicate internal injuries, said Dr. M. J. Brophy Friday night.

Mrs. DeMale was dazed and in a state of collapse after the accident. She was attended by Dr. M. J. Brophy, who had her taken to the Backus hospital in the ambulance. She is suffering from bruises and lacerations on the head. X-ray pictures were taken to determine whether she has a fracture of the skull, and she will be under observation to determine whether she has internal injuries.

Mr. Barnes telephoned in a report to police headquarters soon after the accident, stating that he saw the woman and child and blew his horn as he approached them, but they were watching other machines when they were hit by him. He reported that he was driving slowly.

Officer John T. Carey rendered assistance after the accident.

Rear-End Bump.

Another North Main street accident was reported early Friday evening, this time close to the junction with Central avenue, near Erin street.

Raymond Perry of 46 Boswell avenue reported that he was driving along the street with a car in front of him and a car behind, when the one in front suddenly slowed down. He followed suit and avoided hitting the car ahead, but the one behind came up and hit his rear end, damaging his gasoline tank and a fender.

Mr. Perry reported that the brakes on the car behind him had failed to work promptly and that the car belonged to Frank Donnelly of Norwich Town.

From the number of accidents that have been happening along North Main street recently, this street is getting the reputation of being the worst place for accidents in the city. Merchants and residents have made complaints that too many are inclined to use this section of concrete highway as a speedway, although neither of the accidents of Friday seem to have been the result of speeding.

ART SCHOOL DISPLAY AT CONVERSE GALLERY

The display of drawings, pottery, basketry and jewelry was perhaps one of the best ever shown by the association and Norwich might well be proud of the instruction of the teachers and the work of the pupils at the school.

The reception to guests was from 7.30 until 9 o'clock during which the Kyle orchestra furnished music for dancing, after which refreshments were served under the direction of Miss Pauline Mather.

During the past year the school has been in general charge of Mrs. Guy W. Eastman, Miss Ada Watrous and Miss Katherine L. Mallett, while Miss Mallett has been assisted in the children's classes by Miss Marie Russell, Miss Elsie Church and Reginald Laubin.

Miss Nellie Loring and Miss Edna Herbert have been teaching during the past year at Williams Memorial Institute, New London.

On Saturday and Sunday after noon from 3 until 5 o'clock the public of Norwich and vicinity is to be given an opportunity to see the work and without doubt the attendance will be larger than in past years.

Design Exhibits.

The screens of design are representative of the development of the course. There are examples of the construction of patterns suitable for circles, squares, borders and spots.

In the class in historic ornament, period ornament has been analyzed and new patterns constructed. In this group is an Egyptian square, attractive in color and unusual in treatment, made by Reginald Laubin.

Following these exercises in color in beautiful pieces of color were analyzed and copied. Of this work there are two examples shown—A Japanese print and of the enameled tiles from the Palace of Susa. The copies were made by Elsie Church, and R. Laubin shows a group of brush studies.

Color problems are followed by sketches made for room interiors. Marie Russell shows how a bare chimney and the corner of an attic in a real cottage can be made into an attractive workshop. Elsie Peck's sketches of a nursery and a bedroom for a child are simple in arrangement and charming in color.

Alice Peck's real kitchen in gray, blue, and in white enamel, and her porch for a shore cottage are conveniently arranged and livable.

The Academy students who have done good work in designs include the Misses Farrell, Lee, Gamber, Dorothy Lucker, Gladys Tortoiseshell, Smiegel, Laura Blake and Shapiro.

The work of Mrs. Raymond C. Joyner's class in batik is represented by a runner of lovely color and quaint design made by Mrs. Eleanor A. Bennett, and Mrs. Fred Sudlow has two handsome trays, one an example of top dyeing, the other of over dyeing.

Miss Nellie A. Loring's bag, exquisite in color and choice in needlework, was also made with Mrs. Joyner.

The Academy students' scarfs and kerchiefs in block printing and batik are shown in the various stages of completion and demonstrate the process of batik.

A screen of charcoal drawings by Art school pupils and advanced Academy pupils includes work of Helen Risley, Elsie Church, M. Russell, R. Laubin, Clementine Bacheler, Alice Peck, Marie Cross.

Here also are several silhouette compositions by D. Gamber, G. Tortoiseshell, C. Bacheler, S. Astor, E. Reid, S. Schiln and E. Durie.

Once again Miss Faith Carruthers is exhibiting a wonderful display of jewelry. Through the generosity of the owners, she is exhibiting a handsome amber pendant hewn from gold and rich in detail; a scarab ring with mouldings of gold and turquoise on sides; a man's ring of frosted gold; gold brooch of fine gold with a spray of diamonds; a ring in green gold set with sapphires and diamonds.

Miss Nellie A. Loring has on exhibition pearls and fine gold combined to make a closely filled unit on black onyx; a long brooch in platinum set with sapphires and pearls; two fairy stone craves combined with carmelian and pearls.

Others to exhibit in this class were Miss Taft, Miss Mather, Mrs. Grant, Mrs. Packer, Miss Sharpe, Mrs. Anderson, Miss Huntington, Mrs. Lester, Mrs. Sudlow, Mrs. Bard, Mrs. Bernard, Mrs. Jordan and Miss Reid.

Saturday Morning Class.

The work of the Saturday morning class, composed of children whose ages range from 5 to 10 years, is also exceptionally good.

Agnes Greenman won the prize of the smaller children's class by her effort and good work. The other pupils are Walter Crandall (6), Eleanor Welsh, Esther Gilbert, Caroline Noyes, Dorothy Prentice, Earle Swan, Fanny and Charlotte LaPierre (5). All display unusual talent for children so young.

Walter Crandall, who is only five years old and who displays especial talent in clay work, made a candy dish, bird flower holder, candlestick and small tile with a sailboat in relief. DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS.

DANIELSON

Attention of all farmers of Killingly is called to the fact that a recent enactment of the legislature relative to fishing in Alexander's lake does not open that body of water on specified days of the week until after July 1, which, incidentally, is the date on which the bass fishing season opens. Many have gained the impression that because the legislature has declared there shall be fishing in Alexander's lake at specified times during each week that the regulations is immediately effective. This is not the case. Those who attempt to fish this particular lake often on the days of the week to which the enactment has recently been changed may be subject to arrest, as July 1 will be subject to arrest just the same as they would be had no recent enactment been enacted. This information is issued at the request of the Danielson Rod and Gun club, an organization with about 300 members and intend upon seeing that the fish and game laws are observed, as well as trying their attention to shooting hares and grouse and fishing with fish or birds that all who are good sportsmen may have something to interest them while afield in this section of the state.

Agents of the state fish and game commission are keeping watch of Alexander's lake, so all who desire to avoid unpleasant difficulties will keep away from that body of water with intent of fishing it until the first day of July. Incidentally, it is attractive as ever just now and no intention is indicated here of telling people to cease their enjoyment of the beautiful lake and the surroundings in the several weeks before July 1.

An item that appeared in this column earlier in the week seems to have attracted the attention of Norwich people interested in the mysterious case of William Tibbetts who disappeared from his home under unusual circumstances earlier in the spring. The man written about in this column was not the missing Tibbetts and there was no intention of creating that impression. The particular part of the discussion boarded the car on Monday noon at Attawaugan and talked a great deal and widely, mentioning Tibbetts in the tirade, but he was not regarded at any time as being the missing man, though he talked considerably about him. The particular man discussed in this column was about Attawaugan during Friday.

Tomorrow (Sunday) will be South Killingly's great day of the year—the day on which it pays its annual tribute to the honored dead who have defended the nation and its ideals in all the wars dating back to the Revolution. Patriotic societies will assist in these exercises which each year attract large numbers from far and near. Sunday afternoon also will mark Dayville's annual contribution to the recognition of what the soldier day have done for their country and how their memories are held by those who are still carrying on. At Dayville the exercises will be held Sunday afternoon and are certain to attract a large number from all the surrounding country.

East Killingly, another section of town, will observe Memorial day next Wednesday, with exercises at 10 a. m. standard time. Richard D. Jennings, ex treasurer of the state of Rhode Island is to be the orator of the day. Mr. Jennings, a member of the bar, is one of the most distinguished citizens of the neighboring state.

East Killingly always has made a great deal of the Memorial Day observance and there will be no exception to the rule this year. This fact will draw a large attendance of many who not only will be able to participate in the exercises there, but also return to Danielson for the observance here during the afternoon hours.

Flowers at the Westfield Congregational church on nSunday will be in honor and memory of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Bailey, Norwich residents of long ago and parents of Mrs. Charles S. Bill of Danielson.

Old Man Mercury started out to redeem himself Friday by running the temperature up into the 80's and giving humanity a chance to really swelter and think of real summer days that now appear to be just in the foreground.

Soldiers of the Common Place will be the subject of Rev. William Frying at the Congregational church in Wauregan tomorrow when Memorial Sunday will be observed.

PUTNAM

Nothing of special interest developed during Friday relative to the industrial trouble involving the plant of the Mashasset Manufacturing company. The mill was operating and the former employes who have remained away from their work for nearly three weeks were holding out there is no sign this week-end of the breaking of the will of either the mill company or those of its former workers who are holding out for a further advance in wages.

The former workers are strengthened in their determination, it is very apparent, by the substantial support they are now receiving each week from locals of the American Federation of Textile Operatives in towns along the Quinebaug valley and by the promise of additional support from all over New England and from New York and Pennsylvania districts where the textile union is strong. This support now will be aggregating $2500 each week, an amount sufficient to keep all the strikers and members of their families from want. The matter of a strike assessment to aid the Putnam local members was taken up Friday at Fall River when the executive council of the American Federation of Textile Operatives was in session.

The weapon that will tell the most against the strikers is the summary process proceedings that have been instituted against approximately 50 families occupying mill company tenements. Final notice have been served in some cases, the periods specified for vacating ending Monday. Evictions are expected to follow if the families have not moved out of their own accord. But the union says it will take good care of all families who are forced out of mill company homes and see that the members are adequately provided for until other homes can be found for them.

Those who believed at first that this industrial trouble would be of short duration are not so certain of that as the present week drawn to a close. At the present time only guesses may be hazarded as to how long will be required to reach a settlement.

The Alumni Association of the Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute at Rochester, N. Y., has written Principal R. H. Snow of Putnam High school to announce that a medal will be given each year to the boy making the highest average in mathematics and science for his four years course. The first award of the medal will be this year. It is understood that the Institute at Rochester will make a similar gift to Putnam High school each year.

There is interest here and elsewhere in this territory in the statement of the Eastern Connecticut Power company that its new present issue of $1,500,000. of the first preferred stock of the company is to be used, among other things, for retirement of the floating debt assumed by the purchase of the Putnam Light and Power company, which furnishes service to Putnam, Woodstock, Pomfret and Thompson, and for the purchase of the securities of the Danielson and Plainfield Gas and Electric company, taken over some months ago by the Eastern Connecticut Power company.

The school nurse and physician have completed the examination of school children for the year in all of the schools of the town. There are 1694 pupils in attendance in all schools; 1697 of these were examined. Only 282 were without any physical defects whatsoever. Defective teeth led the list of ailments: 1274 pupils suffering from teeth defects; 795 were not up to the normal weight for their height and age; 384 had enlarged tonsils; 64 had been operated on since the last examination; 343 had adenoids; 283 were suffering from defective vision and 65 from defective hearing; 554 cases of enlarged glands were noted.

Miss Marguerite Lisgay of New Britain, a member of the senior class of New Britain schol, has been engaged to teach the fourth and fifth grades in the Smith street school next year, taking the place of Miss Edith Cutler, resigned.

Workmen have finished the work of plastering o nthe four room addition to the I. F. S., and the interior finish is being laid this week. The addition will be heated by steam and a larger boiler has been installed.

Although the town of Putnam offers its teachers 10 days' sickness leave during any year with full pay, it is interesting to note that only four teachers have been obliged to be out 10 days or more on account of illness. If all the teachers had taken advantage of this absence it would have amounted to a total of 320 days. As a matter of fact, only 92 days have been taken, making an average of only about two days to each teacher.

There has been some talk in town this week that, like house rents, lot rents are going up and evidently bent on breaking.

A publication of this city—The Patriot Press, Inc., carried the announcement Friday of the engagement of Miss Emily O'Neill Davies and William H. Vanderbilt, internationally known as the son of Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt and Mrs. Paul Fitz Simons of Harbourview, Newport, R. I. The Vanderbilt and Davies are among the intimate friends of G. Lawrence Perkins of this city and Pomfret, where at Mr. Perkins' country home, Ufton, Miss Davies and Mr. Vanderbilt are spending the week-end.

An engagement of national interest to be announced in New York this evening is that of William H. Vanderbilt, son of Mrs. Paul Fitz Simons of Harbourview, Newport, and the late Alfred Gywnne Vanderbilt, to Miss Emily O'Neill Davies, daughter of Mrs. Frederick Martin Davies and the late Mr. Davies. The engagement is to be formally announced this evening at a dinner at the home of Mrs. Davies in New York city, 20 East 82nd street. Mr. Vanderbilt and Miss Davies, whose parents for many years have been intimate friends of Lawrence Perkins of Ufton, Pomfret Center, have visited at the home of Mr. Perkins, president of The Patriot Press, Inc.

The engagement is of unique interest to those who have known intimately the two families, since for many years the fathers of Mr. Vanderbilt and Miss Davies were the closest friends, this association ending only with the death of Mr. Davies in 1915 a few hours before the news came to this country that Mr. Vanderbilt had lost his life when the Lusitania was sunk by a German submarine off the coast of Ireland.

Miss Davies, who made her debut two years ago, is one of the most popular young women in New York society. Previous to her debut she was a student at Bryn Mawr college. Mr. Vanderbilt recently passed his twenty-first birthday, and at that time came into possession of the large fortune left to him by his father, including the Vanderbilt estate, Oakland Farm, at Newport. Young Mr. Vanderbilt has been a student at Princeton and returned a fortnight ago from an extended trip in the Orient. His mother, Mrs. Paul Fitz Simons, has arrived in New York from spending the winter in Panama, and will sail for Europe on Saturday on the Homeric.

Mr. Perkins and John J. Whitehead, Jr., of this city were in New York Friday evening to attend the dinner at which the engagement was announced.

On Monday Chief Brown located him at his home and through his investigation it was found that he had a wife in Italy. At Town Solicitor's suggestion, Inspector Clark of the immigration office, was communicated with, resulting in his coming here Friday afternoon.

(Special to The Bulletin)

Westerly, May 25.—Under a large oak tree in a clum of woods an eighth of a mile northwest of the farm house of Warren Randall between lower Pawcatuck and Wequetequock was found the badly decomposed body of a Finnish farm hand, who had occupied a shack on the Randall farm for the past there years. The man had been employed in the state of Washington. From there he went to New York and then came to Westerly. Two weeks ago Thursday he handed Warren Randall a package wrapped up with newspaper which was afterwards found to contain $403.

Near a boulder was found an empty stone jug which he had taken on his way to a spring where he was accustomed to get his drinking water. He had apparently strayed over to the spot where his body was found. A coat had been removed and he was clothed in blue overalls, brown jumper and cap. The man was about six feet in height.

DRIVER HURLED FROM MOTORCYCLE IN COLLISION WITH AUTOMOBILE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 26.—George Alger, Jr., of No. 431 Williams street, sustained a painful injury this evening when the motorcycle he was operating was in collision with an automobile, owned and operated by J. C. Vogelstans of Shaflersville, N. Y. Alger was hurled from the cycle and received an extensive laceration of the arm, the wound requiring medical attention.

The accident occurred at the corner of Main and Williams streets when the machines, going in opposite directions, were about to make the turn. Vogelstans alleges that the motorcycle collided with his automobile and disclaimed responsibility for the crash. Both the automobile and the cycle were damaged.

At a special meeting of the Knights of Columbus this evening in Temperance hall the second degree was conferred on a class of candidates. At another meeting to be held in the Lyceum theatre tomorrow evening the third degree will be exemplified.

At a surprise shower at the home of Miss Marie Antoinette Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cassius O. Taylor of Quaker Hill, the announcement of Miss Taylor's engagement to F. Leslie Raynor of Seaford, L. I., was made. Miss Taylor is a graduate of the Connecticut College for Women, being graduated in the class of 1922. Included among Miss Taylor's friends who were present were a number of students of the college.

Mrs. Mary Bill of Lyme was recently discharged at Home Memorial hospital where she underwent a serious operation a fortnight ago.

At the parlors of the Knights of Columbus, Huntington street, this afternoon, a large number of members of the local branch of the National Council of Catholic Women, listened to an interesting address by Rev. Fr. T. Larason Riggs, chaplain at Yale university and a summer resident of New London. Not only did Father Riggs' address prove interesting, but it was highly instructive.

Following their procedure of last night and at the request of the motion picture producers who are in New London for the purpose of making a water film, with Thomas Meighan and Lila Lee as the stars, Captain of Police Charles A. Pinney, detailed a squad of police to the Thames Towboat shipyard on the Thames river this evening, to keep back the throng of men, women and children, who flock about the shipyard in an endeavor to get a glimpse at the actors. While the crowd about the shipyard was large this evening, it did not number as many as the night before.

Ralph Staplins, a youth of about 15 years and son of Edward Staplins of Shaw street, will probably be committed to the reform school at Meriden tomorrow morning when he is arraigned in the police court. The boy, whose father is in ill health, has conducted himself in such a manner of late as to indicate that he is fast falling into ways of vice. He is on parole from the Meriden institution and is now held at the police station because of his abuse of his father this afternoon. So abusive was the younger Staplins that complaint was made to the police and he was taken into custody by Motorcycle Officer John Cavanaugh. Recently Staplins and his brother, Kenneth, were arrested, charged with the theft of a colt belonging to John Higgins of Park street, but there was not sufficient evidence to connect the brothers with the theft of the animal.

An automobile, owned by the Visiting Nurses Association of Waterford and operated by Miss Ethel Hull, the visiting nurse for the town, was extensively damaged early this evening when a machine owned by W. H. Coburn of Hartford and operated by C. W. St. John of Waterford, crashed into it at the corner of Broad and Channing streets. The nurses' car suffered a general disfiguration and a disabled axle.

The accident occurred as the Hartford automobile was headed towards the state highway on Broad street. When approaching Channing street, the machine operated by Miss Hull and traveling in an easterly direction, turned suddenly in front of the Hartford auto, in an endeavor to enter Channing street. Before the nurses' auto had cleared Broad street, the other machine crashed into it, almost head-on. The nurses' auto was put out of commission entirely, but Miss Hull escaped injury. The auto was placed alongside the highway and was later towed to a garage for repairs.

A meeting is scheduled to be held tomorrow afternoon between committees representing the journeymen and master plumbers for the purpose of considering the increase of wages asked for by the journeymen and effective June 1st. The journeymen have been receiving 80 cents an hour and they request that after the first of the month that the lowest wage that they shall be paid will be $1 per hour, the same as the carpenters are now receiving.

It is understood that the masters will submit a compromise offer of 90 cents per hour. As some of the journeymen are already receiving a bonus of ten cents an hour, these employees will expect to and will probably receive a wage of $1.10 an hour after the first of the month.

A young man giving his name as Frank Ambrose circulated in the vicinity of Connecticut avenue this morning, going from house to house in an effort to obtain subscribers to a magazine. At one Connecticut avenue residence the housewife questioned the solicitor as to his being a bonafide canvasser and his answers were such as to arouse the suspicion of the woman that the fellow was an imposter. The woman informed the police of her suspicion, but before an officer arrived in the vicinity of where the man had been conducting his soliciting he had made his disappearance.

The trial of Joseph Contino, of Shaw street, charged with operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor, will take place before Judge Prince in the police court tomorrow morning. Prosecuting Attorney Daniel M. Cronin caused several of the witnesses of the accident to be summoned into court this afternoon, but it is improbable that Tony Longo, the most seriously injured of the victims who were passengers of the Contino car when it crashed into a tree on Pequot avenue, will be able to be present. Longo is now under treatment at Home Memorial hospital for a fractured pelvis, five fractured ribs and the partial filling of both lungs with blood. His condition is considered serious by the attending physician.

The Memorial day parade, which will occur Wednesday morning instead of in the afternoon as in previous years, will probably not contain as many marchers as heretofore, and there is a possibility that troops from the island forts will not participate because of the appropriation for the operation of the government being cut down to such an extent that only regular trips are being made by the steamers.

However, an endeavor is being made to secure the soldiers as a part of the parade and in that endeavor the committee in charge of the parade feel that they will be successful, for Senator Brandegee and Congressman Freeman have been asked to assist in obtaining permission from Washington for the transports to make the extra trips for the transportation of the soldiers. A sailor representation will be made, for there will be bluejackets from the U. S. S. Camden, now in the harbor, and from the submarine base. The usual civic organizations will also be in line, while the members of the W. W. Perkins post, G. A. R., will ride in automobiles.

That owners of real estate in New London who are contemplating new structures on their property or alterations of an extensive nature made to their present property holdings will not cause such work to be started in the near future is apparent because of the cost that would be entailed by such operations is so great that it makes building operations where thousands of dollars would be necessary prohibitive.

An example was illustrated today when Philip Hendel, owner of the four-story brick structure at No. 45 State street, turned down figures submitted to him for alterations to the building and as a result of the exorbitant prices charged by labor and for material Mr. Hendel decided to permit the building to remain vacant until such time as building conditions changed.

The condition of James O'Neill, ill at a private hospital of extreme nervous breakdown, is reported as being considerably improved this evening. The patient experienced a restful night and was more comfortable during the day than at any time since he has been under treatment there.

Mrs. Harry H. Walker and baby of Granite street, Raymond Sullivan of Connecticut avenue, Samuel M. Prentis of Federal street, Francis McMahon of Westerly and Charles Brooks of Blackhall street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were able to go to their respective homes today.

The funeral of Mrs. Elizabeth K. Fowler, wife of Thomas Fowler, was held this afternoon at 2.30 o'clock at her late residence 331 Ocean avenue and was attended by a large concourse of mourners. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Beveridge Lee, pastor of the Second Congregational church. Interment was in West Neck cemetery, Waterford.

Kate E. Hurley has sold a house and lot on Jefferson avenue to Tony and Josie Klimack.

Patrick and Mary Murphy have sold a house and lot on Winthrop street to Frank Werenka and Frank Pukas.

Tempy, Ample and Harry Johnson and Rose Jeffers have sold a parcel of land on Vauxhall street to Elmer R. Jones.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney H. Miner of No. 15 Post Hill place will depart tomorrow for California, where they will visit with relatives. Mr. and Mrs. Miner anticipate being absent from home until about July 1st.

It is said that not one-half the number of dogs owned in this city or roaming the streets have been registered as required by law, so a drive to round them up is likely. Former Town Clerk Turner had a way of getting dogs registered. Mr. Turner took occasion to notify dog owners by postal card that their pets were in danger of being scooped up by the dog warden if they were not registered and told them a little story that usually brought the owners to the town clerk's office. And they brought a fee with them too, that went to Mr. Turner. All fees now go to the city.

In Waterford George Bliven has been appointed warden to succeed M. J. Hickey and he is to get after the unregistered dogs with a sharp stick.

There are busy times in the yards along Howard street for the yachts that are laid up at the wharves there are being made ready for use of their owners during the summer. Some of the craft are big boats and they require a great deal of work to get them in condition for cruising. The crews are aboard the yachts, now and they are kept busy every day, with painters, plumbers and upholsterers.

The summer temperature of today cause the Connecticut company to operate open cars on the main line route. The operation of the summer cars was the second time they have been put on the line this season.

James G. Horner, a former resident of New London, died at Preston last night. The body will be brought to New London for funeral and interment.

Grace McSheffery, 19 years old girl mother, who was acquitted of the charge of manslaughter at the present term of the superior court, it being alleged that she caused the death of her new born baby by abandonment, is now in the home of her aunt, a resident of the suburbs of Boston. The girl, who has been staying with church people, who interested themselves in her welfare since her acquittal and also at the home of a friend, departed yesterday afternoon for her new home. The aunt, who interested herself in the girl's case from the start, coming to New London and securing counsel for her, forwarded funds that the girl might depart from New London and the place of her environments that resulted in her recent trouble.

GRUNBY TO BE PRESENTED MONDAY MORNING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, May 26.—Detective Sergeant Charles Hammond is on his way to New London from Pittsburgh with Frank Grunby, the alleged diamond thief, and the pair, it is expected, will arrive in New London Saturday afternoon, for Hammond and his prisoner departed from Pittsburgh this afternoon at 1 o'clock. Grunby, who is alleged to have stolen a diamond ring from the store of N. M. Ruddy last August, will be arraigned in the police court Monday morning, but it is not probable that the case will be tried, but will likely be continued until later in the week.

The Providence authorities want Grunby on a diamond theft charge. Grunby, whose home is in Providence, was arrested there several months ago and was released from custody on furnishing a surety on a bond of $4,000. He jumped his bond and the first that the Providence police knew of Grunby's whereabouts was when he was about to be taken into custody for the New London police.

Grunby was serving a sentence for violation of the narcotic act in Pittsburgh and when arrested a quantity of dope and needles was found on his person.

Eve, the mother of the human race, is buried, according to a very old legend, at a spot about a mile north of Jedda in Arabia. Her reputed tomb is of enormous length, being nearly 400 feet long by ten broad. It is now in possession of the Mohammedans, who do not permit many Christians to enter it.—Detroit News.

ECHOES FROM THE LODGE ROOMS

VETERANS OF FOREIGN WARS

Richard E. Hourigan Post, No. 594, met in regular session Tuesday night in Veales Hall with Senior Vice Commander Edward Street in the chair, Commander Robert O. Graham being absent. Considerable routine business was transacted and the committee in charge of the sale of Flanders Poppies for Memorial Day reported everything ready. The sale began on Friday, May 25th and is to continue until Memorial Day, all income to be used to aid fellow veterans injured during the world war. It was voted to engage the Italian Columbus Band for the Memorial Day parade and indications are that a large number of Veterans of Norwich will be in line for the morning parade.

Fifty members attended the meeting Tuesday evening and ten new candidates were taken into the post. On Friday evening the post gave a dance at Veales hall music being furnished by Herb Smith's Orchestra. There was a fine attendance and a good sum of money was realized for the treasury of the post.

Following the meeting Tuesday a social time was enjoyed and a smoker held.

SPANISH WAR VETERANS

Committees appointed to arrange for the silver anniversary and annual convention of the Spanish War Veterans, scheduled to be held in New London, early in June are making their plans.

It was expected that approximately 500 delegates will attend the annual convention, of which 250, according to information received from the state president of the Ladies Auxiliary, would be women. The seating arrangement this year will be by towns instead of sectional arrangement heretofore in effect and an average of 15 delegates from each of the following towns and cities is expected: Bridgeport, New Haven, Hartford, New Britain, Norwich, New London, Willimantic, Norwalk, Branford, Waterbury, South Manchester, Stamford, Winsted, Torrington, Danielson and Bristol.

EAGLES

Members of Norwich Aerie, 367, held a pinochle tournament in their rooms, Shetucket street Wednesday evening with three tables playing.

The following scores were made: George Nadolny, 7530; Henry Clement 7355; Henry Bamber, 7275; Albert Woodmansee, 7265 Victor Payment, 7065; Alfred Steinke, 7015; David Farrell, 7015; Wm. Hasteadt, 6985; John Mahrolz, 6785; Henry Herring, 6400; Edward P. Mullins, 6390; Edward J. Mullins, 6075.

At one of the largest and most enthusiastic meetings held by the Eagles at their rooms last Sunday, William R. Hastedt presiding, a class of eighteen candidates were initiated. A social session followed with refreshments.

The regular meeting was held Monday evening, when it was announced that State Officer Lewis would be here to install the officers of Norwich Aerie at the next meeting to be held June 4. The entertainment committee appointed for this date promises a good time to all.

OWLS

Norwich Nest, No. 1390 held its regular meeting Tuesday evening in Owls Hall on Main street with President John Wals in the chair. Routine business was transacted and the usual committee reports were heard. A social time followed the business meeting after which a smoker was held.

PATRONS OF HUSBANDRY.

Norwich grange, No. 172, met in regular session Wednesday evening in Steiner's hall with Worthy Master Mrs. John O. Peckham in the chair. Consider routine business was transacted following which the third and fourth degrees were worked in full form. The work of the degree team was especially good under the leadership of Carl W. Brown and Mrs. Milo R. Waters. The music was furnished by Miss Nellie Howie.

At the close of the meeting, the members enjoyed a delightful repast, salads, cold meats, coffee, cake and ice cream being served by the feast committee, Mrs. William Murray, chairman, assisted by members of her committee. The grange was visited Wednesday night by State Deputy Fred M. Taylor, of Lebanon, who expressed himself as well pleased with the work of the Norwich grange and complimented the members on the work accomplished during the current year.

SWEETHEARTS AND WIVES OF '61

I ask no toast for Blue or Gray,
To comrades lost on land or wave,
At Gettysburg and Mobile Bay,
Or those who fill an unknown grave,
Nor drink I toast to Grant or Lee,
To weary hike or night attack,
For Sherman marching to the sea,
To "Monitor" or "Merrimac."

I drink no toast to those who fell,
To battle lost or victory won
'Mid Union Cheer and Rebel Yell,
At Vicksburg, Shiloh or Bull Run,
Nor toast I here the Nations braves
Who for their cause like soldiers died,
Above them all Old Glory waves,
On mountain, vale and hill and tide.

But comrades drink with me this toast—
"Here's to those hearts faithful and kind,
"Here's to those girls we loved the most,
"Sweethearts and wives we left behind."
Those loyal hearts, tender and true,
Will cherished be 'til life is done.
Who loved the Gray, who loved the Blue,
Sweethearts and wives of Sixty-one.

GOIN' THROUGH THE SQUARE.

Old girls and young girls,
Plain girls and fair,
All come a-tripping
In through the square.

Some smiling brightly,
Some looking glum,
Some wearing gay rags,
Slumpy ones some.

Some eyes are down cast,
Some dart about,
Some boldly question,
Some look in doubt.

Old girls and young girls,
Plain girls and fair,
All goin' some place,
But no matter where

MEMORIAL DAY.

Dear Editor and Sisters of the Social Corner: As I have not written for a long time I thought I would send this piece of poetry which will be appropriate for Memorial day:

The years have been many, their sleep has been long,
'Neath the pine and the maple they lie,
Unheeding the robin and bobolink's song,
Unheeding the catbird's fierce cry.
Their muskets and sabres have rusted away,
They reck not the days and the hours,
And now on the morn of Memorial day
We cover them over with flowers.

No challenge of foemen can call them to arms,
They are keeping the truce of the dead,
And heed not the May with her manifold charms,
Or tears that the mourners have shed.
Oh, cover them over with lilies all pure!
While banners above them shall wave,
Their conflicts are ended, their manes will endure
On the scroll of the true and the brave.

If I could I would like to decorate every soldier's grave, but it is impossible.

CAPATOLA.

GET THE HABIT.

Dear Friends: A good slogan for us would be "Get the Habit," like a former vaudeville manager used to have. I haven't written for a month of Sundays until last week, and here I'm at it again.

These cold mornings, I mean cool mornings, are comfortable enough for us grown-ups, but too chilly for the children without some heat in the room. This morning I knew that when the sun came up it would be warm enough, so I lighted my gas oven, but hated to waste the gas, so to speak, so hurried and made a cake and by the time the children got up the room was warm enough. I find it saves gas to always make an extra crust when making one pie, and then when you come to the day you want to fill that extra crust you might as well bake something else ahead, so the next day you don't have to light your oven at all. Your baking is ahead.

I wonder if the breakfast getting and packing lunch is hurried in every home? I know I have to keep going every minute. It's always well to have an extra percolator glass top on hand, in case one cracks and breaks. If you haven't one, and the unexpected does happen, your glass lemon squeezer placed over coffee pot lid, just so, and the gas lowered, will suffice for that particular morning until you get downtown in the afternoon for another.

To make strawberries go farther, cut up three or four ripe bananas with a box of berries and place a quantity of sugar over them and let stand for an hour or two and you'd be surprised at the amount of juice and delicious flavor.

I'm expecting to see you this week, Blue Bell.

Good wishes to all.

CHELSEA.

STRAWBERRY SHORTCAKE.

Dear Corner Sisters: The shortcake season is ahead of us, the finest of the year. I am going to give you an excellent way of making the old-fashioned biscuit shortcakes for strawberries or other fruit.

Individual Strawberry Shortcake: Sift together two and one-half cups of ordinary bread flour, four teaspoons of baking powder, one-half teaspoon of sugar. Work into this dry mixture, with the fingertips, three tablespoons of butter. Then slowly add one cup of sweet milk and one-third cup of cold water.

You should now have a rather wet dough. Toss it on to a well-floured board and pat it down into a circular sheet. Then, with a floured rolling pin, gently roll it to three-quarters of an inch thick. The next step is to butter two round layer cake pans. These two pans will hold the eight individual shortcakes which this recipe makes. Choose a cookie cutter which is about three inches in diameter—or use any other sharp edged cutter you may have, such as a can cover, the rim of a glass water tumbler or a cup. (I personally use an old cup which has no handle.)

When you have cut eight of these three-inch wide discs from the dough (you will have to roll odd bits of the tough together to get out the last few discs), place four discs on each of the pans. Slip the pans into a very hot oven to bake for 25 minutes. When [illegible]

will be light and raised—tender, large biscuit. Split each biscuit open and butter well. Then put crushed, sweetened, fresh strawberries between the halves of each biscuit; heap more of the crushed strawberries on top of each little shortcake and add a generous dab of whipped cream.

For this recipe (making eight individual shortcakes) you will need one quart (possibly more) of strawberries; mash them and let stand for an hour before making the biscuit, sweetening them, when mashed, to suit your taste. One gill of thick cream should do for all eight shortcakes (for in some localities one gill of double cream costs 30 cents—quite enough to spend in making a single dessert). To whip this thick cream, simply put it in a deep bowl which does not measure more than five or six inches across the top (some women use a pitcher); beat it with your egg beater. The cream should be very cold. When it begins to thicken, add three tablespoons of confectioner's sugar and one teaspoon of vanilla extract, and finish beating. Do not overbeat it or it will turn to butter! You may thin it, to make it "stretch," by beating into it a very little sweet milk.

MARTHA.

HOW TO GROW CALLA LILIES.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: What do you think! Delilah Deal sent me a birthday card and said she thought if I did not write before long someone might take my panname. I got awfully worried.

Calla Lily: I saw within the past month two sickly calla lilies. Why they ought to look lovely in winter. I said to myself they don't look anything like our Calla Lily in our Social Corner.

I will say right here, give the lily a rest in summer, re-pot in the fall and put the bulb near the surface of flower pot. Water from pot with cold water. When the fourth leaf comes, water in saucer with hot water. The fifth leaf will most surely bring up a blossom. Keep watering with hot water in the saucer.

Canterbury Bell: I find it very hard to get you. You won't grow for me. I have sowed seeds and set out plants, but no use. I sent out of town for some rose bushes and some Canterbury Bell plants. Extra rose bushes came but no plants. I am in hopes to get you some time.

I received many birthday cards and I thank the sisters. Was pleased with them. And also send thanks for the lovely calendar sent by a member. I said to Mr. Acorn I would just like to step in that boat and go fishing. He said, well you have caught your fish so it's no go.

Maple Green Gables: Hope you will have good luck with your chickens. Wait until they begin to lay and think of me gathering over two hundred eggs a day and putting them in cases. It is some job but as the money is coming in I won't kick.

Theoda: I know you are a worker and a hustler, and a good walker and a good swimmer. I never got my paper in time to know of the outing at Ocean Beach last summer.

Grace: When you come out at the Spur again come and see me.

Olive: When you come and see that new baby would love to see you. Your son must know where I live.

Aunty No. 1: I have woven two rugs on the farm bureau loom for myself and gave one away and have hooked in three rugs this winter. Now that doesn't sound good. I hooked rags in with a hook in burlap and made three pretty rugs. I like them better than any made rugs. I have used up all of my rags and have come to a standstill. Now I am going to dye some day the bags that hen mash comes in. Mother used to think she must have woolen rags to draw in but cotton are just as good.

Iola: Write some more letters. Yes I was sick this winter and was sorry to hear of you breaking your arm.

Christmas Bell: Why don't you write? Don't think you are out of season. Now I have got to go and feed my dog and four cats. Wishing you all had as many.

LUCY ACORN.

HONOR THEM WHILE HERE.

Dear Editor and Corner Sisters: We can never repay our mothers for what they have done for us. And happy the son or daughter that honors her while they have her with them. It is the first commandment in the Bible with a promise.

Triple E.: I forgot to mention my sister was glad to hear from you.

Free Air: That's all right, count me in on that; the more of it the better. How sweet the apple blossoms smell when the birds wake one up with their inspiring melodies.

Here are some items on the Bible and some questions that will be answered next week. I wonder how many can find the answers? I like to encourage the young to search and know the scriptures. What one learns in youth will stay in memory and be a great help in inspiration when older.

Inspiration of the Bible: The question is asked, "How can I know that the Bible is inspired?" Even in this late day when the number of Christians has multiplied from a mere handful to four hundred and seventy millions, or one-fourth of the population of the globe, there are many who are ignorant of the inspiration of the Book. Mr. Moody, the greatest American evangelist, was asked if he regarded the Bible as inspired, said "I know the Bible is inspired for it inspires me." That is my answer also. It speaks to the hearts of men and bears within itself the evidence of inspiration, and when it is read and its precepts followed, its influence is uplifting and inspiring. The Bible is the message of God to man. II Tim. 3: 14-17.

When in trouble or sorrow, read John 14: 1-3, 27; Heb. 12: 6-7; Psa. 46.

When you have the blues, read Psalm 91.

When you want rest and peace, Matt. 11: 25-30.

When in sickness, James 5: 14-15.

When in danger, Luke 8: 22-25.

When you want courage, read II Cor. 12: 9.

Questions which will be answered next week:

1. What was the first command of God?
2. What was the first prophecy?
3. Who built the first city?
4. Who was the first sacred historian?
5. Who was the first judge according to the Bible?
6. What king beat down a city and sowed it with salt?
7. In what cave did David seek refuge when pursued by Saul?
8. Where is mention first made of a library?

I hope all the sisters who have been sick are better, and I send my sympathy to all in sorrow.

Best wishes to all.

HOW TO MAKE A GOOD CUP OF TEA AND COFFEE.

Dear Editor and Corner Sisters: Is coffee injurious? No, says several doctors, when made as it should be.

Tea and coffee are without doubt the most popular hot drinks, and when they are properly made they are harmful to very few adults. Serious results almost invariably come from heavy dissection which results from long boiling; this brings out the caffeine in coffee and the theine in tea.

To make a good tea allow a teaspoon (level) of the leaves to a pint of water and put them in a teaball, or a cheese cloth bag. Scald the pot, then turn out the hot water. Bring the desired amount of fresh water to a boil, and just as soon as bubbles appear all over the surface, turn it over the tea leaves. Remove the leaves at the end of exactly two minutes. Long boiling of the water will make the tea flat and insipid. Leaving the tea in the water too long or boiling after the water has been turned over the leaves gives the tea a bitter, disagreeable taste. If you wish to give your tea a different flavor pour it over a tiny piece of lemon or put one whole clove to each teaspoon of leaves.

I have a brother who is a coffee demonstrator, and he gave me directions for making perfect coffee that is delicious and harmless.

For one quart of the beverage put into a strainer or a cheesecloth bag one-half of a cup of freshly roasted coffee (have it ground) and slowly pour over it one quart of fresh water that has just come to a boil. Pour the liquid off into a hot pitcher and turn it over the coffee again, repeating this process until the coffee is of the desired strength. I pour mine over about three times. If the coffee is designed for the worker who carries his lunch it should be strained again through a piece of cheesecloth so that there should not be any particles of the berry in the beverage. Add cream and sugar to suit the taste.

Many housekeepers have been converted into the right way after being told this method. It does not take long to make the coffee this way and it is so much nicer than boiling it.

COOKING THE NEW VEGETABLES

Dear Corner Friends: A few weeks ago a sister expressed the idea that suggestions regarding recipes should anticipate the coming of the different fruits and vegetables. I think it is an excellent plan. I am going to respond this week with such recipes.

Stuffed New Cabbage en Casserole—Wash a head of cabbage, taking off any bruised outer leaves, then turn it upside down and begin hollowing it out from the stem end. It is scooped out as much as possible without falling to pieces, stuff with the following forcemeat: Have your butcher send you one pound of beef put through his meat grinder, and to this uncooked chopped beef add one medium-sized onion finely chopped, six slices of cooked bacon also finely chopped, 2 cups of bread crumbs which have been merely moistened with a little hot water, 1 raw egg, 1 teaspoon salt, and a dash of pepper; mix these ingredients well together and add a little chopped green pepper if desired. Now place the stuffed cabbage in the casserole and pour around it 1 quart of ripe stewed tomatoes (or canned tomatoes) and place on cover; let bake in a moderate oven until the cabbage is tender and the meat is done—about two hours. This is a fine supper dish. Serve with or without tomato sauce.

Haired Tomatoes and Rice en Casserole—Wash, soak and cook 1 cup of rice until tender, then put enough of it in the bottom of a medium sized casserole to make a thin layer; place over it a rather thick layer of ripe, halved tomatoes and sprinkle well with salt, pepper and chopped or grated cheese; add a second layer of the cooked rice, and another layer of the tomato seasonings and cheese—and continue alternating these layers until the dish is full. Sprinkle buttered bread crumbs on top and let bake, covered, for 30 minutes, then uncovered until the crumbs are brown. Serve very hot. This is another fine supper dish.

Stuffed Onions en Casserole—Remove skins from rather large onions and parboil the onions for ten minutes in boiling salted water to cover. Take them out, drain them well, then scoop out part of their centers; fill these cavities with uncooked diced tomato which has been mixed with an equal quantity of soft bread crumbs; sprinkle grated or chopped cheese on top and over that more bread crumbs which have been moistened with a little melted butter, place these stuffed onions in a roomy casserole, pour a little hot water around them together with a little melted butter, and, and let bake in a moderate oven, covered, until the onions are soft (about three hours) then remove cover and let brown well.

ANOTHER WORD FOR FATHER.

Dear Sisters of the Corner: I am heartily in sympathy with the sentiment expressed by Louise in last week's Corner page favorable to Fathers' day. Isn't it time to think of a whole day, a real day for dear old dad?

We all remember dad; so let's respect him and tell him so. His weary muscles, and tired frame produced the wherewithal, he paid the rent bill, bought the shoes, the hats, the food and other things. Mother was his distributing agent and confidante. He brought home the bacon not once, but every time. He had to, and knowing that he beat to the task and accomplished it.

Let us reverence him and if he is with us, tell him so. He doesn't show up in the news and he doesn't indulge in the sob stuff. He may have spoken out in meeting but we'll have to admit he usually had provocation. But never forget that behind that lined face he feels it just as keenly; and if he well and things are running smoothly, or if they are not he knows he must smile benignly, make the best of it, put the best foot forward and take on new hope. Let us not forget him or overlook him.

Let us all help him to know on his day how well he has done and how much we all appreciate his work and him, so that he will know he did not work or live in vain.

It has been some time since I have written to the Corner, and I am glad Louise wrote as she did that I might have a chance to second her motion.

May the Corner ever grow bigger and better.

THE LEFT-OVER BEANS

Dear Editor and Cornerites: When there are left over baked beans what do you do with them? Do you warm them up a couple of times and then serve them cold and then throw what is left away because you are tired of them?

There is no need of throwing any of them away for their are good ways of serving every last bean.

For one thing, mash them up, moisten with vinegar or catsup and spread between slices of bread and butter in sandwiches.

For another, boil with plenty of water a can of tomatoes and a couple of onions into a delicious soup.

For another [illegible]

cakes; Rust Coop up with a little water, rub them through a colander and season them with salt and pepper. Form the paste into cakes and fry until brown on both sides. Serve with tomater sauce, catsup or chili sauce.

Or try reheating them in this way: Heat up left-over beans either in a double boiler or in a casserole, with a little water. Season slightly as necessary. Broil two slices of bacon for each person. Have ready hot pieces of toast, well buttered and very hot. If you keep the toast hot in the oven, moisten a little, unless the beans are very moist. Now place the beans neatly on the toast, top with two slices of bacon for each slice and serve at once.

Add baked beans to any sort of vegetable soup stock. They give flavor and thickening, both. You can run them through the chopper before adding if you are not cooking the stock for a long time, for they should be soft and shapeless, really disintegrated, by the time the soup is ready to serve. In these days we must plan to save whether we are dealing with beans, chickens or dollars.

THE CHILD'S VIEWPOINT.

Dear Social Corner Friends: When reading the development of chemistry for the first time I was surprised to find that in the beginning they did not know that there were fixed principles in chemistry always giving the same results, and instead of studying to find out and make a record of the principles they spent much time in useless experiments, expecting to produce something of great value through chance or luck.

When first having the chance to study children of all grades, and from all kinds of homes, I was surprised to find that no one had made accessible the principles of child development and made it a standard in school work as well as in home training.

And I was surprised to find that the good mind and the most promising child were just as often found in a family one had not looked at with respect and the most unpromising child where one would expect the ability and fine character of the parents.

It was said of a brilliant society woman, "You would never believe it, but her daughter is the dumbest, ugliest and most uninteresting girl you ever saw."

The mother was so entirely absorbed in social affairs that she had left the child entirely to the care of helpers, who had given her just as little of their attention as possible, so she had not developed socially.

We should not expect to succeed with children or electric appliances or anything else unless we observe the principles which govern them and give them the right care. In the case of the child we have the two points to keep in mind; first, the natural or animal ways of the child, and, second, how much has he been taught? Everything of value has to be developed or taught to each child by someone.

The trouble with those having the care of children is that we are only interested in our own town and affairs, and so very few people have the patience to explain and explain and tell over and over in the simple way that a child needs.

So we threaten and punish or indulge the child. And if anyone tries to tell us a better way we say, "O that might work with some child but you cannot do anything with Benny that way."

Paula gave us the principle, "if one began that way at the very start." A child needs to use his own responsibility and choice from the first day. Before a child is a month old he has learned the ways of the household as far as his daily care is concerned and has already made a good start toward a good, pleasant disposition or a bad, ugly one.

Use the infant as you would a person, remembering he is an invalid, a foreigner and an animal.

An invalid needs change of position, to be made comfortable, to be amused, to be encouraged, and so does the infant.

You would expect to explain and to be patient and polite to the foreigner, but the child gets scolded or punished because he does not understand very well or think before he acts.

A person of any age will do some things from the natural or animal ways, be selfish, or wasteful or cruel or dishonest. We must understand and expect that. But a child is just as proud of doing right as any person of any age.

A young child thinks of objects as personalities. A child who had been troublesome about making pencil marks was cured of the habit when Auntie said "Poor little nice white paint don't like old black marks on him nice little white paint" though of course he had to be reminded.

The matter of teaching a child to take care of his clothing can be made very interesting. If possible I would get new and fancy hoods for each child. Then when the small child threw down coat or cap I would say each time, pleasantly, "that nice little coat does not like to be all wrinkled up like that, poor nice little coat." To an older child I would explain that it takes too much of father's money to keep buying new caps and coats, and you can help father by being careful to keep them nice. And when the child was in a hurry or very tired, I would not notice if he did throw them down once in a while.

These small things are really big efforts and cares to the young child, so we should be reasonable about it.

A child who is too fussy about his food can be interested to eat each kind if we make it a game of colors, green, yellow, red and white; count how many colors we can eat this time.

Little by little each day the child is able to do and understand a little more and as soon as he can talk we have to begin a more formal teaching than he has had before that, as now he has learned about all he can get by himself, and needs a good deal of attention until he can read well and begins school.

DAHLIA TOES FOR THE SISTERS.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I've just frosted a cake for the grange tonight, and while waiting for my youngest to come from school will write to help fill the page.

I agree with Kitty Lou in all she wrote in last Saturday's paper about the fireless cooker. I also have one and wouldn't part with it for anything. They are great gas savers these summer months.

Never boil anything by gas that requires over 30 minutes to cook. Of course, less than that it wouldn't pay to bother with the cooker.

I wonder if there are any of The Corner sisters who would like some dahlia toes? Have several bushels of them down cellar just "dying" to be taken care of. You see, I intend moving in a month or so and it would then be too late to plant them. It is just about the right time for them to be planted now.

Chelsea: You see, I found my pen at last. Pretty well rusted up, though, as I haven't written for so long.

Strawberry: Yes, I went right out to Maple street the next day. Both of them had almost given me up. Not a very good business woman, am I?

Now if any of you want the dahlia toes and can come here to the East Side after them, just ask the editor for my address and I will be only too glad to let you have them.

As ever,

WELL IMPRESSED WITH COMMUNITY MEETINGS.

Dear Editor and Sisters: I was very glad the Corner page was pretty well filled up last week. To keep it good and full I though I had better add my bit. As some of the sisters said, I can't seem to write as good a letter as some of the others do, but will try to do the best I can and that is all we can do.

Am very glad Historian thinks I am renewing my youth. I feel quite encouraged. I can now go singing about my work as happy as a lark. I am going to keep young as long as I can, to cheer up, sisters, one and all, and don't worry, for worry never amounts to anything.

I thought I was living on the highest land, or nearly so, in Windham county, but Historian don't seem to think so. I was told quite a few years ago that it was, but perhaps they were mistaken. Historian says he gets some of the gentle breezes where he lives. I think we can spare a little along about Christmas time and perhaps Free Air will help us a little if we get short.

I am going to make a special effort to attend the June meeting. Have not been able to meet any of the sisters yet. We have had two or three community meetings in our neighborhood which have been well attended. They prepare some very interesting programmes. I think they are a very good thing, especially in rural districts for they bind the people together with a friendly feeling toward each other. So let us all be thankful that we are living in the good old U. S. A.

Long live the Corner.

As ever,

RURAL AUNTY.

MAKING THE MOST OF THE MINUTES.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: I am sorry to be among the delinquent members of the Corner, but I hope I am not entirely forgotten. I enjoy the Corner page every Saturday and have received remembrances from Delilah Deal, Kitty Lou, Theoda and others and wish to thank them. It makes a cold and stormy day seem brighter when your mail brings you kindly greetings from absent friends. How we enjoyed Mothers' day when so many of our children and grandchildren gather around us to cheer us and make the day brighter with lovely flowers and songs. I pity those who have no loving children.

We are glad the wintry days are gone and we can go out in the sunshine and enjoy the singing birds. I used to envy the sisters last winter who wrote of feeding the birds, none came to us, although I put out some cracker crumbs and suet. I only saw two bluejays and one woodpecker, but we have many now of the sweet songsters. I often think of a song I used to sing when a girl. I enclose one stanza:

"Strange we never prize the music
'Till the sweet-voiced bird has flown.
Strange we slight the violet,
'Till the lovely flower is gone.
Strange that summer skies and sunshine
Never seem one-half so fair
As when winter's snowy pinions
Shake the white down in the air."

The chorus says "Scatter seeds of kindness."

Sisters, we must enjoy each day as it goes swiftly by. If we wait for some future time we may "get left." We have many blessings which if we counted them up each day would make a long list.

Two bright little boys call in to see us nearly every day on their way to school and tell us of their studies and games and show us the prizes they won in the humane society poster contest so we keep interested in the school and was chosen one of the judges in the speaking and spelling contest a few weeks ago.

I was glad to read the suggestion in the Corner of making an afghan in squares. I crocheted one several years ago in stripes which we like on the couch and in the auto and as I had yarn left I am now making one in squares. Hubby asked me how many it would take and I told him I thought 169 and he laughed as though he thought I never would finish it, but the world was not made in a minute you know, so I have hopes. I keep the work on the stand with the telephone and sometimes when I go to talk I have to wait an hour before I can use it, so it gives me time to make a square or two. I also keep my tatting in my apron pocket and do a little on that when waiting and you will be surprised how much you can accomplish by filling up every minute.

Glad Sister Rural Auntie enjoys the Corner page. Hope she can attend a meeting at the Buckingham soon and get acquainted with the other sisters and they will be glad to know her for she always carries a smiling face and is a very pleasant person to meet. I have known her many years. Hope I haven't taken too much room.

Kindest regards to all.

GRANDMA GRAY.

AN HERB GARDEN.

Dear Sisters: Nearly every flower garden has gunless spots in which it is difficult to grow blossoms. There is a hardy plant called Lilum superbum, among the taller shrubs, the blossoms of which are of brilliant scarlet, shaded with gold.

An old fashioned garden is very pretty, but if you are planning an herb garden, bear in mind that all herbs delight in a rich, mellow soil, [illegible]

the ground can be worked sufficiently. In most of them the dried foliage is used for flavoring. They should be cut on a dry day just before they come into full blossom, tied in bunches or laid out on paper to dry quickly. They may be hung in a convenient place. I rub mine fine and put them in glass containers.

Judicious use should be made of wiping fine seeds with fine, dry dirt before sowing and sow sparingly. The plants will need very little thinning and will flourish better.

KITTY LOU.

SEASONABLE RECIPES.

Dear Corner Friends: I want to send my recipe for strawberry shortcake, so many are making them now. Here is a recipe my grandmother used and they always used to tell about her famous shortcakes. Measure and cream together five tablespoons of shortening and one tablespoon of sugar. Then add two cups of flour, one teaspoon of salt, one teaspoon of soda and two of cream tartar. Add this to the sugar and shortening creamed together, work the flour into the shortening until the mixture resembles a coarse meal. Then stir in three-quarters cup of part milk and water (I always mix with my spatula as it seems to soften quicker than with a spoon). Put the dough on a floured board and cut in two parts. Bake them in round layer cake tins for at least 10 minutes; when baked, remove from the oven, place the lower cake on plate and butter. Then cover with strawberries. Place another layer on the top of this and serve.

Strawberry Filling: One quart of strawberries. Wash and hull and sugar the strawberries to taste. I cut the berries until they are quite small and with the sugar dissolved it gives plenty of juice. I let this mixture stand about two hours in the refrigerator before I make the cake. I place part of the filling on one of the layers. Then cover with the other layer. Place more filling on the top layer. Cover with cream which has been whipped, or beat up the white of an egg to a stiff froth and add one tablespoon of sugar. Pour the sauce around the bottom of the shortcake as it does not soak into the cake so freely. Place frosting on top of the cake with a few pieces of berries mashed in some of the egg white and laid in little mounds on the top of the frosting. It is very nice.

In the Come Again Cakes in last Saturday's Social Corner I make the mistake of repeating one-half cup of shortening. That is all the shortening there is, and one-half cup of hot water or coffee.

Cheese Carrots: Chili pimento cheese will. Then divide the cheese into portions and shape each portion to resemble small carrots. Stick a sprig of parsley or carrot green in the large end of the coarrrts and they are ready to serve.

Did you ever eat Matzoths, which is the unleavened bread of the Jews? These are fine to serve with cheese carrots. Place them in the oven and heat them, after buttering well, until they are crisp. You want to serve them at once.

Broiled Mackerel: Take one to two and one-half pound mackerel. Split and broil over a hot fire until brown; turn frequently. Broil about 20 minutes. Season with salt, pepper and butter.

ETHELYN.

GINGERBREAD AND JOHNNYCAKE

Dear Social Corner Editor: I feel duty bound to write you because I enjoy our Social Corner page so much every Saturday. I do not have much time to write as my time is limited.

Here are two recipes that I have tried and I know they are very good. I'm sure that if anyone tries them she will use no other.

Sure Gingerbread: Take half a cup of sugar, half a cup of molasses, quarter of a cup of butter, half a cup of sour milk, one teaspoon of soda in milk, one and a half cups of flour, a pinch of salt, a teaspoon of cinnamon, half a teaspoon of ginger, half a tea spoon of cloves and one egg, and bake in a moderately hot oven.

Johnnycake: Some like it hot and some like it cold. Take a cup of cornmeal, a cup of flour, a teaspoon of soda and two of cream of tartar, dissolved in a cup of sweet milk and a tablespoon of butter. Then add salt and two tablespoons of sugar or molasses for sweetening, as desired. I always use an egg as well, but it is not necessary.

Isn't it about time we heard from Stitches?

NUBONNETT.

GRATEFUL FOR THE SHOWER.

To the dear Social Corner: I want to thank the members for the shower of cards, letters and gifts received on my 82d birthday. I had planned for a quiet day, but the morning mail brought so many remembrances my heart overflowed with love and gratitude to God and all mankind.

Would that I could clasp each one by hand in true love.

It was a day of full enjoyment with a thankful heart to the giver of all good and perfect gifts.

Rural Delivery: Thrice welcome back to New England. Its hills and valleys are productive of much good, and scenery that is pleasant to view. I manage to keep eyes and hands busy on rugs of various kinds. I do enjoy the letters and knew your pleasant gatherings bring much content and enjoyment in the home life of its members, and long may it continued.

AGED MAN OBTAINS RENEWED VIGOR

WINCARNIS Quickly Restored Failing Strength

"I take pleasure in testifying as to my experience with Wincarnis, from a positive feeling of gratitude to the compounders of it. Am a man over 70 and for some time past had found myself failing faster, and in ways other than my age alone would seem to account for. Had tried various medicines which seemed to benefit me for a time, but inevitably caused a relapse. Happened to see an advertisement of Wincarnis, and thought I'd try once more. With the first dose I realised that I had found something which "reached the spot" at once.

Have now been using it over a month with very marked benefit in increased strength, better appetite, sound sleep, and greater ability for my work, which taxes my endurance at my age severely.

COULD HARDLY DO HER WORK

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Made Her Eat, Sleep and Feel Better Every Way

Chicago, Ill.—"I was weak and rundown and in such a nervous condition that I could hardly do my work. I was tired all the time, and dizzy, and could not sleep and had no appetite. I tried different medicines for years, but they did not help me. Then I read in the papers about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it had done for other women and gave it a trial. I began to eat better and could sleep, and consider it a wonderful medicine. I recommend it to my friends and will never be without it."—Mrs. M. OHLEN, 3640 S. Marshfield Ave., Chicago, Ill.

It is such letters as these that testify to the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. This woman speaks from the fullness of her heart. She describes as correctly as she can her condition, first the symptoms that bothered her the most and later the disappearance of those symptoms. It is a sincere expression of gratitude.

For nearly fifty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been so praised by women.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Fifty years ago this week the city voted by a large majority in favor of an amendment to the state constitution that will make Hartford a state capital. Norwich committed for the amendment the opposition coming from senators of the Fifteen end of the state. Other news of interest for the week is in part as follows:

Monday, May 19, 1873.—The bridge at Greeneville has been judged unsafe to travel by Mr. Smith of the construction firm of Briggs & Co. of Springfield who is engaged in working at the building of the Chelsea company in Greeneville. He said that the bridge was constructed of too light iron for the weight upon it and was liable to fall under its own weight.

This is the third bridge that has spanned the river in a quarter of a century. The first yielded to the wind, the second to fire, and the third, the present iron structure was built eleven years ago at an expense of about 1,000 as a permanent bridge.

Deaf mutes enjoyed a service at Christ church last evening when Rev. [illegible] of New York preached to them. As the words were spoken [illegible] interpreted in sign language the deaf mutes who enjoyed [illegible].

The coming of warmer weather a number of boat parties on the river each evening is increasing rapidly. Last evening the several [illegible] were filled with people who enjoyed the music that floated up [illegible] the boats.

The Stonington bank building has been sold at auction for $580 to Wil[illegible] Palmer.

The ball games between the local nine and the Hartford clubs is well under way. These games are being played the moves being made by letter received from the players in the [illegible] cities.

Tuesday, May 20, 1873.—A proposition was made last night in the common council to change the name of Broadway, as it was meaningless and inappropriate. It has been suggested that as the two parallel avenues are named after Washington and Franklin, this one with propriety be called after Hamilton. As it stands, the position to change the name of Broadway to Hamilton street.

Citizens who did not know the facts have been stating that the city cannot afford to decorate the hose carriages for the firemen's parade next Saturday. The fact is that these decorations will not cost the city one cent, the money coming from the treasury of the organizations.

Owing to the difficulty of ringing the fire alarm on the court house bell the common council is planning some [illegible] apparatus connecting the fire headquarters with the bell in the tower. Owing to the cost of installation, about $1600, the proposition was deferred.

Wednesday, May 21, 1873.—The city water has become so filled with foreign matter that the water has become unfit for drink or for use in cooking. For some time past this has been noticed but as it steadily became worse the city was appealed to and have made arrangements to purify the water. It is hoped that the work will speedily be done as many families depend entirely on city water and as present cannot use it except for washing.

A cargo of emigrants arrived by rail at New York yesterday and are to come to Norwich for work in the Greeneville mills. More are expected within a few days.

One local resident recently received a card through the mail that read as follows: 'Plase pay that bill for washin yo hav cDo me 6 mnutes past or I hav the perlice furshase yo.'

Hacks and carriages stopping in front of the Waurgan corner have become a nuisance and there is a movement on foot to have the common council prohibit their stopping on the corner for any length of time.

Thursday, May 22, 1873.—For the first time in history Main street near the Bulletin office is receiving attention, a macadamized road being laid. Other good work is going on and East Main street between the Methodist church and the old toll bridge is being macadamized and is a decided improvement.

The city authorities or someone else are building a subterraneous brick structure on the corner of Main and Union streets which looks like a third rate tomb for the burial place of a misspent life, and may be a vegetable cellar.

The City of Boston came up the river yesterday for the first time in eleven years. She is taking the place of the City of Norwich laid up for repairs. The telegram says she made such a swell in passing the navy yard that a two and one half inch chain on the Neveda was parted and the monitor Dictator bobbed around so much it was feared the wharf was in danger of being pulled to pieces.

Friday, May 23, 1873.—Edwin Fay has on exhibition at his store a couple of very fine engravings, with which he has recently been presented. Otels the battle of Bunker Hill, and the other of the death of Gen. Montgomery before Quebec. Both are by A. C. DePoggi, London 1798, from paintings by John Trumbull.

An important amendment to the constitution of the state was made yesterday by the senate which by a vote of 16 to 5 passed the amendment that would make Hartford the sole capitol of the state of Connecticut. Tuesday at 7 p. m. before Justice Raymond E. Clarke and a jury of six men at the town hall, to recover a total amount of items aggregating $82.50, claimed by Abraham Katzman to be due him in the transactions relating to the purchase of a farm sold to him by Louis Rosinski. Katzman was represented by Attorney Harry S. Gaucher of Willimantic, and Rosinski by Thomas J. Kelley, also of Willimantic.

Katzman claimed that the balance of a mortgage was due Jake Rookowitz on the property, was only $200 as shown by documents presented in the court, instead of $220, as paid by him, and that $20 was due him. Also unpaid taxes of $42.50 due at the time of the purchase, which he also paid.

Berkowitz stated that $220 was the amount stated in the document when the paper was recorded, but Rosinski insisted that it should have been but $200. Judge Foss of Willimantic as a witness corroborated the statements of Berkowitz, stating that he was the attorney for all of the parties, and that he had made out the papers, but that as a result of other claims, the amount of the mortgage was agreed upon at $220 by the parties.

Other witnesses were Myron Bitten also Mrs. Rosinski, for whom it was claimed that an interpreter was necessary.

The testimony was very conflicting and as there were frequent wrangles between counsel, appeals were made to the court for rulings, there were also disputes over the correctness of the work of the interpreter and the necessity for his services. Objections were also made to the methods used for cross-examination of the witnesses.

At 11.30 p. m. the trial was not finished and was continued until Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock at which time Hubert P. Collins, town clerk, produced in court the records of the deeds and mortgages desired by counsel to substantiate their contentions.

The verdict of the jury was that the $20 overpaid by Katzman to Berkowitz was to be levied against the defendant, Louis Rosinski, and that verdict and judgment is in favor of the plaintiff, Katzman, for the amount of the taxes that he paid, $42.82, and that Mrs. Rosinski is released from any liability in the transactions.

The total amount charged Rosinski, including overpayment on mortgage payment of taxes, and costs of court was $102.

GREAT·GREAT·GRANDMOTHER'S KITCHEN·

A ROMANCE OF COLONIAL DAYS

When that sturdy band of Pilgrims set out for the new land, they had courage in their hearts and in their minds a determination to overcome all obstacles.

Soon after landing at Plymouth, rude huts were built, and in each hut was a fireplace.

These hearths were the centers of the colony. Before the hearth John Alden sat with Priscilla Mullens and heard her shy hint that has come down to us in poetry. Before the hearths the children learned their letters and their psalms. In the flames, the colonists saw fantastic pictures and in the firelight glow they dreamed dreams of the new world.

But the fireplace had another and more practical use. It was the primitive range of these sturdy adventurers. There were no stoves; there was no coal along the bleak New England coast.

The colonists built fireplaces of generous proportions. So large were they that they could accommodate a huge back log, which had to be dragged in from the forest by a horse. This back log rested at the back of the fireplace in the ashes. A pair of andirons supported the smaller piece of wood.

In the wall beside the fireplace, there was a small brick or stone compartment. It was a crude make-shift for an oven, but the colonial housewife was accustomed to kindle an extra wood fire on baking days, and when the oven was thoroughly heated turned out surprisingly good foods, considering her primitive equipment.

Strong iron cranes suspended pots and kettles over the fire in the fireplace, when she wanted to boil food; a gridiron placed over the flames was her roaster, and an ingenious tin kitchen set before the fire was used to bake her pies.

These housewives of early America! What inconveniences they suffered. Think of the labor that was involved in the process of baking—the bulky fire logs to handle and keep burning, the awkward oven in the side wall, whose temperature must have been extremely variable, the heavy pots and kettles that swung over the smoky fire.

Then think of her daughter of today, with a spotless kitchen, free from smoke and soot—with a Scientific Sterling Range that boils, roasts, bakes and broils with absolute accuracy, with the utmost economy and surprising ease.

Baking day must have been a bugaboo to the woman of the colonies. Today it is something quite different. The Sterling combination gas and coal range does most of the work. There is no need to worry about the fuel, for it is built like the Sterling coal range which has proved that it can bake a barrel of flour with a single hod of coal.

With gas or coal it maintains an even temperature, because it has been built scientifically and there are no "cool spots." It is compact, satisfying to look at, always dependable, and has the patented gas or coal water heater.

Why don't you speak for yourself and have a truly modern kitchen. Call upon the Sterling Dealer today and say—I want to save fuel, steps, food and time, so I want you to send a Scientific Sterling up to my house and have it connected ready for me to use tomorrow. Please tell me about your convenient terms of payment because I expect the range to practically pay for itself by the savings it effects. Priscilla Mullens said, "Why don't you speak for yourself, John." We suggest that today you speak for yourself.

Light, tender griddle cakes are just the thing with which to start the day right. Here is a recipe that is easily followed and will give you excellent results.

John Alden Flour has long been the choice of the famous cooks of New England. They know that by using a flour of which they are sure, like Priscilla they can "consecrate with hymns the common cares of the household."

You will find that all your cooking and baking will be easier, more delicious and more economical if you insist upon John Alden Flour.

Griddle Cakes

Drop the batter by spoonfuls on the griddle—or a heavy frying pan may be used. Have the griddle only slightly greased, as too much fat toughens the cake. Turn when the upper side is filled with bubbles. Turn a griddle cake only once. Have serving plate hot, as a cold plate will make a soggy griddle cake.

1 cup John Alden Flour,
¼ teaspoon salt,
2 teaspoons baking powder,
1 cup milk
1 egg,
1 teaspoon melted fat.

All measurements are level.

Sift the John Alden Flour once before measuring.

Sift together flour, salt, and baking powder. Add milk and melted shortening to well beaten egg. Mix thoroughly with dry ingredients and bake on a slightly greased hot iron griddle, or an ungreased aluminum griddle.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

Day's total sales, 1,687,900 shares. 20 industrials averaged 96.65, net gain .62, high 1923, 105.85; low 92.77. 20 railroads averaged 82.85, net loss .85, high 1923, 90.63, low 80.13.

MARKET WAS STRONG

New York, May 25—Prices continued their rise to higher ground in today's active stock market despite some intermittent selling of the steel shares. While the advance was not as [illegible] numerous [illegible] the list.

Speculators for the advance were encouraged by the address of Elbert H. Gary before the American Iron & Steel Institute which set forth that there was nothing in sight to indicate a material slackening in the demand for steel for at least six months and criticized the apparently "deliberate and persistent attempt to create an impression that there will be in the near future a substantial recession in business activities"

Oil shares were again the outstanding group with California Petroleum the individual feature. This stock moved up to 112 1-2, slipped back to 109 1-4 on profit taking and then shot up against to 114 3-4, closing at a net gain of nearly 3 1-2 points. Gains of a point or more also were recorded by Standard Oil of California, Coaden, Houston, Phillips Petroleum, Simms and Pan-American.

Quarterly reports of three of the Porphyry Copper Companies, Nevada, Utah and Ray—all showed improvement over the last quarter of 1922 in the first quarter this year. Ray showed the largest percentage of gain, reporting earnings of 30 cents a share for the first quarter this year as against 13 cents the preceding quarter. Utah reported $1.37 as against $1.07 and Nevada 27 cents as against 20. Most of the copper shares showed small fractional gains on the day.

Some of the sugar shares became quite active on reports of higher commodity prices. Cuban-American jumped 2 1-2 points and American, Cuba cane preferred and Manati, 1 to 2 points. American Beet advanced 4 points on a small turnover.

Considerable irregularity developed in the rail shares with a number of active issues showing net losses at the close.

Call money held at 4 1-2 per cent. throughout the day. The demand and supply of time money is not large with maturities up to four months arranged at 5 per cent. and bankers asking 5 1-4 for the longer dates. Commercial Paper was moderately active, the bulk of the prime names commanding 5 per cent.

Slight weakness of French Exchange, which dropped to 8.60 cents in reflection of the cabinet crisis and then rallied a point, was the feature of the dull trading in foreign exchanges. Demand sterling held fairly steady around $4.62 1-2 and German marks around .0018 1-2 cents.

BOND MARKET

New York, May 25—Strength of railroad mortgages featured the trading in bonds today, but moderate gains were registered also throughout the list, with the exception of U. S. government securities which closed slightly lower than yesterday's final figures.

Recent strength and activity of the United States government issues has called forth many comments that Great Britain is in the market. Bankers estimate that England could save in the neighborhood of $2,000,000 by paying its next interest installment on the debt to America in the libertys, which are acceptable at par. Most of these bonds moved upward during the forenoon today, but eased off in the later trading. Losses on the day, however, were limited to 3-32 of a point.

Gains of more than two points each were recorded by Wabash first 5s and Hudson & Manhattan income 5s and a score of others in this group made fractional advances. Kansas City terminal 4s, which have been strong for the past few days, eased a point. Most of the activity in the industrial division centered around the utilities and the sugar company liens. Punta Alegre 7s gained a point and Detroit Edison refunding 6s, were up 1 1-2. Morris & Co. 4 1-2s advanced a point.

Total sales (par value) were $11,776,000.

There were reports in the financial district of the early offering of $10,000,000 associated Simmons hardware 10-year 6 1-2 per cent. bonds at about 98.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, May 25—Owing chiefly to lac kof selling pressure, wheat averaged somewhat higher in price today, but slowness of export business had a bearish influence during the last part of the exchange session. Closing quotations were unsettled at a range varying from 3-8 cent decline to 1-8 cent advance, with July 117 to 117 1-8 and September 115 1-4 to 115 3-8. Corn finished a shade to 5-8 cent off, oats 3-8 cent lower to 1-8 cent gain, and provisions 5 cents to 10 cents down.

Influenced by light offerings here and advances in price at Liverpool, the wheat market tended upward until the last half hour. Unfavorable reports concerning the domestic winter crop, especially in Ohio and Indiana, had an additional bullish effect, and advices indicated that stocks of wheat in Great Britain are meager and a further rise in prices there looked for. Hopes of an improvement in export demand, however, waned in the absence of any word of new sales to Europe.

Reports than trans-Atlantic crops are in better condition than last year counted as a bearish factor toward the close. Besides, crop advices from the American spring wheat belt were generally favorable. Under such circumstances, active buying power dwindled, and the early gains were almost all wiped out, but even slight declines below yesterday's finish were a signal for some revival of support and for consequent rallies.

Increased offerings of corn in Iowa led to weakness in the corn market here. Enlarged receipts at St. Louis, Kansas City and Omaha also were noted. On the other hand, export demand for corn was better. Oats followed corn.

Provisions were easier in line with hog values.

THE NEW WORLD BEGUN
"millions now living will never die"
—Judge Rutherford

LIFE, perfect, limitless; with a regenerated race; on a restored earth; with a corrected climate and life-perpetuating food; under a Government which will satisfy the righteous desires of every living creature. And it's HERE, at the door! The portals of the new age are swinging open and many will enter and never die.

The old order is passing away, the new order is here. Christ Jesus is taking unto Himself His great power and beginning His reign. The Kingdom of Heaven is at hand.

You can by no means afford to let business or pleasure or any person deprive you of the solace and benefits enjoyed by those who have investigated this timely and heart-cheering message. The sole object of this lecture is to bring to the people a knowledge of the dispensational truth now due to be understood.

HAS CARTRIDGE FRAGMENT EMBEDDED IN KNEE

Alex Leisnewski, Jr., 6 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Leisnewski of 528 North Main street, is now playing around the streets with a fragment of a cartridge embedded deep in the bone of his right knee. The injury was suffered Thursday night when the boy pounded a cartridge he had found on a rock, causing it to explode. He was taken to the Backus hospital where an X-ray was taken of the wound and the physicians found that fragment of the bullet was embedded deep in the bone at the knee and as it was so deeply embedded nothing of serious nature could come of it and it was decided to leave it there.

$75,000 BREACH OF PROMISE SUIT AGAINST NORWICH MERCHANT

Suit for $75,000 damages on a claim for breach of promise of marriage has been brought by Mrs. Tillie Bendett, a widow against Charles Sloaberg, the wealthy grain dealer of this city.

In the writ and complaint which were filed Friday at the office of the clerk of the superior court in this city through a New Haven attorney who is counsel for the plaintiff, Mrs. Bendett alleges that on or about March 15, 1923, at the request of Mr. Sloaberg, she promised to marry him on May 3, 1923 and he also made a similar promise for that date, but failed to keep it and has continued to refuse to marry her.

She claims that she gave up her millinery business and was put to considerable expense in preparation for the wedding and that because of the alleged breach of promise by Mr. Sloaberg she has suffered much humiliation, mental distress and anxiety of mind and her nervous system has become seriously impaired.

Accounts in two banks, a grain company and a coal company in which Mr. Sloaberg is interested have been garnisheed and attachments have been filed against two parcels of real estate on the Norwich and New London turnpike road.

The plaintiff is the widow of David Bendett, who was found fatally injured on the night of Nov. 16, 1921 near his automobile at the Jerome place on the Norwich-New London turnpike. Bendett died four days later at the Backus hospital with a broken back and broken collar bone.

On the night of the accident Bendett was found on his back a few feet from the machine which was standing upright with one side against a tree, the other side against a pole, standing at right angles to the road, the wheels off and the car resting on the ground. It was believed by the automobile driver who came upon the wreck that the Bendett car had skidded on the rainy and slippery road.

Refreshments consisting of ice cream, cookies and punch were served.

URGES SPECIAL CARE BY DRIVERS OVER WEEK END

The department of motor vehicles is issuing a warning to all Connecticut motorists to use especial care in driving automobiles over the week end. Every additional car on the road on a pleasant day adds one additional hazard, and, with traffic as congested as it is on some highways and streets during the pleasant months of the year, the situation is such that only the most careful driving will prevent astounding amounts of property damage and personal injury.

Last Saturday and Sunday were responsible for two deaths and 115 other major accidents. These mishaps are divided as follows:

	Saturday	Sunday
Accidents in which pedestrians were hit	9	12
Vehicle accidents on city streets	17	16
Vehicle accidents on highways	22	39
Total	48	67

As a solution of the week end accident problem, the department of motor vehicles states that the majority of automobile accidents, excepting those in which pedestrians are hit, are due to the violation of some phase of the state motor vehicle law. A strict compliance with all the rules of the road and state driving requirements will greatly decrease serious accidents. Such care is being urged by the department of motor vehicles.

EUROPEAN STUDY CLASS HEARS ITALY DESCRIBED

The European Study Class met on Friday evening at the Church of the Church of the Good Shepherd and Rev. J. Wheeler spoke of the Wonderful Three-fold Appeal of Italy.

He said in part: Italy has long been the objective of the tourist because it has the varied appeal of landscape scenery in a favoring climate; the picturesqueness of Naples with Mt. Vesuvius and the blue grotto of Capri; the attraction of inland centers nestled in the Apennines like Florence and Orineio; the delights of Venice with its canals and gondolas and of Como with the rugged beauty of its setting among the Alps, all afford a wide range of appeal for the traveler.

Italy also appeals because of her history. This does not mean that she has large natural resources for she has not. She has no supply of coal and iron—the great requisites of modern society. Yet Italy is today closely associated with the great powers of the world in public policies although united Italy is but little more than 50 years old. In ancient times her location was strategic, between the east and the west Mediterranean; she received the Greeks from the east and the Carthaginians from the south and the Goths from the north. Imperial Rome ruled all the great Mediterranean basin for centuries, with a population surpassing 100,000,000. Later ecclesiastical Rome dominated the medieval world and shared in the exploration of the distant frontiers.

The history of Florence, with the story of the despotism of the de Medici family and the vigilant protest and later experiment of Savonarola is of absorbing interest and there must ever be a halo about the place which was the home of Dante and Angelo. Wealthy Venice with commercial connections with the Orient and the early home of banking, must ever have an appeal almost fascinating.

Aland which has witnessed so much of the tragedy, the experiment, the hope and the ideals of history must ever command the interest of thoughtful people.

Italy also appeals to us because of her accomplishments in art. The Sistine Chapel in Rome and the De Medici Chapel of San Lorenzo in Florence, despite the outward changes of the centuries, appeal with unfailing power to the lovers of art and the beautiful. A land where world power has centered during momentous epochs and a people who have shown sustained interest in the renaissance of literature and the fine arts must continue to be a vital factor in considering the great problems of succeeding generations.

GERMANY PREPARING NEW REPARATIONS PROPOSALS

They Are Expected to be Announced Within the Next Few Days—Federation of German Industrialists Are to Give Requisite Guarantees for International Loans for Reparations Purposes—The New Program Will Propose a System of Annuities to Safeguard the Funds Needed for the Flotation of a Loan Either by Germany Direct or by the Chief Creditor Powers.

Berlin, May 27—(By the A. P.)—Chancellor Cuno's deliberations with the Reichstag leaders and representatives of finance and industry are gradually assuming concrete form and in all probability, will have sufficiently crystallized to enable the government informally to indicate the character of its forthcoming reparations proposals in the course of the next few days.

Much consolation was had from the offer of the Federation of German industrialists to give the requisite guarantees for international loans for reparations purposes, it being looked upon as showing the willingness of Germany's business interests to stand back of the government.

The deliberations are expected to take up the greater part of the week, as the program drafted by the industrialists and their allied financial interests provides for far flung hypothecation of all productive properties and other economic assets, and also contains a demand that the federal railway system be turned over to a private operating company which would guarantee the government a specific return in gold earnings.

It is considered not improbable that the industrialists will also demand that other public utilities, such as posts, telegraphs and waterways, be subjected to thorough reorganization with a view to making them sources of revenue instead of debit fixtures on the nation's balance sheets.

The plan conceived by the industrialists provides for specific guarantees for which the leading industrial holdings throughout Germany would be pledged in return for the government's consent to place the federal railways in the hands of a private operating board although title still would remain with the government. This is only one of several features of the industrialists' program which are expected to meet sturdy opposition by the socialists.

For the principal source of revenue the program suggests a gold mortgage on all unencumbered real estate, and estimates indicate that this would net 500,000,000 gold marks annually for the first ten years, with the possibility that the sum eventually amount to 1,000,000,000 gold marks.

In view of the fact that realty mortgages throughout Germany have been paid off with paper marks, financial experts assume that a gold mortgage levy on land extending over a long number of years would constitute the basis of Germany's reparations assessments.

The program of the industrialists reminds the government of the imperative need of reorganizing all the branches of public services, unchanging productivity in all lines through added efforts on the part of labor.

While numerous technical details in connection with the mortgaging process and the proposed levies on capital and production remain to be worked out, it is believed that Germany will be able to indicate an offer comprising thirty definitely prescribed annuities in view of a capital fixation.

Already the socialists are scenting a general attack on the eight-hour day, an issue which will also become acute as regards other coercive measures which the government proposes to adopt in connection with its plan for extracting gold revenues for reparations.

As it is understood to be constituted the new reparations program will propose a system of annuities of sufficient proportions to safeguard the interest and amortization funds needed for the flotation of a reparations loan either by Germany direct or by the chief creditor powers.

Although capital levies and the pledging process provided for in the government's program will largely hit the industrial, financial, commercial, shipping, agricultural and landed interests and constitute the crux of the new reparations program, Germany's treaty obligations also will compel her to assess each federated state for a commensurate share in the reparations payments, although the manner in which this is to be done has not yet been determined. In the case of Prussia, it will assume the shape of levies on state timber and mining lands.

FRENCH HAVE SEIZED NINETY BILLION MARKS

Essen, May 27.—The French authorities have seized ninety billion marks from the Reichsbank here. They took this action because they needed money to pay certain bills, and the Germans refused to furnish it, declaring there was not so much money on hand.

SERIOUS COMMUNIST DISORDERS AT BOCHUM

Bochum, Germany, May 27.—Serious communist disorders were resumed here last evening. A merchant was kidnapped, but was rescued by firemen after a fight in which several casualties occurred. In the morning a patrol of firemen was attacked from ambush, one being killed, and several others seriously injured.

The city was quiet later, but disturbances continued in the outskirts, while there was rioting at the mine-pits near Wanne and fighting at Wetten, where two persons were killed and thirteen wounded.

The total casualties since yesterday morning are four dead and thirty wounded.

SEVEN PERSONS KILLED IN CLASHES IN WERDEN

Werden, Germany, May 27.—(By the A. P.)—Seven persons have been killed and 93 wounded since Saturday night in clashes between civilians and volunteer police on the one side, and communists on the other at Bochum, which seems to be the storm-center of the disturbances in the Ruhr.

Firemen and police are marooned in fire headquarters armed only with revolvers, while the communists possess rifles and are otherwise well organized. Private advices by telephone indicate that the rioting continues with extreme violence.

Belgian occupation troops at Buer have repulsed communists who were attempting to organize a revolt there.

KLAN WILL NOT REVEAL NAMES OF ITS MEMBERS

Eastport, N. Y., May 27.—The Ku Klux Klan will never reveal the names of its members, the king kleagle of the order for the state declared to 3,000 klansmen at an initiation of 1,287 "aliens" near here early today. His remarks were directed at the Walker bill, signed last week by Governor Smith, requiring all secret orders to fil with the secretary of state the names of members.

Under the glare of a red electrically lighted cross and surrounded by a great thong of fully robed klansmen, the king kleagle, unmasked and without robe, attacked the law as unconstitutional, declaring it was "aimed at one organization."

"The klan pledges itself never to reveal the names of its members," he said. "We will fight to the last breast-work to prevent public disclosures of the identity of our membership."

The king kleagle described himself as "Major Johnson, U. S. A., retired."

Similar meetings, speakers said, were in progress at the same hour in Syracuse, Schenectady, Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Port Jervis, Rochester, Middletown, Binghamton, Elmira, Hornell and Centerport.

STATUS OF BROCKTON STRIKE MAY BE REVEALED TODAY

Brockton, Mass., May 27.—The opening hour at the Brockton Shoe Factories will reveal tomorrow the strength or weakness of the strike that last week involved more than 8,000 workers, manufacturers and strike leaders agreed today. Officials of the Brockton Shoe Manufacturers' Association said that the majority of the strikers would report for work tomorrow. Leaders of the striking organizations said their people would be found standing firm.

Estimates made public today of the loss caused by the struggle of seceding local unions to break the strength of the boot and shoe workers union placed the total in the hundreds of thousands of dollars. According to officials of banks handling the payrolls in the shoe industry, the strikers and those thrown out of employment by the strike have lost almost $500,000 in wages since the controversy began May 14. The aggregate payroll of the Brockton Shoe Factories is placed at about $500,000 a week. Curtailment in shoe production in the same period was estimated at about 10,000 cases.

The first strike vote was taken May 14 by the dressers and packers local and its purpose was declared to be to enforce demands for a 21 per cent. wage increase and abrogation of an agreement between the boot and shoe workers' union and the manufacturers whereby wage and other disputes are referred to the state board of conciliation and arbitration. As the movement spread to other locals it became evident that the underlying purpose was to break the power of the boot and shoe workers' union as the central body governing activities in the industry. The large factories, members of the shoe manufacturers' association have contracts with the boot and shoe workers' union under which they may employ none but members in good standing of the boot and shoe workers' union.

The strike reached its highest point last Thursday when 2300 workers paraded and 5000 attended an outdoor mass meeting. After that mill owners claimed the movement was towards the factories instead of away from them. Two companies—the Diamond Shoe Company and the M. A. Packard Company—posted notices at their plants calling on all employes to return to work tomorrow morning when the factories would begin full time production.

Efforts by the secessionists to call out workers in all shoe centers in the old colony district, led to a number joining their ranks in Bridgewater, Whitman and Holbrook the first three days of last week. After Wednesday there were no further accessions.

Some difficulties, he added, were liable to arise, but he was convinced they could be settled by the exercise of good will.

Marine Dry Ruling Is Embarrassing

Treasury Department to Construe the Court Decision as Liberally as May Legally and Safely Done.

Washington, May 27.—Efforts will be inaugurated tomorrow by treasury officials to reconcile the proposed prohibition regulations with the position taken by the five foreign powers which have expressed their views to the state department in connection with the recent supreme court decision barring liquor from American territorial waters.

Every evidence was given today of a desire on the part of this government to temper the rigidity of the dry laws, new construction in the interest of the comity of nations and that there may be no unwarranted interference with international intercourse. Treasury spokesmen declared they were willing to construe the court decision as liberally as may be legally and safely done in meeting the stand of England, Spain, Italy, France and the Netherlands.

It was stated clearly that there is no intention to rush a decision through concerning this government's policy. There will be informal discussions between officials of the state and treasury departments and the diplomatic representatives here of the powers which have taken exception to the court's decision insofar as it applies to foreign ships. These conversations may lead to some sort of an international understanding resulting from the weight of international law on the points at issue.

The new regulations are to become operative June 10, but slight hope is entertained that a definite and permanent policy may be worked out then.

Secretary Mellon had talked over the questions concerning the international phase of the problem with President Harding before representations were made by the foreign governments. Mr. Harding therefore, is thoroughly acquainted with the situation.

At today's big open air meeting Mr. Cosgrave devoted his speech to justification of the government policy, reiterating that there could be no modification on account of Eamon De Valera's recent negotiations.

"We want peace, and we want it quickly," he said, "but also we want it secure."

LABOR LEADERS SHOWING MORE CONCILIATORY SPIRIT

They Are Becoming Alarmed Lest the Situation Get Out of Hand—Leaders in the Building Trades Don't Want Their Demands to Reach Extent That Activities Will be Curtailed—Weekly Review of Business and Finance Warrants Belief That Prosperity is Strongly Entrenched.

New York, May May 27.—(By the A. P.)—A change in sentiment rather than in underlying conditions marked the past week in the country's leading financial markets. While more favorable sentiment with regard to the general business outlook doubtless has been indiced, to a certain extent at least by the pronounced recovery in the stock market, there is evidence also that a more sober examination of the facts has had its effect.

Advices from the steel trade have been reassuring, commodity markets have firmed up, renewed interest in metals has been reported and railroad freight traffic has further expanded. Mercantile trade agencies, furthermore, while still clinging to caution in their reports are more prone to attribute such slackening as has appeared in trade to natural seasonal influences.

Business is coming around to recognize what has been patent for some time, namely, that the pace has been a bit too rapid to be maintained without interruption. Buying is now more for current needs rather than for the future. But the belief is growing that with the summer digestive period over, demand will become more insistent. What the fall will bring remains to be seen and much depends on how the labor situation shapes itself.

Even the latter is not without its ray of hope. While strikes and threats of strikes undoubtedly are becoming more frequent and the week has brought further wage increases, notably on a large railroad system, it is known that labor leaders, particularly in the building trades, are showing a more conciliatory spirit. It is believed that they are becoming alarmed lest the situation get out of hand, as it did in 1919, and that too much prosperity may kill off all prosperity. They don't want their men to increase their demand to the extent that activities will be curtailed or cease entirely. It would appear that announcement of abandonment of building plans is having a salutary effect on those guilding labor's destinies.

That goods still are going into consumption in large volume is shown by the weekly car loading statistics. The latest figures available, those for the week which ended May 13, show a total of 974,531 cars loaded with revenue freight. This not only establishes a high record for all time for this season of the year, but comes within 4 per cent. of the peak traffic recorded in the first week of last November. Meanwhile earnings statements covering operations during the month of April are beginning to appear. For the roads that have reported so far net income is running somewhat below that for the previous month but is substantially higher than last year.

Making allowance for the fact that there are fewer working days in April than in March net income, in the opinion of most railroad authorities, should show a percentage earned on valuation equal to if not higher than that for March was 5.84 per cent. That net income is not higher, in view of the heavy car loadings, is due to a large extent to increased expenditures for the deferred maintenance and for new equipment. The roads appear to be making every effort to avoid a duplication of last autumn's freight congestion.

The situation in the steel industry pretty well optomizes that for industry in general. Steel men say that too much stress has been placed on the slackness of forward buying. They point out that the mills are operating close to the high rate for the year and that business on their books is sufficient to keep them running for a long time to come. New bookings for many of the mills, furthermore, is almost as large as the volume they are shipping out. Automobile output also continues to exceed earlier predictions, but is up during the summer may be expected.

As one observer summarizes the situation, "it is regarded as a sign of healthy conditions that the slackening came before anything resembling a runaway market had developed. This is held to attest the fact that business men have been watching their step throughout the period of recovery and are not unmindful of the lessons of 1920."

Commodity markets have shown more strength. This is especially true of cotton. Late planting and unfavorable growing weather have brought reduced private estimates of the crop and its condition. Some claim that even a ten per cent. increase in the acreage the crop may not exceed 13,500,000 tons. At any rate strong speculative buying and a heavy covering movement in the old crop months brought a sharp rise during the week. Profit taking appeared on the bulge, as was natural, but it was well absorbed. Short covering also was the chief factor in wheat on fears of a smaller yield due to bad weather conditions.

Money has been fairly abundant and cheap despite recent government financing although no actual changes in rates have occurred. Those in close touch with banking circles say that inability to place all available funds has resulted in reinvestment in securities by some institutions. Firmness in the bond market tends to confirm these reports.

DEBS HAD AN AUDIENCE OF 2,000 IN NEW HAVEN

New Haven, May 27.—The present social system "has fulfilled its historic mission" and is giving way to a new one which will be based in the principles of socialism, declared Eugene V. Debs, well known socialist leader, at a meeting here today.

VICE PRESIDENT COOLIDGE SPOKE IN BRIDGEPORT

Bridgeport, May 27.—"We want no more war. You men and women who have seen it or have been engaged in it want war least of all. We want peace with justice and honor. But this does not justify the government in disregarding history, in leaving the people undefended against national peril at home or abroad. Security lies in the realization that a nation has a known force and spirit. WILLIMANTIC

NORWICH BULLETIN
Willimantic Office
31 Church Street Telephone 1023

At the morning session of the city court on Saturday the continued case of Joseph Arson, charged with intoxication and breach of the peace was taken up. The affair which led to the arrest of Arson was brought out in a new light when evidence was given in the case.

Through interpreter Isadore Heller, Arson told the court that on a certain Saturday night he was visiting at the home of Harry Bashura at 36 Ives street. As the evening progressed he testified he was asked to pay for some drinks and refused. This angered the master of the house and he with a man named Pete Litska pitched into Arson and after administering several telling blows they removed a good sized sum of Arson's money and then threw him out of the house.

Witness could not remember anything more until his wife woke him the following morning while he lay on Bashura's lawn. A cross-examination by Bashura's counsel caused Arson to become confused and he contradicted many of his statements admitting that he really remembered but little of the affair.

Mrs. Arson, wife of the accused, stated that a man from South Manchester had called for her husband at his home and some time later he had returned and told her about the assault. She had then gone and found her husband lying on the ground. While striking her husband on the legs with a broomstick she found that he was injured. Witness then went home to tell her son and in the meantime Arson was placed under arrest.

At the close of her testimony court recessed while warrants were made for the arrest of Litska and Bashura on the charge of assault on Arson.

Bashura had previously been charged with intoxication and Litska was present as a witness.

Lieutenant Allan MacArthur and Officer Lariviere who arrested Arson, testified to the latter's condition.

Bashura said that Arson came to his home about 5 o'clock in the morning and tried to get in. Bashura then called the police, but did not strike Arson.

Mary Waitchi, a neighbor, testified that she saw Bashura strike Arson while the men were in the yard. Mrs. Bashura's testimony was similar to that given by her husband.

Due to the fact that the testimony conflicted, to such an extent, the court decided that the unidentified South Manchester man would have to be found and brought here to testify. The physician who attended Arson will also be asked to take the witness stand. The case was then continued until Saturday, June 2.

Cottrell & Sons Co. can be blown by the telephone central operator was shown on Saturday morning. The shed was burned, the side of the house scorched and windows broken, with damages of $200 to the shed and $150 to the house. ANNOUNCEMENTS

BREED THEATRE.

Utter simplicity of theme, absence of the eternal triangle, and of the blood-thirsting hits, and the application instead of a true-to-life atmosphere, are the reasons for the power of the William Fox special production, The Town That Forgot God, which is the feature at the Breed theatre today, Tuesday and Wednesday.

As in all great dramas, love is the strongest factor. But the love in The Town That Forgot God is that of a small boy for his mother—and humanity. The part of the small boy is played by Bunny Grauer, a juvenile actor who has already made his name on both screen and stage. The story deals with his life before and after the death of his greatest heroine, his mother. She has taught him to have faith always in the Creator—and this faith, in its pureness, saves from complete destruction a community which had shunned him.

One of the outstanding features of this picture is the fact that its action could take place—and probably has taken place—in almost any small community the world over. There are no scenes of lavishness or splendor; instead, the locale is suggestive of the homes of many who today live in villages where the rules are laid down by a select few—and where these few have been blinded to their own faults through greed for money and authority.

Despite its simplicity, The Town That Forgot God is said to convey a powerful lesson—and one that is refreshing by reason of its absolute truth.

The Pathe news completes the bill.

KEITH VAUDEVILLE AT THE BROADWAY THEATRE

A real good program of B. F. Keith vaudeville has been selected for the holiday week, the acts consisting of the following:

Fred Elkins, Joe Fay and Jack Elkins, the minstrel boys, presenting mirth, melody and syncopation.

Ethel Theodore in Kutting in Paris-costa.

Archer and Belford present the comedy The New Janitor.

Manhattan Comedy Four offer Old Times With New Ideas.

In these days of modern drama it is unusual and somewhat refreshing to see announced the opening of the screen version of Charles E. Blaney's famous play, Only a Shop Girl.

After a continued success for more than 25 years on the speaking stage, Only a Bop Girl had been elevated to the realms of the silent drama and its opening at the Broadway theatre is announced for today.

Added to the elements of mystery, comedy and fast action which run through the plan, we understand that the cast is referred to as the "million dollar cast," and the impressive list of nine stars certainly looks it.

Such names as Estelle Taylor, Wm. Busch, Wallace Beery, Tully Marshall, James Morrison, William Scott, Willard Louis and Baby Josephine Adair are sufficient proof of the quality of the picture.

If there were any doubt at all about it, it would be dispelled by the name of the director, Edward Loudat.

STRAND THEATRE.

Bringing paintings to life!

That is the feat Herbert Brenon accomplished in filming The Ramble of Silk, his initial Paramount picture featuring Betty Compson and Conway Tearle, which comes to the Strand theatre starting today.

The producer wished to introduce a small historical retrospect into the action. For this purpose he chose one of the loveliest of Fragonard's Louis XV paintings and literally brought them to life on the screen.

One of these paintings shows a beauty of the period reposing in a swing in an exquisite garden of that day; the second is called La Leçon, and pictures a young student of the day reading to the lady of his heart.

Brenon and his associates developed a small play within a play from these two paintings, with Betty Compson and Conway Tearle in the chief roles. Every detail of both pictures was accurately reproduced before the camera, including the formal garden and the lavish costumes.

To carry out the illusion of bringing the paintings to life, the cameraman resorted to an intricate photographic process whereby the spectator first sees the original painting, and then this dissolves into the same picture peopled with actors, but retaining the fringe which encircled the original painting. The entire effect is of the people of the picture coming to life and moving about on the screen.

The Ramble of Silk is the story of a humble daughter of the people who falls in love with a great nobleman, who subsequently becomes prime minister of England. The story is the present-day descendants of a Parisian silk-weaver, and Brenon's handling of backgrounds not only add to the beauty of the picture but are of considerable value to the stamped photoplay.

Buster has taken a very radical departure in screen roles. He has been the hero for several years in all his comedies. In his latest, The Frozen North, he is a villain. And what a deep-dyed villain.

In this picture, which comes to the Strand theatre today, Keaton undertaken to show the bad men in Alaska a few things about the "badman" profession. And Buster Keaton is the thing himself.

A SENSIBLE ADJUSTMENT.

Whether it is regarded as bluff or a display of a warlike spirit, the unwillingness of Greece to accept the demands of Turkey for a big indemnity and the declaration that it would fight first succeeded in bringing about an adjustment of the new troubles in the near east which must be regarded as not unfavorable to Greece.

There was recognition of the fact that no new outbreak should be tolerated if its prevention was possible. Had Greece submitted to the Turkish demands without courageously opposing them that country would have been saddled with a hugh debt to the Turks. As it is through the display of fight, the presentation of cross claims and the awakening of efforts on the part of others who are desirous to maintain peace terms were agreed upon whereby Greece gives up a small town and the two nations will return ships that were seized.

Inasmuch as there was bound to be the feeling from some quarters that Greece would be responsible should there be another war and expression had been given to the fact that outside aid need not be expected the adjustment must be regarded as fortunate, however much Greece may have been desirous of again trying conclusions on the battlefield.

Likewise it is gratifying that such an influential part was played therein by Joseph C. Grew, United States minister to Switzerland, who is acting as observer for this country at the Lausanne conference. In the interest of peace and the prevention of further distress in the near east the settlement of the differences means much to the rest of the world as well as to that particular region in which the principals are located.

OUR TIMBER SUPPLY.

According to the forestry service any idea that other countries can be depended upon to supply timber after our supply has become exhausted must be abandoned. But why should there be any thought of depending upon other countries for such a supply?

There was a time when we thought it was advisable to depend upon Germany for our supply of dyestuffs. We encouraged the building up of tremendous chemical plants in that country. Instead of doing something for ourselves we poured our dollars into that country and watched it benefit from the elimination of waste and developing experts. There came a time when that dependence was a serious handicap. We were suddenly forced to develop our own chemical and dye plants. We could do it and we did do it, but it only emphasized the fact that we should have fortified ourselves against any such emergency as the war brought by being independent of others.

The situation in regard to timber differs from the dyestuff situation only in the fact that from the beginning we have been able to supply a considerable portion at least of our requirements, and the danger lies in the fact that we are threatening to force ourselves out of that advantageous position by failing to provide for a supply for the future that we can control and leaving ourselves at the mercy of others.

With the demands increasing for timber there should not be overlooked the importance of devoting the proper amount of attention to reforestation and the bringing forth of needed and valuable timber crops from land which is available for such purposes and in some instances could not be profitably used for anything else.

We cannot think of placing our timber requirements in the hands of other countries especially if there is no need of it.

ABSENTEE VOTING.

Another opportunity to watch the operation of an absentee voting bill has been furnished by the legislature of Pennsylvania in passing a measure which has received the approval of the governor.

By this law it is possible for legal voters in that state to cast their ballots just as if they were at home on election day, though they may be out of the country or the state. It is required that persons entitled to vote must appear before an officer authorized to administer oaths and mark his ballot under the scrutiny of such an official and send such ballot, which is printed as an absent voter's ballot, to the county commissioners and by them turned over to the return board.

This legislation has been adopted in response to the demand of that considerable number of voters who are away from their homes on election day. It is required that those who anticipate being away on election day may make application to the county commissioners and fill out a certificate for an absent voter's ballot to be turned over to them. Such application must come within 30 days but not less than three days preceding the election and the ballots must be sent by registered mail.

Traveling men, railroad employes, those who may be temporarily away from home in pursuit of their employment or those away for other reasons can avoid being deprived of their vote by this provision. No provision is made in behalf of the sick or the aged who are not able to get to the polls, but precautions which will safeguard such ballots are believed to have been taken. It marks an extension of the absentee voting which will hold the interest of states where no such law prevails.

NEEDED REFORMS.

Repeatedly in it the case that the lives of one or more individuals have to be sacrificed before the proper amount of attention is directed to the bringing about of needed protection and reforms.

Sacrifices of lives in improperly constructed buildings, fire traps or in other ways frequently serve to center attention upon conditions which ought not to exist, but which might go on indefinitely but for such disclosures.

In the past few months attention has been directed to the conditions that have been prevailing in Florida relative to prisoners. Florida has apparently felt the sting of the criticism that has come from the entire country. It has been awakened to evils that ought not to have been tolerated and to its credit it is noted that it has taken steps to end them. Legislation has been enacted abolishing the use of the lash on prisoners for the purpose of correction or discipline and it has also been decided by the legislature that the convict lease system must end with this year.

That is a remarkable step forward. It doesn't represent the sentiment of the entire state by any means but happily there are sufficient who are able to direct the state in the right path in spite of strong opposition. Florida has had its eyes opened, but it has only begun work of a much needed character. It is setting an example for other states which it is hoped may lead to the display of similar opposition in the not distant future against the practice of lynching in that and other states of the south.

CROSSING THE COUNTRY.

While Lieutenants Macready and Kelley are coming back to Washington from San Diego by easy stages in the T-2 a new aviation record has been established by Lieutenant Crocker. Conditions were different, his equipment was different and the course for the test was different but he has nevertheless accomplished his effort and it stands out as a demonstration of what the aviation forces of this country can do if they are pressed to it.

Flying alone from Houston, Texas, to the Canadian border in eleven and a half hours Lieut. Crocker is the first to cross the country in that direction in a non-stop flight. It was a trip which he made alone, flying extremely low in some instances because of cloud conditions, but he was able to demonstrate the efficiency of his machine and the motor and his ability as a guide for long distance flying.

While no one is anticipating any trouble of a war-like character it is of the greatest importance that protective preparations should not be delayed until a war cloud is seen on the horizon. Through the development of the airplane service, on which more and more dependence is being placed each year, the defense of this country is steadily being strengthened. When it is possible to cross the country in either direction without stopping it indicates how quickly it would be possible to assemble an effective force of airplanes in any secton of the country at short notice.

Records that are being made today are likely to be but temporary. There is little or no way of telling how soon or how badly they will be broken.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Keep your bread in a tin box, not wrapped in a cloth or in paper.

Anchovy pasts and chopped mustard pickles, served on crackers, make an unusually good appetizer.

Mix your cake batter with a large wooden spoon. It becomes light much sooner and is much less tiring for the arm.

For very fine furniture, silk is an excellent polisher. Save your old worn-out silk lingeries for this purpose.

If you will wipe off the sills and door knobs every day with hot soap suds it will make a great difference in the appearance of your house.

A perforated cover for the frying pan prevents grease spattering, saves time and allows the food to brown nicely.

A certain style of toaster to use over the top of the gas stove can also be used to bake potatoes and save them, put your initials on adhesive tape and fasten on bottom of dish.

Rubber caps put over your faucets while washing dishes in the sink will save many chips on your dishes.

Never waste your cold boiled vegetables—use them for salads, purees, stews and fritters.

A new mucilage brush is excellent to clean the joints of your sewing machine.

Dust a little cornstarch on your layer cake before putting on the icing to prevent the icing from running.

If you cannot always have cut flowers for your living room, have a potted plant or so. They give a homelike appearance that is most charming.

When you work in the garden you will find it convenient to wear an apron of stout muslin, with pockets in which to carry the twine, shears, trowel and other things you may need.

To keep cream from spattering and leaving grease spots when whipped, take a piece of waxed paper, cut a hole in it to fit over the bowl.

To make pancakes without smoke or odor, make a little salt bag and rub the griddron with it in place of fat. The cakes will not stick and there will be no smoke or odor.

COOKING VEGETABLES

If the vegetables you put in the soup are for flavoring only they may remain in the broth all the time it cooks, but if they are to be dished in the soup they should be put in only as far in advance as is needed to cook them thoroughly.

CHEST WITH SIDE DOOR

An excellent linen chest is one where the door is in the front instead of on the top, dropping from a hinge at the bottom. Shelves may be arranged inside and the linens kept in good shape, while the top may be covered and used for a seat.

WOODWORK

Add a little common soda to the water with which you wash the sink board and the top of your kitchen table. It will keep the wood clean and light.

OLD PAPERS

Save your old newspapers. They can be put to various uses about the house. They are an excellent substitute for cloth when you are cleaning windows and they are fine for wiping out greasy pans.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

Celery is said to be very beneficial to those suffering with rheumatism or from nervous disorders.

Rowing is one of the best things in the world for giving the arms beautiful contours. A pair of weights with ropes running over a pulley and handles attached to grasp would supply you with ten minutes' arm exercise every day.

Be particular along the sides of the nail to press the skin back gently and firmly since the good appearance of the fingers depends so much upon the smoothness of the cuticle here. If the nails are stained or discolored dip the orangewood stook first in either undiluted lemon juice or peroxide. This will bleach at the same time.

Oatmeal bags are mussy to use and rather a nuisance to prepare, but they will make the bath water nice, and they will whiten and soften the skin. A couple of tablespoonsful in a cheesecloth bag, tied with a bit of ribbon and dropped into the hot water is sufficient. The bag should be squeezed to force out the milky fluid from the meal, and thrown away afterward. If you make up a dozen of these at a time, it wouldn't be so much of a nuisance.

WHITE HOSE, COLORED SHOES

Glove silk, silk-and-lisle and all-lisle hosiery is selling to some extent for sports wear. The wanted colors in silk hosiery continue to be the tan, biege, nude and gray shades, as well as blacks, gunmetal and white. The last-named is coming more and more prominently to the front, both plain and with high-colored clocks. It promises to have a considerable vogue for wear with red, blue and green sandals, in combination with white costumes and millinery or trimmings to match the shoes.—Dry Goods Economist.

ICED RUSSIAN COFFEE

Three cupfuls ice cold, strong coffee; one cupful cocoa, made with milk; two tablespoonfuls cream, four tablespoonfuls powdered sugar. (Sufficient for six).

Combine the ingredients in the order given in a pitcher, stir well and serve in glasses or a chocolate set containing a little crushed ice, with or without a topping of sweetened whipped cream.

THE CARE OF CUT GLASS

Nothing gives a truly house-proud woman greater pleasure than the possession of beautiful cut glass, for all the modern art pottery in the world never makes a table look so lovely as when it shines with well polished glass and silver.

But cut-glass needs a little special patient care if it is always to look its best. The atmosphere has a dulling influence on the glass, so whenever it is not in use it should be protected from the air by wrapping in tissue paper.

Warm soapy water should be used for the washing, and it is a wise precaution to place a folded duster at the bottom of the pan, so that the articles are safe from the likelihood of chipping. For this same reason, never more than one article should be placed in the washing bowl at the same time.

Use a mild pure soap—a strong one spoils the surface—and keep a clean, soft nail brush for the purpose of getting into the pattern. Rinse in clear warm water, and use a towel for drying that can be guaranteed not to fluff. Better still, if you can spare the time, after washing do not rinse or dry, but immediately plunge the articles into a deep box of sawdust, and leave them there for a matter of six hours or so. Then take them out and give a final polish with a leather or some tissue paper. This process will be found to give the glass an unequalled polish.

The sawdust can be dried in the oven, and kept for use another time.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Black lace over black satin is one of the favorite combinations this season.

Pleated chiffon ribbon is being used effectively on summer hats and gowns.

Ruffles of black lace and a wide sash of black velvet trim an exquisite frock of white taffeta.

With many a smart costume of white or colored crepe is worn a hand-knitted jacket of lustrous silk.

Tiny veils of Chantilly lace appear on smart hats of black or brown straw and taffeta.

Very large round ornaments of embroidery or beads are used directly in front on some of the new Oriental turbans.

At the recent millinery show in New York, canes and parasols led in summer accessories. Fans and furs were conspicuously absent.

Large hats of straw and horsehair braid are now being shown to accompany the full-skirted, ruffled bouffant styles of the moment.

Very pretty and ideal for the coming days of summer are jacket blouses of checked voile, in red and white, blue and white, green and white, and lavender and white.

Vestees and frills of organdies have hemstitched hems and the daintiest of embroidery in white. Sometimes a band of color is introduced—usually blue or lavender.

Very lovely and cool looking breakfast coats are made of georgette crepe trimmed with puffings of the material. One of apricot color has a girdle of jade green.

Blouses of Roman striped cotton materials are popular with the summer cotton skirts. Printed cotton crepe and even printed cordurov is also shown.

Red hats are very popular for wear with the red shoes that also are so popular. They are shown in chiffon and georgette with soft crowns and little trimming.

Some very advanced models in coats and suits are made of black satin trimmed with collars of summer fur and with beading or embroidery.

Roses and violets in natural colors that used to blossom on hats have been completely overshadowed by the calla lily, tulip and peony in exotic shades of citron and greenish yellow. They are extremely popular for midsummer.

INCREASE IN TWEEDS

Tweed suits, which so dominated fashoins last season, have taken a surprising turn. It was widely expected that this type of garment would enjoy no vogue at all this season because of its overwhelming popularity last year. The prediction has proven itself false, however, as buyers record a marked interest in tweed apparel.

VOGUE OF WHITE

It is predicted that the coming summer will witness a pronounced vogue of white. Ideal for the simple draped frocks of the moment is heavy canton crepe covered with exquisite self-toned Chinese embroidery. It comes only in white, but is said to take dye beautifully. Another use to which this crepe may be put is in making lamp shades.

FOR SUMMER SPORTS

Cretonne shoes, sunshades and hand bags to match the bathing suit are a clever series of thoughts. The bathing suit for summer, by the way, is frequently of black or dark blue satin, with cretonne panels set into it.

LAUNDRY HINTS

A little borax added to the water in which colored clothes are to be washed will set the color and prevent fading.

A good stand for a flat iron is an ordinary paving brick. It holds heat much longer than the ordinary stand and the iron does not slip.

If you will add a teaspoon of soda or just a little salt to the blueing water it will distribute the blueing and prevent the clothes from looking streaked.

When putting away white muslin curtains remember that starch rots them. So wash them and pack them away unstarched.

Instead of hanging up your crepe de chine blouse to dry after washing wrap it in a Turkish towel. This absorbs the moisture very quickly and soon leaves it just right to iron easily.

Calico may safely be washed by immersing in four quarts of hot water in which three-quarters pint of salt has been dissolved. Leave calico in water until cold. By this time the color will have set, and washing will not fade it.

TO WASH KNIT GARMENTS

Hand knit garments, no matter how loosely knitted, will wash, if made of good yarns and fast colors. The secret lies in the temperature of the water, the purity of the soap, the way the soap is applied and in the drying.

All worsted or all yarn hand knit garments should be washed and rinsed in luke-warm water. Each water should be the same temperature as the preceding water.

The soap should be white and should never be rubbed on to the garment. It should be dissolved in the water before the garment is put in.

Let the garment soak in the luke-warm suds for a few minutes, then squeeze through the hands, avoiding wringing, until the dirt has disappeared. Keep the sweater or the garment under the water while squeezing.

Rinse in luke-warm water, until the water is clair, squeezing the garment as dry as possible for drying. To dry, put a Turkish towel on a flat surface away from the sun and lay the garment on it. If there is a place where the breeze can quicken the drying, so much the better, as the garment so dried will hold its shape better and come out more fluffy.

In placing the garment on the towel, try to stretch it to the original size. Some women find that marking the outline of the garment on the towel before washing it is the best way.

Very stretchy garments should be washed in a pillow slip which is shaken up and down in the suds until the garment is clean, then rinsed until the water is clear. The garment should be left in the pillow slip to dry. The pillow slip should be hung on a clothes line in the shade and where the wind can reach it.

ALL INITIALED

It is proper today to have every garment initialed. One sees the owner's monogram on chiffon sleeves, on the front of the hat, on scarf ends, on shoe buckles, as a motif in embroidery round the belt of a costume blouse and on the tab which finishes a collar or cuff.

CONCERNING WOMEN

To supply fur for trimming her dresses, a French woman breeds monkeys.

In Tibet one woman may have as many as half a dozen husbands at the same time.

New Mexico claims the only woman fish and game warden in the country. She is Mrs. Grace E. Holroyd, wife of a former Boer general.

Miss Ivy Cummings recently won the sports model event in an English auto meet, getting home ahead of a number of male drivers.

In the Tripolian mountains many women live underground, only coming up from their cave homes once in a while, when they marry and change their abode.

CARE OF THE PIANO

Keep piano closed at night and in damp weather. On sunny days let the sun shine on the keys, it will prevent them from turning yellow.

DYEING MATERIAL

Before putting any silk or cotton material into the dyepot, attach strips of cloth about nine inches long to each piece and let these hang over the edge. Then you can turn over the goods without staining the hands.

RECIPES

Rhubarb Frappe—Make a sirup by boiling three cups of water and two cups of sugar ten minutes; add the juice of one lemon and one quart of cooked rhubarb that has been rubbed through a colander; chill and freeze, using equal parts of crushed ice and rock salt. Pour one cup of boiling water over one cup of sultana raisins, let simmer thirty minutes, strain, chill and pour over frappe just before serving. Serve rhubarb frappe when either boiled, baked or planked fish is used as the main dish at dinner.

Whole Bananas Crumbed and Fried—Remove the skins and coarse threads from six uniform bananas, having them rather small for this purpose. Scrape the bananas and roll in slightly beaten egg diluted with three tablespoons of milk, then in fine, soft, sifted bread crumbs, having them well coated. Arrange half of them in a croquette basket and fry three minutes in deep hot fat. Drain on soft brown paper. Serve with roast veal, broiled steak or chops, or with foamy or orange sauce as dessert.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

If Jesus Was Here Today.

Mr. Editor: Once in a while The Man Who Talks suggests an idea that awakens thought. Perhaps the real purpose of that column in your paper is to start your readers to think and to talk, if only just to themselves. Pardon us if we have felt the impulse too strong for us to remain silent on a theme which he has summarized in the opening of his latest talk as something of a too common topic—"What Jesus Would Do If He Were Here."

The presumption is that in this modern age we have got ahead of the old fashioned formulas that obtained in the former times.

There is indeed a strong push to indoctrinate us into the belief that the present times outstrip in learning—in fact in everything that partakes of scholarship, so that many people who find it easier to let others do their thinking hesitate and consent to what seems to them is the general consensus of opinion—namely, that all that is supposed to be of today is new and true and that all of the past is behind the age.

This writer has not been seized with this epidemic, while admitting that we are making headway in some directions.

But, where are we at, Mr. Editor? We have the automobile and the flying machine, the telephone and the wireless, but the best architure is far behind us. The best music. The best poetry. The best art. In both painting and sculpture we are yet imitators. Shakespere is yet behind us some centuries, and indeed, have we and producers of his dramas on the stage today? A tinker wrote The Pilgrim's Progress; have we any tinkers or other college men writing pilgrim's progresses now? Of course we have movie "stars." Mary Pickford and "Fatty" Somebody (I am thankful to have forgotten his name). The best music is past.

But, taking into account all the great men and great things we have today, let us come to the question.—If He were here what would Jesus do?

Well—it seems apparent to us that Jesus would do something just like what he did when He was here. It seems to us that He would be going about doing good. Preaching the gospel to the poor and to the rich.

He would say to the labor union,—if you please, "Come unto me, ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest."

And He would give rest to as many as would come. He would give to these, new and useful thoughts—perhaps inspire some to be creators of thought, so that they could give rest and pleasure to others.

That is, to the real weary because of labor would He impart blessing not to the "born-tired" nor to the congenital sort, but to the real, tired seeker after rest. Very likely if a lawyer came to discuss a point of politics or theology with Him. He would send him away confounded and ashamed before the by-standers, as He often did when on earth.

If a master in Israel—what we might call a professor of a college now; being too busy to follow the multitude after Jesus during the day would seek an interview by night, Jesus would not be too tired after a big day's work to accommodate him—and in that interview He might impart some great truth which the professor was ignorant of and should have known before hand.

A very rich young man might also come and ask Him how he might be saved and Jesus would tell him how to dispose of his wealth and receive greater preforrhent—and possibly in our day, the young man would hesitate, turn away sorrowing and lose his chance, just as another young man really did when Jesus was here. Some day if He was here, and thought it worth while, He might cleanse the temple of money-changers and those who make merchandise of religion. He would certainly explain that sacred use to which such places have been sacredly dedicated and if His renovation only lasted for that one day, it would be a satfaction to those who were in sympathy with Him, and the remembrance of it would establish a precedent. O, yes! If Jesus were here now He would be very busy.

But isn't Jesus here now? Didn't He ordain His church to be His living presence in the world until the end of the ages? Didn't He dedicate His apostles to be His eternal representatives in the progress of time and to maintain the standards and the truths He uttered so that no modern conditions should get in advance of what He taught?

Have we forgotten that He said, "Lo, I am with you always, and no Gates of Hades can prevail against you?" (The Gates of Hades having reference to the councils and judgments of the ungodly.).

Does not the very question, "What would Jesus do if He were here?" show that we have forgotten that He is here—or ought to be here in His delegated authority, not to speak of His real presence in the hearts of believing souls?

Is it not time for us to realize His authority and His sway in all things, who is the Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the end, the first and the last, and resolve to do now what He would have done?

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Mrs. Corbett Ashby, who has just been elected president of the International Woman Suffrage Alliance at its congress in Rome, has been in the public arena since she left college, and her record of work, political, social, and feminist, is large. She comes of a political family, her father having been a Liberal member of the British parliament. As soon as she was of an age to do so she joined various societies in England working for woman's rights and speedily rose to leadership. She became well known as a lecturer on feminist questions not only in England, but in France, Holland and other continental countries. In 1919, when the League of Nations commission and the Labor commission were sitting at Paris, Mrs. Ashby was the spokeswoman for Britain on the women's deputation—allied countries and the United States—to President Wilson and Mr. Gompers of the American Federation of Labor.

John Barton Payne Picked For Mexican Negotiations

COPYRIGHT UNDERWOOD & UNDERWOOD, N. Y.

John Barton Payne, former Secretary of the Interior and now Chairman of the American Red Cross, who has been picked by President Harding as one of the two American commissioners to negotiate for a closer understanding with the representatives of the Obregon Government in Mexico City. The other commissioner is Charles Beecher Warren, former U. S. Ambassador to Japan. The time for the meeting has not been fixed but will be determined soon. Judge Payne has made a study of Mexican affairs and is familiar with conditions in that country. The State Department has made it plain that the arrangement for the meeting in Mexico City is not to be construed in any way as indicating a modification by the United States of the position taken with regard to the recognition of the Obregon Government.

OBITUARY.

George S. Smith.

After a lingering illness for several months, George S. Smith, formerly of this city, died Saturday afternoon about 3 o'clock at the Stone house, Niantic, the Smith homestead, which had been in the family for generations.

George Simon Smith was born in the homestead Oct. 25, 1843, the youngest of the seven children of Deacon Simon and Mary Ann Morgan Smith. As a young man he answered the call to arms at the time of the Civil war, enlisting in the First Connecticut Cavalry, and serving throughout the war. Shortly after the close of the war he located in this city, starting a business on Water street in shoe findings. In company with H. H. Gallup this was enlarged to take in the harness business and subsequently these two partners, with the late Frank Ulmer, bought out the Farnum tannery on Talman street, and conducted the belt and leather business under the firm name of Smith, Gallup & Ulmer. From this the Norwich Belt Manufacturing company was formed, in which Mr. Smith continued for 12 1-2 years. In 1886, after retiring from the belt company, Mr. Smith bought out the coffee and spice business of John Willard and conducted this on Commerce street for several years. He served a term as secretary of the Norwich Board of Trade and then retired from active business life to live at the Stone House farm, Niantic. Later he was appointed superintendent of the Soldiers' home at Noroton, holding this position for about three years, and retiring again to live at the homestead after he had resigned at Noroton.

He was a member and a past commander of Sedgwick post, No. 1, G. A. R., of this city, and was a past department commander of the Connecticut department, G. A. R., having been department commander in 1886. He was secretary of the Cavalry Regimental association, a member of the Society of Founders of Norwich, and president of the East Lyme Historical association. He obtained his Founders' membership through descent from Rev. Nehemiah Smith.

Mr. Smith had been married three times. His first wife, whose death occurred in this city, was Elizabeth Loomis, and of this union there are two children surviving, Mrs. Alice May Bromley of Los Angeles, Cal., and Commander Isaac Bromley Smith, who is now on the Pacific coast and commanded the U. S. S. Cuyama during the war. For his second wife Mr. Smith married Miss Grace Barnard of this city and after her death married her sister, Miss Jane Barnard. She survives him, and he also leaves a sister, Mrs. Abby M. Schofield of Laurel Hill avenue.

He was energetic and successful in business, interested in public and community affairs during his active life, helpful to those with whom he was associated, and devoted to the interests of his family and his home.

George J. Kraft.

The death of George J. Kraft of 35 Perkins avenue, for 30 years janitor of the Central Baptist church, occurred at 10 o'clock Sunday morning after a serious illnes which compelled him to give up his duties at the church about three months ago.

Mr. Kraft, who would have been 63 at his next birthday, Aug. 15, was born in Hessedarmstadt, Germany, and came to this country in 1881 and located in Norwich. He was an expert gardener and was variously employed here until becoming janitor of the church in 1892. That position he had filled with singular faithfulness and conscientious spirit until his illness compelled him to give up active work.

He is survived by his wife to whom he was married 38 years ago in this city. He also leaves two sisters in Germany and a brother in this country. Another sister died three months ago in this city.

He was a member of the Central Baptist church and had the respect and confidence of the officers and the entire congregation for his untiring devotion to the duties of his position which were discharged with thoroughness and a devotion that knew no bounds. He was a loving husband, good neighbor and loyal citizen.

Mrs. William H. McKelvey, Jr.

The long and model life of Ella Rist, wife of William H. McKelvey, Jr., of Poquetanuck came to a peaceful close Sunday morning in this city, after a lengthy illness.

Mrs. McKelvey was born in Poquetanuck, December 8, 1872, the daughter of Joseph and Katherine Rist and spent all of her life in the house in which she was born. On July 26, 1897, in which she was united in marriage with William H. McKelvey, Jr., who survives her with two daughters, the Misses Hulda and Olive McKelvey. She also leaves two sisters, Mrs. Alanson Fuller of Poquetanuck and Mrs. Leavitt C. Sherbourne of Kirksville, Mo., one brother, Benjamin F. Rist of Westerly, a niece, Mrs. Charles Campbell, of Norwich, two nephews, Albert Rist of Lisbon and Harold Fuller of Mt. Hermon, Northfield, a grand niece, Helen Rist of Lisbon, and two grand nephews.

Mrs. McKelvey bore her illness with Christian patience and fortitude and although the best medical skill and the most efficient and loving care was given her, could not be saved. She was a model wife and mother but never too busy to give of her strength to all kinds of good works. Before her marriage she was a member of the choir of St. James' church and for many years was one of the most active members of the Woman's Guild of the parish. She has held the office of vice president for many years and at the time of her death was the presiding officer of the guild. She will be sadly missed at the gatherings of the guild for her presence could always be depended upon and her judgment was always good, being ruled by a kind and loving heart. In her death her family met with a loss that can never be replaced.

UNCASVILLE MAN DIES AFTER CRASH ON MOTORCYCLE ON PRESTON ROAD

Reginald G. Hewitt, 21, of Uncasville, died about 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon at the Backus hospital in this city, from injuries received about an hour before when the motorcycle he was riding struck a telegraph pole on the Preston City road about four miles from this city.

Hewitt was rushed to the hospital in the automobile of A. J. Fitzgerald of 145 Rockwell street soon after the accident. He was in an unconscious condition from concussion of the brain, and also had severe lacerations on the right side of his face and head and on his right knee.

Hewitt was one of a party of six motorcyclists who were returning from a fishing trip. He was riding in advance of the others with John Filburn of this city on the next machine in line. According to Filburn Hewitt turned to look back at the others as he was rounding a curve and as he did so took one hand off his handlebars. At the same time his machine struck a pile of soft dirt in the road, skidded and shot across the road into the pole.

The other in the party gave the injured man what help they could and a few minutes after the accident happened Mr. Fitzgerald came along in his car. He at once took Hewitt into his machine and rushed him to the Backus hospital, reaching the institution in 20 minutes.

It was reported that the driver of one machine that had come along before Mr. Fitzgerald and had been asked to take the injured man to the hospital had refused to render help and had driven away.

Medical Examiner C. C. Gildersleeve made a partial investigation of the accident Sunday night and gave permission for the body to be removed from the hospital to the undertaking rooms of C. A. Gager.

FIND MEN ACCUSER OF TYING ROPE ACOSS BRIDGE

Constable Jeremiah Sweeney of Fitchville followed up the mystery surrounding the rope which was stretched across the bridge at Fitchville about 1 o'clock Saturday morning, discovered by Dr. Harry E. Higgins of this city while riding home, and on Saturday morning succeeded in finding the guilty parties.

Two of them, boys whose ages were given as 16 and 17 years old, are alleged to have confessed their part in the rope mystery. The other two mixed up in the affair are young men whose ages are 21 and 24 respectively. All four were presented before Justice of the Peace John J. Sweeney at Fitchville Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock and their cases were continued for one week. The officials withheld the names of the offenders until after the next hearing.

The discovery of the boys came after Constable Sweeney's sister told of seeing the boys go by her house after 1 o'clock Saturday morning. Following the lead it was short work to find the boys and it is said that they confessed to tieing the rope across the bridge for a joke, having secured it from a flagpole in the yard of the Johnson school about 300 yards west of the bridge.

The rope happened to be weakened by the weather and this probably saved a serious accident for when Dr. Higgins saw the rope ahead he increased the speed of his automobile and broke through, reporting the case to the police upon arriving in this city.

Constable Jeremiah Sweeney of Fitchville, who was driving by noticed the man was somewhat injured and had Abel carry the man to the Backus hospital where it was seen that his injuries were not serious, simply consisting of bruises about the head and body and he was sent home shortly afterwards.

Mr. Abel stated that as he was driving along the highway the man walking beside the road suddenly staggered in front of his machine and before he could stop he struck the man. It was said by people at the scene of the accident that Baron had been drinking and was evidently under the influence of the intoxicant while walking home.

HENS ARE AT PEAK OF LAYING IN MAY

Year in and year out with great regularity the peak of production in a mixed poultry population is reached in the middle of May. From that time on the poultryman's problem is not to increase egg production but to see that it does not fall off too rapidly. Records of previous years show that the first two weeks in May are the best fortnight in the year for eggs. Furthermore, at the end of this two weeks period, which means on or about the middle of May, hens have laid half their eggs for the year. Thus ordinarily one can multiply by two any pen's production up to this period and get a fairly accurate estimate of its performance for the year. There is now, however, a question in the mind of the management at Storrs as to how these average production figures will be affected by the use of artificial lights at the beginning and the end of the year.

The total yield for all pens in the twenty-ninth week was 4,214 eggs or a yield of 60 per cent. A pen of White Leghorns entered by Hollywood, Wash., and a pen of Rhode Island Reds entered by Harriett F. Lawton of Longmeadow, Mass., tied for first place for the week with a yield of 53 eggs each. Another pen of White Leghorns entered by F. M. Johnson of Waldoboro, Maine, was in second place with a score of 47 eggs. Three pens of Legborns entered by Ernest H. Scott of Farmington, Conn., Emory H. Bartlett of Enfield, Mass., and M. J. Quakenbuch of Nutley, N. J., tied for third place with a total of 54 eggs each. Barred Rocks entered by Edgar Stoughton of Wapping, Conn., and White Leghorns owned by D. B. Wells of Petaluma, Calif., tied for fourth place with a production of 53 eggs each.

Words Worth Remembering.

Edward Everett stood deservedly high among intellectual giants, foremost statesmen and most eloquent orators. Once upon a time he gave expression to a thought that ought to be stamped upon every real American mind. "An intelligent people," he said, can scarcely ever be, as a class vicious, and never, as a class, indolent. The excited mental activity operates as a counterpoise to the stimulus of sense and appetite."

As much company as I have kept, and as much as I love it, I love reading better, and would rather be employed in reading than in the most agreeable conversation.—Pope.

WANTS TO HELP OTHER WOMEN

Grateful for Health Restored by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Chicago, Ill. — "I am willing to write to any girl or woman who is suffering from the troubles I had before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. My back always ached, so I could not go about my housework, and I had other troubles from weakness, I was this way for years, then my sister-in-law took the Vegetable Compound and recommended it to me. In the time I have been taking it, it has done wonders for me. I keep house and am able to do lots of work besides."—Mrs. HELEN SEVCIK, 2711 Thomas St., Chicago, Ill.

Women suffering from female troubles causing backache, irregularities, pains, bearing-down feelings and weakness should take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Not only is the worth of this splendid medicine shown by such cases as this, but for nearly fifty years this same sort of experience has been reported by thousands of women.

Mrs. Sevcik is willing to write to any girl or woman suffering from such troubles, and answer any questions they may like to ask.

"Watchdog of the Treasury."

"The watchdog of the treasury" was a title first given to Judge William Steele Holman, a United States representative from Indiana. He was elected first in 1850, and with the exception of the Thirty-ninth, Forty-ninth, Forty-fifth, Forty-sixth and Fifty-fourth congresses, served continuously until his death, April 22, 1897, in Washington. He received the "watchdog" title because of his championship of economy and his opposition to new appropriations and measures which he considered extravagant.

The Great Cathedrals.

They are more than buildings . . . The work of a man, a man can understand; but these are the work of ages, of nations. Nothing is marked, nothing is clever, nothing is individual nor thrust forward as artistic; they are serene, masterly, non-personal, like works of nature—indeed, they are such, natural manifestations of the minds of men working under the impulse of a noble idea.—W. R. Lethaby.

Philip Caught On.

Philip was slow in his studies, due to the fact he did not apply himself, but spent most of his time playing. His aunt was at the house one day, and was telling about the little cousins—how well they were getting along in school, music, etc. Philip took it all in, and as she was leaving, he said: "Much obliged, auntie, for trying to put a little ambition in me."

Lincoln's Address.

Mother had carefully spelled out Lincoln's address, inscribed on the cannon ball in front of the monument in Lincoln park . . . "All men are created free and equal," she read, . . . Her small son pondered the problem for a long time, then said: "Ve wimmen, muvver, how is t'ey borned?"—Chicago American.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Following the custom of years there were Memorial Sunday services of impressive interest at Dayville and at South Killingly and many hundreds of people participated or were spectators of the day's observance. In each instance there was a procession of patriotic societies to cemeteries where soldiers of the nation's carlous wars lie at rest. Graves of all the soldier dead were marked with flags and decorated with flowers.

Patriotic organizations with headquarters in Danielson participated in the services held at South Killingly.

At St. James' church at the eight o'clock mass Sunday morning a class of more than 70 boys and girls girls received their first communion. This impressive feature of the Trinity Sunday services was witnessed by several hundred praishioners. The little girls were dressed in white and wore veils, while the boys wore dark suits. In the afternoon the class was again assembled for renewal of their baptismal vows.

There are many indications these beautiful spring Sundays that many motorists are under the impression that they have been endowed with something akin to the freedom of the seas when they take out a registration —meaning that they drive onto the property of people who are utter strangers to them, leave down barways, trample down field of grass, break blossoming branches from trees and help themselves generally to about everything in sight. This sort of procedure is an important factor in the increase of no trespassing signs and notices of "forbidden" that are in ever increasing number. Only a small percentage of motorists do the unworthy things herein pointed out, but those who are guilty are far too numerous and they are the group that spoil the legitimate pleasures for other parties who know property rights and respect them.

John Tanguay, 34, died Sunday morning at the home of his sister, Mrs. Joseph Gagne, Elm street, after a lingering illness. He was born on the West Side and spent the early years of his life here, but had lived for years in Adams, Mass., before returning to Danielson the last time.

A death at Wauregan Saturday was that of Louis Legary 32. He was a native of Canada, but had been a resident her for year. Mr. Legary leaves a wife and three children.

The body of George Latham, who died at the Killingly town farm, is at the undertaking rooms of L. E. Kennedy. Mr. Latham had been an inmate at the farm only a bhief time. He was 65 years of age.

Big carnival Memorial day—all day —at Sacred Heart grove, West Wauregan. A Cleveland touring car given away. Don't miss this big holiday event.—adv.

John Whalen of Boston, formerly of Danielson, was a visitor with friends in Danielson Sunday.

It is related that a local party of fishermen at Beach pond Saturday caught 150 perch and received 1211 blankety bites.

Next Sunday will be observed as Corpus Christi at St. James' church, commemorating the institution of the Blessed Sacrament. There will be the customary procession of the Blessed Sacrament, all societies of the church participating.

Cemeteries all through this section were crowded with people giving attention to lots and graves Sunday in preparation for Memorial day.

Wednesday will be observed generally as a holiday in Danielson. Manufacturing concerns will close their plants and theaterers, excepting in special instances, will suspend business. The postal service will be curtailed, as heretofore announced.

Sunday was another day of tremendously heavy traffic through Danielson. Saturday and Sunday was marked by a series of accidents in which motor cars figured, as told elsewhere in this paper today.

On Friday, Saturday and Sunday next tridum of prayer will be observed at St. James' church. On Memorial day at St. James' there is to be a mass, in memory of those who have fought in the nation's wars, and all the parish is bidden to attend this service as a mark of respect to the honored dead.

Many former residents of this town were at Dayville or South Killingly on Sunday to attend the Memorial Sunday services held in those places and attended by large numbers of people.

Two Moosup residents were locked up at the police station in Central Village during Sunday, and today will face charges of operating a motor vehicle while they were under the influence of liquor and one of them with assaulting Night Officer Russell of Moosup and knocking him out while he was engaged in trying to quell a brawl. Sheriff Tillinghast of Central Village made the arrests early Sunday morning and the state police investigated the case during the day.

HOW TO FORGET TROUBLES

TROUBLES knock up your system like Jack Dempsey knocks down his opponent.

Troubles deal blows both in the head and stomach—and they hurt the stomach more than they do the head!

Troubles give the stomach indigestion, slow up the liver—and then follow constipation and biliousness.

The way to get rid of troubles is to invigorate digestion, stimulate liver and bowels and tone up the entire system. The best way to do this—has been for the past 60 years—is to take Beecham's Pills.

Then you will feel so good that "troubles" become merely problems, to be solved readily by the clear, keen brain of health.

TOURING CAR GOES DOWN TEN FOOT EMBANKMENT

(Special to The Bulletin)

Danielson, May 27.—Freshly applied road oil which had not been sanded because of lack of time caused an accident on lower Dyer street Saturday morning about nine o'clock, a touring car owned and driven by Iscah Keach of Putnam skidding off the state highway, leaping across the trolley track and rolling down an embankment, where it landed upside down with the wheels spinning around like a roulette set.

None of the five passengers in the car were dangerously injured, though Mrs. Keach was hurt about the side and Mrs. Leon Keach, her daughter-in-law was quite badly hurt about the legs. Mr. Keach was bruised about the legs, but not hurt badly and was able to be about and attend to the removal of the car. Two children of Mrs. Leon Keach, Herbert and Sybil, escaped without injury, the boy getting clear of the car before it rolled over.

The accident happened just opposite the borough farm. Mr. Keach said he was driving to Norwich to attend a funeral. When he saw the freshly applied oil where a state highway crew was covering the entire surface of the road his first thought was to turn about and go via Brooklyn to Wauregan and then south, but he finally decided to go ahead. When the wheels of the car struck the oil the machine slid toward the east side of the road then slid the other way, and rolled over sideways down an embankment of about eight to ten feet, landing bottom up. The injured women were taken to the house on the borough farm and given attention. On Sunday their condition was satisfactory, though Mrs. Leon Keach was suffering with a badly bruised knee.

Motorists who happened along lent a hand in righting the car, which was hauled back into the highway by a truck owned by F. A. and F. C. Davis. The car was considerably battered. The top was crushed, windshield broken, fenders bent and the machine otherwise damaged, but not as badly as one might expect, all considered.

AUTO LAW VIOLATORS FINED IN NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, May 27—Guiseppi Contino yesterday in the police court, was fined $100 for being so reckless that he run his truck against a tree on Pequot avenue and dumped himself out, John Longo, and the wives of both and the children also. There were a dozen or fourteen people in the truck when it started out, with Guiseppi at the wheel and women and children huddled together in the body of the vehicle. The police when they were called to the spot on Pequot avenue where the truck was a wreck declared that Guiseppi was intoxicated.

When Contino was fined he declared that he would not pay—he had no money to pay with, and he asked to have a bond fixed that he might appeal. Then he produced some hundred and twenty dollars and settled up.

Frank Knight, a negro chauffeur for a Mr. Davis from Norfolk, Va., was in court to answer for operating a machine without having a license. He was fined $25. When Knight was arraigned in court he represented that a Miss Davis, who was his passenger, possessed a license and said that had the officer who stopped him called for it the license would have been shown to him. The court gave Knight several days in which to show that Miss Knight possessed the necessary paper. It turned out today that she didn't have a license to operate in this state, though she might have had one that permitted her to operate a car in Virginia. Knight now has the license he should have had when he was apprehended, but the back of it is decorated with the information that he was convicted of operating a car without the license and it shows that he was fined $25.

David Alter, a resident of Montauk avenue, was fined $25 for passing a trolley that was discharging passengers on Outer Broad street at night. Alter gave one Fred Arnold a shock by running so close to him as he left the car that he was compelled to jump back or be run down. Arnold appeared in court to tell how the circumstance occurred, but Alter nevertheless insisted that he did not run by the trolley car while passengers were alighting.

His way of reasoning was that he had a baby in his car and that he would not take the risk therefore of hitting some one. That reason did not pass with the court as a satisfactory one and so the fine was imposed.

An automobile owned and operated by Louis Margolis of No. 670 Bank street and a car owned and driven by Joseph L. Richards were in collision this afternoon at the corner of State and Meridian streets. The damage was slight.

A search for the trio of young women was instituted, but did not result in any trace of them being found. The New London police were requested to be on the lookout for them and if located to hold the girls until an official of the institution arrives to escort them back to the farm.

Frank Greenman, of Golden street, employed by Sullivan & Christianson, truckmen, was taken into custody this evening by Patroiman Clarence Wells, charged with taking an automobile truck belonging to his employers without permission to do so. He will be arraigned in the police court tomorrow morning and pending his trial he will be a prisoner at the police station as he was intoxicated when arrested and could not procure surety on his bond for appearance in court.

The police were called to Cape Ann Court this evening where a fight was in progress, but when the patrol and the officers reached there the fighters had dispersed.

Following their annual custom of paying respect to the dead who paid with their lives while in the service by drowning, the W. W. Perkins Post, G. A. R., and the Women's Relief Corps this evening strewed flowers upon the waters of the Thames as a tribute in memory of the soldiers and sailors, whose bodies lie at the bottom of the ocean.

The two organizations marched from Union hall to the municipal pier where large quantities of flowers were dropped to the river's surface while the assemblage rendered sacred hymns. In the Memorial day parade Wednesday morning these organizations will be represented, provision having been made for their appearance in the line of marchers by providing automobiles for their transportation.

Memorial day will be observed in this town in the usual manner, with a parade, which will leave Union square at 9 a. m., daylight saving time. The line of march will be down Main street to the Baptist church, countermarch up Main street to South Main street to Robbins cemetery, where the soldiers' graves will be decorated with appropriate exercises. Reforming, the parade will return by Main street to Union hall, where an appropriate program has been arranged by the committee. Hon. John T. Barry of Jewett City will be the speaker.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE-AWAKES.

Dressin' Up in Mother's Things.

When Mother's awful busy and can't watch us very much,
We love to take her georgette waists, and kimono, and such,
And dress up like real ladies in her hat and muff and scarf,
Till Mother comes and catches us, and makes us take them off.

We have fun with her powder, and her veils, and hats and rings;
There's nothin' glorioser than to dress in Mother's things.
But when we get her shoes on, the old heels, they clatter so,
That Mother knows what we're about, and then—to bed we go!

One time the baby had her scarf, and lovely sealskin muff—
The puppy thought they were a dog, and treated them so rough
The lovely button was all chewed, the cord was pulled to strings—
It's always so excitin' dressin' up in Mother's things.

But Mother doesn't play at all; she says we're "naughty," "bad,"
The very worst three children that a mother ever had.
And then she puts us all to bed—"To bed, mind you, to stay!"
And then we cry, and then, she kisses all our tears away.

And then we promise to be good, as good as good can be;
And so we are, till next time, but it's awful fun, you see.
To wear the clothes that Mother wears, her fixin's and her rings,
And make believe we're ladies, dressin' up in Mother's things.

When She is Ill.

The silken window drapes are stirred
By playful breezes, and a bird
Is pouring out in ecstasy
How beautiful the spring can be!
We do not heed the call of May;
Our little girl is ill today.

The garden flaunts its tulips red,
We stop unheeding, by her bed.
The scent of springtime in the air
Reminds us that the world is fair.
We cannot heed the call of May;
Our little girl is ill today.

But soon we'll fling the doors ajar
And hand in hand go out and far,
And revel in the harmony
Of bird and flower and breeze and bee.
When welcoming the spring we'll say,
Our little girl is WELL today!

—Anne Campbell, in Detroit News.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE-AWAKES.

In a little southern village a few days ago fire started in a schoolhouse during a commencement play, and as a result over 70 people, most of whom were children, were burned or trampled to death. Such sad happenings are rare, fortunately, but it is well to know what to do when a fire breaks out in a crowded room or building.

Should you ever be in a crowded room or building and hear the cry "Fire!" try not to be frightened and, above all things, don't get excited, and don't start to run. Look around and locate yourself, find out where the exits are without losing any more time than you have to, and then leave the building as rapidly as you can without crowding or pushing others. If others, not as calm as yourself, are pushing and crowding around the door, avoid getting into the crush. More people are killed in mad rushes than are burned by fire in cases where fire breaks out in a building.

If the smoke should happen to be so dense that you cannot breathe, try to get a wet cloth, hold it over your mouth and nose and breathe through the cloth. This helps to keep the smoke from your lungs. Remember that the clearest air is always near the floor, as smoke tends to rise towards the ceiling, so if necessary crawl along the floor towards the doors or windows.

Never run or jump through flames, unless there is no other way of escaping, and then be sure to cover your head and as much of your body as you can with a blanket or heavy clothing.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE-AWAKES

How Soap is Made.

Dear Uncle Jed: Soap is composed of [illegible] and oils or fatty acids. Soap is used for the purposes and for the said [illegible]

[illegible] brown color. It is put into a kettle fitted with a slow moving agitator.

When the soap in the kettle has cooled, it is pumped into mixers and the materials, which aid in washing are added.

When it is thoroughly mixed the soap is dropped into a frame or a large mould. There it remains until it is cool and solidified.

When the soap is solidified it is cut into slabs. The frame of the soap is pushed into a machine and after stamping the soap it is wrapped and put into boxes.

The fats used in making laundry soaps are tallows, greases and vegetable oils of various kinds.

Soap is used for washing clothes, bathing, housecleaning and personal bodily cleanliness of hands, nails and hair.

How Pencils Are Made

Dear Uncle Jed: Graphite is a black material with a greasy feeling. It is found in Sonora, Mexico and the island of Ceylon.

Clay of a fine quality is essential in the making of lead. The more clay used the lighter the lead is made. After the graphite and clay are mixed it is made wet and mixed into dough and then put into steel cylinders from which it comes out in the form of a round shoe string.

It is then cut in lengths about the length of a pencil and set aside to dry. After it is dry it is cut in the length of a pepcil.

The red cedar comes from the southern states. It is cut into slats about seven inches long and the width of six lead pencils. The grooves are then cut for the leads. Then the wood is worked down to a pencil, painted and stamped.

Our Lost Dog

Dear Uncle Jed: One day my father went out hunting with his dog Sport. The dog is black and white, with a few brown spots. He soon began barking and my father went the direction the dog was barking. But Sportie was going farther and farther away.

So in about five hours my father came home. At night time my father began to wonder where Sport could be, because it was unusual for him to stay away after dark.

The next day, my uncle passed by our house and told my mother a man told him some school children said they saw a dog that had brown, white and black spots. They also said they fed him and that he had a place on his back that looked as if someone had hit him. But before my father arrived home Sportie came home.

When he got home the dog ran to the door and began to bark, as if to say, "I am alright master."

I hope all the Wide-Awakes will like my story for it is true.

Lost in The Woods

Dear Uncle Jed: One night as I was coming home from my aunts, I took the shortest way home. I walked and walked and saw nothing except the forest. Suddenly I came to a little hut. Although it was very late I knocked. A woman appeared at the door and asked what I wanted at that hour. I answered, "I have lost my way home." She made me come in and her daughter took me home in the morning.

A Picnic in the Woods

Dear Uncle Jed: I will tell you about the picnic in the woods.

Helen Brown's mother asked me if I wanted to go on a picnic, and I readily accepted the invitation. We were to start on June 21.

June 21 was a beautiful day and the sun was shining very brightly. About eight o'clock, Maria, Florence and Helen Brown called for me. My mother had already prepared my luncheon and I was now ready to start.

We walked about one-half mile. We reached the woods and soon found a spot to spread our luncheon. We all sat down and ate our luncheon. After lunch we walked around and gathered flowers.

We started for home at evening and arrived at 7 o'clock.

Care of Clothes and Shoes.

Dear Uncle Jed: In taking care of our clothes we should air them on a pleasant day. Our suits, dresses and skirts should be hung on a clothes-hanger in a clothes press. The clothes should be aired and brushed every week.
